HOME OF THE BIG TREES.

Forest Giants In the Sequoia and General Grant National Parks.

The Sequoia and General Grant National parks, the home of the big trees, are situated in Tulare and Fresno counties, Cal., and are celebrated mainly for the great groves of the big trees which are scattered through them. Sequoia National park may be reached from Visalia, thence by way of electric railway to Lemon cove, thence forty miles by stage or private conveyance to Camp Sierra, in the park. General Grant National park can be best reached from Sanger, thence by automobile, stage or private conveyance, a distance of forty-six miles to the park.

The streams and lakes in these parks afford splendid trout fishing, boating and bathing. The waters are all pure and fit to drink. The forests contain the largest, oldest, tallest and most valuable trees in the world. Aside from the giant Sequoia, there are other forests of pine, fir, cedar and many deciduous trees that are truly royal. There are many shrubs, wild flowers, ferns and mosses of superb beauty, while frolicking wild animals and beautiful song birds are another enjoyable feature of the parks.

In four of the groves certain trees within them have been named, while in all other groves they have not. The General Sherman tree was discovered by James Wolverton, a hunter and trapper, on Aug. 7, 1879, at which time he named the tree in honor of General Sherman, under whom he had served during the war. The General Grant tree was named by Mrs. Lucretia P. Baker, who was a member of the party which camped near the tree in August, 1867. This tree has a height of 264 feet and a base diameter of thirty-five feet.

EXPECTATION OF LIFE.

Years One May Count Upon Living at Any Given Age.

No statistics have been calculated with greater care than the tables which give the exact expectation of life for men and women at various ages. These mortality tables are officially accepted by the various states in the United States, and from them the life insurance companies compute their rates of insurance. They are as accurate as the most carefully gathered figures can make them.

At ten years of age the expectation of life is 48.72 years. When one has reached the age of twenty the chances are much improved, and there is still an expectation of 42.20 years before one. At the age of twenty-five the average has improved, and there are still some thirty-nine years ahead.

For the normal man or woman thirty years of age the average length of life is sixty-five years. A person thirty-five years old may count, according to these tables, on thirty-two years more.

As each milestone is passed the prospect brightens. Thus at the age of forty the prospect is for nearly twenty-nine years more, and at forty-five there is an expectation of twenty-five more years.

By the fiftieth year the expectation is about twenty-one years, and in the fifty-fifth year it is nearly eighteen more. A man of sixty may look forward with some confidence to fifteen more years of life, and this increases so that at seventy years the prospect is eight years. On having successfully passed the eightieth year there is an expectation of about five years.—Exchange.

Pat and the Lava.

An Irishman, having returned from Italy, where he had been with his master, was asked in the kitchen. "Now then, Pat, what is the lava I hear the master talking about?"

"Only a drop of the crater," was Pat's reply.

An Episode In Mexico

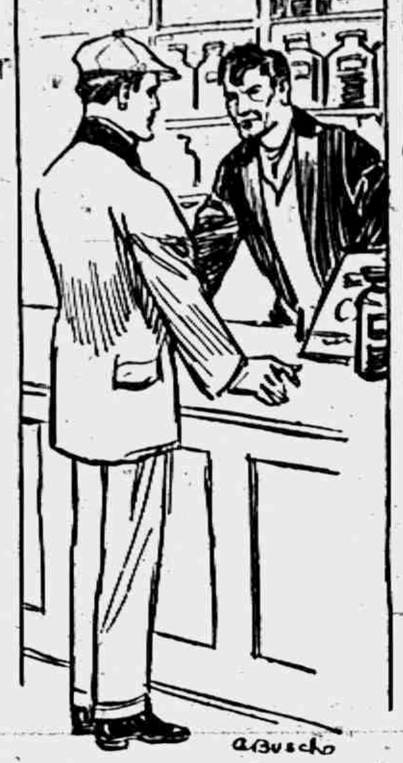
By BURKE JENKINS

Copyright by Frank A. Munsey Co.

Nick's little back room on the ground floor was our customary meeting place. Here we came together in the equality of true democracy. There have been evenings when eleven or twelve different professions of our throbbing metropolis were represented about Nick's little three legged table.

This evening attentive ears were turned toward Carusworthy, the opulent. That gentleman busied himself for a moment with a seltzer siphon. "Yes," he commented, "I rather believe in secret societies, fraternities, brotherhoods or whatever you choose to call 'em—that is, some of them."

He lounged into an easier attitude. "It happened down in Mexico in the state of Chihuahua—little, old, driedup town—can't exactly recall the name, but it began with a V."



"THE TALE WAS RATHER A TALL ONE."

"Varrejo?" inquired Shaw, the detective, quietly.

"The very place," agreed Carusworthy, glad to come by the name. "You know your geography, Shaw."

"Have to," was Shaw's laconic answer.

"Well," went on the narrator, "I had been making a thorough investigation of certain mines in which I was interested.

"Of course it had been convenient to make my visits to the nearest shipping points of the mines in my private car, and I had managed pretty well to avoid those sad hostelries of a flea bitten populace. I carried my own hotel. On the night of which I'm telling my car had been sided at a little town not an inch on the map from the Texas border, and I was counting on hitting the states some time the next day. Varrejo was the name, as Shaw reminded me.

"But the through limited that was to pick me up was reported full six hours late, and an attack of acute indigestion didn't help me to look on the bright side of the situation.

"I went to bed early, but sleep wouldn't woo for a copper. So I got up, slipped on the universal duck and Panama rig of the clime and time, left the car without being seen by any of my attendants and made for anything that might show semblance of a drug store. I rustled into a dilapidated wickiup, roused a profusely polite Mexican from postprandial slumber and demanded some cure all device of the doctor's for that sense of oppression.

"He led, with many explanations, to a stuffy little rear room, and there I underwent the ordeal of the most conglomerate mixture of all the Russian-Turko-Fiz Zip, steam-calorific baths that ever I suffered the shock of.

"But, nota bene, it did the trick. I became another 'pleased patron' and reached for my roll for the wherewith to requite my deliverer.

"My hasty toilet had omitted the prime necessity. I explained matters; hastened back to the siding.

"My car was gone. The through limited had caught up some of that lost time and, likewise, as per schedule, had caught up my outfit and was now merrily whirling my belongings northward. And my crew thought I was comfortably ensconced for the night. It was distinctly annoying.

"I hastened back to the apothecary and explained the situation. I could not blame him for that smile of incredulity which broke through his set politeness. The tale was rather a tall one, and it was evident that he took me for a new species of the genus grafter.

"I first turned my attention toward a civilized expedient in this extremity. 'Will you direct me to the telegraph office?' I assumed more or less of an imperial tone, for I calculated on soon disabusing my creditor of his erroneous impression concerning myself and standing. 'I will telegraph to New York for money.'

"'Certainly! What's odd about that?' I replied, somewhat nettled by his attitude, for I could see that his alarm was coupled to a hatred which an unpaid bill could scarcely account for.

"He changed his face on the instant, and, assuming a semblance of his former politeness, he said: 'Certainly, senor. I myself will conduct you to the telegraphic office, though it is rather late.'

"He led the way up a dingy street, casting furtive and what seemed to me uneasy glances at a little shack beside what I took to be a freight depot. My guide here left me for a moment, saying, 'I'll see what can be done, senor.'

"He disappeared into the shack and returned a minute later. 'Extremely sorry, senor, but the telegraph office is closed.'

"I didn't believe him, so I pushed my own way into the house and confronted a sleepy operator. 'The line is closed,' snapped that worthy before I could say a word.

"For some reason these two were in collusion against me. The why of it I couldn't fathom. The apothecary had apparently tipped this fellow off—to what I couldn't imagine.

"Accordingly, in distinct chagrin, I left the two and strode off into the night to think my situation over.

"But I had never been a man to look too long on the wrong side of a cloud, so it didn't take a great while for me to catch a glint of the silver lining.

"And this glint could almost be said to be a glint in very fact, for as I rambled around those tangled streets of that little old town I became aware of a gleam of light upon a hill just without the village limits.

"To add to the cheer, from time to time I caught the sound of music.

"Now, I have never been characterized by bashfulness, so, carried away perhaps by the entire incongruity of my whole evening thus far, I decided to add to it, and I headed for the scene of merriment, the grand house on the hill.

"I entered from a balcony unobserved, for the dance was in full swing, and I'm here to state that when a Spaniard dances he puts all that's in him in it. As for the senoritas I'm silent, for words fail on occasion.

"So I will attempt no description of that little woman who sat somewhat apart from the dancers, eagerness written all over her. 'Of course she must dance!' I stated emphatically to myself. 'What in the world can these fellows mean by leaving her for a wallflower?'

"Without further thought I trotted up to her and asked for the dance. At first she looked up in alarm; then, the spirit of coquetry conquering, she merely glanced down the hall before she rose and took my arm.

"When the dance ended I led the pretty senorita out on the balcony, where I had observed tables for refreshments.

"Seated vis-a-vis we continued the frothy conversation we had begun inside. As we chatted I looked up at her. Her gaze had left me and was fastened with frozen fear on something behind my back.

"I glanced up quickly, for something glinted above me. It was a pretty bit of a stiletto, and I could even note the arm that wielded it. There, tattooed on the tender skin of the under forearm, was the device of a brotherhood. I belonged to that order myself.

"But no time was there for an interchange of signals. I reached a quick hand and caught the wrist above me. Then I shoved forward, bringing my assailant with one lunge on to my back, and, with the impetus of my vigorous resistance, over the balcony rail we both went, landing in the shrubbery. I fell on top.

"The fellow was not seriously hurt, but without much trouble I wrested the jeweled weapon from his grasp, and as he recovered from the shock of the fall I leaned toward him and whispered something in his ear.

"His entire attitude changed, and in spite of his bruises he jumped to his feet and called to the anxious faces that peered from the balcony down into our darkness in the shrubbery: 'It's all right, friends. I have made a mistake. Nobody hurt.'

"And then he explained matters to me. He was the son of Don Roderigo, chief man of that region, and had had the misfortune to be ignorant of the views of the United States in such matters as the too free use of knife or revolver. It seems he had been forced to track an enemy to New York, and there, ignorant of our viewpoint and caring little, he had found him and knifed him after the most approved Castilian style.

"It had all been about that very girl I had just danced with too. Now, the friends of the murdered man had even gone so far as to get out extradition papers, and it had been rumored that detectives had set out for the border.

"'Then you took me for a detective looking for you?' I asked, beginning to comprehend.

"'Exactly,' he answered, 'and Pedro, the apothecary, my good friend, thought so too. It didn't help matters, either,' he went on, with a half smile, 'when I returned from Pedro to find you dancing with my partner.'

"Well, there is little more to add, gentlemen, except that for two days, until my car returned, that populace turned itself loose doing nice things to me. But I have often wondered how the real detective fared when he arrived in that tender spot. I'll bet he had his troubles."

"He did," drawled Shaw, the detective. "In fact, I had to give that case up."

PROTEST COSTS MAJOR RANK

Major H. A. Grube Is Made Captain in Justice to Another.

Grayling, Mich., Aug. 31.—Major Howard A. Grube, commander of the field hospital of Grand Rapids, was reduced to the rank of captain by the military board of the Michigan National guard at its meeting at Camp Ferris.

The change was made to settle a question, raised by Captain Ernest C. Lee of the ambulance corps who by rule was eligible for a majorship ahead of all other captains in that branch of the service. A while ago the government war department informed the state military authorities that the field hospital should be commanded by a major. Captain Grube, who was in command of the hospital, was appointed as the logical man.

REFORMS IN DIVORCE AND MARRIAGE LAWS

Michigan Commissioners Recommend Drastic Changes.

Flint, Mich., Aug. 31.—Radical changes in the marriage and divorce laws of Michigan will be made at the approaching session of the legislature if that body should approve of certain recommendations embodied in the report of the commission created by the last legislature to revise and consolidate the state statutes.

The commission favors the incorporation of a provision in the marriage laws requiring applicants for marriage licenses to make affidavits as to their physical condition. Where these affidavits conform to the proposed change in the law publicity of contemplated marriages is urged through the publication of applications for licenses for six weeks.

Should no legal objection be filed with the county clerk in the meantime a license will be issued at the expiration of ninety days from the date of the application.

One of the recommendations of the commission in regard to divorce cases would make it the duty of the prosecuting attorneys to investigate the facts in all divorce cases, to appear at the hearing of such suits, cross examine witnesses, offer testimony in opposition to the granting of a decree if in their opinion a decree should not be granted, and to look after the interests of minor children involved in the suits.

The commission will also recommend that in divorce cases a decree shall not be signed by the court until six months after a case has been tried.

GERMANS ARE NEARING PARIS

French Embassy Says Germans Are Suffering Terrible Losses in Their Advance—St. Petersburg Dispatch to New York Embassy Officer Names Important Towns Russians Have Captured in Prussia—Berlin Dispatch Says Russians Are Checked in East Prussia and Peasants Are Returning.

The long-dreaded German airship attack on the City of Paris has begun. An aeroplane flew over the city about 3 o'clock and dropped three bombs, tearing up the streets and damaging houses and causing intense terror among the unarmed and unprotected populace, but not killing any one. One bomb narrowly missed a military hospital when it fell in front of the Gare l'Est (Eastern railway station). After hurling the bombs the German dropped a message into the city which reads: The German army is at the gates of Paris. There is nothing for you to do but surrender.

The Russian army has begun the siege of Koenigsberg and is assailing the Austrians near Lemberg, Austrian Galacia. In a fight with the Austrians the Russians achieved victory, killing 3,000 Austrians and capturing many prisoners.

Germany is sending troops from Belgium to East Prussia to meet the Russians, as rapidly as the railroads can carry them. One hundred and thirty-six trains loaded with soldiers crossed from Belgium into Prussia Saturday. The garrison of Germans holding Brussels has been cut to 300 men.

Russia's invasion of Germany continues successful along the entire line of battle, says a St. Petersburg dispatch. German troops have been forced to abandon the Vistula river at several points and are being driven back rapidly all along the line of this river, which is of great strategic importance.

A dispatch to the Giornale d'Italia from Basel, Switzerland, says that three German Army corps, two Austrian army corps and a great quantity of siege artillery have crossed the Rhine.

The Paris correspondent of the London Express says: "I am informed Italy will present an ultimatum to Austria requesting an explanation of Austrian mobilization on the Italian frontier. Only a brief period will be given for an answer and within a short time Italian troops are expected to be in Trieste.

A dispatch to La Prensa says: "Germany offers to allow Luxemburg to enter the German Empire on condition of giving up her neutrality in the war."

"Along our line from the River Somme to the Vosges mountain range the defense is holding well and the position and disposition of our forces was the same on Aug. 28 as last reported on the day preceding, Thursday, Aug. 27. The testimony of German prisoners captured indicates that the actions in the Vosges region have been notable for the great number of casualties. The 112th and 142nd German regiments of infantry were so depleted after three days of fighting that the two were combined in a single organization of less than full regimental strength. A German regiment of infantry numbers 3,000 men.

"The Russians have captured Allenstein and invested the fortified city of Koenigsberg. A great battle is in progress in Galicia along an immense battle front extending from the Vistula river to Lemburg.

"Tremendous perturbation is exhibited in Berlin by reason of the inflowing tide of countless thousands of refugees from east Prussia fleeing before the crushing advance of the great Russian army."

What German Embassy Hears.

Washington, Aug. 31.—The German embassy received the following message from Berlin via the Salville wireless station on Long Island:

"Former Minister Burns (John Burns, the noted British labor leader and recently a member of the Asquith cabinet), in a speech against the present policy of Earl Grey, has caused a deep impression throughout Europe and particularly in England by his hints of possible fatal consequences to Great Britain through the threatened uprising of the Mohammedan subjects of the crown in view of the news from Turkey which foreshadows active participation by the musselman empire against Russia and Great Britain.

"At Berlin Professor Del Brueck has explained the unheard of unanimity among Germans as based upon a patriotic conviction that the present war constitutes a struggle for the existence of Germany's civilization which has been forced upon the two German peoples."

There was but a single reference to the war situation in the German dispatch and that was embodied in its last paragraph in which it was stated that:

"The government authorities of East Prussia have recalled the fugitive citizens of that section of the empire following the prodigious German victory over the Russian invading army at Gilgenburg."

The battle against Gildenburg was fought on Friday and resulted in the turning back of a Russian force of five army corps.

Russia Reports Victories.

New York, Aug. 31.—Colonel Nikolai Golejewski, military attache of the Russian embassy in Washington, who is at the Hotel Vanderbilt, made public two messages from the Russian foreign office in St. Petersburg announcing Russian victories over the Germans in East Prussia.

The messages said that Russian troops are approaching Koenigsberg, having driven back the advance posts of the garrison. The messages told of a successful fight on the Galician border near Tomasheff and Monastyrskala, of an advance on Lemberg and of defeating the Austrian cavalry at Tchertkoff on Aug. 25. The messages also told of a battle near Soldau, Allenstein and Bischofsburg on Aug. 25, 26 and 27, where the Germans concentrated their forces that had been defeated at Gumbinnen. The messages said that Allenstein had been captured by the Russians.

Bank Messenger, Paymaster and Collector Attacked in Chicago.

Chicago, Aug. 29.—A bank messenger, a paymaster and a collector reported to the police that they had been followed from their offices and attacked by daylight bandits, who knew they were carrying large sums of money.

The reported robberies and attacks are: Frank H. Vogel, messenger for the Ashland-Twelfth State Bank, found prostrate on elevated platform, says robbers stunned him and got away with satchel containing cash and checks amounting to $4,312; P. C. EXPECT TURN IN FORTUNES

Kaiser Reported Withdrawing His Army From Belgium to Resist Invasion by Russia—British Losses 5,000 or 6,000 Men—Twenty-nine Killed in Naval Battle.

London, Aug. 31.—French troops have resumed the offensive against the Germans in the north of France, where both the French and British armies have been reinforced. An official statement announces that French troops have been sent to the British forces in France to more than doubly make up for the losses in battle. "Every gunner has been replaced and the army is now ready for the next great battle,' it is announced.

Turn in the fortunes of war of the allies is believed to have come through the concentration of the 3,000,000 soldiers on France's second line of defense and through the overwhelming successes of the Russians in East Prussia.

The invasion of his eastern territory has forced the kaiser to withdraw nearly all the army to occupy Belgium.

With the correct weakening of his attacking force in France by the urgent need of meeting the czar in battle, the kaiser is exposed to the attack of France's army, which is now operating under the protection of the guns of the strongest fortresses in the world.

Losses to the British in fighting between Aug. 23 and Aug. 26 were between 5,000 and 6,000 men, field Marshal Sir John French, commander of the expeditionary force, estimates.

Two British officers and twenty-seven men were killed and thirty-eight wounded in the naval battle in the fight of Heligoland.

CANADIANS ON GUARD AGAINST AEROPLANES

Ask American Aviators to Stop Flying Over Dominion.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 31.—The flight of aeroplanes from this state over the St. Lawrence river and Lake Ontario into Canada prompted the Canadian military authorities to ask Governor Glynn to order aviators from this state not to fly into the dominion. The fears of the Canadian authorities of spying on their operations by foes were intensified by the flights. In view of the European war and the possibility of a nation hostile to Great Britain taking advantage of the United State's neutrality, the Canadian officials expressed the belief to Governer Glynn that the flights should be stopped.

Governor Glynn turned the matter over to the state department at Washington, realizing that the case was one of international importance and a problem for the federal authorities to handle.

INDIANA RAILROADS WISH RATE INCREASE

Ask That Charges Correspond with Interstate.

Indianapolis, Aug. 31.—Representatives of railroad companies operating in Indiana appeared before the public service commission of Indiana to request the filing of freight rate schedules in conformity to the 5 per cent increase recently given railroads on interstate shipments by the interstate commerce commission. The railroads want the rate applicable to interstate business applied to intrastate shipments, but the commission's consent has not been obtained.

Members of the commission expressed the belief that many of the rates now in force in intrastate business are excessive and that an increase in some instances would be unjust. It was suggested to the carriers by the commission that a schedule be filed, and a hearing be had on the reasonableness of the proposed new schedules with a view of equalizing all rates. It is expected that such a petition will be filed shortly.

At the time the roads filed their schedules for an increase in interstate rates the Indiana roads filed a similar petition asking the same increase. The request of the interstate roads was for an increase greater than the 5 per cent granted by the interstate commission, and the new proceedings are for the purpose of permitting the Indiana roads to file a schedule that would make the rate on interstate shipments apply to Indiana business.

A Family Affair

Pertaining to the Servant Question

By SADIE OLCOTT

Mr. Starkweather came home after business His wife met him at the door, and by her lugubrious expression he knew that something had happened.

"What's the matter, sweetheart?"

"Annie has gone."

"That's too bad."

"The third servant I have had within two weeks."

"I suppose you'll have to try another."

"I'll do no such thing. I'm going to board."

It was the husband's turn to look rueful. He detested boarding.

"Haven't you always said that your mother insisted on your learning domestic science?"

"She did."

"And that you rather like cooking?"

"It's the only thing I do easily."

"Well?"

"Well, it's very plain what you mean. You suggest that I do the work myself."

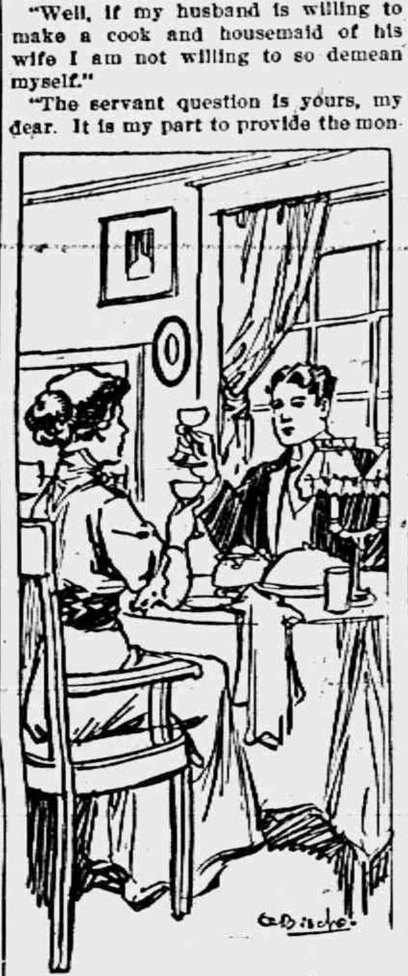
This was received in silence.

"I'm surprised that you are willing to have your wife go into the kitchen and make a servant of herself. And how would I be able to take care of this big house? But, granting I could do it all, what would become of us socie y? The doorbell rings. Mrs. Brinkerhoff, who keeps ten servants, calls. I go to the door from the kitchen with a working apron on and my hands covered with dough. What do you think of that?"

"I think that it would remind Mrs. Brinkerhoff of the days of her childhood. Her mother kept a small hotel and did the cooking for her guests. The daughter was chambermaid."

"Well, if my husband is willing to make a cook and housemaid of his wife I am not willing to so demean myself."

"The servant question is yours, my dear. It is my part to provide the money for the house and your part to run it. One thing let me impress upon you—I won't board. I was obliged to board before I was married. It was bad enough as a bachelor; it will be worse as a married man. Talk of respectability! Is it respectable for half a dozen families and a dozen bachelors and spinsters to herd together under one roof? It seems to me if I were a woman I would hold my head much higher living in privacy even if I did have occasionally to go to the door to admit the wife of a multimillionaire whose wealth grew up like a mushroom in a single night."



"TO MY HAPPY HOME."

"Your arguments are very plausible, but I'm going to board. This house can be easily rented, and the income from it alone will pay our board."

"You mean your board."

"And yours too," decidedly.

"Not at all. I'm not going to board I do not decide upon the expediency of that plan of living for any one but myself."

Mr. and Mrs. Starkweather had not yet bridged those years between the matrimonial honeymoon and working amicably in double harness. In other words, they had not yet learned that domestic differences must be settled or misery must ensue. Nor had they learned how dependent they were on each other. Quite often down in the bottom of their hearts each wished for a return to the freedom of single life. They had now reached one of those crises which in the case of some couples are impassable, cases in which a separation takes place and the pair are never again reconciled.

Mrs. Starkweather determined to board, and Mr. Starkweather determined to keep house. The wife engaged quarters for herself, and the husband, having rented his house, took a smaller one, removing such articles of his furniture to it as he required. There was no quarrel between them, nor did they consider the subject of divorce. They remained together where they were till Mr Starkweather had got his new quarters in order. Then the wife insisted on seeing that her husband wanted nothing to make him comfortable. A married sister had attended to all arrangements, but Mrs. Starkweather would trust no one but herself to make the final dispositions.

Mr. Starkweather suggested that they go there together Saturday afternoon and remain till Monday morning. Then the lady could go to her quarters and he would go to business. He offered to have a dinner sent in from a restaurant. It was in the middle of the afternoon that the couple met at the husband's domicile to pass the last period they expected to pass together, the husband arriving a little in advance. He let his wife in and welcomed her with a kiss. She looked about her curiously and with evident admiration. Her sister-in-law had shown excellent taste in the arrangements.

"What a cozy little box!"

"I shall be very comfortable."

"Why, this kitchen is as attractive as the other rooms."

"Why shouldn't it be? It's the most important room in the house. It's where the food is prepared, and if there is cleanliness anywhere surely it should be here. You see, I'm going to get my breakfast here, and occasionally I may bring a friend home to dine with me. I'll bring a steak and have a few French fried potatoes and a little lettuce. No trouble to get that, you know."

"Who's going to cook the steak?"

"I'll do that. I've learned it between the going of one servant and the coming of another when you have been laid up. There's nothing nicer than a simple dinner lifted right off the fire and served hot."

"It makes my mouth water."

"I've got a colored woman engaged to come in when I want her to wash the dishes and put everything in order."

"You won't be able to depend upon her."

"Yes, I will. I'll pay her double wages. You see, I'll have from $20 to $30 a month servants' hire saved. You can get anything done if you pay enough for it."

"Let's go upstairs."

She led the way to the second story and entered the front bedroom.

"How lovely!" she exclaimed. "It's small but small rooms are more easily taken care of than large ones. I see you have electricity in the house."

"Yes. I have that not only for light, but for power. I shall need it for various purposes."

"I see. Where is the bathroom?"

"Here."

"Isn't it lovely! How you will enjoy bathing here. Everything in the house is just too cozy for anything. Have you a telephone?"

"Yes; in this nook."

"Handy, isn't it?" She took up the receiver. "Give me 1476. Is this Perkman's restaurant? You needn't send the dinner that was ordered by Mr. Starkweather. All right. Goodby."

"Why, sweetheart, aren't we going to dine here?"

"Yes; on steak and French fried potatoes. Your talk about the dinners you are going to cook spoiled my appetite for restaurant cooking. I'll take care of the dinner."

"And I must make a beginning of the dinner."

"While I set the table."

The dining room and kitchen being adjoining apartments, Mr. Starkweather chatted with his wife while he set the table, and when he had finished he went into the kitchen and chatted with her there.

"It seems all right for you to be in the kitchen here. In our other house I never dared go into it myself. I was always afraid the cook would drive me out with the range poker. What a heavenly smell there is to that broiling steak! Let me hold it over the fire for you."

He took the broiler out of her hand, giving her a kiss at the same time, she going about other business. When the dinner was served and they sat down at the table the husband remarked that his wife looked as tidy as if she had been working at embroidery instead of cooking a dinner. Then, having popped a cork, he gave a toast:

"To my happy home!"

The toast was drunk in silence by the wife, who was evidently thinking very hard.

"I'll invite you to a dinner like this once in awhile," said the husband.

"H'm! Maybe I'll invite you to dinner."

"At your boarding house! No, thanks. I shall decline."

"I'm not going to a boarding house."

"Going to a hotel?"

"No."

"What are you going to do?"

"Stay here."

Starkweather rose from his chair, went to his wife and put his arms about her. Neither spoke, the two words in which the announcement was made being quite sufficient.

This happened several years ago. The Starkweathers are still living in the little house and without a servant. The plan has its disadvantages; but, though Starkweather's income is much larger than it was and he can afford to pay the highest prices for servants, he and his wife have got used to having their house all to themselves and revolt at having others about. They are always intending to get a servant, but never can make up their minds to have the house turned upside down and only half of it to themselves.

PECULIAR ACCIDENT.

A peculiar accident happened at the Standish dam Friday and a very lucky one at that. One of the men on the wall slipped and fell a distance of sixteen feet, alighting in about a foot of water, in falling he dropped a crowbar which struck Vernor McAdam on the head cutting a gash that required several stitches. Mr. Drake called to McAdam to help the man out of the water, which he did but was surprised to find that the blood on his hands came from his own head instead of the man who fell. Fortunately no bones were broken, or serious damage done, and both of the victims are doing finely.

GERMANS ESCHEW THE NON-TEUTONIC

"Ten Commandments" Call for Use of Fatherland's Goods Only

London, August 28—These "ten commandments," a circular which has been distributed throughout Germany by the chambers of commerce, were read today by Sir George Pragnell at a meeting of the British manufacturers:

"In all expenses keep in mind the interests of your own compatriots.

"Never forget that when you buy foreign articles your own country is poorer.

"Your money should profit no one but the Germans

"Never profane German factories by using foreign machinery.

"Never allow foreign eatables to be served at your table

"By using German flour, eating German fruit and drinking German beer, you alone give your body the true German energy.

"Use only German clothes for your dress and German hats for your head.

"Let no foreign flattery distract you from these precepts and be firmly convinced that whatever others may say German products are the only ones worthy of the citizens of the German Fatherland."—Ex.

Why would it not be a good plan for Americans to adopt a similar code of commandments and boost American products? We have everything necessary in every line of goods

ASTHNA AND HAY FEVER A GUARANTEED TREATMENT.

"I have arranged with B. J. Pulver so that every sufferer from Asthma, Hay Fever or Bronchial Asthma in Tecumseh can try my treatment entirely at my risk," Dr. Rudolph Schiffmann announces. He says: "Buy a 50 cent package of my Asthmador Cigarettes, try it, and if it does not afford you immediate relief, or if you do not find it the best ever used, take it back to B. J. Pulver and they will return your money, cheerfully and without any question whatever. After seeing the grateful relief it has afforded in hundreds of cases, which had been considered incurable, and which had been given up in despair, I know what it will do. I am so sure that it will do the same with others that I am not afraid to guarantee it will relieve instantaneously. The druggists handling Asthmador will return your money if you say so. You are to be the sole judge and under this positive guarantee, absolutely no risk is run in buying Asthmador."

Persons living elsewhere will be supplied under the same guarantee by their local druggist or direct by Dr. R. Schiffmann, St. Paul, Minn.

His Hot Dinner.

"Bill, come and 'ave a pint."

"Jus' one pint, Bill."

"I can't miss a nice 'ot dinner."

"It won't take you a minute."

"That 'ot dinner'd be spoilin'."

At this point the hospitable man lost his temper. "Go 'ome, ole man, to your bread and mustard."—Manchester Guardian.

FIRST ROAD SHOW OF THE SEASON.

"The Calling of Dan Matthews" Opens the Season at the Bradley.

That the public will still go to theatre and fill it, provided they are given something worthy, something they want to see, is shown very strongly in the overwhelming success that has attended every play dramatized from Harold Bell Wright's stories. Everybody reads Mr. Wright's books and everybody wants to see them put into playing form. Mr. Wright has proven himself to be the American novelist of the people and his stories put into playing form have certainly won their way to a very enviable position in the hearts of the theatregoers. "The Shepherd of the Hills" has been a lasting success and that dramatization was followed by the equally successful play, "That Printer of Udell's." This season "The Calling of Dan Matthews," one of Mr. Wright's later books, has been put into acting by Mr. Wright and Elsbery W. Reynolds, and judging from the patronage it has so far received, it bids fair to outrival either of the former successes.

"The Calling of Dan Matthews" makes a fine, wholesome play of today, full of big situations and cleverly drawn characters and with a theme of love and laughter running througout the entire piece, and produced as it is by a company carefully selected for their fitness for the parts assigned and with a wealth of scenery and electrical effects all go to make the play a big event to the theatre-going public.

"The Calling of Dan Matthews" will be seen at the Bradley Opera House, next Friday, September 4. This is the same company that plays Jackson, Kalamazoo, Grand Rapids, Lansing, Toledo etc. The company goes directly to Lansing from here.

Score, 3 to 1.

In one of the fastest games played at Athletic Park this season the Tecumseh Independents trimmed Adrian 3 to 1 Lenardson pitched his best game of the season, holding his opponents to two hits, and passing only one man. He beat himself out of a shutout when he let loose with a wild pitch with a man on third.

Steve Erhart pulled the sensational play of the game, when he ran for a ball and, not being able to get under it, he took a dive and turned two or three somersaults, but when he got up he had the ball. A high wind from the west held the hitting down.

The following is the score by innings:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	R	H	E

The Rabbit's Danger Signal.

So long as it sits still the ordinary rabbit is almost indistinguishable in a field of bracken, stubble or dry grass, but as soon as it begins to run toward its burrow the white patch on its tail betrays it. This white patch, which at first seems like a failure of adaptation, has its special function—it acts as a danger signal to the young rabbits and shows them the way by which they can escape from the threatened danger.—London Mail.

Mr. and Mrs Hugh McElroy, Mesdames John McElroy and Wm. Calhoun, Mr. and Mrs. Dursham of Holloway and Wm. Baldwin of Palmyra were callers at Mrs. F. E. Morrel's Thursday afternoon.

A merry crowd of young people were entertained Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fay A. Wiggins. The time was spent with various games and music and singing, a dainty luncheon being served. Those from away were Misses Myrtle Babcock of Mason, Madge Kniffen of Ann Arbor and Ralph T. Lee of Detroit. The rainy night prevented several from attending but those present throughly enjoyed the good time.

Explanation.

"A babe," says a writer, "is a mother's anchor." This, then, probably explains why the maternal parent of Moses consigned him to the water.

The final report of the Chautauqua committee does not vary much from the report published in our issue of Tuesday, August 24. The total deficit amounted to $59.87 and has been paid by the Commerce Club. While the Chautauqua was not a success financially, the committee feel that it was a good thing for the town and are confident that next year they will more than make up for the small loss. The National Lincoln Chautauqua company promise to have a program next year second to none in the United States.

SINKING SHIPS.

If Completely Submerged They Must Go to the Bottom.

Answering a correspondent who writes: "I am very anxious to find out whether a ship will sink if the bottom of the ocean is at great depth or, at least, at such depth that the weight of the water would be greater than the weight of the ship. It is the opinion of many that at a certain depth the ship would remain suspended instead of sinking to the bottom. Please explain the exact truth of the matter," Edgar Lucien Larkin in the New York American says:

"Any mass that will entirely sink below the surface of the ocean will sink to the bottom of any sea or ocean on earth. This is because water is almost incompressible.

"Enormous pressure in hydraulic presses has been made upon distilled and also upon sea water, and the diminution of volume—that is, increase of density—is only 0.000044 for ocean water for each atmosphere, i. e., each addition of fifteen pounds to each square inch. Then water soaked wood would be increased in density by very nearly the same amount.

"Hence if all of the wood in a wooden ship sinks below the surface it must go to the bottom. The question of reaching the bottom of the ocean is decided for any kind of matter of any ship or boat by its behavior at the surface. If all of the material of the boat sinks at all below the surface, then it will fall to the bottom of any sea, there being such a slight increase in density of water at the bottom of the deepest ocean."

Witty Retort.

"I tell you, Pat, my boy," the big man of the town confided, laying a patronizing hand on the young Irishman's shoulder, "I wish I had your tongue."

Good Family.

"My daughter appears to have married very happily," remarked a lady. "Her husband has not wealth, it must be admitted, but he has family."

"Yes. I heard he was a widower with six children!" a neighbor sniffed acridly.

Tecumseh Has to Bow to the Inevitable—Scores of Citizens Prove It

After reading the public statement of this represenative citizen of Tecumseh given below, you must come to this conclusion. A remedy which proved so beneficial years ago with the kidneys, can naturally be expected perform the same work in similiar cases. Read this:

W. W. Shurtz, Killbuck St., Tecumseh, Mich., says: I have taken Doan's Kidney Pills at different times during the past ten years and they have always given me relief from distressing symptoms of kidney complaint. I have procured my supply of Doan's Kidney Pills from Wright & Son's Drug Store and my experience has been so satisfactory that I willingly give this public account of it.

RE ENDORSEMENT

When Mr Shurtz was interviewed at a later date, he said: "I am only to willing to endorse Doan's Kidney Pills for I know that they act as represented. You may continue to use my name as a reference." Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Shurtz had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

Cost Kept Down—Quality Kept Up.

No better medicine could be made for coughs colds, croup, hoarseness, tickling throat, bronchitis, etc., than Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. THE BATTLE OF MARATHON.

A great Grecian landmark is the Soros, the mound erected over the graves of 192 Athenians who fell in the battle of Marathon, Aug. 12, 490 B. C. The mound is about forty feet high and 300 yards in circumference. Underneath the mound lie the heroes who died in this most decisive victory which prevented the Persians from invading Europe.

The battle had hardly begun when the Persians in immensely superior force, doubtless ten to one, pulled themselves together and by sheer mass broke through the Greek center. But this had been calculated upon beforehand. Miltiades employed strategy, making his line weak at the center, and allowed the Persians to break in. Then, with his heavy masses at the ends, he ground the Persian wings to pieces and fell upon their center. The most stubborn fighting, apart from the battle at the ships, was probably at this spot, half a mile from the shore. Six thousand four hundred Persians lay on this plain and along the shore, while 192 men of Marathon lay wrapped in glory on the field.

It was long suspected that the heroes of Marathon were buried under the mound, but Mr. Stais, one of the Greek ephori of antiquities, studying the plain, came to the conclusion that the surface of the soil had been raised by alluvial deposits eight to ten feet above the level of 490 B. C. In 1890 he drove a trench with a downward slant into the center of the mound and found the bones of the heroes with their weapons beside them.—Strand Magazine.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss.

Probate Court for said County.

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office, in the City of Adrian, on the 8th day of August, in the year one thousand nine hundred fourteen.

On reading and filing the petition, of Mary H. Swan executrix upon the estate of said deceased, alleging that the funeral expenses and debts of said deceased, and the expenses of administration thus far incurred, have been fully paid, and praying that her final administration account may be allowed and for such other order and decree as to this Court shall seem proper.

It is Ordered, That Tuesday the 8th day of September next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition.

And it is further Ordered, That a copy of this order be published in TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

BAN WILL NOT AFFECT AUTO RACES AT FAIR

Noted Drivers Will Appear In Thrilling Events.

AROUSED OVER A. A. A. ACTION

"Going to See Whether This Is a Free Country," Says General Manager Dickinson—Cycle Car Meet Not Under Auspices of State Fair.

The directors of the Michigan State Agricultural society have been aroused by the notice published throughout the country by the American Automobile association that the Michigan State Fair track has been blacklisted, and interesting developments are promised for the next few days.

The contest board of the A. A. A. has been informed that even though the ban is kept on the Michigan track it will not affect the automobile speed program here. Contracts have been made with a dozen of the best known drivers in the country, and they will appear in the events scheduled. If they do not they may not be allowed to participate in the automobile races at the Minnesota, Nebraska and the many other fairs where they are listed. The Michigan State Fair is a member in good standing of the American Association of Fairs and Expositions, and should a contract be broken with one member it is the policy of the association to protect itself and its members by severing all relations with the erring party.

Inasmuch as these state fair meetings are one of the chief sources of revenue of the A. A. A., it is believed the situation will receive careful consideration by that body. It is even asserted that the association may, if it is found necessary, inaugurate a series of automobile speed contests under its own auspices.

"To make it short, we're going to see whether this is a free country or not, if our track can be blacklisted when we are not even members of the A. A. A. and no sanction had yet been asked for our state fair meeting," said George W. Dickinson, general manager of the Fair. "This action has been taken against our track because of the cycle car races that were held there July 4 and 5. The races were not under our auspices; we merely leased the track as we lease it for motorcycle and harness race meetings. We never have had any difficulty over those. We regret this misunderstanding has arisen. We have taken counsel in the matter, however, and are confident our position is justly taken.

"Contracts with a number of well known drivers were made some months ago, long before the A. A. A. made the announcement concerning our track. Should any driver violate his contract with us he may not be allowed to drive on the track of any fair that is a member of the American association of fairs and expositions. When we sign a contract we live up to it and we expect the people who sign contracts with us to do likewise. That has been the position the association has taken in many instances to guard itself and its members from those who cannot be depended upon, and we will have the association's aid in this case.

"You can depend upon it there will be automobile races at the Michigan State Fair."

Britain's Standing Army.

The British standing army is a much more modern institution than most people imagine. It dates from 1646, when the famous "new model" was established by act of the long parliament and maintained in existence until the restoration. This army, which was organized by Cromwell, consisted of some 80,000 men and was probably the most effective army that England has ever possessed. But the cost was so great that on his restoration Charles II. agreed to its abandonment, except a bodyguard or household brigade of 5,000 sanctioned by parliament, which included Monk's Coldstream regiment and two troops of cavalry raised by Charles himself, which formed the originals of the present Life guards.—London Standard.

That Weak Back

accompanied by pain here or there—extreme nervousness—sleeplessness—may be faint spells—or spasms—all are signals of distress for a woman. She may be growing from girlhood into womanhood—passing from womanhood to motherhood—or later suffering from that change into middle life which leaves so many wrecks of women. At any or all of these periods of a woman's life she should take a tonic and nervine prescribed for just such cases by a physician of vast experience in the diseases of women.

Miss Elizabeth Lordahl of Berkeley, Cal., in a recent letter to Dr. Pierce said: "I was completely broken down in health, I was aching and had pains all over my body and was so nervous that I could scream if anyone talked to me, but I had the good fortune to meet a nurse who had been cured by Dr. Pierce's Prescription. I have never had an occasion to consult a physician since—am in excellent health."

SEVEN NATIONAL CATTLE CLUBS OFFER PRIZES

Importance of Michigan Exhibit Shown by Awards.

HERDS AGAINST THE WORLD

The importance of the cattle exhibit that will be made at the Michigan State Fair, Sept. 7-18, is revealed by the fact that seven national cattle breeders' associations have offered special premiums and awards for cattle at this show. Michigan herds will compete with the world for the majority of these rich prizes, as the entry list has been thrown open to breeders everywhere.

The American Shorthorn Breeders' association offers $405 in specials for champions, herds, groups and single animals. There are $10 premiums for the grand champion bull and the grand champion female and ribbons for senior and junior champion bulls, senior champion cow and junior champion heifer. The association also made an additional appropriation of $200 for Michigan Shorthorns exhibited at the Fair provided the Fair management would give a similar amount. This offer was accepted, and $400 consequently is offered as special premiums for Michigan animals of this breed.

The American Hereford Cattle Breeders' association offers special premiums for the best specimens of its breed in twelve different classes.

Must Win Cup Twice.

The American Aberdeen-Angus Breeders' association, through Secretary Charles Gray, has made announcement of liberal special premiums for twelve classes.

The American Jersey Cattle club offers prizes for five special classes, as follows: Cow having an accepted record in authenticated test for one year exhibited by her owner, who must have been her owner during the time the test was made, which is awarded the highest number of counts by adding to the counts allowed for conformation one count for each twenty pounds of butter fat produced by the cow in one year over and above the minimum required at her age; get of sire, bull with four of his daughters; breeders' young herd—one bull six months and under two years, two heifers two months and under one year and two heifers one year and under two years; grand champion bull, exhibited by his owner, who must have been his owner for one year and over; grand champion female, same conditions

The special trophy silver cup given by the American Guernsey Cattle club for the exhibitor winning the most moneyed premiums in the several classes with animals bred by himself again is offered. This cup must be won twice before it becomes the property of any exhibitor. W. H. Tichenor of Oconomowoc, Wis., won it in 1912 and A. W. and F. E. Fox of Waukesha, Wis., in 1913.

The Holstein-Friesian Association of America will add 15 per cent in cash to each award in the classes under this breed, with the exception of the champion.

Sighting the Sardines.

The shoals of sardines appear suddenly along the Breton coast in June. They come by millions, and the water takes on a slaty tint from their presence beneath the surface. This phenomenon is awaited intently by thousands of fishermen, and when the cry of "Here they are!" goes up there is as much excitement as is occasioned by the whaler's shout of "Thar she blows!" Each boat carries from three to a dozen nets. Cod roe is cast out as bait, and the average catch is about 4,000 each casting of the net. When first drawn from their element the sardines glitter like jewels, reflecting many colors, but they soon lose their brilliant tints. Every village along the coast has its cannery, and, as these are mostly individual enterprises, there is much competition. The sardine fisherman who does not own a boat of his own seldom makes over 1,000 francs, or about $200, from his labor of five or six months, and in bad seasons his earnings are much less than that.

Byron on Dentists.

The profession of dentistry stood higher in Byron's esteem than the profession of arms. In September, 1820, on hearing that his favorite dentist had died, Byron wrote to John Murray: "The death of Waite is a shock to the teeth as well as to the feelings of all who knew him. I left him in the most robust health and little thought of the national loss in so short a time. He was much superior to Wellington in national greatness, as he who preserves the teeth is preferable to the warrior who gains a name by breaking heads and knocking out grinders. Who succeeds him? Where is tooth powder, mild and yet efficacious; where is tincture, where are clearing roots and brushes now to be obtained? * * * I knew that Waite had married, but little thought that the other disease was so soon to overtake him."

WAR SECRETARY ASKED TO SEND CAVALRY TO FAIR

General Manager Dickinson Sees Opportunity For Michigan Breeders.

SCARCITY OF WAR HORSES.

Demand Becomes Unprecedented Now That All Europe Is In Conflict—State Fair Wants Michigan to Know Type of Animal For Which There Is Need.

Realizing the demand that exists for horses suitable for cavalry service, the management of the Michigan State Fair is making an effort to interest Michigan farmers and horse breeders in this branch of the horse raising industry. So it may be known exactly the type of animals that is desired as cavalry mounts General Manager George W. Dickinson has asked Secretary of War Garrison to station a troop of soldier horsemen at the Fair grounds during the Fair. The request carries with it an offer of quarters for the troop and the giving over of a portion of the evening horse show program to drills by the soldiery.

General Manager Dickinson made the same request of the war department last year and was informed by Secretary Garrison that the only squadron available had been selected to participate in a cavalry camp of instruction in the vicinity of Gettysburg. Secretary Garrison indicated at that time that if the soldiery was not otherwise engaged permission might be granted, and Mr. Dickinson hopes he has his request in early enough this year.

Says Scarcity Is Alarming.

"My attention was called to this matter through an article which appeared in the Army and Navy Register and which quoted army quartermasters to the effect that there really is an alarming scarcity of such animals," said Mr. Dickinson. "If there were an emergency requiring a larger number of horses than will supply the commands at peace strength, the article went on to say, the war department would have great difficulty in getting them even with the reasonable departures from the official specifications.

"It occurs to me that here is an excellent opportunity for Michigan horse breeders. An unprecedented demand for cavalry horses is felt just now because of the war activities abroad, and there is no telling how long it will keep up. I am hopeful Secretary Garrison will see his way clear to give the necessary permission. It certainly is a great chance for Michigan people who are interested in the horse industry, and I believe the government will reap a benefit too."

BELIEVE FUR SHEEP MEAN A NEW INDUSTRY.

Great Interest Taken In American Experiment—Lambs Exhibited Here.

Great interest is being taken all over the world in the experiments which F. E. Dawley of Fayetteville, N. Y., is making in raising fur sheep, the rare breed which will be one of the attractions at the Michigan State Fair, Sept. 7-18. For some years Mr. Dawley has been carrying on this work, and his efforts have met with marked success, so much so that those interested in the fur trade believe raising Persian lamb fur will be to the sheep business what the development of the Holstein has been to the cattle industry.

This year a large percentage of the grade Persian lambs which were dropped have had skins of exceptional value for fur. The best lamb had a skin equal to the highest priced imported baby lamb fur, and its dam was a half blood Lincoln ewe, so that the lamb carried only three-fourths of the Persian blood. The pure bred fur sheep are somewhat more nervous than the domestic sheep, but they are vigorous and growthy and make a most valuable cross for meat or early lamb production on all the breeds which do well in America.

Mr. Dawley has experienced difficulty in the importation of these sheep, as the Persians realize the advantage of keeping a monoply on the lamb fur business. Their exportation now has been stopped. Last year over $14,000,000 worth of Persian lamb fur was imported.

These sheep will be exhibited in one of the buildings on the grounds where they will have a central pen and may be viewed from every side.

BOUNTIFUL CROPS MAKE GREAT SEED EXHIBIT.

Widespread Interest In Display at the Fair This Year.

Occupying space along one whole side of the Agricultural building, the exhibit of grains, seeds and forage plants at the Michigan State Fair, Sept. 7-18, will be one of its surprising features. Charles Prescott of Tawas City, superintendent of the department, declares that Michigan's bountiful crops have caused an increased interest to be taken in this department this year and the exhibit will be the most extensive a Michigan Fair ever has known.

Liberal premiums are given for both seeds and plants. The People's State bank of Detroit offers $200 in special prizes this year for the best bushel of white dent corn grown in Michigan, and there are special premiums for the best exhibits of grain and vegetables from the various counties in the state.

Flesh of the Beaver.

The flesh of the forequarters of the beaver has something of the flavor of beef, while that of the hindquarters has a fishy taste.

BEST DAIRY COWS IN MICHIGAN WILL COMPETE IN FOUR DAY MILK TEST AT THE STATE FAIR

The four day milking test for dairy cows of all breeds, which was productive of the keenest competition at the State Fair last year, will be a royal battle ground at the 1914 Fair Sept. 7-18. Double the number of cows entered in the contest last season are looked to show their milk giving abilities this fall. The details of this test are in charge of the dairy department of the agricultural college, and the premium will be awarded for the economic production based upon the cost of feed and the value of the milk and butter fat produced.

The test begins Tuesday morning, Sept. 8, at 6 a. m. and closes Friday, Sept. 11. Entries may be made in this department up to 12 o'clock noon Sept. 7. All animals in this class are to be in the demonstration barn at 6 o'clock p. m. of that date, at which time the preliminary feeding will begin. The first milking will be at 6 a. m. on Sept. 8, at which time the demonstration proper will begin. Each cow may be fed such feed as the owner desires, but the feeding must begin at 6 p. m. Sept. 7, and from that time until the close of the test the same kinds and amounts of feed must be given daily, and each cow must be fed not less than twenty pounds of dry matter in her daily ration.

A special prize of $100 will be given by A. E. Stevenson of Port Huron if the winner is a Shorthorn cow and $25 to any Shorthorn cow that wins a place in this test.

Judging Horses at the State Fair

ALTHOUGH the automobile has come to stay and is finding a place on the farm as it has in the city, horses still are indispensable. No farmer in the state of Michigan can get all his tasks done by motor; he has to have a horse, and no places on the State Fair grounds draw greater and more attentive crowds than the horse barns and the judging paddock. From early in the morning, when the first horses are led into the square, until twilight, when the judging is knocked off for the day, the paddock fence is black with spectators.

The view shows the judges passing upon the draft horse class. There never is a moment in the day when the stand which can be seen at the end of the paddock is not occupied to its capacity. It would surprise a novice to know how closely the work of the judges is watched by these people who have no particular interest in which animal is picked to wear the blue rosette and how much sense they display in their comments.

GERMANS ADVANCE ON PARIS

Allies Suffer Heavy Loss Near La Fere.

RUSSIANS VICTORIOUS

BRITISH LANDED AT OSTEND

Dispatches Held Up By English Government May Relate to Rear Attack on Germans by British—Announcement of Moving French Capital to Bordeaux Is Denied—Germans Are Abandoning Positions in North Belgium.

London censorship suddenly tightened without warning. Numerous dispatches relating to operations in France and Belgium were held up by the government's orders. It is believed "operations in Belgium" may relate to a rear attack on the Germans by British troops reported to have landed at Ostend.

The German war office statement declares the French and English armies have been driven back with heavy loss. The German advance on Paris continues.

On the Austrian front the fighting continues and the Russians are steadily gaining ground. Austria-Hungary is believed to have put a million men in the field.

The Rome Messagero publishes a telegram from Sofia, Bulgaria, which says the Austrians have suffered an irreparable defeat at Zamosce, in Russian Poland, fifty miles southeast of Lubin.

In a panic before the steady encroachment of Russian troops, residents of Lemberg, in Galicia, have fled the city, according to semi-official advises here.

British are landing large forces secretly at Ostend to strike at the German right and rear. Troops were landed during all Monday night and today and marched through the town toward the south in the direction of the German flank.

The German press confidently asserts that the official prediction that their troops would be at Paris Sept. 2 will be fulfilled.

J. J. Jesserand, the French ambassador, denies emphatically that he has received any intimation that the French government is considering the advisability of moving from Paris to Bordeaux. Secretary Bryan also denies that any such information had been received through the state department official channels.

Reports of the sinking of two German battleships are current in London. The rumors were not confirmed by the admiralty.

An official telegram from Antwerp says the queen of the Belgians left for London this morning, accompanied by her children. When a German airship dropped bombs on Antwerp some days ago it is claimed that they were aimed at the royal palace, where the queen and her children were residing. King Albert was at the front with his troops.

According to the Messagero the Bulgarian government has informed Servia that if Roumania will abandon her neutrality in favor of Russia, Bulgaria will do likewise, so that all the Balkan states with the exception of Turkey will be on the side of the triple entente.

It is confirmed that a German aviator flew over Paris late Monday afternoon. The aviator dropped a weighted message inviting Parisians to receive the Germans well. It was of much the same tenor of the message which was dropped Sunday.

An Exchange telegram from Antwerp says the Germans have abandoned the region north of Merchtem and Vilvorde, about ten miles north of Brussels, and also the towns of Huydenburg, Tremelem and Haecht, in the same vicinity.

At midnight Paris ministry of war gave out the following communique which had been delayed from 11 o'clock: "The general situation has not changed except on our wings. At our left the Germans have gained some ground. In the center there were no appreciable modifications and there has been no fighting there. In Lorraine we have gained certain advantages."

LONDON — The most desperate battle of the war is reported raging through La Fere, Peronne and St. Quentin, all in the Department of Somme, sixty to seventy miles north of Paris. This is where the allies' lines was bent back upon the secondary defenses in the five-day battle last week and is the "open road" to Paris.

PARIS — The change in the situation, according to the bulletin given out by the ministry of war, has been on the wings of the French army. On the left the Germans have advanced and carried some ground. In the center there has been no appreciable modifications, while in Lorraine the French report advantages. According to the bulletin there has been no fighting in the center. The French center is now almost back on the La Fere-loan barrier of forts and its position is said to be solid. On the right flank the French are fighting to cover the withdrawal of French troops along the Meuse. The French claim successes along the line from St. Quentin and Vervins and also in the region around Ham and Perrone, but they were compelled to retreat before the German right flank. It is denied that the capital will be removed from Paris. The city, however, is being prepared for a state of siege.

PARIS — The steady retreat of the undefeated French armies in northern France and the government's refusal to send to the front thousands of willing and ablebodied men seem to point to the following conclusion, according to supporters of France's defensive policy:

By retreating to the present second line of defense the French shorten their front and foil the German attempt to flank them. The further the Germans are drawn into the country the harder it will be to obtain supplies and the greater the number of troops needed to guard the lengthening lines of communication.

The allied armies meanwhile are virtually intact and ready to strike a decisive blow at the weakened Germans. The French government desires to hold sufficient recruits in reserve to make up a second army equal to the first. Preparations are being made for a long struggle and even if the present army is destroyed resistance by no means will be ended. This policy meets with great opposition from Georges Clemenceau, the former premier.

Germans Pushing Toward Paris.

PARIS — The following official statement summarizing the situation up to date was issued:

"On our right, after partial checks we have taken the offensive and the enemy is retiring before us.

"In the center we have had alternate checks and sucesesses.

"On our left by a series of circumstances which turned in favor of the Germans and despite lucky counter attacks the Anglo-French forces were obliged to give way. As yet our armies, notwithstanding a few incontestable checks, remain intact.

"The morals of our troops is excellent in spite of considerable losses which are being filled from regimental depots."

The discouraging feature of this announcement is the admission that the German attack on the center has assumed the proportions of a general engagement. This is believed to indicate that the Germans have been reinforced and that the main body is now less than sixty miles from Paris.

Germans Sink British Steamer.

NEW YORK — The British steamship Holmwood has been sunk by a German cruiser off the coast of South America, according to a cablegram received here by the owners of the Katherine Park, which has the crew of the ship aboard. The cablegram, which was from Rio Janeiro, did not state the time or place of the sinking, nor did it give the name of the German cruiser.

French Gets New Army.

PARIS — Additional French forces totaling 600,000 men will be ready for active service in about six weeks as a result of the decision announced to call out the 1914 young men and the older classes of the reservists. The reservists will be equipped and ready for the field in a few days.

LAST OF HER FAMILY; ENDS LIFE IN WATER

Body of Maiden Lady Is Found by Boys at Play.

GRASS LAKE, MICH. — The body of Miss Ida Bunker, aged about sixty years, was found floating near the shore of Grass lake on the outskirts of the town at 7 o'clock by boys who were playing about the lake.

It is believed that she threw herself into the lake during a fit of despondency. The body was taken to the morgue here, where it awaits burial.

Miss Bunker had resided near Grass Lake for many years. She is survived by no near relatives, being the last member of a well-known Jackson county family.

40,000 VISIT HEALTH TRAIN

Most Successful Trip of State Board, Dr. Burkhart Declares.

LANSING, MICH. — "The most successful expedition we have ever held," said Dr. John L. Burkhart of the state board of health in referring to the trip of the Michigan health train just finished.

"In the month we were out we exhibited the train to over 40,000 persons. We had planned our trip through certain sections of the upper peninsula in order to catch the foreigners and in this we were successful. People of that sort visited the train by the thousands and seemed much interested in what we had aboard. Literature by the ton was given them, and if one-tenth of the seed so sown brings fruit, we should be satisfied." The train ended its traveling but will remain at Grand Rapids as an adjunct to the fair on there now.

BIG BOAT BURNS; 275 ARE SAVED

PASSENGERS HURLED IN WATER

Fire Breaks Out in Hold of Graham and Morton Ship Off Chicago Harbor—Crashes Into Pier—All Rescued—Captain's Coolness and Heroism Saves.

CHICAGO, ILL. — Wrapped in flames and doomed to destruction, the excursion steamer City of Chicago, inbound from Benton Harbor, raced a mile with death early in the morning, reaching the government breakwater, just off Chicago harbor, and landed 250 excursionists, most of them women and children, just before the boat sank.

With a crash that could be heard several blocks the boat struck the pier with such force that many of the pasengers were hurled into the water. They were dragged to safety by tug crews and landed on the breakwater. A thoro canvass of the passenger list checked with the list of rescued proved conclusively not a life was lost.

To the coolness and heroism of Captain Oscar Bjork is attributed the saving of hundreds of lives. The fire is believed to have started in the boiler-room when the boat was a mile from the mouth of the river.

Two fire boats, two excursion boats and several tugs were rushed to the distressed steamer when a wireless message was received from Captain Bjork at the Auditorium wireless station. The message was transmitted to W. Burke, superintendent of the docks of the company, who reported to the fire alarm office.

The tug Erie was out in the lake when it saw the distress signals. It rushed to the assistance of the boat and towed it to the life-saving station, standing by ready to take off passengers if the boat showed signs of sinking.

Fireboats Fight Flames.

Fireboats were quickly sent to fight the flames, but all hope of saving the vessel was given up shortly after and she burned to the water's edge.

The City of Chicago belonged to the Graham & Morton Transportation company, and had been in use since 1890 as an excursion boat. She left Benton Harbor at night bound for Chicago.

JAPAN COMPLAINS TO U. S.

Protests Against Imprisoning of Its Citizens by Germans.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—At the Japanese embassy it was said today that a protest had been registered with the United States against the treatment accorded some fifty or more Japanese who remained in Germany after the declaration of war. It was said that these Japanese had been interned in a prison fortress and that the explanation given by the Germans for such conduct had been that they could thus protect the Japanese from possible mob violence. The Japanese government insists that the treatment of its nationals is unfair. Although there are only a small number of Japanese now in Germany there are a vast number of Germans yet in Japan. In Japan there has been no incarceration and no threat of such conduct. The Japanese have demanded the release of the captives.

John O'Groat's House.

John O'Groat was the reputed builder of the John O'Groat house, the ruins of which are still pointed out at Duncan's Bay Head, on the northernmost point of the mainland of Scotland. Tradition is not entirely agreed as to the personality of John O'Groat. One legend states that he was a poor man who used to ferry passengers over to the island of Storma for a groat. But the most popular story makes him the descendant of a Hollander, De Groot, who in the reign of James IV. settled in the vicinity, and it goes on to tell how John and his seven cousins would yearly meet to celebrate the memory of their ancestor and have a yearly quarrel over the question of precedence until finally John invented a method of settling the difficulty. He built an eight sided house of one room, with eight windows and eight doors, and an octagonal table in the center of the room, so that all might enter simultaneously, each to his own door, and there might be no head of the table.

First Game Law.

The first "game law" for the protection of wild animals and birds was enacted in 1068 by William the Conqueror. This decree of the Norman king was called a forest law, but its principal purpose was the preservation of game. Forfeiture of property was made the penalty for killing or, disabling any kind of wild beast, while the slayer of a stag, buck or bear, if convicted, had his eyes put out. These laws, of course, applied only to the masses, since the royalty and nobility were permitted to kill as much as they pleased. In fact, the principal purpose of the pioneer "game law" was to provide sport for the few. The first parliamentary game law in England was passed in 1496. Game laws in America have become increasingly strict of late years, but they were adopted too late to save many species, notably the buffalo, from almost complete extinction.—New York World.

Squaretown.

The name "Squaretown" has been heard in designation of Adelaide, the capital of the state of South Australia. When that colony was projected it was established to the utmost detail on paper before the colonists set sail from England. The capital was laid out upon a surveyor's drawing board, and all that remained to do on landing was to find a flat piece of ground on which to drive the stakes. Adelaide is composed of four areas, a mile in each dimension, these areas being parted by two streets of noble width. Quite around the city extends a park land a mile in width, and this is maintained as a perpetual reserve upon which the only encroachments are such wholly public establishments as government house, parliament house and botanic gardens on the north terrace, the remainder being maintained as park and recreation grounds.—New York Sun.

Not Polly Ticks.

During a political campaign a candidate for the legislature was driving through the country seeking votes among the farmers when he met a young man in farmer's garb walking by the roadside.

Having in his mind a prospective vote, he stopped his horse and, saluting the farmer in a familiar manner, inquired:

"Are you paying any attention to politics nowadays?"

The young man stopped, looked at him suspiciously and drawled out: "No, stranger. That don't happen to be my gal's name, but if it was I wouldn't think it was any of your business."

This ended the interview as well as the process.—National Monthly.

Proved He Was Wrong.

In December, 1825, Relleff, the Russian nihilist litterateur, was condemned to death by hanging. The hangman's rope failed, and Relleff was thrown to the ground. In these circumstances a man's life is often spared even in Russia, and the emperor was inclined to mercy. But he asked a question. "Did the condemned say anything on regaining consciousness?" "Sire," was the reply, "he said that in Russia nothing could be done properly, not even the twisting of a rope." "Prove him to the contrary," answered the Muscovite ruler. And it was done.

To whom it may concern:

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, That the above entitled cause, or suit, concerns, involves the title, and is brought to quiet the title to the following described lands, viz.-

Those lands in the Township of Macon, in the County of Lenawee and State of Michigan, known and described as the Southwest quarter of the Northwest quarter of Section Seventeen; the Northwest quarter of the Southwest quarter of said section; the West half of the Southwest quarter of the Southwest quarter of said section and the Southeast quarter of the Southeast quarter of Section Eighteen; all in Town Five South, Range Five East, and containing in all one hundred and forty acres of land, as in the bill of complaint described.

Dated: August 31st, A. D. 1914.

FRED B. WOOD,
Solicitor for above named
Complainant.

The Rifle's Forbears.

It is difficult nowadays, with our modern serviceable rifle before us, to believe that as recently as 1572 the sling figured as a weapon of the battlefield. In 1792 a match was shot at Pacton Green between an archer and a musketeer, in which the archer succeeded in sending sixteen out of twenty shots into the target to the musketeer's dozen. The dragon was the name of the firearm with which the original dragoon regiments were armed. It had a barrel only sixteen inches in length, and the muzzle was like "a gaping serpent's mouth." The carabineers derived their name from a short firearm originally used by the irregular cavalry of the Moors. The arquebus of Charles I.'s time had a barrel only sixteen inches long and weighed about fifteen pounds in all. In the trial of the first percussion muskets against the flintlock 6,000 rounds were fired from each. The official record was 922 misfires against the flintlock; percussion musket, thirty-two misfires.—London Answers.

Grotesque Fashions.

The futurist will find it hard to beat the masculine costumes of the later Plantagenet reigns, either in flare of color or in practical awkwardness. There were the peaked shoes, chained to the knees, and the enormous bagpipe shaped sleeves, reaching even to the feet. One practical use was found for these, however. They were called the devil's receptacles, from their convenience to the light fingered. A writer of the time describes the commoners as "besotted in excess of apparel. Some in wide surcoats reaching to their loins, some in a garment reaching to their heels, closed before and sticking out at the sides, so that at the back they make men seem like women." The particolored suits of the period were sprinkled freely with birds, baboons, squirrels, trees and mottoes.—London Spectator.

How Men Can Be Secured to Work on the Farm.

The United Charities of Chicago write:

The poverty situation in Chicago is more acute today than it ever was before. There are a large number of married men out of employment in Chicago whose families must be supported by relief organizations until some work is found. The situation has not improved since the beginning of the European War. In fact it has become worse, if anything, because of the unsettled commercial situation resulting from the war.

Anyone wishing a statement of facts and who wishes to write to the United Charities of Chicago can learn how to procure the services of able-bodied men who are willing to work hard at a fair wage at temporary work in order to supply food for their families. This society will make an effort to supply from 10 to 50 men if plans can be found for them. They must, however, know these things when people write for labor:

a Amount of wages,
b When paid,
c Hours of work,
d Nature of work,

All letters should be addressed to Eugene T. Lies, Gen. Supt. United Charities of Chicago, 168 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill.

It is hoped that some contracts will be made with country people that will result in establishing entire families in country districts. It must be understood that these men are not paupers but able bodied, self-respecting workers whom a continuation of slack times has made dependent or partially so for the time being and through no fault of their own.

NEXT YEAR'S ENCAMPMENT

Next year's national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic will probably be held in Washington, D. C. Commander Washington Gardner has received an invitation to be extended to the veterans asking them to meet there next year.

Such a gathering would be of unusual significance and interest as 50 years ago next year, the Union army upon its return from the war, following the surrender of all of the southern armies, marched in grand review down Pennsylvania avenue.

Many of those who participated in that review are in Detroit this year and are anxious to again march down Pennsylvania avenue next year.

The invitation received by Commander Gardner is from President O. P. Newman of the commissioners of the District of Columbia, who has been asked to extend the invitation on behalf of the Washington Board of Trade, Chamber of Commerce, Retail Merchant's Association and the people of the District.—Ex, Canceling a Moslem Divorce.

It is well known that under the Moslem religon divorce is made remarkably easy and that there is no need for any legal or religious formalities—a man being able, so to speak, to divorce his wife by word of mouth. This facility often gives rise to unpleasant results, as when a man in a burst of anger will divorce his wife and then bitterly repent of his rashness. One such incident happened recently in upper Egypt. It is related that a fellah appealed to his omdeh to help him to regain his wife, against whom he had pronounced the fatal words.

The omdeh told him to traverse the streets of his village for two hours braying like an ass and to eat chopped straw as an ass does, when he would be absolved from his divorce, without needing to go before the cadi. The fellah carried out the order to the letter and then returned to his wife, fully convinced that he had done ample penance for his impetuosity.—Boston Transcript.

Built Upon Cotton.

When the Leasowe lighthouse, England, was built on the sandy Wirral shore the builders were puzzled by the lack of a suitable foundation for the masonry tower. An ingenious way out of the difficulty was effected. In the vicinity an incoming ship, laden with a cargo of cotton, had gone ashore and had become a total wreck. The cotton was useless for its intended purpose, so the bales were salvaged and dumped into the sand at the point where the lighthouse was to be erected. The fleecy mass settled into the sand and under compression became as solid as a rock, while its permanency was assured by its complete submersion. The stability of this strange foundation may be gathered from the fact that the tower erected thereon stood and shed its welcome light regularly every night for about a century and a half, being extinguished only a few years ago, as it was no longer required.—Argonaut.

Corsica and De Paoli.

While the island of Corsica derives its fame from being the birthplace of Napoleon, the name of Pasquale de Paoli is more dear to the natives, for it was under the leadership of this patriot, in 1755, that they escaped from the yoke of the Genoese. For fourteen years he wisely administered the affairs of the island. In 1769 France bought the island from Genoa and landed an army of 22,000, which Paoli met with a few thousand Corsicans and fought until his army was reduced to 537 men; yet he cut his way through and escaped to England, where he remained twenty years. At the outbreak of the revolution in France he returned to his native land and became military governor, but he could not get on with his old enemy, so he returned to England, where he died in 1807.

FARMERS' PICNIC.

Last Friday the annual farmers' picnic of Lenawee county was held at Sand Lake in a grove near Decker's Hotel. This picnic has heretofore been held at Devil's Lake, but this year the County Grange took charge of the arrangements and it was thought advisable to change the location. A better place could not have been found in the county. Two fine groves, plenty of boats and good accommodations for horses in the large barn attached to the hotel.

The crowd was largely increased in the afternoon by the arrival of many who left their homes after dinner and by 2 o'clock there must have been in the neighborhood of 1200 on the grounds. Speeches were made by Hon. Chas. E. Mickley of Fairfield and J. Webster Childs of Ypsilanti. The affair had a good start this year and next year a larger crowd and a better time may be expected.

CAMP CROSWELL.

Adrian, Mich.

Camp Croswell was broken up last Tuesday after a six days encampment. Companies A, B, C, D, F, G, H and K were on the grounds with over 300 men. Co. C, Tecumseh, had 58 with Captain House commanding. The camp was on Medick's Shade farm on the outskirts of the city and was presided over by the following field and staff officers:

Colonel—W. C. Fitzsimmons.
Lieut. Colonel—E. B. Griffith.
Major—B. F. Wheeler.
Surgeon—Philip Porter.
Adjutant—Willis Merritt.
Quarter Master—Harrison Soule.
Sergeant Major - Wm. T. Woxcey.

Co. C received many calls from Tecumseh people and were always found in jolly good humor and comfortably tented on "Fitzsimmons Avenue."

Col. Fitzsimmons and Adjt. Merritt managed the camp splendidly and gained the good will of every officer and private in the camp.

Dr. C. M. Woodward assisted Surgeon Porter through the encampment, the number on the sick list being from 20 to 40 per day but there were no serious cases.

L. F. Wheeler was at the encampment most of the time taking different camp views.

Gov. Croswell gave the 1st Regiment a reception at the armory of Co. B (Adrian) last Monday night.

The members of Co. C are enthusiastic in their praise of the manner in which the company officers, Capt. House, Lieuts. Lawrence and Cummins, performed their duties at the encampment and the officers are well pleased with the conduct of the men under their command.

Prof. Spencer attended the state teachers' institute at Cassopolis last week and one at Lawrence week before last, having acted as one of the lecturers at both institutes.

Bob Stretch and Wes Bordine represent the Tecumseh Fire Department at Battle Creek this week.

Henner Had a Way of Making the Louvre Officials See the Light.

It is a pity that Henner is dead. He had found an excellent means to force the conservators at the Louvre to bring down the pictures that he judged had been placed too high. He made use of this method in the case of "Susanne au Bain" ("Susanna at the Bath") of Tintoretto.

Twenty years ago this masterpiece was hung in the gallery four meters from the floor.

Henner was furious at this injustice. But he did not permit his anger to appear. He contented himself with coming from time to time in the morning before the visitors were numerous in the halls and in the most courteous tone requesting the keepers to furnish him a large double ladder.

The keepers referred the matter to the conservators, saying that this ladder was asked by M. Henner, and they were impressed with the necessity of responding to the wish of the old master.

Then he placed the ladder before Susanna, mounted the steps slowly and, when at the top, remained a quarter of an hour absorbed in the contemplation of the marvelous painting.

He then descended as phlegmatically and, with a fine smile, said in his Alsatian jargon: "Merci pour l'ejelle. Je suis dres gontent!" ("Thanks for the ladder. I am much pleased!")

He went through this maneuver half a dozen times at intervals.

At last the conservators understood. They had "Susanne au Bain" unhooked and gave it a place of honor in the square salon, where it is now.—Cri de Paris.

Tax on Hats.

Not only have hats at various times been subject to taxation, but have even been made the subject of special laws. Thus in Henry VII.'s reign none was allowed to sell hats at a larger price than 20 pence or caps for more than 2s. 8d.

Some compensation, however, for this interference with free trade could be found in the fact that in 1571 on Sundays and holidays every one above seven years of age, was required to wear a cap of wool of English make under penalty of 3 farthings' fine for every day's neglect.—London Chronicle.

The Peruvians are a proud, imperial race, living amid the grandest scenery of the western hemisphere and holding high ideals of what is best in education and the unbought grace of life. On the great country estates there is much of the fine tradition and chivalrous sentiment that came from the best people of Castile and Aragon. The Indians of the high plateaus are a unique reminder of a civilization that bourgeoned centuries before the face of the white man had blossomed like a flower in the western forests. The immemorial records of a civilization that vanished in the midst of man's earliest recollections are faintly suggested in splendid ruins among sublime scenes. The name and fame of the brilliant men who built the walls and temples of Cuzco are lost, and all we know of the wonder and the charm of that forgotten culture in the Andes is found in the pathetic ruins of cities that are half as old as recorded time.—Peter MacQueen in National Magazine.

Here is one of the unwritten laws of the sea which we think could be repealed to advantage. It is that which requires the captain of a ship to stay on the bridge during fog or very bad weather, no matter how long it continues. It is a fairly common thing to read in dispatches that the captain of this or that ship had been on the bridge for twenty-four or forty-eight or even sixty hours at a stretch because of storm or fog. Why should this be practiced? The most rugged man alive cannot be as alert, mentally and physically, after twenty-four hours of exposure as he was when he went on duty. He cannot be as competent to render quick decisions—such, for instance, as an impending collision might call for—as a man who was unfatigued. The average transatlantic passenger, we fancy, would much prefer to trust his life in an emergency to a fresh chief officer than to a jaded captain.—Marine News.

Of Great Price.

The lion had been teased and prodded by an ill conditioned keeper until his patience was quite spent. The enraged beast leaped upon the fellow, knocked him down and fetched him such a blow on the head that his skull was crushed like an eggshell.

"That means the end of you, your majesty," sniggered the jackal in the next cage.

"It would, old night prowler, if I were a mere man," replied the lion, licking a bloody paw, "but you forget that I cost $5,000."

The surviving keepers came, soothed the costly creature with a quarter of fresh beef and hastily removed the body of their comrade from the cage.—New York Post.

Nuts as Food.

A judicious use of nuts has cured cases of indigestion by relieving the constipation which was the cause. Brazils and pine kernels particularly are rich in natural oil which gives warmth, keeps the digestive system clear and does much toward making the skin clear and healthy. Weight for weight nuts contain actually far more proteid than bread. They are a safe food for all who have a tendency toward any form of rheumatism, and they are also beneficial in cases of mental strain and general "nerves."

THE FORD

A successful man can always appreciate a good joke at his own expense, and in printing the following we take it that the successful will enjoy the following:

The Ford is my auto; I shall not want. It maketh me to lie in the muddy roads, it leadeth me into much trouble. It draweth on my purse; I go into the paths of debt for its sake. Yet, though I understand my Ford perfectly, I fear much evil, for the radius rods of the axle might break. It has a blow-out in the presence of mine enemies. I annoint the tire with a patch; the radiator boileth over. Surely this thing will not follow me all the days of my life, or I will dwell in the house of poverty for ever.

Moral: Equip your Ford with one of the new Cuckoo clocks. When the thing reaches a speed of twenty-five miles an hour, the bird will come out and sing, "Nearer my God to Thee.,,

Will Katner and wife, Clinton; E. C. Breese and wife, Weston; Messrs. and Mesdames Guy Collins, Baron and Mark Pennington and Walter Morden, Kenneth Pennington, Macon.

James Aten was born on the home farm July 12, 1837. January 1, 1867, he was united in marriage to Jane Pennington of Macon who passed away February 22, 1869, leaving a young babe Mabel now Mrs. George Stimpson In the spring of 1886 he married Miss Mary Platt who with their daughter Florence survives him.

The following poem was handed in by one of the brothers as a fitting tribute to the departed:

THE OLD TILER.

God bless the old Tiler! how long he has trudged
Through sunshine and storm, with his summonses due;
No pain or fatigue has he ever begrudged
To serve the Fraternity, Freemasons and you.

God bless the old Tiler! how oft he has led
The funeral procession from lodge door to grave;
How grandly his weapon has guarded the dead
To their last quiet home where the acacia boughs wave

God bless the old Tiler! how oft he has knocked
When vigilant stranger craved welcome and rest;
How widely your portals, though guarded and locked,
Have swung to the signal the Tiler knows best.

There's a lodge where the door is not guarded nor tiled:
There's a land without graves, without mourning or sin;
There's a Master most gracious, paternal and wise,
And He waits the old Tiler, and bids him 'Come in."

And there the old Tiler, no longer outside,
No longer with weapon of war in his hand;
A glorified spirit shall grandly abide,

—The Tiler.

ENTERTAINED.

Mrs. Boyd Belcher and Miss Louise Erskine entertained twenty young ladies Wednesday afternoon at the home of the former, the guests of honor being Mrs. Leila Knapp Cannell of Los Angeles, Cal., Mrs. Floy Freeman Reason, of London, Ont., and Miss Ethel Slayton of Ann Arbor. Other out of town guests were Mrs, Arthur Wright of SanDiego, Cal., and Mrs. Will Buck of Mendon.

Cards furnished the amusement. At the close of the games refreshments were served and a most delightful afternoon was spent recalling the days when those assembled were schoolmates.

DINNER PARTY

Mrs W. L. Jones was hostess to a company of friends Tuesday at her home on Logan St. The guest of honor were Mrs E, Bartley Cannell of California. Covers were laid for ten. The table was beautifully decorated with flowers. A dainty three course dinner was served. The out of town guests were Mrs. W. E. Reason of London, Ont., and Miss Ethel Slayton of Ann Arbor.

Mrs. James Wood and grandson Percy Cadmus who have been spending several weeks with friends in Detroit and Dundee returned home Tuesday night,

This evening the Epworth League and their friends are being entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs H. B Eaton. A corn roast is the feature of the entertainment.

Miss Margaret Ingersoll of Adrian was visiting Miss Frances Brooks this week. She was called to Clinton by the death of her brother-in-law Ernest Groab of Clinton.

Miners Threaten to Burn Butte.

BUTTE, MONT. — Miners openly threatened to lay the town in ashes if either state or federal troops should attempt to enter Butte. One of the leaders of the miners declared that they do not purpose to fight the soldiers, but they would wreck vengeance upon the business men for having been instrumental in bringing soldiers to Butte.

"We have quantities of dynamite and oil," one leader said, "and the troops will find ashes."

Train Kills 4 Autoists.

COLLINSVILLE, ILL. — Two men and their wives were killed fifteen miles east of Collinsville, when a fast inbound train from New York on the Vandalia line struck an automobile in which the party was touring from Oklahoma to Detroit. They are Robert Grandman and wife, each about sixty years old, and M. H. Pahl and wife, the man about thirty-five and the woman probably thirty years old

Tecumseh Has to Bow to the Inevitable—Scores of Citizens Prove It

After reading the public statement of this representative citizen of Tecumseh given below, you must come to this conclusion. A remedy which proved so beneficial years ago with the kidneys, can naturally be expected to perform the same work in similar cases. Read this:

W. W. Shurtz, Killbuck St., Tecumseh, Mich., says: I have taken Doan's Kidney Pills at different times during the past ten years and they have always given me relief from distressing symptoms of kidney complaint. I have procured my supply of Doan's Kidney Pills from Wright & Son's Drug Store and my experience has been so satisfactory that I willingly give this public account of it."

RE ENDORSEMENT

When Mr. Shurtz was interviewed at a later date he said: "I am only to willing to endorse Doan's Kidney Pills for I know that they act as represented. You may continue to use my name as a reference." Price 50c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Shurtz had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

REFORMS IN DIVORCE AND MARRIAGE LAWS

Michigan Commissioners Recommend Drastic Changes.

FLINT, MICH. — Very Radical changes in the marriage and divorce laws of Michigan will be made at the approaching session of the legislature if that body should approve of certain recommendations embodied in the report of the commission created by the last legislature to revise and consolidate the state statutes.

The commission favors the incorporation of a provision in the marriage laws requiring applicants for marriage licenses to make affidavits as to their physical condition. Where these affidavits conform to the proposed change in the law publicity of contemplated marriages is urged through the publication of applications for licenses for six weeks.

Should no legal objection be filed with the county clerk in the meantime a license will be issued at the expiration of ninety days from the date of the application.

One of the recommendations of the commission in regard to divorce cases would make it the duty of the prosecuting attorneys to investigate the facts in all divorce cases, to appear at the hearing of such suits, cross examine witnesses, offer testimony in opposition to the granting of a decree if in their opinion a decree should not be granted, and to look after the interests of minor children involved in the suits.

The commission will also recommend that in divorce cases a decree shall not be signed by the court until six months after a case has been tried.

What She Expected.

"Look at her," said the ironmonger, indicating a departing customer. "She sent her wringer here to be repaired. I promised it her for this week, provided that I could get a certain new part in time from the makers. I couldn't get it. Now she wants me to pay a charwoman—who came unnecessarily—half a crown and twopence tram fare. Then she wants me to pay the laundry bill for the clothes."

The ironmonger paused to breathe heavily.

"But that's not all. Her husband dines out on wash days, and as he dined out on a wash day which wasn't a wash day—you understand—she says I ought to pay for his dinner. No, she doesn't ask anything else. And they call 'er the weaker sex."—London Answers accompanied by pain here or there—extreme nervousness—sleeplessness—may be faint spells—or spasms—all are signals of distress for a woman. She may be growing from girlhood into womanhood—passing from womanhood to motherhood—or later suffering from that change into middle life which leaves so many wrecks of women. At any or all of these periods of a woman's life she should take a tonic and nervine prescribed for just such cases by a physician of vast experience in the diseases of women.

Miss Elizabeth Lordahl of Berkeley, Cal., in a recent letter to Dr. Pierce said: "I was completely broken down in health, I was aching and had pains all over my body and was so nervous that I could scream if anyone talked to me, but I had the good fortune to meet a nurse who had been cured by Dr. Pierce's Prescription. I have never had an occasion to consult a physician since—am in excellent health."

PROTEST COSTS MAJOR RANK

Major H. A. Grube Is Made Captain in Justice to Another.

GRAYLING, MICH. — Major Howard A. Grube, commander of the field hospital of Grand Rapids, was reduced to the rank of captain by the military board of the Michigan National guard at its meeting at Camp Ferris.

The change was made to settle a question, raised by Captain Ernest C. Lee of the ambulance corps who by rule was eligible for a majorship ahead of all other captains in that branch of the service. A while ago the government war department informed the state military authorities that the field hospital should be commanded by a major. Captain Grube, who was in command of the hospital, was appointed as the logical man.

NEWS OF THE STATE

Chinese Queue Stunt Fails.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH. — In the presence of 2,000 people who had gathered to witness his thrilling slide on a cable from the top of Herpolsheimer's store to Campan square while hanging by his queue, Du Ting Cahn, member of a theatrical troupe, came within an ace of losing his life and sustained injuries which will confine him in Butterworth hospital for several weeks.

The intrepid Chinaman shot like a bullet down the steel cable, but suddenly his queue broke and he was hurled to the pavement. He was severely bruised and internally injured.

Becomes French Aviator.

MENOMINEE, MICH. — Stephen C. Macgordon, a Menominee youth, has joined the staff of the French aviators in Paris. He was born in this city twenty-two years ago. He is the son of Mrs. Charles Macgordon and nephew of United States Senator Stephenson. While attending school at Lake Forest, Ill., young Macgordon became interested in aviation and took instructions from Curtis. He recently went abroad to attend the French meet. The first news of their son joining the army came today in an Associated Press dispatch.

Pioneer Liquor Dealer Dead.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH. — R. Dave McGann, wholesale whisky dealer, and one of the city's best known characters, died here of apoplexy, following a stroke last Friday. McGann was fifty-six years of age and was born in Grand Rapids. For years he conducted the famous saloon called "The Old Town Pump."

Walker Congratulated.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH. — Myron H. Walker has received many congratulations from friends and political associates on hearing the news from Washington that the senate had confirmed his nomination as United States district attorney for the western district of Michigan.

Robbing the Dentists.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH. — Within three days four dentists' offices have been robbed of more than $700 worth of gold and platinum by a robber who is thought by the police to be one of the cleverest workmen ever found in the city. The dentist burglar has left no clue.

Toadstools Poison Seven.

FRANKFORT, MICH. — Toadstools gathered and served for mushrooms poisoned several persons here. All are now out of danger, but seven, including four young ladies from Chicago and Edward Benton, Frank Straubie and the latter's daughter Ruth are still seriously ill.

Youth Dies; Pulmotor Fails.

BAY CITY, MICH. — Robert D. Alton, aged fourteen years, son of Dr. W. F. Alton, a prominent Bay City dentist, died suddenly of heart disease. A futile attempt was made to revive the youth by use of a pulmotor. He had been in poor health for two years.

No Coal Troubles This Year.

SAGINAW, MICH. — The joint executive board of Michigan miners and operators announces, after a session here of several days, that there will be no trouble in Michigan coal fields this year.

Prominent Manufacture Dies.

PETOSKEY, MICH. — William J. Hill, age twenty-seven, prominent St. Louis, Mo., resident, brother of Congressman R. P. Hill of southern Illinois, and son-in-law of S. H. Young, wealthy St. Louis hat manufacturer, died here Tuesday.

Boilermaker Killed by Crane.

MUSKEGON, MICH. — Life was crushed out of Henry Brusted here while at work at a local boiler works when the beam of the huge electric crane pinned him against the side of the big burner on which he was working.

Indignant.

Sir Douglas Straight used to tell a story of a libel case in which he had defended a man successfully on the ground that he was not to be regarded as an ordinary individual because he was in the habit of using the most outrageous language on the most trifling provocation. The jury accepted Sir Douglas' view and found for the defendant. But on leaving the court Sir Douglas met his client waiting for him in a paroxysm of fury. "What in thunder do you mean, sir, by saying that I am not to be treated like an ordinary man?"—London Standard.

RESTING IN THE STATE FAIR GROVE

The benches in the grove on the Michigan State Fair grounds are occupied every moment of the day. In the morning it is to witness the drills by the school children and the band concert which takes place in the Odeon; at noon the seats in the restful shade are splendid places to eat picnic lunches, and in the afternoon, in addition to the band concert, there are talks by noted men, other drills and musical programs. The illustration shows a typical group in the grove.

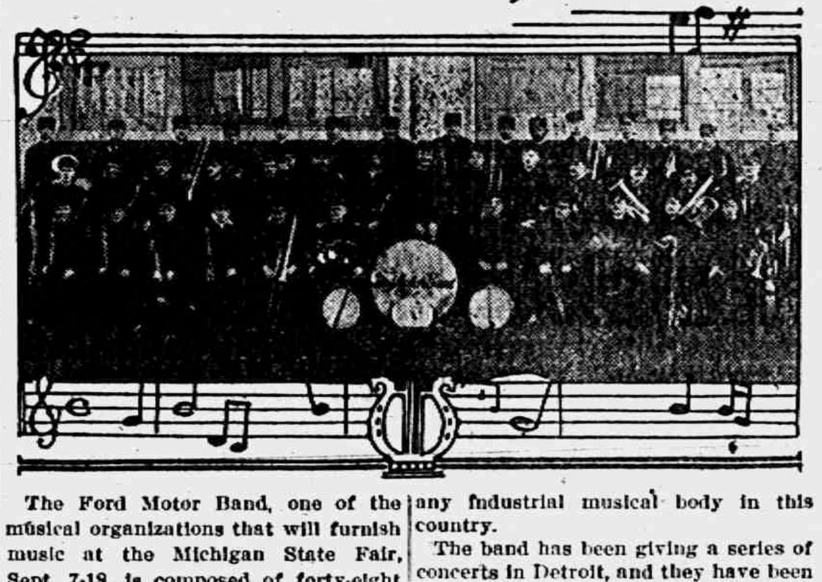
Engineers of the Ford Motor company have gone over the Automobile building at the State Fair grounds with General Manager Dickinson and have made preliminary plans for installing the machinery necessary for the company's great exhibit at the Fair, Sept. 7-18. The ends of the building will be torn out and replaced by great doors. Through those at one end the parts will be carried, and from those at the other the finished automobiles will be driven out.

The announcement of this wonderful exhibit has attracted attention all over the country. Never before has anything of this nature been attempted at a State Fair, its very magnitude being astounding. The engineers have gone over the matter carefully and see nothing in the way of putting the cars out in record time.

"We are mighty well pleased at the interest Mr. Ford has taken in this exhibit. It is the biggest thing that ever has been done at our Fair, and that is saying something," stated General Manager Dickinson this week. "A great many people no doubt believe that it is absolutely impossible to build an automobile in ten minutes, but they will have to recast their thoughts after they see this display at the Fair. It will be a long time before anything like this can be duplicated."

NOTED MUSICIANS AT STATE FAIR



The Ford Motor Band, one of the musical organizations that will furnish music at the Michigan State Fair, Sept. 7-18, is composed of forty-eight employees of the Ford factory. The band is supported and uniformed by the company, and by many musical savants it is considered the peer of any industrial musical body in this country.

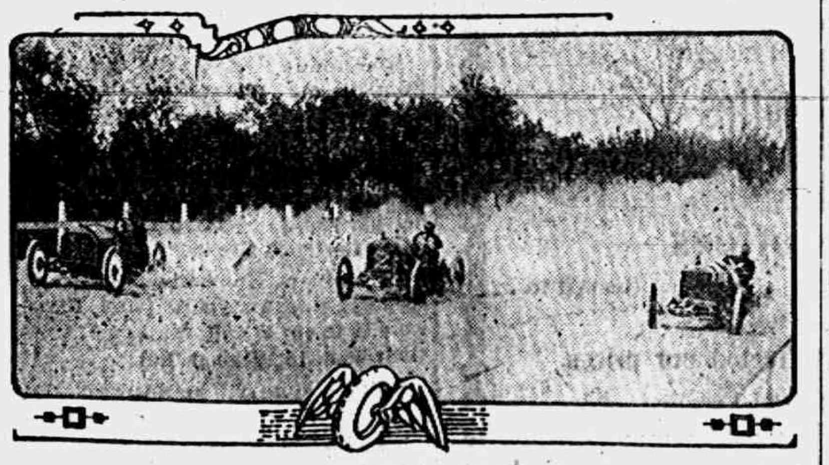
The band has been giving a series of concerts in Detroit, and they have been markedly successful. It recently journeyed to Cleveland, where, on June 28, its program was enthusiastically received in Gordon park by an audience of nearly 50,000 persons.

STATE FAIR AIDS IN HOME MAKING

One of the unique exhibits at the Michigan State Fair, which will be held at Detroit Sept. 7-18, is that of the department of plants and flowers. No home is complete unless a flower is nodding in the window to bid a welcome to the visitor and to give cheer and comfort to those who are domiciled within. The Michigan State Agricultural society seeks to foster this as one of the arts of homemaking and to give it every encouragement possible.

Premiums will be awarded to three classes in this department: Plants in pots, plants in boxes and baskets and cut flowers. For the best collection of stove and greenhouse plants—not less than thirty varieties—a $75 premium will be given; $50, $35 and $30 premiums being given for the second, third and fourth best collections respectively. Premiums also are offered for collections of palms, single specimens of palms, a pair of Araucaria excelsa, a collection and a single specimen of fern. Premiums are offered for the most attractive boxes for porches or windows and for hanging baskets; also for the finest collection of cut flowers, the finest display of cut flowers and the most attractive bridal bouquet.

MAKING THE LAST TURN WHEEL BY WHEEL



No more thrilling sight is listed in the catalogue of the spectacular than the finish of an automobile race. The long grinds on the great speedways have their interest, but they do not compare to the finals of a five or ten mile joust on a dirt track between drivers that are afraid of nothing save that they will be the last to finish. When they turn into the home stretch and come down wheel by wheel, that person must be glued to his seat who does not rise to watch them as they flash by under the slender wire.

While the identity of all the daring drivers who will pilot autos in the races at the Michigan State Fair, Sept. 7-18, has not yet been announced, it is known the list will comprise many famous names. Among them are Bob Burman, who will appear in his Burman special and who is a native Michigander; Louis Disbrow, Johnny Rainey, Lou Heinemann and Eddie Hearne. The automobile racing program will be ready for publication shortly.

NORTH SEA IS AGAIN CLOSED

British Admiralty's Order May Indicate Immediate Sea Battle.

London, Sept. 7.—The admiralty has ordered the North sea closed to all navigation. The notice adds:

"All aids to navigation on the east coast of England and Scatlond may be removed at any time without further warning than is contained in this notice."

The action of the admiralty is ascribed partially to the capture of fifteen fishing boats by German warships and to the continued laying of floating mines in the North sea by the Germans. But it also is believed here that the British fleet is preparing to attack the German fleet, the capture of the fishing boats and further mine laying indicating that some of the German ships have left their station under the protection of the forts at the eastern end of the North sea.

POPE CROWNED WITH SOLEMN CEREMONIES

Supreme Pontiff Received with Popular Acclaim.

Rome, Sept. 7.—Fifty-eight cardinals, including the three American cardinals, gorgeously robed and mitred, and numerous prelates, chamberlains in full uniforms, and troops surrounded the Gestadorial chair bearing the pope as it was carried through the crowded corridors of the vatican.

After the adoration of the sacrament in the Pauline Chapel, the cortege proceeded to the Sistine chapel, where the pope, assisted by the cardinals, celebrated high mass. He then was solmenly crowned with the tiarra amid the acclamations of the crowds, the sounding of trumpets and the ringing of bells. The cardinals paid their homage and kissed the pope's feet. A pontifical blessing ended the ceremony.

Wabash Centenarian Dies.

Wabash, Ind., Sept. 7.—Mrs. Sarah Derickson, 102 years old, died at her home here after an illness of eighteen months. Before the sickness which resulted in her death Mrs. Derickson had never suffered a day's illness and never wore glasses. She was born in Kentucky and spent the last forty years of her life in Wabash. She plainly recalls having heard President Lincoln deliver an address.

PLAN IDEAL GAME PRESERVE

Illinois Would Take Over Higenbotham Estate in Will County.

Bloomingotn, Ill., Sept. 7.—Central Illinois game wardens, headed by E. H. Werner, have recommended that the estate of H. N. Higonbotham in Will county, known as the "Forest of Arden," be set aside as a game preserve and steps taken to propagate game birds under the protection of the state. This property is famous for the tract of woods which furnishes an ideal retreat for all species of bird life. It is likely that the state game and fish commission will take favorable action.

ENTENTE OF ALLIES IS SEALED

French Papers Say Kaiser Is Balked.

NO DISHONORING PEACE

Germany Marching Away from French Capital.

MOVENENT IS PUZZLING ALLIES

Movement of Kaiser's Forces Is to Southeast — French Press Declares Effort to Turn Allies' Left Has Failed—Forts to South of Paris as Redoubtable as Those to East and North, Declare Editors.

Paris, Sept. 7.—The Journal Des Debats in commenting on the protocol signed by the allies says:

"The declaration of the allies is of capital importance, although announcing nothing new. The convention is the first pact which publicly seals the triple entente. While English opinion still believed in the kaiser's pacific intentions any attempt to obtain the signature of England to such a convention would have been taken as proof that we were mediating an attack on Germany. Everyone knows that the German plan was to wrest from Paris, from a government in decomposition, a dishonoring peace apparently moderate. They hoped to find accomplices among French politicians."

The Journal Des Debats adds that such politicians existed but that it prefers not to discuss the point.

Says German Plan Fails.

The paper in summarizing the military situation says:

"It seems very probable that Germany's plan for a rushing attack on Paris has failed and must be modified. We must not rejoice too soon, but it is certain that the overwhelming attack imminent for four or five days has been avoided, an attack which has forced us to retire since the Belgian battles."

The Intransigeant thinks that a single column, however heavy, could not attack Paris without risking an offensive return from the French armies on its own wings.

"To avoid this danger," the Intransigeant says, "they may be endeavoring to disperse the French army weighing on their left flank. They may have tried to unite the army from Belgium with the army from Rethel to crush the French between them, but the French, seeing their danger, escaped. It seems unlikely that the enemy will abandon its attack on Paris. Perhaps it is undertaking its turning movement, believing that the forts to the southeast of the city are easier than those to the northeast. If they believe this there are surprises awaiting them."

Paris Claims Victory.

Paris, Sept. 7.—Germany's right wing army has been defeated by the French and British, an official statement announces. This German force has been pressing the allied lines for two weeks in an unsuccessful attempt to flank them. The war office statement says:

"The advance lines of the allies for the defense of Paris came into contact yesterday with the right wing of the Germans, who appeared in a covering movement in strong force on our right, advancing toward the southwest. A short engagement resulted to the advantage of the allies."

The army of 1,000,000 assembled under General Joffre for the defense of Paris has taken possession at an advantageous point. It is assumed the engagement announced by the war office opens a great battle that may decide the struggle in France.

Germans In Four Armies.

The German forces are proceeding divided into four armies, in a turning movement toward the south rather than pushing forward to Paris. The first army has reached Laferte and Montmiral, the second has reached Chantilly and continued south, the third has occupied Rheims and the fourth has also moved southward.

London Reports Germany Afraid.

London, Sept. 7.—Germany is believed to be pursuing the march to the south in France in the fear that she soon will be forced into a defensive position. The general southern movement might easily be a maneuver to extricate the army about Paris from threatened attack from the northwest. The German army is so badly beset by the transfer of five army corps sent to East Prussia that Paris may never be besieged.

Dispatches frob Bucharest report the triumphant advance of the Russians on Czernowitz, which they have occupied. It is stated that the inhabitants of Bukovina, near Czernowitz, joined with the Russians. This is regarded as the first sign of the dissolution of the Austro-Hungarian empire through defection of Slav population.

British Casualties 15,000.

It is officially announced that the British casualties during the war have been 15,000.

A dispatch from the Times, sent from Boulogne says the mayor of that city is reported to have received a message stating that General Joffree has succeeded in turning the German lines and that Sir John French had gotten around on the left of the German army. The German troops at Lille left there hurriedly Friday.

Bombarding Austrian Fortress.

Antievari, Montenegro, via London, Sept. 7.—A bombardment of the fortifications in the Bay of Cattaro, Austria-Hungary, has begun by a large fleet of French and British warships.

Neutral Vessels Destroyed.

Washington, Sept. 7.—This telegram has been received by the British embassy from the foreign office:

"Following neutral merchant vessels are known by the admiralty to have been destroyed by German mines, in most cases with loss of life among the crews: Five Danish, two Dutch, one Norwegian and one Swedish."

Mines Sink Another Steamer.

London, Sept. 7.—The Wilson line steamship Uno has sunk after striking a mine in the North sea on her voyage to Archangle, according to a dispatch received here from Hull.

The steamship carried 630 passengers, mostly of whom are believed to have been saved.

Germans Move Southeast.

Paris, Sept. 7.—The following official communication was issued to the press at 3:20 p. m.:

"The troops of the outlying defense of Paris were yesterday in contact with the enemy's forces which appeared to be covering along the Ourcy river towards the southeast of the general movement of the German right wing. The small engagement which resulted from the contact experienced was to our advantage."

WILSON SOUNDS KEYNOTE

Washington, Sept. 7.—In a letter to Representative Frank E. Doremus, chairman of the Democratic congressenal committee, President Wilson declines to take an active part in the coming campaign.

The president in his letter indicates to the Democrats of the country the keynote in the coming campaign. It is the Democratic record of achievement—the clearing away of all doubt and uncertainty—that have "plagued business, the wiping out of any further antagonism between the government and the industrial agencies of the country and the clearing of the track for unprecedented prosperity."

JAP AEROPLANES FLY OVER GERMAN FORTS

Reconnoiter Positions and Get Warm Reception.

Tokio, Sept. 7.—Official dispatches received here from the commander of the Japanese fleet off Tsing-Tao, the German base in the far east, say that two Japanese hydro-aeroplanes were launched from one of the warships and reconnoitered the German position. The aeroplanes dropped several bombs, one of them falling on the German wireless plant. The result of this bombardment is not given in the dispatches, which say that the aviators brought back valuable information regarding the German defenses.

The guns of the forts were directed against the aeroplanes and one of the machines had fifteen holes in its planes, the result of bits of shells and rifle fire, when it returned to the warship. The fire caused no serious damage.

ALL CANDIDATES SURE OF VICTORY

"Claim Everything and Concede Nothing" Is the Rule.

ILLINOIS ON EVE OF PRIMARY

Roger C. Sullivan and Laurence B. Stringer Showing in Main Tent on Democratic Side—Latter Backed by Bryan, Dunne, Lewis and Harrison —Sherman and Mason Lead Republicans.

The political cannery has been entered forcibly by candidates from United States senator down to the last man on the primary ballots, and each of them apparently has captured a chunk from the jar containing the foregoing.

Not one of the 3,500 primary candidates throughout Illinois who will face the direct primaries on Wednesday has conceded his defeat.

Each one of the candidates for United States senator on the Democratic ticket will win by pluralities ranging from 25,000 to 150,000, accord ing to the different primary forecasts put out from the five headquarters.

Sample of Views.

Lieutenant Governor O'Hara and Secretary of State Woods talk just as confidently. The race is between Stringer and Sullivan, the former supported by Secretary of State Bryan, Governor Dunne, Senator Lewis and Mayor Harrison.

Nothing on G. O. P.

The Democrats have nothing on the Republican field for claims. Senator Lawrence Y. Sherman's managers are confident he will be renominated without difficulty. Former Senator William E. Mason expects, so he says, to carry Cook county, "by the biggest plurality ever given a Republican," and to sweep up the downstate as well.

Frank Hall Childs and Myer J. Stein couldn't talk better if their press agents were from Servia describing victories over Austria.

Downstate the interest is centered in the Cannon-Coolley fight in the Danville district, the Kennedy-Fuller contest in the De Kalb-La Salle district, and the Hurburgh-King contest in the Galesburg-Quincy district, all Republican disturbances, and in the Hill-Graham affair in the Springfield district, a Democratic family row.

Some of the more vociferous of the enemies of former Speaker Cannon profess the belief that Uncle Joe will be defeated for the Republican nomination by Elmer B. Coolley, a man of the highest standing in Vermillion county. The political "dope" is that the former speaker will win his primary chance to get "just one more term" at Washington.

GREAT BRITAIN SUMS UP WAR

Powerful Statement from Naval Standpoint.

SEA SUPREMACY IS TELLING

Situation From Viewpoint of Allies, Particularly of Great Britain, Is Set Forth Through Embassy at Washington—Island Empire to Increase Its Sea Strength.

Washington, Sept. 7.—The British foreign office, through its embassy here made public a statement summarizing from the viewpoint of the allies, particularly the British, the situation at the close of the first month of the war.

This is the statement:

"At the end of the first month of the war, the command of the sea is left unchallenged in the hands of Great Britain and her allies. The main German and Austrian fleets remain in their harbors under shelter of their mines and batteries. Four German cruisers, one auxiliary cruiser, two destroyers and a submarine and one Austrian cruiser have been sunk. German dreadnaught and a cruiser have fled without fighting and have taken refuge in the Dardanelles.

Tells What Naval Supremacy Does.

"The loss to the British navy has been one light cruiser only. As a consequence of this naval supremacy over 200,000 troops have been able to cross the sea without the loss of a man. The British expeditionary force has been carried to France; colonial expeditions have been sent to attack the colonies of Germany in Africa and the Pacific, and the French troops under cover of the combined Anglo-French Mediterranean fleet, have been escorted from Algeria to France.

"The resources of the empire under the cover of the British fleet will be fully developed, and the armies in Europe will be reinforced by those of Australia, Canada, India and Africa without ceasing. German mercantile marine has disappeared from the ocean.

Will Be More Ships.

"Strong as the British navy is today, there will be an accession of strength within the next twelve months of not less than ten first class capital ships, fifteen cruisers and twenty destroyers thus still further increasing the margin of naval superiority in ships of all classes over Germany, who, during the same period, will add not more than one-third of this number to her fleet.

"The British and French armies in France have fought a series of hotly contested engagements in which they have inflicted on the enemy losses immensely greater than they have suffered. Their fighting strength is unimpaired. Meantime in response to the call of the government, 300,000 fresh troops have joined the British army voluntary. The whole empire is absolutely united and firmly resolved to carry the war to a final issue. Greater Russian armies have invaded East Prussia and are on the point of entering central Germany. The Austrians have been decisively beaten, first by the Servians at Shabata and on the River Drina, and afterwards by the Russians in Galicia. They have abandoned the campaign against Servia and have lost the fortified city of Lemberg.

"Outside Europe the Japanese fleet and a force of troops are blockading Tsing-Tao in China."

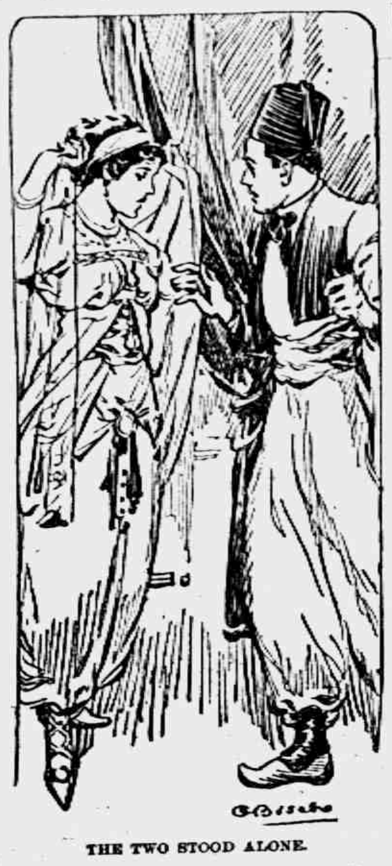
On the Bosporus

A Turkish Love Story

By GERTRUDE E. MOREHOUSE

Selma and Rabieh, two little Turkish girls, the former sixteen, the latter seventeen, living in Constantinople, went one day for a walk together along the bank of the Bosporus. The location of Constantinople is beautiful, and since Leander swam what was then called the Hellespont to visit Hero on the opposite shore it has been associated with romance. History comes in for its share of interest from the time Constantine made the city on its European bank the capital of the Roman empire.

These two Turkish girls each wore the charshaf, the long gown of the women of that country, and veils over their faces. The custom of keeping the face covered is not as obligatory among Turkish women as formerly, and some of them dress in European costume. Yet these girls, being very young and unmarried, did not think of lifting their veils while walking where they would be liable to meet men. But coming to a grassy spot, where their faces would be to the water, they sat themselves down and, throwing their veils back, permitted the cool air to fan their faces.



THE TWO STOOD ALONE.

The Bosporus was covered with all sorts of craft, from the skiff to the ocean steamer lying at anchor, while on the opposite shore towered a profusion of buildings, minarets and trees. The boats did not come very near the slope on which the girls were sitting, so there was no necessity for them to let down their veils. They sat looking at the various craft out on the water, now a little steamer plying between different points on the strait, now a motorboat and now a small sailer with leg-of-mutton sails. It was all so charming, so soothing, the breeze was so refreshing that the maidens reclined on the slope, Rabieh laying her head in Selma's lap.

It was not long before Rabieh was dozing and Selma was blinking. There was a sharp point on one side of them which cut off the shore in that direction. A rowboat came round the point and passed within a few yards of them. Selma, who was nodding, suddenly started at seeing a young man with a pair of oars in his hands looking straight at her.

At sixteen a girl may be captured by a look. The young man, who was but a few years Selma's senior, was wrapt in admiration and expressed it in every feature of his face. To Selma he seemed so beautiful that for a moment she forgot to drop her veil. Then, remembering to do so, she shut off what was to the young man a vision of loveliness.

"Rabieh," exclaimed Selma, shaking her friend, "wake up and jet down your veil! That boat you see pulling away came very near us. The young man in it is, oh, so beautiful! He has a face that must have been copied from that of Allah."

It was not long after this that Selma and her mother were crossing the Bosporus in one of the little steamers used for ferriage. They were seated in the harem, as all women's apartments in Turkey are called, and were unveiled. A flutter of wind blew aside a window curtain, and there on the deck without sat the young man who had looked upon Selma while she was sitting on the shore. For the second time the two pairs of eyes met, and for the second time through them two hearts leaped toward each other.

After that Selma saw the young man several times, though he did not see her, for she was always veiled. Once they passed each other on the Galata bridge, once in Stamboul and again in Scutari. Every time she met him she studied his face and either saw or fancied she saw the wrapt expression of a lover.

At the meeting in Stamboul, Selma was walking with her Aunt Leila.

"That is Orkhan, the son of a very dear friend of mine," said the aunt.

"Is he a fine young man?" asked Selma, with a tremor in her voice that she could scarcely conceal.

"A very fine young man indeed."

There was silence for some time between them, during which Leila had forgotten having met Orkhan. Presently Selma said:

"Aunt Leila, when will mamma arrange a marriage for me?"

"I don't know, child. Do you wish to be married?"

"Certainly. Doesn't every girl wish to be married?"

"Well, dear, I will speak to mamma about it."

Soon after this conversation Selma's mother, Gulistan, at her sister's suggestion determined to look about for a husband for Selma. She knew no men personally—Turkish women know no one but those of their own sex—so she made inquiries among her friends for a marriageable young man. Aunt Leila also took a hand in the matter and quite naturally called on Orkhan's mother, Mikri, to ask if a match could be arranged between Orkhan and Selma. Mikri said she would see about it.

"Mikri says," said Leila, "that she proposed to Orkhan to get a wife for him, but he will not marry; that he is looking for a girl he has seen on the bank of the Bosporus and again on a steamer. If he can find her he will marry her, but no one else."

This was very harrowing to Selma. The man she desired wanted her, and she wanted him, but could not find her. He must not be informed who or where she was, because a Turk sees his bride's face for the first time when he lifts her veil immediately after the wedding ceremony. An American girl would have found a dozen ways to make herself known without appearing to have anything to do with the matter. But Turkish women, especially the girls, are very helpless.

But Aunt Leila was a woman, and even a Turkish woman likes to have her own way. She knew nothing of the meeting between her niece and Orkhan, but his mother was the only woman she knew who had a marriageable son, and she determined to get him for Selma. Leila was wealthy, and she offered Mikri a large dowry for Selma if her marriage with Orkhan could be brought about. Mikri told her son that he must stop dreaming about the girl he had seen and, like a dutiful son, marry the woman she had provided for him. He promised to think about it and at last gave in because he need not be restricted to one wife and if he ever found the girl with whom he had fallen in love he could marry her as well.

One day Gulistan told her daughter that she had found a husband for her and that they must begin to make preparations for the wedding. Of late years there is not always an objection to letting the bride know something of the appearance of the man she is to marry. Gulistan, not dreaming that Selma had ever seen Orkhan, showed her his picture, telling her that he was to be her husband. Selma, who had been almost crazed at the thought of marrying any one except the man she loved, on seeing the photograph was like one reprieved just before an expected execution. How she ever concealed her emotion she never knew herself.

Meanwhile Orkhan continued to look for the girl on whom he had set his heart, for the expense of living has risen in Turkey as well as elsewhere, and only wealthy men can afford more than one wife. The young man was very miserable, for he wished to find the girl he loved in time to break with the wife his mother had provided for him. But since he was permitted to look upon the face of no woman except his wife how could he find her? He had passed her three times without recognizing her, she being veiled.

The wedding day came, and he had not found her. The women were seated, most of them smoking cigarettes and eating sweetmeats. Then they were taken to inspect the apartments to be occupied by the bride and groom, in which were the wedding presents and the trousseau, the latter including articles of apparel belonging to the groom. Then the guests were seated in a large room to await the entrance of the wedding party. The bride, veiled, was brought to the door of the house, where she was met by the groom. He led her into the house and past the guests, who were elbowing one another to get a view of the bridal pair, into a chamber, the door of which was closed behind them.

This is the moment when at Turkish weddings the groom lifts his bride's veil and for the first time looks upon her face. Orkhan had proceeded thus far like one going to a funeral rather than a wedding. How the bride looked no one could tell, for her face was covered. The two stood alone. The groom, conforming to what was expected of him, raised the veil.

A pretty subject for an artist would be this incident—the man's face changing from indifference to surprise and delight at recognizing the girl he loved, she looking up at him lovingly, enjoying his surprise, mingling her happiness with his. Then they were locked in a long embrace.

Curiously enough, there is no other marriage ceremony in Turkey than this, though there is always a formal betrothal some time before. No religious ceremony corresponding to those of European peoples is required. The marriage with the Moslem is simply taking possession of his wife.

Girls With Boys' Names.

Girls with boys' names and boys with girls' have received them in many instances no doubt by accident. It was so in the case of George Anne Bellamy, the famous eighteenth century actress, who played Juliet to Garrick's Romeo. Born on St. George day, she was to be called Georgiana, but somebody's blunder at the time of her christening split this into George Anne. The "corn law rhimer," Ebenezer Elliott, had a daughter named Noah, whose passport is said to have given her much trouble abroad. But here, as in the case of other girl Noahs, it was only other people's Biblical ignorance that was at fault, for turn to Numbers xxxvi, 11, and you will find that Mahlah, Tirzah, Hoglah, Milcah and Noah were the daughters of Zelophehad.—London Graphic.

Flowers on Icebergs.

Flowers blooming on icebergs would certainly be a rare sight, but travelers in the northern portions of the Pacific and sometimes in the north Atlantic have witnessed this strange but very beautiful spectacle. It appears that some animals carry on their feet a growth of moss, which is deposited on the ice while it is attached to the mainland in polar regions. In time this decays and forms a shallow soil, in which the seed of buttercups and dandelions often find a lodging, borne by currents of wind that doubtless caught them up in some southern clime. These take root and bloom when the great gleaming iceberg floats out to sea and is carried southward, where the soft winds melt the surface and give the plants the moisture they need.

His Wrestling Match With English.

Charlie Conrad, a business man in the national capital, employed a Turk as a servant in his house after having been discouraged by numerous experiments with the average run of servants. The Turk was exceedingly industrious, and devoted his spare time to the study of the English language.

One day Charlie received this letter from him:

Dear Sir—In this little time at today I saw a good positions against me. I am very far of my country but I not felt that among your family. I can't forget this politeness. I am very grateful but my money weekly it is not sufficient for me because I pay my room and electric car and with rest I can't live. I ask $7.50 per week of the next week. I believe you will find this same lines in my sincere sensation.

ADRIAN IN FESTAL ATTIRE YESTERDAY

Knights From Six Cities Attend District Field Day

Seldom has the City of Adrian witnessed a more imposing sight than yesterday's big Knight Templar parade which was held about 1:30 p. m. About 600 Knights were in line headed by the Imperial band of Adrian. Detroit's crack Commandery No. 1 was first in line followed by Adrian, Jackson, Hillsdale, Monroe and Coldwater. The waving plumes of the Knights and the gay decoration made a very imposing sight.

Hundreds of people lined the streets to witness the parade. Grand Commander Gordon Campbell of Calumet and Grand Marshal E. S. Rankin of Kalamazoo were in attendance. Later in the afternoon an exhibition drill was held, a temporary reviewing stand having been erected for the members of the Grand Commandery and dignitaries.

The following Tecumseh Knights were in line. F. B. Wood, R. A. Heesen, A. C. Aylesworth, Dr. O. Q. Jones and J. H. Smith, Attorney Wood acted as adjutant. A great many Tecumseh Masons and friends motored over to see the parade.

HARRY GORDON SELFRIDGE

Formerly of Chicago and owner of London's "American" department store, has notified his heads of departments to intimate to every man in his employ between the ages of 20 and 35 unmarried, that they enlist immediately or resign their positions.

In fact Selfridge several weeks ago announced in a public meeting of his employes, he was ready to pay half wages to the wives of all men in his employ who enlisted. This resulted in about 30 per cent of the eligible employes enlisting.

Beggars on Horseback.

Horses are cheap in Chile. According to Francis J. G. Maitland in "Chile: Its Land and People," you can buy a horse in Santiago for $25 or $30 and for less in the country. In illustration, he quotes a little happening witnessed by Miss May Crommelin in Mendoza:

"Up rode a gaucho, dressed in white, if I remember rightly—no worse than his fellows, at any rate. He bestrode a nag, sorry enough, yet still capable, and wore a medal round his neck. Off came his hat with a bow of much grace, but he stretched out his hand toward the window grating imploring alms. 'It's all right; he's one of our beggars. The town has so many licensed ones who are allowed to come round,' said my hostess, looking out over my shoulder. So, instead of dismissing him with a little 'Pardon, little brother, for not giving you anything,' some small coins were placed in his palm. 'Dios lo pagara' (God will repay it), was the dignified response, and with a farewell bow of perfect politeness this beggar on horseback rode on."

Carlyle's Amenities.

Carlyle had his flings against science, but they were not very virulent. Nevertheless in regard to literature he placed himself in the position of the ill bird that fouled its own nest, as witness the following amenities: Keats is a "curried dead dog," whatever that may mean; Shelley is "a ghastly object;" Coleridge, "a puffy, obstructed looking old man talking in a maudlin sleep an infinite deal of nothing;" Lamb, "a puir cratur, with a thin streak of cockney wit, nothing humorous but his dress;" Walter Scott, "a toothless retailer of old wives' fables;" Brougham, "an eternal grinder of commonplace;" Wordsworth, "stooping to extract a spiritual ketchup from mushrooms that were little better than toadstools;" Sir Robert Peel, "a plausible fox;" J. W. Croker, "an unhanged hound;" Lord John Russell, "a turnspit of good pedigree;" Lord Melbourne, "a monkey."

Lighthouse Lenses.

In the latter half of the eighteenth century one of the members of a little scientific society in Liverpool told a brother scientist that he could read a newspaper by the light of a small candle at a distance of thirty feet. The second scientist said the thing was impossible. To prove his contention the first scientist coated the inside of a shallow wooden box with sloping pieces of looking glass so as to form a concave lens, placed it behind a farthing candle and readily deciphered the small print at the stipulated distance.

The experiment was witnessed by a Liverpool dock master. He was a thinking man and saw great possibilities in this learned jest. He straightway adapted the principle to lighthouse requirements, and forthwith the modern reflected light, with its miles of reflected range and untold life saving powers, sprang into being.

Betrothals in Germany.

There are many curious betrothal customs in Germany that are found in no place else in the world. As soon as a German girl is betrothed she is addressed as "bride" by her fiance. The betrothal is a more serious affair than in England, and is not so easily broken. The girl is called "bride" until the wedding, when she assumes the title of "wife." Immediately upon the betrothal the lovers exchange rings, which, if the course of true love runs smooth, are to be worn ever afterward. The woman wears her betrothal ring on the third finger of her left hand until she is married, and then it is transferred to the third finger of her right hand. The man continues to wear his ring just as the wife wore hers when she was a bride

SERIOUS ACCIDENT

Saturday night a Britton auto with five or six occupants, came to grief in Kissing Hollow between Tecumseh and Clinton. The car made a flying leap throwing the occupants some 30 feet or more fortunately striking the ground instead of the water. They were all more or less hurt, some quite seriously. Several cars went to the rescue and brought them in to the doctors. As the auto was coming down the hill they discovered a buggy and an auto on the bridge turning aside they stopped until the buggy and auto passed them, and in starting up, the back wheels slipped and threw them down the em bankment the car resting on the branch of a tree and one corner of the bridge. It is reported that in less than an hour after the accident occurred the car was looted of over $100.00 of property among which was the extra tire from the back of the car.

The car belonged to John Rixom of Britton and was driven by his son. The other passengers were Albert Gamble, Seaman Packard and L. C. Hayden.

MRS CYRIL POOKLINGTON

Mrs. Cyril Peck'ington passed away Friday morning at the home of her grandson Orval Freer at the advanced age of 89 years. She has been a residence of this vicinity for nearly 70 years. She is survived by two grandchildren Orval Freer and Mrs. Frank Gibson of Parma, Mich. The funeral was held this afternoon at 1:30 from the home.

Germany's Preparation For War Expenses

In 1905 Germany was all but mobilized against France. The money lords in London, Paris, and Vienna stepped between the rival nations and the Algeciras conference patched up their differences. Again in 1911 Morocco was the sore point between Germany and France, and the Kaiser upset Europe by his "sword-rattling" speech. The affair of the Panther caused the British lion to grow', Germany was then much over-extended in all of the international money markets. It has been estimated that she was conducting 90 per cent of her commercial affairs on borowed money. This figure is probably much exaggerated. But certainly she owed several hundred millions to Paris and nearly as much to London. New York was then, too, a large creditor and so was Russia.

Quietly Paris began drawing down her balances in Berlin. London and New York followed. German bankers were startled and made protest but their loans were called from all directions. Then they tried to borrow in those countries politically hostile to them and offered high rates of interest to attract the American market. But the lenders were in concert on this one point that no funds would be advanced without the personal guarantee of the Kaiser that they would be used for "legitimate purposes", that is, not against the lenders. A little later when the German bankers were asked by Emperor William if they were in a condition to meet the chances of war they were obliged to respond in the negative. Then came the famous command: "Gentlemen, when I next call on you I shall expect you to be ready." This is the first suggestion that war was brewing.—From "Europe's Preparation for War Expenses," by Chas. F. Speare, in the American Review of Reviews for September.

A Journalist Bought Suez.

The journalist is often the man behind the statesman, but he seldom gets the credit. Who was it that induced Mr. Disraeli to buy the Suez canal shares which have proved so abundantly good an investment, with dividends that are represented not only by money, though even from that point of view it is the best investment that a state has ever made? Fleet street knows and honors the name of Mr. Frederick Greenwood both for that reason and for many another. But how many outside the world of journalism realize that but for Mr. Greenwood the Suez canal shares would probably have been purchased by a rival continental power? The question was one among those put in a "general intelligence" examination paper a little time back at a certain school. Only one boy was able to answer it correctly, and he was the son of the prime minister.—London Chronicle.

"THE CALLING OF DAN MATTHEWS"

The opera season was opened Friday evening with "The Calling of Dan Matthews." The house was well filled with an appreciative audience Those who have read the book could not fail to be pleased with the dramatization and the presentation was good throughout and received hearty applause as the play proceeded.

The character of Dan Matthews, called to the ministry of Strong's Memorial church, with a heart full of Christian love for all, hampered by the narrowness of the church board, but triumphant at last as a Christian man, was well sustained by James Bysel. Bluff, big hearted, good old Dr. Oldham, Deborah Mulhall and poor, crippled Denny who was "no philosopher, but an Irish gardener, your honor," Mrs. Oldham, one of the shining lights in the church, and Aunt Liz, the faithful old negress, were all presented, true to the life. Judge Strong, of Strong's Memorial church, pompous and egotistic, Elder Jordan with his fear of the speech of people were both well known characters in many a church beside Strong's Memorial. Hope Farwell, the nurse, with her big hearted love for the down trodden and oppressed, Grace Connors, "that Connors girl" who was thrust out because of her father who in a drunken frenzy committed murder and was hanged, poor Grace, the victim of untoward circumstance—these characters were remarkable for their realism. The whole play was one of deep interest throughout and everyone present listened with close attention until the last drop of the curtain.

Regular meeting of the L. O. T. M. M. Monday evening, Sept 13, Nomination and election of officers.

CLINTON IS AGAIN BEATEN BY TECUMSEH

Score 4-3.

In a poorly played but interesting game Tecumseh Independents again let Clinton down to defeat. Lenardson pitched a creditable and steady game. "Dutch" Heesen had an "off" day and surprised every one by getting some very good hits Clinton played very poorly in the field, errors giving the game to Tecumseh. An average crowd turned out to witness the struggle. Most of the fans are getting tired of seeing the same teams play so often. "Nifty" Hanna came near to pulling the star play of the year when he went high in the air and knocked down a hard hit liner. He failed to get his man at first.

Score by innings:

Clinton	0	0	0	0	0	2	0	1	0	3	7	4
Tecumseh	0	1	0	0	1	2	0	0	0	4	7	3

Geodetic Survey.

A geodetic survey means mapping large areas by methods which take the curvature of the earth's surface into account as ordinary surveys on a small scale do not. The United States coast and geodetic survey, now attached to the department of commerce and labor, is charged with the survey of the coasts of the United States and coasts under the jurisdiction thereof and the publication of charts covering said coasts. This includes base measure, triangulation, topography and hydrography along said coast; the survey of rivers to the head of tidewater or ship navigation, deep sea soundings, temperature and current observations along said coast and throughout the gulf and Japan streams, termination of latitude and longitude, etc. It is one of those branches of the public service which we do not hear much about, but which is constantly and quietly engaged in producing scientific results.—Philadelphia Press.

A Bavarian Apple Pie.

One of the most delicious ways to use apples in cookery is in a Bavarian pie. Line a deep dish with pastry. Fill it with breadcrumbs and bake it until the pastry is done. Then remove the crumbs and fill the cavity with chopped apples and nuts and some stoned raisins. Sweeten with sugar and flavor with nutmeg and cinnamon. Sprinkle with cake crumbs and bake till it is brown on top and the fruit within is thoroughly cooked. Spread over the top a lemon flavored meringue and let it become a light brown in the oven. Set the pie away to cool before serving.

ASTHMA AND HAY FEVER A GUARANTEED TREATMENT.

"I have arranged with B. J. Pulver so that every sufferer from Asthma, Hay Fever or Bronchial Asthma in Tecumseh can try my treatment entirely at my risk," Dr. Rudolph Schiffmann announces. He says: "Buy a 50 cent package of my Asthmador Cigarettes, try it, and if it does not afford you immediate relief, or if you do not find it the best ever used, take it back to B. J. Pulver and they will return your money, cheerfully and without any question whatever. After seeing the grateful relief it has afforded in hundreds of cases, which had been considered incurable, and which had been given up in despair, I know what it will do. I am so sure that it will do the same with others that I am not afraid to guarantee it will relieve instantaneously. The druggists handling Asthmador will return your money if you say so. You are to be the sole judge and under this positive guarantee, absolutely no risk is run in buying Asthmador."

Persons living elsewhere will be supplied under the same guarantee by their local druggist or direct by Dr. R. Schiffmann, St. Paul, Minn.

The Truly Reticent Woman.

Speak of a reticent woman and most people picture to themselves a woman who doesn't talk much. But the truly reticent woman—the woman who makes reticence an art—is not at all silent. She talks with apparently the greatest candor, so that people go away from her saying what a frank, genial woman she is. And no one ever suspects, unless he or she is phenomenally clever, that the genial conversationalist had all sorts of unspoken things in her mind.—Exchange.

Avoid Self-Consciousness.

To think about oneself all the while is to turn energy in on oneself continually that might much better go out in unselfish action. The self-conscious person needs to pour out this force of attention and thought, instead of concentrating it on self and wasting it in awkward embarrassment and hurt pride.—Great Thoughts.

AND NOW, JOHN B. SMITH !!

It is the belief of the Herald that John B. Smith has the right to order autos off the streets, or to stand in proper position, but we fail to see where he has the right to use his car to push them off.

Saturday afternoon Mr. Smith came out of the barber shop, and started his car. In his haste he ran into the Slayton car, standing on the street. The back part of the body and the tail light was damaged, and his own headlight was smashed. The force of the contact forced the Slayton car several feet ahead. How ever no one was hurt and the damage was slight.—But to think John B. should do such a thing as that.

ENTERTAINED.

Mrs. Floyd Bryan entertained the 'Chic' girls at her home Friday afternoon. Fancy needle work and social visiting filled in the pleasant hours. Most appetising refreshments were served and the afternoon was prolonged into the evening hours. Miss Florence Bryan was the honored guest, as she was to leave Saturday for Eaton Rapids to teach in their schools for the coming year. Each one decided that Phoebe made a charming hostess in her new role as mistsess of the home.

THEY WERE WELL MATCHED.

Why the Ramseys Were Like Old Joe Murchison's Team.

"It seems strange that the Ramseys should have married each other," said Mrs. Pilman.

"Strange? Not at all, my dear!" replied her husband. "They are well mated—as well mated as old Joe Murchison's horses were."

"I don't know anything about Murchison's horses," said Mrs. Pilman, "but I know that Mr. Ramsey is big and handsome and indolent, and Mrs. Ramsey is always at work and is thrifty into the bargain."

"That bears out what I say, my dear," said her husband. "Let me explain. In that remote and 'dark ages' period of my life before I knew you they offered a prize at the annual fair for the best matched pair of agricultural horses. There were some beauties brought in, so that everybody laughed when old Joe Murchison came driving along a great, handsome, slow moving horse harnessed with a wiry, scrawny little beast that took two steps to the big fellow's one.

"'That's a finely matched pair!' somebody shouted.

"'So they be!' agreed Joe complacently. 'So they be! The best matched pair in the county! One's willin' to do all the work an' t'other's willin' he should!'"—Exchange.

THE OLD YORK ROAD.

The construction of this famous road in 1711 was an example that led the energetic colonists at other points along the Atlantic seaboard to make similar roads where there were no water routes. For the most part these roads were built by chartered companies and were called turnpikes or toll roads. Pennsylvania, Connecticut and New Jersey had many roads of this kind.

The first macadamized road in this country was constructed in 1792 between Philadelphia and Lancaster. In 1811 there were said to be 4,500 miles of chartered turnpikes in New England and New York. During the next twenty years the government expended many millions of dollars in constructing great highways, but the panic of 1837 and the building of railways and canals put an end to that branch of the government work.—Washington Star.

HAPPY WOMEN

Plenty of Them in Tecumseh and Good Reason for It

Wouldn't any woman be happy?
After years of backache suffering,
Days of misery, nights of unrest,
The distress of urinary troubles,
When she finds freedom.

Many readers will profit by the following.

Mrs. Sarah E. Austin, Pearl St., Tecumseh, Mich., says "I suffered from kidney complaint for more than a year. When someone told me that Doan's Kidney Pills were good in such cases I got a supply at Wright & Son Drug store. They helped me immediately and I continued using them until I was well. I have had no need of Doan's Kidney Pills or any other kidney medicine since." Price 50c, at all dealers. TRICK OF THE FUNNEL.

To blow out a candle, using a funnel to blow through, seems a ridiculously easy thing to do. But ask any friend of yours to try it and see what happens. Ten to one he will try to blow through the cup so as to force his breath through the narrow neck of the funnel. As this is not an easy thing to do he will flatten mouth and nose in his endeavors, while trying to force his face into the small cup. Then he will reverse the funnel and blow into the neck, and when he does not succeed in extinguishing the light he will blow harder and harder and finally he will admit that he is beaten.

In blowing through the neck of the funnel he has directed the funnel directly at the light, so that the flame is exactly opposite to the place where the neck of funnel joins the cup. You, on taking the funnel from him, incline the funnel so that its upper edge is on a level with the light. You blow gently. The light is extinguished at the first puff without any of the desperate effort which your friend put forth.

If you ponder a moment you will realize why you succeeded and why your friend failed. His breath on entering the cup or funnel spread in all directions, and the tiny current of air was dispersed upward and downward, so that, as he neatly leveled the center of the funnel at the flame, no current of air ever reached it.

You, on the contrary, hold the upper wall of the funnel on a level with the flame. The current of air started by your breath, on reaching the edge of the wall, streamed onward in the direction given it by the restraining wall and on reaching the flame snuffed it out.—Boston American.

Fisherman's Luck.

No one can have done much fishing without realizing that there is an insolvable mystery—in fact, there are several insolvable mysteries—connected with "fisherman's luck."

For example, if two men sit in opposite ends of a boat and use precisely the same tackle, bait, etc., and are fishing with equal skill, one of them will catch a dozen fish, while the other won't have a bite. They change places and perhaps change rods. The lucky man still catches, the unlucky one doesn't.

Some men will have abnormal luck some days, and at other times they can get "nary a bite." Why can some men step forward, jab any old kind of bait on a hook, fling it carelessly into the water and draw up a mess of big fish, while others, fishing scientifically, can't even catch a minnow? We are told that there is a reason for everything—a logical explanation that can be found.

Who will step modestly forward and explain that world old mystery known as "fisherman's luck?" Will any of our readers?—Philadelphia Press.

Effective Bravado.

Lord Cromer's quick and daring methods in dealing with an Egyptian rising are illustrated by the following incident: There were rumors of a native rising. Cairo was almost openly disaffected, and the British garrison was small. His lordship, however, caused it to be known that a regiment was on the way from India, but he was careful not to explain that it consisted of sick leave and time expired men and bandsmen. All the able-bodied soldiers in garrison were ordered to parade all over the town in small parties, and the natives did not take in the fact that they were a sort of stage army—the same men over and over again. The last straw was when Lord Cromer coolly put on flannels and publicly played game after game of tennis. This final piece of bravado nipped the threatened rising in the bud.—London Express.

The Meaning of "Piccadilly."

Piccadilly, in London, was so called from Piccadilly hall, the chief depot of a certain sort of lace much in vogue during the reign of Queen Elizabeth. The lace was called Piccadilly lace from its little spear points, a diminutive of "tica," a pike or spear. In the reign of James I. the high ruff was called a piccadilly, though divested of its lace edging.

"Glossographia," published in 1681, states that "Piccadilly was named from Higgins' famous ordinary near St. James', called Higgins' Piccadilly, because he made his money by selling piccadillies." Another authority, Isaac Taylor, writes, "Piccadilly so called from Piccadilla hall; a shop for the sale of piccadillas, the fashionable peaked or turnover collars."—Manchester Courier.

A Last Resort.

Some days ago a young woman called at the house of a prominent doctor and after discoursing on all the topics of interest of the day settled down to tell him her ailments. Among other things, she said that she was greatly troubled by a "sinking feeling."

The doctor prepared a little bottle of medicine and gave it to her with minute directions as to how it should be taken. The woman began to talk, but at length, after many vain efforts on his part to get rid of her, made for the door. She had just opened it when she turned and said:

"Oh, doctor, what shall I do if this medicine does not cure me?"

First Poor Laws.

Until well within the nineteenth century the poor men depended almost entirely upon private benevolence. By statute of Edward III., 1349, it was enacted that none should give alms to a beggar able to work. By the common law beggars were to be sustained by "parsons, rectors of churches and parishioners, so that none should die for default of sustenance," and by Richard III. proprietors were obliged to distribute a yearly sum to the poor. The origin of the present poor law in England is referred to the time of Elizabeth, 1601.

Force of Habit.

"What is the price of a ticket to Montbraska?"

"Umphsty-seven dollars and umphsteen cents," said the agent, displaying several yards of yellow pasteboard.

"I am just shopping," said the lady absently. "Can you cut me off a sample?"—Chicago Tribune.

He Was Right.

Defeated Candidate—You encouraged me to run for the office. You know you did. You said you thought I wouldn't make a bad alderman. Trusty Henchman—Well, the returns seem to show that I was right.—Christian Register.

Great Britain and the Empire.

The British isles—that is, England, Wales, Scotland and Ireland, with the adjacent islands—constitute but one sixty-fourth part of the British empire. Australia alone is more than twenty-five times larger than Great Britain.

Curious Sundial.

In a Welsh cemetery there is a stone cross marking a grave that also serves as a sundial, the hours being marked on the upright to receive the shadow of the crossbeam.

It is more necessary for the soul to be healed than the body, for it is better to die than to live ill.—Epictetus.

That Weak Back
accompanied by pain here or there—extreme nervousness—sleeplessness—may be faint spells—or spasms—all are signals of distress for a woman. She may be growing from girlhood into womanhood—passing from womanhood to motherhood—or later suffering from that change into middle life which leaves so many wrecks of women. At any or all of these periods of a woman's life she should take a tonic and nervine prescribed for just such cases by a physician of vast experience in the diseases of women.
DR. PIERCE'S
has successfully treated more cases in past forty years than any other known remedy. It can now be had in sugar-coated, tablet form as well as in the liquid. Sold by medicine dealers or trial box by mail on receipt of 50 cents in stamps.
Miss Elizabeth Lordahl of Berkeley, Cal., in a recent letter to Dr. Pierce said: "I was completely broken down in health, I was aching and had pains all over my body and was so nervous that I could scream if anyone talked to me, but I had the good fortune to meet a nurse who had been cured by Dr. Pierce's Prescription. I have never had an occasion to consult a physician since—am in excellent health."
Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate stomach, liver and bowels—sugar-coated, tiny granules

Men and Fools.

A man can be as big a fool at thirty as he can be at twenty or, for that matter, at sixty, with this difference, that at twenty he doesn't know that he is a fool. He thinks that he is a god and enjoys the experience. At sixty he knows well enough what he is and thanks his stars that he has yet another chance before going down to the grave. But at thirty-five he has neither the illusions of youth nor the consolations of age. He is young enough to feel foolish and old enough to know better.—"Curing Christopher."

The Split Infinitive.

Mme. Sarah Grand writes to the London Express:

"The split infinitive is a somewhat sore subject with me, for I believe it is to be found in my own early work, with other errors of my youth of which I have long repented. When I come across the 'split' in my reading now it pulls me up with a horrid jar, and I believe that must always be the case once the ear has been tuned to the rhythm of the best English authors."

Heavenly Match.

Husband (irritably)—It isn't a year since you said you believed our marriage was made in heaven, and yet now you order me around as if I wasn't anybody. Wife (calmly)—Order, you know, is heaven's first law.—New York Weekly.

Abstemious.

"I'm not eating very much of late."

"What's the matter, old man? Lost your appetite?"

"No; my credit."—Boston Transcript.

THE LOST ART

The Stupendous Task That Was Set a Lover

"No, sir!"

"But why not?"

"Young man, I have not the slightest objection to you personally. Your family, your character, are above reproach, but financially, my dear sir, financially, Ethel has been raised accustomed to everything that money can buy, and to be candid, my dear sir, what have you?"

Old Herrington, millionaire president of the First National bank, tilted back in his chair and gazed, half in compassion, half in amusement, yet with a show of regard, at the doleful young man before him.

A fine, strapping speciman of manhood Philip Stone was, but just now he appeared all dejection.

"Then I cannot marry Ethel?" he asked ruefully.

"I am very sorry, but I must say no."

"But could I had I the money?"

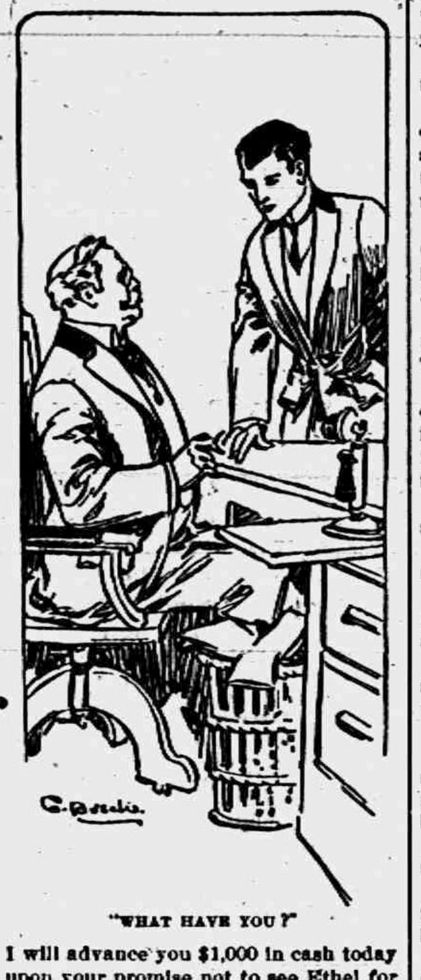
"Well, my boy, that is another question, but I am not certain. Yes, I will say positively that if you were able to support her you would have my full consent."

"How much?" asked the young man laconically.

"Good! That sounds like business," responded the banker, bringing his feet flat on the floor. "Well, I think I would risk you with a hundred thousand dollars."

"A hundred thousand suns!" muttered the young fellow. "To tell you the flat truth, Mr. Herrington, I have nothing but an income of less than a hundred dollars a month from my salary."

"My dear Stone," said the elder man earnestly, "I admire you immensely, and of all young men I know I would choose you, if you had the money, for Ethel's husband. Now, Ethel is barely eighteen and can well afford to wait. You may have her on this condition: I will advance you $1,000 in cash today upon your promise not to see Ethel for a year, and if at the end of that time you have not $100,000 in cash or the prospects of it, which I alone must decide, then you will never see Ethel again. On the other hand, if you have the money you may marry her a year from today if she is willing."



"WHAT HAVE YOU?"

The young man looked up eagerly.

"Yes, Philip, that is what I mean."

"Agreed!" he said, putting out his hand.

With one hand the banker took the proffered grasp, while with the other he reached for his private check book. Three minutes later Philip Stone was bidding his all but to be father-in-law goodby. In his pocket was a check for $1,000.

"Tell me, Mr. Herrington, what shall I do to get this fortune and Ethel within a year, for get both of them I will?"

"Go to the ant, thou sluggard," smiled the old man, with a kindly grasp of Philip's hand that took all the sting out of the epithet.

Philip Stone left the bank and sought the seclusion of a quiet, sunny nook in the park. For awhile he sat and planned and schemed, but to no purpose.

Then the old man's advice came to his mind. "Go to the ant, thou sluggard," and as a forlorn hope he began idly to watch a city of insects at his feet.

Red ants they were, busily engaged in repairing the havoc wrought by a passing hoof.

Then an inspiration thrilled him. With his penknife he carefully tore the ant hill to pieces, stepping here and there and brushing vigorously to avoid the stings of the brave little home defenders. In his handkerchief he placed a double handful of the white larvae—embryonic ants.

Gently knotting the handkerchief together and putting it carefully in his coat pocket, he caught the nearest cab and gave the order, "Keen & Bishop, Broadway, bullion dealers."

An hour later, when he returned home, in one pocket was a pint of red ants' eggs, in the other a thousand dollars in the shape of six pounds of unrefined gold dust.

Then he sent Jones, the man of all work about the house, to the florists for some very fine earth free from all sandy particles.

On Jones' return he took a peck of this earth and sifted it through a fine sieve; then with it he mixed the gold dust and put all but a handful in a glass jar.

He carefully deposited the ants' eggs in the jar on top of the earth and over them lightly sprinkled the remaining handful. This done, he put the whole in the sun.

In a week they came, several hundred vigorous young ants with unheard of energy for ant hill building, but with no material with which to work except the grains of gold dust scattered throughout almost microscopic dust. But, heavily handicapped as they were, they went vigorously to work.

In two weeks a tiny hill, a genuine ant hill of pure gold, was erected within the jar. Philip watched this process with huge delight. Soon that golden hill was alive with white larvae, eggs of a new generation. When they, too, had become ants he destroyed the hill and once more mixed the gold with the dust. Again the little workers sorted it all out and built a hill of gold.

Before long the house was full of white larvae, which, in time, turned into a third generation of ants accustomed to handling nothing but gold.

But this was not his plan. Six months had passed, and still he was no nearer the hundred thousand dollars or Ethel than before. But he had gained this much—he had a plan that, to his mind, at least, promised certainty, so that day he applied for a two weeks' vacation from the fruit house where he was bookkeeper.

Incidentally he asked for and received a pass to Arizona and return. Then away to Arizona went Philip Stone and his trained ants.

He returned to New York, went quietly to work recording peaches and prunes and said nothing.

Five months passed, still no $100,000. But two weeks more were left when Philip appeared one morning before Mr. Herrington, the millionaire banker.

"Well, Philip, my boy, have you got it?" asked the old gentleman eagerly.

"Don't know, sir. That is what I want you to go and see," responded the young man.

"Where?" asked the elder.

"Arizona," said Philip.

"Mining?" said the old gentleman.

"I don't know, sir," said Philip. "I want you to go and see with me. Will you?"

"Philip, you're a genius. My physician told me I needed a change of scene and a higher altitude. We'll go to Arizona. Be ready to start in the morning."

A week later Philip Stone and Banker Herrington stood on the high arid plateau thirty miles west of Phoenix, Ariz.

"Philip, my boy, I don't see any mine here," said the old gentleman. Then he looked at Philip suspiciously.

"Perhaps the poor boy is unbalanced," mused the old gentleman, "brooding over all this. I was cruel to him, for he is not the kind and he is not the breed to plan anything irregular."

"No mine?" said Philip, with the sunshine in his face.

"No mine," repeated the old gentleman.

Banker Herrington looked instantly at his feet, at the ant hill. It was a mound two feet high of pure gold.

"There's Ethel, sir," said Philip.

The old gentleman gazed with open mouth. He reached down, took a handful of sand—gold it surely was, half a bushel, and easily $100,000 worth.

He reached over and took Philip by the hand.

"Allow me to congratulate you, Philip, my boy; you have done it. Tell me, how did you find it?"

"I find it, sir? I didn't. I did it by forcing three generations of hill building red ants to collect gold dust when they'd nothing else with which to build. I bred into them the instinct to collect nothing but gold. Six months ago I brought them out here and planted them. You see the result."

The old gentleman saw and then and there gave Philip his full consent. On their pack horses they took that ant pile to civilization.

Philip had won Ethel. The old man was delighted. Philip was still more delighted, but the most delighted of all was Ethel.

Banker Herrington enthusiastically proclaimed that he had the most intelligent son-in-law in existence, for the supply of ants is unlimited, and in the sands of Arizona are undoubtedly billions of gold dust that, for lack of water, can never be washed.

But in destroying that golden ant hill for the sake of his gold they had unwittingly killed all the trained inhabitants.

Philip could never again breed another hill like them. It is now one of the lost arts.

ALLIES ARE WINNING IN BIG BATTLE

Foe Beaten Back at French Center.

4,000,000 IN CONFLICT

250,000 Russian Troops Reported in France.

TURKS CONCENTRATE 80,000

Belgians Win in Battle With Invaders—German Casualty List Reports 16,236 Lost—Burgomaster Asked to Surrender Ghent to Kaiser's Men—Germany Turns Down Austrian Request For Loan—Allies Evacuate Senlis—German Emissaries Inciting Mohammedans Against English.

The Belgians have achieved a notable success over the Germans near Saint Amand. Whole companies were put out of action.

A Petrograd dispatch says the strong Austrian forts at Nicolaieff and Mikolajow, situated in Galicia, about twenty-five miles southwest of Lemberg, were captured by the Russians Sept. 5.

The Germans have lost ground in the fighting on the French center between Fere-Champenoise and Vitry-le-Francois at the southern point of the forest of Argonne.

According to the Rome Tribuna there is in France today a total of 250,000 Russian Troops.

The twentieth casualty list just issued in Berlin contains 1,180 names. Included in the list are 187 dead and nearly 1,000 wounded. The total casualties thus far published aggregate 2,273 dead, 10,714 wounded and 3,249 missing.

According to the newspaper Bien Publique of Ghent, the burgomaster of that city has received a letter from the German commander asking him to come to Oordegen to make arrangements for the entry of the Germans in Ghent.

The Turks, in order to be prepared to oppose a possible landing of Russians, have concentrated 80,000 men at Tchatalja, twenty-five miles northwest of Constantinople, and at Rodosto, on the Sea of Marmora, and are fortifying along the Sea of Marmora at other points.

The Reuter Telegram company says that the czar has prohibited the sale of liquors for the duration of the war.

A Havas agency from Zurich, Switzerland, says that the newspapers there announce that Germany has rejected Austria's request for a loan and that the bankers have taken similar action.

A dispatch from Bucharest to Petrograd by way of London and Odessa announces the entry of Russian troops into Czernowitz. The city is the capital of Bukowina, Austria-Hungary, and is 146 miles southeast of Lemberg.

The French town of Senlis was evacuated by the allies, and the north and south movement of the German army continues, the French embassy announced after receiving a cablegram from its government at Bordeaux.

A dispatch to the Reuter Telegram company from Naples says: "Steamers arriving from Egypt report that German emissaries are inciting the Mohammedans against England, saying that Germany is everywhere victorious."

Henryk Sienkiewicz, the Polish author, has issued an appeal to the Austrian Poles to fight with Russia. Mr. Sienkiewicz is the author of "Quo Vadis."

A dispatch from Antwerp to the Exchange Telegraph company dated Sunday, says:

"The repulse of the German attack against the southern part of Antwerp at Chappelle au Bois, yesterday was successful, the Germans leaving thousands of bodies in the field and retiring in disorder on Vilvorde, six miles northeast of Brussels. They are demoralized by the complete check of the attempt against Antwerp and by the losses inflicted by our field artillery. The Belgian losses are not numerous."

A second Austrian army operating in front of Krasnozdow in the Lublin region has suffered great losses and is now on the defensive, says a dispatch from Paris.

A fact showing the importance the Germans attach to the battle now raging is that Kaiser Wilhelm himself is now in that theater of war. Accounts disagree as to his exact whereabouts, but it is known that he is in charge and is at some [illegible] along the German eastern line.

LONDON — Both flanks of the German army have been turned—that of the east by French troops under General Joffre and that of the west by the British under Sir John French, according to unofficial dispatches received here. It is stated, however, that both French and German armies are in critical positions, in which defeat would be absolute disaster. The conflict extends over an irregular line 120 miles from east to west and fifty miles from north to south.

The retreat of the Germans from Lille is declared to be due to their fear of attack from an army of British and Russian forces believed to have been landed at a port on the English channel.

The troops engaged number more than than 4,000,000, the Germans having 2,000,000 soldiers in France. The forces of the allies, now reinforced, are believed to be equal in numbers to the invaders.

Paris reports that French and British armies, reunited after the long retreat on the left wing from Maubeuge to Paris, gave battle to the Germans and defeated them in the first stages of conflict. The retreat of the Germans is being harassed by the French in pursuit, who are keeping up a constant artillery fire on the enemy.

The struggle which may decide the war so far as France is concerned rages from Nanteuil to Verdun. Nanteuil is twenty-five miles from Paris. Wounded soldiers are being brought into Paris.

"A general action has started on the line through Nanteuil-Le-Haudouin, Meaux, Sezanne and Vitry le Francois and extending to Verdun.

"Thanks to the very vigorous action of our troops, strongly supported by the British, the Germans started retiring.

"The Germans had advanced Saturday and Sunday into the region between Coulommiers and La Ferte-Gaucher."

Germany's army now has its back turned to Paris and is being pursued by the French and British. The enemy is moving to the northeast, apparently to join the German center army.

Protesting to the foreign office against its note of Sept. 3 to the diplomatic representatives in Peking and referring to the transgression of Chinese neutrality by the landing of Japanese troops at Lungkow, Baron Von Maltzan, the German charge d'affairs, declares that Germany would hold China responsible for permitting Japanese and British soldiers to cross her territory.

The wide turning movement of the German flank near Paris is believed to be caused by a fear on the part of the German general staff of attacking Paris while the French armies are intact. The danger of exposing their rear, in thus swinging around Paris in the hope of destroying the French army, is obvious, and the French are continuing to harass the German's front and rear. Shells fall continually in the rear of the swinging German army.

The belief is growing that the present battle is of the utmost importance, particularly as regards the eastern lines of the French armies. If the fourth German army cuts off the retreat of the eastern French armies which have been holding the Germans in check between Toul and Epinal, two strongly fortified towns, it might be able to drive the Frenchmen over into Switzerland.

DINANT IS REPORTED RAZED

Germans Destroy Belgian Town and Kill Many Civilians.

LONDON — Germans have destroyed the Belgian town of Dinant after shooting hundreds of male inhabitants because it was alleged shots had been fired from the heights overlooking the city, says an Ostend dispatch to the Reuter Telegram company. Following is the text of the telegram:

"The Germans, in a few hours by shell fire and incendiarism, destroyed Dinant, on the Meuse. Hundreds of male inhabitants were shot, including one party of prominent citizens, who were executed together in the Place d'Armes. The Germans alleged that the civilians had fired shots into Dinant from the heights."

Turks Install Government.

LONDON — An Exchange Telegraph company's dispatch from Valona, Albania, says that a complete Turkish government was installed there.

Genady Adin Bey, a former Turkish official, will replace the provisional government, which took charge of affairs when Prince William of Wied withdrew from his kingdom.

THREE INSPECTORS ADMIT PETTY GRAFT

State Dairy and Food Employees Find Picking Easy.

DETROIT — Complete confession of the taking of "graft" money was made to detectives by the three former state food inspectors arrested Saturday.

The admissions of J. H. Lighthill and Robert J. Doherty to the detectives was corroborated by a third inspector, Andrew H. Raike, who is also involved in the confessions, and was a tale of easy "graft" due to the fact that the inspectors had practically no one to supervise their work and handled their cases independently of the Lansing headquarters.

The confession was one of petty graft, apparently inspired in Lighthill and Doherty, who became inspectors about July 1, 1914, by Raike, who was an inspector for two years.

"The thing was easy because we did as we pleased in the individual cases and had no one to pass upon what action we took. We shipped out samples to the state chemist and he returned them to us individually, and not to the office," said Doherty and Lighthill.

The police discovered on Doherty and Lighthill, lists of the butter, egg and poultry dealers in the city and many of these whose names were found on the slips will be questioned about the activity of the men in getting money.

BALLOONIST IS NEAR DEATH

Woman Aeronaut Is Horribly Lacerated: Foul Play Suspected.

BATTLE CREEK, MICH. — With the parachute ropes tied, Mrs. C. S. Miller, wife of "Professor Miller," a local balloonist, was forced to descend with the gas bag in which she was making an ascension here Sunday, and was horribly lacerated by being dragged over the ground.

Ropes which it is asserted were handled by her husband were tied in such a way that the parachute could not be cut loose. It is alleged that Miller has threatened his wife's life on a number of occasions, and therefore foul play is suspected as the cause of the accident. Trouble began when Mrs. Miller refused to make ascensions when ordered to by the "professor." Rather than obey him, she attempted suicide by taking poison and jumping in the mill pond, but was rescued. Her husband finally prevailed upon her to ascend. Last week she had an accident, but was saved by her life belt.

GRAB LIVE WIRE, ONE DIES

Marquette Child Badly Burned Helping to Free Playmate.

MARQUETTE, MICH. — Toddling about in a neighbor's yard, three-year-old John William Wolff, son of a local railroad official, caught hold of a broken wire that dangled near the house. Four-year-old Edward Downs, a neighbor's son, caught hold of William because he saw smoke coming from the hand that held the wire, and tried to pull the baby away. He shrieked with pain, and neighbors, attracted by the cries, pulled the wire from the Wolff child's hands with sticks.

The Wolff baby was dead, while the Downs boy was badly burned and may not recover from the shock. The wire had fallen across a light wire.

CZAR'S TROOPS TRAP AUSTRIANS

GALACIA ANNEXED BY NICHOLAS

Austrian Troops Are Surrounded by Superior Forces—Big Slav Force Besieges Przemsyl—German Airmen Arrive to Aid Kaiser's Ally—Russ Capture Strong Austrian Forts.

LONDON — In an attempt to complete the trapping of the main Austrian army, Russian troops art pushing around the Austrians' flank while engaging the army in force in the center. Reports from Petrograd say that the Austrian army is in a precarious position, being completely bottled up on three sides by superior Russian forces, and its retreat cut off on the fourth side by swamps in the country about the San and Vistula rivers.

German Armies Arrive.

A special dispatch to the Star from Petrograd announces that many German aeroplanes are appearing on the Russian frontier, heralding the arrival of re-enforcements.

The Germans seems to possess a powerful force in the Posen district, the Star correspondent says, as they move their troops from Posen to East Prussia or Galicia as occasion demands.

Prisoners Sent to Interior.

A telegram from Petrograd to the Reuter Telegram company says it is estimated that 82,000 prisoners, taken in recent battles on the Austrian frontier, of whom 12,000 came from the Austrian center, have all been sent to the interior governments of Russia and that there is difficulty in knowing how to dispose of them.

POPE CROWNED WITH SOLEMN CEREMONIES

Supreme Pontiff Received with Popular Acclaim.

ROME, ITALY.—Fifty-eight cardinals, including the three American cardinals, gorgeously robed and mitred, and numerous prelates, chamberlains in full uniforms, and troops surrounded the Gestadorial chair bearing the pope as it was carried through the crowded corridors of the vatican.

After the adoration of the sacrament in the Pauline Chapel, the cortege proceeded to the Sistine chapel, where the pope, assisted by the cardinals, celebrated high mass. He then was solmenly crowned with the tiarra amid the acclamations of the crowds, the sounding of trumpets and the ringing of bells. The cardinals paid their homage and kissed the pope's feet. A pontifical blessing ended the ceremony.

To whom it may concern:

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, That the above entitled cause, or suit, concerns, involves the title, and is brought to quiet the title to the following described lands, viz.-

Those lands in the Township of Macon, in the County of Lenawee and State of Michigan, known and described as the Southwest quarter of the Northwest quarter of Section Seventeen; the Northwest quarter of the Southwest quarter of said section; the West half of the Southwest quarter of the Southwest quarter of said section and the Southeast quarter of the Southeast quarter of Section Eighteen; all in Town Five South, Range Five East, and containing in all one hundred and forty acres of land, as in the bill of complaint described.

Dated: August 31st, A. D. 1914.

FRED B. WOOD,
Solicitor for above named Complainant.

Treating a Corn.

Whether a corn is treated at home or by a chiropodist, the treatment is the same. It consists of applying to the surface an acid (the most commonly used being salicylic) mixed with collodion and ether. The ether evaporates, leaving a layer of collodion to hold the acid while this does its work. After applying this regularly for four or five days the foot is soaked in hot water, when the corn can be picked out in one piece, leaving a hole, which quickly fills up. Some chiropodists eat the corn out by repeated applications of nitric acid, picking away the parts of the corn destroyed at each treatment. Every time you cut a corn yourself you run the risk of blood poisoning.—New York World.

Nothing Doing.

A little four-year-old, a most attractive little fairy, suddenly lost interest in Sunday school. She had enjoyed so much learning about Moses that her mother could not understand the change of attitude.

"Why don't you want to go, daughter?" she asked.

"Oh," was the astonishing reply, "I don't like to go to Sunday school since Moses died."—Woman's Home Companion.

Her Telltale Lips.

"You have been kissing another man."

"Then I withdraw it. But I preferred to believe that than to think you had been chewing tobacco."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Better to Admonish.

It is better to admonish than to reproach, for the one is mild and friendly, the other harsh and offensive. The one corrects the faulty; the other only convicts them.—Epictetus.

Wanted a Little Praise Himself.

Following a disastrous fire in a western city many men and women gathered to look at the ruins. Some of the men seeing that a wall near which they were standing was topping, made haste to get out of the way and narrowly escaped being crushed

Johnny Brabison, a good Irish citizen, was so near the wall that he could not escape with the others. So, whirling about, he made for a door in the wall, burst through it and came out on the other side safe and evidently very proud of his exploit. Women who had shut their eyes and shrieked when they saw his danger now gathered round him in great joy and cried out:

"Praise heaven, Johnny Brabison, down on your knees and thank heaven!"

"Yis, yis," said he, "and I will, but wasn't it injaneyyous in me, now?"—Youth's Companion.

"Kubisagari."

One of the strangest diseases is known as kubisagari. It is common in northern Japan and in a small district on the Franco-Swiss frontier, but unknown elsewhere. Its symptoms are a sudden paralysis of certain muscles, loss of vision and vertigo. The attacks last about ten minutes and continue from May to November, recovery always coming in the autumn. Nothing is known about its cause, though Dr. P. L. Couchaud describes in the Presse Medicale a microbe he found in the cerebro spinal fluid and the milk of persons suffering from the disease. The name kubisagari is Japanese and means "drop head."

Conclusive.

Two Pullman porters representing different railroads met off duty and progressed from friendly gossip to heated argument. Their quarrel centered about which one worked for the better road. Their claims, figures and arguments came fast and furious. At last the tall, thin porter settled the dispute with these classic words: "Go on, niggah; we kills mo' people den you fellahs tote."—Argonaut.

Making and Earning Money.

"What is the difference between making money and earning money?" asked the youth.

The Earwig.

There is no insect which has puzzled naturalists as to its proper classification more than the earwig. Some have asserted that it belongs to the beetles, of which it is an "aberrant type," others that it is connected with the grasshoppers. Even about its very name there has been endless discussion. Some have thought the name earwig is the result of the creature's supposed habit of getting into the ears, while others are equally certain that it is derived from the original name, which they say was earwing, from the fact that the wing when spread resembles the human ear. At all events, one thing is certain—the earwig as we know it now is a survival of an early type of which almost every other member has become extinct.

Many Uses For Old Leather.

Old leather material, which finds its way into the waste pile, is extremely valuable and returns to our homes in many other shapes. It is soaked in water to remove the dirt, all the nails and threads are picked out, and the leather is reduced to a thick pulp, from which wall papers, screens, etc., are made. The finer the original quality of leather the better it takes the bronze and old gold of the designs which make these hangings things of beauty. Bookbinders and framemakers also know the value of this pulp, and carriage builders press it into sheets.

This is the Stove Polish YOU Should Use

IT'S different from others because more care is taken in the making and the materials used are of higher grade.

Black Silk Stove Polish

Makes a brilliant, silky polish that does not rub off or dust off, and the shine lasts four times as long as ordinary stove polish. Used on sample stoves and sold by hardware and grocery dealers.

All we ask is a trial. Use it on your cook stove, your parlor stove or your gas range. If you don't find it the best stove polish you ever used, your dealer is authorized to refund your money. Insist on Black Silk Stove Polish.

Made in liquid or paste—one quality.

Use Black Silk Air-Drying Iron Enamel on grates, registers, stove-pipes—Prevents rusting. Use Black Silk Metal Polish for silver, nickel or brass. It has no equal for use on automobiles.

"A Shine in Every Drop"

Make Appearances Count.

A good appearance is always an entering wedge when a man seeks an interview, but all the clothes in a king's wardrobe won't sell a bill of goods. It takes human intelligence to do that. Vanity sometimes leads a fellow to bedeck his person like a five storied wedding cake, and some men do it, I suppose, because they believe in the foolish aphorism that "clothes make the man." It's the other way. Man makes the clothes, and just as often clothes unmake the man. Fine feathers may make fine birds, fine hats or fine dusters, but the best that fine clothes ever did was to make fine looking men. No doctor ever prescribes for himself, and by the same token you'll notice that the men who own the clothes foundries don't wear their own styles—not publicly, at any rate. —Maurice Switzer in Leslie's.

Sawing the Wood.

It was only on rare occasions that Mrs. Cutler, a kind faced old lady, accepted invitations to dine out. Upon repeated invitations of her friends, the Joslins, however, she consented to attend a little informal dinner they were giving, accompanied by her daughter.

Unfortunately Mrs. Cutler was quite deaf and consequently could not enter into the general conversation. She was engaged in cutting a piece of steak when her daughter turned to her and said:

"Mother, dear, why are you so quiet?"

Fully Explained.

The colored sexton of a wealthy church had a very stylish mulatto wife. Finding his domestic income not quite equal to his expenses, he decided to apply for an increase in salary. So he wrote a letter to the committee in charge with this explanation at the close: "It's mighty hard to keep a sealskin wife on a muskrat salary."—New York Sun.

Decided by Salt.

Legal disputes in Borneo are decided in a curious manner. The two litigants are each given a lump of salt of the same size to drop simultaneously into water. The one whose lump first dissolves is deemed to be in the wrong and loses his case.

"September Morn"

Miss "SEPTEMBER MORN" now bobs up as a musical comedy. It is offered by Rowland & Clifford's big musical comedy company which includes Leo Greenwood, Hazel Shannon Adelyn Estee, John Patton, Wm. Cameron, Fred DuBois, assisted by the most attractive lot of girls that were ever gathered together in one company.

The production from a scenic and costuming standpoint is beautiful. A big dancing number embracing various styles of the famous Tango offers spicy moments of amusement and good wholesome entertainment. Other entirely new dance ensembles are introduced for the first time in this country, among the lot the Shark-Swish Dip which is now the rage in London.

Miss Shannan is called "The American Gaby Deslys" and besides being a clever little actress and singer is seen in dances now the rage in Paris.

The attraction comes from the La-Salle opera house, Chicago, where, it created a sensation and is among the LaSalle's biggest successes.

The Battle Creek Enquirer of Sept. 8th says: "September Morn proved to be one of the most pleasing musical shows brought here in recent seasons. It was filled with pretty girls, good dancing, catchy music, handsome costumes and a wealth of humor that was refreshing."

Tecumseh people are very fortunate in having this excellent attraction right in their home town. The company is a big city attraction playing the following cities Lansing, Sept, 9th Bay City 11 and 12th; Port Huron 13; Flint 14; Ann Arbor 15; Jackson 16; Tecumseh on the 17th; Adrian 18; and Sandusky on the 19th. You can see by their route that the only small towns that play are Tecumseh and Adrian which is a pretty good guarentee for the company.

The company travels in two special cars, carrying a car for their people and a special car load of scenery and electrical effects Without a doubt "September Morn" is one of the biggest and best attractions coming this way this season and should be seen by all lovers of the best in Musical comedy. The seat sale opens at Hay's Bakery Tuesday morning at 8 o'clock.

DISASTROUS FIRE

Barns on the Sutton Farm Burned to the Ground, Wednesday Morning.

FIRE DEPARTMENT UNABLE TO COPE WITH THE FLAMES.

About 8:15 o'clock Wednesday morning a fire alarm was sounded and in a few moments the fire department and the people from town were started for the scene of the fire which was in the barns on the Sutton farm run by Chas. Bird.

Somewhere in the neighborhood 8 o'clock Chas Bird and Silas Spellar went to the sheep barn for a corn harvester, and ten minutes after leaving it they discovered that it was afire.

The fire spread very rapidly and before the fire department reached the place, the large sheep barn was nearly destroyed and several other buildings were burning rapidly.

Mr. Bird is at a loss to know just how the fire orginated but think that possibly he stepped on a match while in the barn.

The buildings burned were a large sheep barn 30x40, a horse barn 18x25, a granary, cook room, hog house, tool shed and corn crib also the wood on the wind mill which was standing near the large barn.

Beside the buildings Mr. Bird lost about 30 tons of hay, 10 bushels of old oats, a hay tedder, two Empire drills, corn binder, hay loader, side delivery rake, and other tools.

The buildings were owned by the Sutton Estate and the contents were the property of Chas. Bird.

Mr. Bird was insured with the Farmers Mutual, the buildings were also insured,

Mr. Bird has run this farm for the past fifteen years

The fire department worked heroically but the buildings were like tinder and the flames spread rapidly.

A large crowd of people gathered on the grounds and watched the progress of the fire, helpless to save any of the property Mr. James Wilson of Detroit was in town Tuesday and left instructions for repairs on these buildings and carpenters had been on the grounds making estimates for shingling Wednesday morning.

NOTE—As near as can be figured out, fire must have been smouldering in the hay on the barn floor some time before the doors were opened, the draft bringing it to a blaze, and was evidently the work of tramps, as it was well known that they had made that a rendesvons.

Jack Frost paid us a visit yesterday morning.

We acknowledge the receipt of a complimentary ticket to the State Fair next week and shall undoubtedly be there at least one day

Arthur Kennedy has accepted a clerkship in Tom Adamson's jewelry store. Tom has made a wise selection. It is a good situation and we believe Kennedy will fill it with credit.

The new store on the corner is rapidly assuming shape. From the present indications we should say that it will be the finest two story block in the village (now occupied by McCann & Bowen).

Our street commissioner is earning his wages this year. The new plan adopted of putting in pipe culverts at the street crossings is an excellent one and a great improvement over the old method. "Jordan's road" in this village will not be a "hard one to travel" by any means.

BASE BALL NOTES,

The blacksmiths and the cigarmakers play tomorrow afternoon on the Tecumseh grounds.

The fierce and mighty butchers, eager for sausage meat, pounced upon the Herald office building and challenged the occupants to a game of ball. They found a different kind of meat than they expected, as it had an unusual amount of sand in it. and immediately accepted their challenge. The two nines are as follows:

Butchers—J. W. Wooden, Jas. Cole, Will Ford, Frank Darling, Chas. Kilburn, W. Marsh, Louis Henning, Andy Ross and Elliott Sherman.

Printers—Geo. S. Spafford, C. M. Burlingame, C. H. McConnell, W. T. Eccles, J. Davidson, L. B. Stevens, Will D. Robbins and Geo. N. Stacy.

PRIMARY RESULT IN DANGER BY FRAUDS

Four Flint Men Are Jailed and Other Arrests Expected.

FLINT, MICH. — Four men under arrest on the charge of illegal voting, the police dragnet out for several other persons alleged to be guilty of the same offense, and action taken looking to the filing of a protest with the county canvassing board against a formal declaration of the results of the election pending a recount of the votes cast in the third precinct of the First ward, are the first fruits of an investigation quietly conducted under the direction of Chief of Police Cole which is said to have uncovered conclusive evidence of wholesale frauds at the primary election here on Tuesday of last week.

The precinct is the largest precinct in the city, and the home precinct of Alderman William H. McKeighan, who was an unsuccessful candidate at the recent election for the Republican nomination for state senator. The returns from this precinct show that McKeighan received 413 votes as against 80 cast for his two opponents.

The first two men arrested are Fenner Ball, a machinist, formerly of Kalamazoo, and J. F. Pearl, who gives Koponio, Ind., as his home. Both have made statements in which they admit they were not qualified to vote at the primary election.

The two men arrested later are William Stitza and John Hitchcock of Bay City, neither of whom, it is charged, was a legal resident here. Hitchcock also admits that he is not yet twenty-one years old.

Seven Burn to Death.

LA CROSSE, WIS. — At least seven men, railway construction employes, were burned to death in a fire in a barn just outside the city. The men stopped in the barn to sleep, the building probably being set fire by their matches. Coroner Herman Langstadt and Dr. Robert E. Flynn, county physician, recovered seven bodies, burned to a crisp and unrecognizable.

It is possible more bodies may still be in the ruins.

ATTENDS FAIR AT 80 YEARS

"Father of Livingston Holstein Breeding" Sees Exhibits.

HOWELL, MICH. — One of the prominent figures at the Livingston county fair among the 9,000 persons on the grounds was W. K. Sexton, the man who started the Holstein breeding movement in this county more than twenty-five years ago.

At that time he was laughed at. Now the breeding of these cattle is the chief industry of Livingston county and Holstein-Friesian cattle exhibited at the fair were valued at more than $40,000. Mr. Sexton is more than eighty years old, but displayed keen interest in the exhibits.

GIRL, SHOT BY LOVER, DIES

Succumbs In State Hospital; Hungarian Suitor Held in Jail.

ANN ARBOR, MICH. — Julie M. Kosque, who was brought to the state hospital here, two weeks ago, after having been shot by a jealous lover, died, presumably from the wounds. The shooting occurred at Milan, July 21, when the suitor, John Dildas, a Hungarian, called Miss Kosque to the front door of her home, and then shot her through the chest.

Dildos has been held in the Monroe county jail, awaiting the result of the wound. The dead girl's sister and two brothers reside in Milan.

TRIES WHOLESALE KILLING

Muskegon Husband's Artillery Work Fails Except Against Himself.

MUSKEGON, MICH. — After firing three shots from a revolver at his wife and shooting at Deputy Sheriff Martin Sorenson, who attempted to disarm him, Frederick Kelly of Holton, thirty-five years old, turned the weapon on himself and is now at the point of death with a bullet in his head.

It is said that Kelly had been on a protracted spree for several days.

NEWS OF THE STATE

Hoodoo Follows Farmer.

HOLLAND, MICH. — William Seiff, an Ottawa county farmer, thinks of hanging horseshoes all over his place to break the hoodoo which has pursued him during the last two weeks. In a runaway he broke his leg and his wagon was smashed; he was forced to shoot one of his best horses after it had stepped into a posthole and broken its leg; his son is laid up with a broken shoulder blade through a fall from a tree, and his kitchen range was demolished when a piece of stump was blown through a kitchen window as a result of blasting stumps with dynamite.

Houghton Man's "Bride" Flunks.

ESCANABA, MICH. — After securing a marriage license and coming as far as this city to meet the object of his matrimonial plunge, and then to have the girl fail to appear, is the predicament that faced Eskel Okarlund of Houghton. Okarlund met the girl in Duluth some time ago. All arrangements had supposedly been completed for the marriage and Eskel is at a loss to understand the situation.

Father Dies Rescuing Daughter.

BATTLE CREEK, MICH. — Ernest Strayer, thirty years old, was killed when he reached out and pulled his eight-year-old daughter away from a falling tension wire on Main street. Mr. Strayer was secretary of a fraternal organization here and captain of the uniform rank Knights of the Modern Maccabees.

Find Canadian Launch Adrift.

PORT HURON, MICH. — A naptha launch was picked up adrift in Lake Huron and brought to the Lynn marine reporting office in this city. It is learned that the launch is owned by Victor Burrowe of Geulph, Ont., who had to cut the launch adrift in a storm ten miles above Point Edward.

Letter Romance Over Sea.

KALAMAZOO, MICH. — A romance carried on by letter across the ocean ended in the marriage here of Mrs. Mary Jewel of England and Charles H. Warner, a Shelbyville farmer. When the two met at the train it was the first time they had even seen each other.

Finds Human Bones.

FLINT, MICH. — The sheriff's office has been asked by Montrose as to what disposition should be made of the bones of a human skeleton unearthed by diggers in a gravel pit near that village. It was stated that the bones evidently were those of a white man.

War Veteran Dead.

HASTINGS, MICH. — James C. Phillips, aged eighty years, prominent pioneer resident, Baltimore township, and civil war veteran, is dead of cancer at the home of his son, William Phillips Johnston.

Convicts Suspected.

After the Battle.

A naval engagement with an odd sequel was the battle off Portland, Me., between the American ship Enterprise, 16 guns and 102 men, and the British ship Boxer, 14 guns and 100 men. The Enterprise was commanded by Lieutenant Burrows and the Boxer by Captain Blythe. The battle was on Sept. 4, 1812, in the bay not far from Portland, and resulted in the capture of the Boxer, both commanders being killed. The two vessels were brought into Portland on Sept. 7. The bodies of the two commanders were rowed ashore by sailors of both ships and after a public funeral service were buried side by side in the village cemetery.—Philadelphia Press.

NEVER AGAIN!

A Narrow Escape

By FRANK CONDON

Copyright by Frank A. Munsey Co.

It's a very strange thing about women.

Education, training, youthful surroundings, companions, home influence and other conditions or circumstances of the past will generally present to the observer of a man at least an inkling of what that man will do under certain conditions.

In the case of a woman you may have the history of her entire life at your finger tips, and when you attempt to prophesy her actions or to explain them after she has acted—well, if you're over seven you know precisely how many thousand miles wrong you'll be.

Nowhere could one find a young woman more peaceful and contented than Mrs. Madeline Trimble Grant.

Young Mrs. Madeline had a fine home, a French bulldog, imported Persian rugs, an eighty-eight note piano player, a maidservant of ebony hue, money in the bank and a private check book.

Robert—that was Mr. Grant—caught the 8:46 each morning and made money until the 5:40 at night.

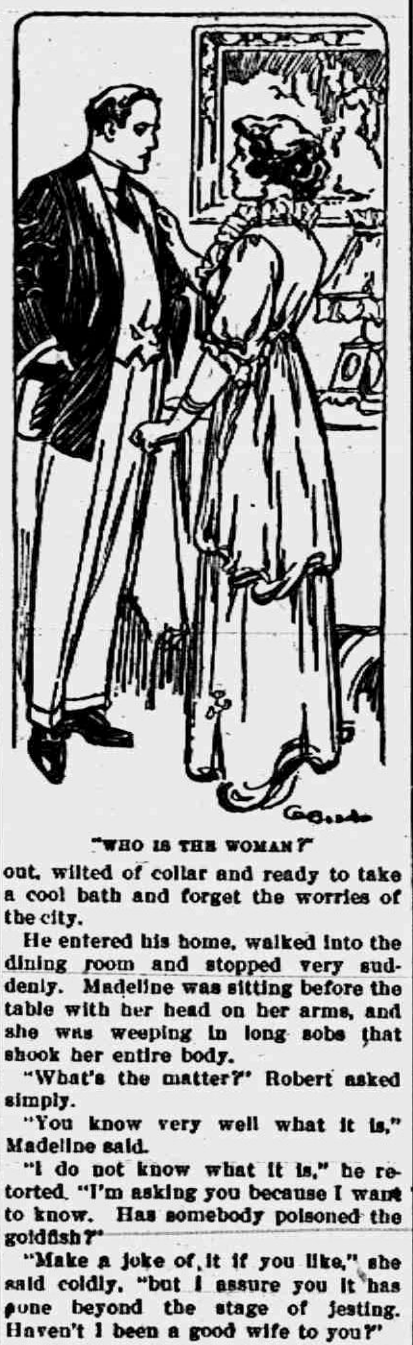
Then he went home to Madeline with a box of bonbons, a bundle of flowers or a book.

The Grant sky was blue and serene. Robert was so happy that he with difficulty restrained himself from cheering each time he reflected upon it, and so was Madeline for a long time.

On an unlucky afternoon a lady called to visit Madeline, and when she went away she presented her hostess with a new book called "Marriage as a Fine Art."

That was the beginning of considerable trouble in the erstwhile happy family of the Grants. Nothing happened upon which one could put one's finger, but it became apparent to Robert that Madeline was troubled.

On a sultry, unpleasant afternoon Robert returned from New York worn out, wilted of collar and ready to take a cool bath and forget the worries of the city.



"WHO IS THE WOMAN?"

He entered his home, walked into the dining room and stopped very suddenly. Madeline was sitting before the table with her head on her arms, and she was weeping in long sobs that shook her entire body.

"What's the matter?" Robert asked simply.

"You know very well what it is," Madeline said.

"I do not know what it is," he retorted. "I'm asking you because I want to know. Has somebody poisoned the goldfish?"

"Make a joke of it if you like," she said coldly, "but I assure you it has gone beyond the stage of jesting. Haven't I been a good wife to you?"

"You surely have, my dear. You're the best wife a man ever had. But what has that to do with it? Haven't I also been a good husband to you?"

"You have not!" she declared bitterly. "Who is the woman—the woman?"

Robert, who had been standing, sat down abruptly.

"The woman!" he gasped. "Madeline, would you be kind enough to sit down and tell me quietly what on earth you are talking about?"

"You carry it off very well," she answered, eying him coldly. "I have been everything that a good wife could be. I have tried to make your home happy, and I only thought of you and your happiness. Everything that I could do in an effort to make myself as perfect a wife as possible I have done, and you repay it all, how? By forgetting me—by casting me off for another woman."

"That isn't the truth, Madeline," he answered gently. "You are the only woman I care for. There is no other woman anywhere in the world except you. You have made a horrible mistake of some kind, and I can't understand it."

"What is it?" he asked without looking at it.

"Read it," she said.

He slowly unfolded the paper and read.

"Dearest Rob," said the paper, "you are the only man in this world I shall ever love, and I shall always love you more than any other man, and I am the only woman—and of this I am certain—whom you will always love, no matter what other woman may come into your life."

It was signed "The One Woman."

"Is it a joke?" he asked uncertainly.

"That letter I found in the pocket of the suit you wore yesterday to New York, and I am not surprised at finding some evidence of your guilt. I am not very observing, but I have seen the change that has slowly come over you, and I suspected its cause. Do you think that a loving wife can be blind to such things, no matter how unsophisticated she may be? No; she feels things she cannot explain, and of late I have felt that your love for me has dwindled and that some other woman has taken it from me."

Madeline began to weep softly.

"It is all a mistake," Robert said. "It is either a joke or a trick, and I can't understand it. I know no woman who could send me such a letter. I do not know the handwriting, and I cannot explain how the letter was in my pocket. All I can say, Madeline, is that I love you, and you only. You must not distrust me, because there is not the slightest reason for doing so. Suppose we tackle this intelligently and try to find out whether some deluded friend is playing a practical joke on us or whether an evil minded mischief maker has sought to bring trouble to us both."

Madeline wept afresh.

Robert moved over and sat down beside her. He placed his arms around her, and she did not repulse him.

He spoke to her gently and soothingly, and after a time she dried her tears and smiled.

"You don't believe it?" he queried, stroking her hand.

"Now," Madeline said, "I am positive that you care for no other woman but me. I am sure of it because you have proved it to me, although for some time I have been miserable with doubts and suspicions."

"How," Robert said wonderingly—"how have I proved it? You are convinced that I know nothing of 'The One Woman?'"

"Yes, dear," Madeline purred sweetly. "I am sure you do not know such a woman because I wrote the note and put it in your pocket. Rather, I had Helen, our girl, write it at my dictation."

Robert suddenly rose from his couch. He was very stern.

"Why," he demanded coldly—"why did you do such a thing as that?"

"Listen, dear," his wife pleaded. "In the book called 'Marriage as a Fine Art' there are chapters which tell a wife how to know the state of her husband's affection for her. Invariably, the book explains, a husband who is disloyal to his wife will when accused by her break into a violent storm of indignant denial. He will deny everything in the bitterest, harshest tones—if he is guilty. If he is innocent he will be kind and gentle. You are innocent, dear Robert. I ask your forgiveness for ever having suspected you, but I love you too dearly to bear the thought of losing your affection. Say that you forgive me."

"I will forgive you upon one condition," her husband answered in his sternest voice. "Where is the book called 'Marriage as a Fine Art?'"

"It is in my room, Robert." Madeline meekly replied.

"Bring it to me," he commanded. "Upon that condition I will forgive you for everything you have done."

"But it belongs to Mrs. Tewksbury, dear."

"Bring it to me!"

Madeline went upstairs and returned with the mischief producing volume. She handed it to Robert.

"This is a fine, worthy little book," he said, skimming rapidly through the tome. "It will serve a good purpose."

Then Robert walked into the kitchen, followed by his wife. Helen Murphy was preparing the potatoes, and at the moment Robert entered her domain a steaming pan was in her hands, and the lid of the stove was off.

For the next half hour "Marriage as a Fine Art" blazed merrily among the coals, accompanied by the fraudulent letter Madeline had written and placed in his coat.

At the end of that time Robert came warily into the kitchen, having heard Helen Murphy stirring in the coal cellar.

He removed the lid from the stove.

Then he reached into the pocket of his coat and took therefrom another letter in a small envelope, addressed to him in fine, feminine handwriting and odorous with the perfume of violets.

He looked at it as one looks at some thing from which one has had a narrow escape, and, raising his hand in an attitude of never again, he dropped the letter upon the still smoldering ashes of "Marriage as a Fine Art."

GERMANS CONCEDE REVERSE

Victory Is Complete, Telegraphs Joffre.

FOE IS IN FULL RETREAT

Belgian Troops Drive Germans from Louvain.

MANY PRISONERS ARE TAKEN

German War Office In Admitting Defeat In Right Wing Says Nothing of Actions by Other Parts of Army—Allies Pushing Invaders Back All Along Line—In Many Places Retirement of Germans Approaches Nature of Rout—Documents, Plans, Ammunition and Supplies Left Behind.

Paris, Sept. 14.—German military headquarters admit defeat of their right wing army in France and omit to mention the operations on the center of the line, where the crown prince was driven back, after giving battle to the French, in a statement issued at Berlin. The kaiser's troops have been forced to evacuate Amiens in their general retreat, and his forces are now in rapid flight at the eastern end of the battle line, where the Germans had hoped to retrieve their defeats by capturing the fortress of Verdun.

It is known that conditions bordering on panic arose in Berlin as the news of the German reverses was received. Peace talk was frequently heard.

French Official Communique.

The official communique issued by the military government is as follows:

"Section 1. 1.—On our left wing the enemy continues its movement of retreat. He has evacuated Amiens, falling back toward the east. Between Soissons and Rheims the Germans have retired to the north of the Vesle river. They have not defended the Marne to the southeast of Rheims.

"2.—In the center the enemy, which was driven back from Revigny and Brabanth-le-Roil, still holds his position at the south of the Argonne. On our right wing the enemy which was on the Meurthe is beating a retreat. Beyond Saint Diea we have reoccupied Raon L'Etape, Baccarat, Ram Bervillers, Nomeny, Pont-a-Mousson.

"Belgium—The Belgian army has pushed its vigorous offensive movement to the south of Lierre.

"Russia—The battle which has been fought in Galicia during the last seventeen days has ended with a great victory for the Russian arms. The Austrians are in retreat along the whole front, leaving in the hands of the Russians a large number of prisoners and supplies.

Joffre Claims Complete Victory.

"Section 2. The general in chief of the French armies reports that the battle which has continued for five days has resulted in decisive victory. The retreat of the first, second and third armies is accentuated by our left and our center. The fourth German army has begun to fall back to the north of Vitry-le Francois and Sermarze. Everywhere the enemy is leaving on the field large numbers of its wounded and large quantities of ammunition. Everywhere we are taking prisoners. In their advance our troops have discovered traces of the intensity of the struggle and the means taken by the Germans in order to attempt to resist our advance. The vigorous way in which our troops took the offensive determined the success of the movement. All of its soldiers have responded to my appeal. All have done honor to the 'Patrie.'

"Joffre."

Germans Driven From Louvain.

Bordeaux, Sept. 14.—The Belgian army has resumed a strong offensive before Antwerp, driving the Germans beyond Louvain and to the southeast. An important engagement has been fought on the right bank of the Scheldt, the Germans hastily retreating. Other Belgian successes have been gained near Termonde and Ghent, and the vicinity of these places has been entirely cleared of the enemy.

The Unexpected Heir Again.

RUSS SURROUND ALL AUSTRIANS

Two Armies Cut Off and Surrender Impends.

60,000 PRISONERS ARE TAKEN

Russian Cavalry Reported at Posen and Breslau—Petrograd Dispatch Says Russians Have Defeated Germans in East Prussia—Washington Embassy Reports Great Victory.

The Chronicle's St. Petersburg correspondent says that two Austrian armies have been surrounded and 60,000 prisoners taken, including 500 officers of one army and 600 of the other. Surrender of both armies, the correspondent says, is impending.

The Germans in East Prussia have been defeated with heavy losses near Mulshent, but are still bringing up reinforcements, says a Sunday dispatch from Petrograd.

St. Petersburg, via Paris, Sept. 14.—The Russian cavalry already has been two days before Posen and Breslau. The German and Austrian reinforcements are of an inferior quality.

Russ Take 30,000 Prisoners.

Washington, Sept. 14.—The assertion that Russians have won a great victory in the capture of Tomaszow in South Poland and an account of the military plan of the Russians in that region are contained in the following dispatches received at the British embassy from the foreign office in London:

"The Austrian invasion of South Poland, which penetrated as far as Opole, Kranostav and Seamóstje, was protected on its right by an army operating east of Lemberg. This army was chiefly defeated by the Russians on Sept. 1 near Lemberg. From that moment it became evident that if the Austrian right flank could not continue a stubborn resistance the retreat of the main army from South Poland would be imperilled by the capture of Tomaszow. On the 10th of September it is probable that the Russians drove a wedge through the Austrian line.

"Sunday a brilliant Russian victory is reported in which 30,000 prisoners and several hundred guns were taken and this is probably the immediate result of the Tomaszow action."

PROMINENT MEN ACCUSED

Twelve-Year-Old Girl Causes Sensational Arrest at Kokomo.

Kokomo, Ind., Sept. 14.—Dr. W. A. Hatfeld, a prominent physician, and Charles Athan, a cafe proprietor, both of this city, were arrested here charged with criminally assaulting Alta Bola, a twelve-year-old Roumanian girl. Both are in jail, unable to furnish the high bond fixed by the court. The girl gained notoriety some time ago when she made similar charges against three young men of this city. One of the trio was arrested and will be tried at the present term of court.

The girl formerly lived in this city, but moved to Laporte about a year ago. A few months ago she ran away from her home there and returned to Kokomo. The alleged assaults took place after her return. Both the men arrested are prominent in social and business life here. Neither was ever in trouble before.

DYING DOCTOR IS RELEASED

Dr. Emil Steiner, Who Posed as Army Officer, Given Liberty.

Chicago, Sept. 14.—Dr. Emil Steiner is in the last stages of tuberculosis. He has been an inmate in the county jail for several months awaiting trial in the federal court on a charge of impersonating a government officer. Judge Landis has released him on his own recognizance.

Dr. Steiner caused a sensation in Joliet last winter when he pretended to take poison at a banquet in his honor. He had posed as an army surgeon and borrowed money from his new found friends. At the banquet he was asked for the money. The doctor arose and announced that he had taken poison. He was taken to another physician's house and slipped out of a back window.

LEGAL HENCHMAN LOSES FEE

Terre Haute Money to Inman Illegal, Says State Board.

Indianapolis, Sept. 14.—The state board of accounts addressed a letter to Donn M. Roberts, mayor of Terre Haute, in which it is stated Roberts' action in paying $500 to an attorney to represent the city of Terre Haute before the public service commission of Indiana in a water rate fight, is illegal.

The Commercial club of Terre Haute has begun a fight for better water rates, and expects to carry it to the commission, and Roberts, it is said, stepped in of his own accord and became represented in the contest.

State Conference This Week.

Muskegon, Mich., Sept. 14.—Fully 100 visitors, nearly half of that number ministers from the western part of the state, are expected to attend the seventy-ninth annual Michigan conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, which opens at the Central M. E. church here tomorrow evening. Bishop Burt will preside over the sessions of the conference.

BELGIANS RETAKING THEIR OWN TOWNS

Germans Are Defeated at Three Points and Still Retiring.

London, Sept. 14.—King Albert of Belgium is in personal command of an army which is driving the Germans steadily toward Brussels. Dispatches from correspondents in Belgium received in Amsterdam and Bordeaux agree that the Belgian offensive movement has cleared the country of German troops for at least fifteen miles south and southeast of Antwerp. Apparently the Germans, hastening southward to reinforce their staggering troops in France, have been defeated by the Belgians near Termonde, Ghent and Lierre. The Belgians won an important engagement on the right bank of the Scheldt and the Germans are rapidly retreating.

These points are named as the newest evidences of the vigorous offensive. German communications to the north and northeast are cut, and railway lines have been seized by the Belgian army. The Germans have been driven beyond Louvain and to the southeast. A German counter attack from Louvain compelled the Belgian left to give ground, but the right and center continued to advance and it is conjectured that the Germans will be forced to evacuate Louvain.

Large numbers of German wounded were taken to Antwerp. From these and wounded Belgian soldiers information is obtained that the kaiser's grip on Belgium is rapidly relaxing. Dozens of villages have been given up by the German troops in their forced retreat southward.

Child Falls From Second Story.

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 14.—Four-year-old Lorraine Wilhite, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Wilhite, while playing about the rooms of her grandmother at 408 East Adams street, fell through a screen on the second floor and plunged to the pavement below. Injuries may include a fractured skull.

ONE MANIPULATOR IS GUILTY

Flint, Mich., Sept. 14.—Investigation into the voting scandal in the Third precinct of the First ward was adjourned until today, with very little having been accomplished. Assistant Attorney General Pepper says progress was slow because of the necessity of looking up the law.

At least one arrest is believed imminent. No witnesses have testified before Circuit Judge Wisner as far as could be learned, but statement made by Mathias Hutting, who pleaded guilty in the circuit court, is in the hands of investigators.

DESPONDENT MAN SUICIDES

Note Due, No Cash to Meet It, Man Takes Own Life.

Battle Creek, Mich., Sept. 14.—With a note about due and no money on hand to meet it, Edward Herrington, a Pennfield resident, ended his life by taking poison. He had attempted to kill himself Monday, but his wife knocked the bottle from his hands.

Herrington, forty years old, was working for the Grand Trunk since moving to Pennfield from this city, where he had been a Michigan United Traction company employe. Three children survive.

SAVED HIS WILD GOATS.

Emperor Maximilian Was Lucky in Having a Wise Adviser.

Of the great Emperor Maximilian it is told that once when traveling far from home he wore so sad an expression that a courtier asked him what affairs of state could cause so much concern. The emperor replied it was not the state but ibex he was thinking of. In his absence he feared a certain poacher, whom he mentioned by name, would make havoc with the herds. Could the courtier propose any preventive?

The astute person thus addressed immediately suggested a letter to the poacher's wife, signed and sealed by the imperial hand and offering her the best silk dress that could be obtained if the emperor's wild goats were not touched during his absence. And such, alas, is the influence of the sex that history hints the bribe was more effectual than "all the king's horses and all the king's men" in the way of forest rangers and wood reeves.

Maximilian had a preserve of these animals in the Tyrol near the Aachen sea and has left on record some interesting notes and illustrations of the sport he enjoyed among them. One picture represents him in a boat on a lake assisting to catch an ibex in a large net, which may have been good fun, even if it were scarcely sportsmanlike. It was Maximilian, too, who boasted that on one occasion he killed an ibex at 200 yards with a crossbow when his companion had missed it with a gun. Seeing that the "fire tubes" of the period were about the slowest and most awkward weapons any one could imagine, the feat was scarcely to be wondered at.—London Globe.

END OF THE EARTH.

That Great Tragedy May Be 2,000,000 or 95,000,000 Years Away.

Scientists tell us that life on the earth began about 2,000,000 years ago. It has generally been accepted that life will last for 95,000,000 years.

Ninety-five million years is a fairly long time. None of us who are alive today need worry about what will take place 95,000,000 years hence. Even the most altruistic can scarcely be inspired by love for an inconceivably remote posterity.

But the French savants are altogether disturbing. Here comes one, M. Verronet, who says that the earth will permanently freeze within the next 2,000,000 years and that life will vanish. This is bringing the tragedy nearer home. We would gladly accept the older reckoning.

Verronet places mankind of today about midway between the beginning and the end. He computes that in the future life will exist as long as it has already existed. He specifies only one forty-eighth as long a life as those who have studied in the past.

There is only one consolation to be derived from the Verronet reckoning. As far as the influence of today is concerned 2,000,000 years is as good as 95,000,000. In either event those who are comfortably laboring today cannot expect to be lovingly remembered when the cataclysm of ice makes the earth a barren wilderness.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"September Morn"

The Big Musical Comedy

The biggest sensation ever created in Chicago at the LaSalle opera house is what they say of "September Morn" the big musical comedy that comes to the Bradley opera house this week Thursday, Sept. 17. The production, from a scenic and costuming standpoint, is beautiful, a carload of special scenery and electrical effects being carried for its presentation.

Among the principals are Hazel Shannon (known as the American Gaby Delsays) who is a wonderful dancer and clever artiste otherwise and that splendid actress and singer Adelyn Estee also seen in a prominent role, besides Nat Phillips as the artist who the Kalamazoo Gazette says "is the big noise with the show." Regarding the chorus the Battle Creek paper of Sept. 8 amply describes them when it says "'September Morn' proved to be one of the most pleasing musical shows brought here in recent seasons. It was filled with pretty girls, good dancing, catchy music, handsome costumes and a wealth of of humor that was refreshing."

Some of the principal musical numbers that set Chicago humming are "When a Little Boy Loves a Little Girl," "In Berlin," "Oh, You September Morn," "Beautiful Dreams I'm Dreaming," "The Sunshade Girl" "Where is the Pleasure in Wine and Song if the Women is Not There." These are only a few of the many numbers.

"September Morn" comes with a LaSalle opera house (Chicago) reputation and it is safe to say that those who are fortunate enough to see this great attraction when presented here next Thursday night, will see one of the biggest and best musical shows ever brought to the Bradley opera house. Seats are selling fast at Hay's bakery and it is advisable to get yours now. Remember the wise ones buy early.

Just Run Into It.

Elements mix in a railroad station, but that of humor predominates. The other day a man entered the Grand Central hurriedly. He afterward explained he had to meet a country cousin coming in. He rushed over to a friend who knew of his errand.

"No; the train just ran into the station," he was told.

"Ran into it!" he blurted. "Was anybody hurt?"—New York Tribune.

THE STAR SPANGLED BANNER

Just 100 years ago Sunday Sept. 13 Francis Scott Key wrote the "Star Spangled Banner," as he watched the attack on Fort Henry.

The song was at once set to the music of "Anacreon in Heaven," and the next day the friends of the author were singing it at a patriotic gathering.

Several years ago the G. A. R. asked that all true Americans would stand while this song was being played or sung, and a motion is on foot to ask Congress to forbid its use in medleys no matter if they be patriotic.

ASTHNA AND HAY FEVER A GUARANTEED TREATMENT

"I have arranged with B. J. Pulver so that every sufferer from Asthma, Hay Fever or Bronchial Asthma in Tecumseh can try my treatment entirely at my risk," Dr. Rudolph Schiffmann announces. He says: "Buy a 50 cent package of my Asthmador Cigarettes, try it, and if it does not afford you immediate relief, or if you do not find it the best ever used, take it back to B. J. Pulver and they will return your money, cheerfully and without any question whatever. After seeing the grateful relief it has afforded in hundreds of cases, which had been considered incurable, and which had been given up in despair, I know what it will do. I am so sure that it will do the same with others that I am not afraid to guarantee it will relieve instantaneously. The drtggists handling Asthmador will return your money if you say so. You are to be the sole judge and under this positive guarantee, absolutely no risk is run in buying Asthmador."

Persons living elsewhere will be supplied under the same guarantee by their local druggist or direct by Dr. R. Schiffmann, St. Paul, Minn.

Competent Office Help In Demand—Business Training Necessary.

Hundreds of business men in Detroit want accurate, competent office help, men and women, at good pay. The rapid growth of the city has made such help scarce. The demand for high-class office employees, both bookkeepers and stenographers, is being met by the Business Institute of that city. This is the largest and best appointed business training school in Michigan, and is centrally located, occupying the entire Institute Building, 163-169 Cass avenue. It has over 2,000 students a year and the majority of mercantile houses of Detroit employ its graduates. The Ford Motor Company alone employs between 30 and 40 Institute students. Its courses include business, shorthand and typewriting, over 200 typewriting machines being in daily use. A free employment department for placing the students is conducted by the school. A book of old favorite songs will be mailed free to anyone who writes to Mr. A. F. Tull, President of the Institute, if this paper is mentioned.

THE REAL MERKLE

The following article is taken from Harper's Weekly in their issue of Sept. 12 last and will be of interest to Tecumseh fans who remembered Fred when he played on our Tecumseh team and helped us to victory.

"The Editor of Harper's Weekly:

In your issue of July 11th appears an article by my old friend "Bill" Hanna in the Merkle case. I was very glad to read it, as it shows the boy's hard, conscientious endeavor is bearing fruit. The article was good, but lacks detail and the dear public is strong for incontrovertible facts when a palpable wrong is to be righted.

Having been an active participant in the succession of events, perhaps the writer can supply sufficient data to help along the good cause.

The injustice to Fred Merkle has been of long standing. It should be eradicated as soon of possible. Well educated, honest, capable, of extremely sensitive temperment, his existence has been made a nightmare by the very people who should applaud. That he has not been broken but has shown consistent improvement, is sufficient proof of his indomitable will and courage.

Where is there another who would shoulder his burden, then go out and "make good?" Where is the boy (for he was then only a youth) who has the nerve to face hostile home crowds, day after day, and still improve? You say the "Manager kept him there." Very true. That helped by giving opportunity but would have been useless without his own faith in himself. A player must stand or fall on his own faith in himself. A player must stand or fall on his own ability. No pull or push will help. The integrity of the player is the fundamental fact which keeps the game clean.

Merkle has demonstrated that he will not falter or break under any circumstances, but give the best he has. He will make mistakes, we all do, but does he make the same mistake twice? One learns by failure. His errors may be judgement, but never of courage. His decision is made in a flash. His critics have time to consider. Could his detractors have seen his agony of soul and regret for his big mistake, his sensitiveness of criticism, his desire to crawl into his hole and pull it in after him, they would applaud the courage which enabled him to "come back," to crush out his desire for effacement, to grimly stick to his determination to face the jibs and make good in every spot where he had failed. Has he done this? Has not he made himself one of the best? Has not he helped materially in bringing the greatest success to his club and city? Has not he demonstrated by every hard test his possession of his club and city? Has not he demonstrated by every hard test his possession of the highest courage?

The answer is YES to all, and the great American public, whose heritage is fearlessness, and the love of bravery, should no longer withhold its commendation from one who so fitly deserves it.

The boy would fairly shed tears of joy to feel that at last his term of ostracism was over and he received into the ranks of those who had "made good" with his fellow beings.

His fellow players forgave and forgot ages ago. Can the public still hold out?

Yours very truly,
Fred Tenny."

GONE UP IN SMOKE

One-half of your coal—and it did you no good. Hard luck that. But there is a way to fix it. Here's how:

That stove of yours has seen its best days. You need a new one. You know it—but you have let things drift along.

Meanwhile, you have been losing HALF of every hod of coal you have put in it.

Of course, you knew it, but you did not think of it that way. You know that half of every lump is gas. Fail to burn that gas and it is like throwing into the ditch half of every dollar you spend in coal.

Rather extravagant? Yes?

The ordinary stove made of a lot of separate castings leaks air. They leak air at the wrong place. Places you can not control.

RESULT—the best part of your coal—the 14,000 cubic feet of common illuminating gas that is in the average ton of $3.00 soft coal—goes up the flue unburned.

You have lost it. It has gone up in smoke.

Save that gas—mix it properly with air and you have the hottest kind of a blue flame. But there is only one way to do this—

Cole's Original Hot Blast Heater

It leaks no air.

This is the heater that mixes the gas and air and gives you all the heat in the coal.

This is the heater that burns any kind of coal and makes a ton of $3.00 soft coal do the work of $8.00 hard coal in a high priced base burner.

This is the heater that is a joy and comfort to the housewife. It makes no dirt or smoke in the house.

This is the heater that saves labor—fix it in the morning and at night and FORGET IT THE REST OF THE TIME.

This is the heater that gives a steady, constant heat from soft coal or lignite.

This is the heater that will hold its fire untouched for a day and a half.

This is the heater we sell you under a guarantee that is as "good as old wheat at the mill." Burns soft coal, lignite, slack, hard coal or wood.

It is just the kind of a heater you want. Come in and see it.

Deering Corn Harvester.

Will do nearly as much work in a day as eight men.

Has both ball and roller bearings with self-aligning boxes.

Lightness of draft is secured as the corn is bound lying down like a grain binder, thus saving the power required in elevating as on other binders.

The only corn binder that will work equally as well in tall or short corn, as there is 21 inches of adjustment for the band, 8 inches in shifting the binder, 13 inches in adjusting the butt adjuster. Compare with other binders which have an 8 inch raise of a pan, which when raised the corn will clog.

The approach to the Library building is receiving much needed improvements as the brick work has been in a dilapidated condition for some time. Mention was made of this needed work in the Herald a few weeks ago.

In one of the fruit displays at the state fair, an American flag made of the fruit was quite unique. The stripes were alternate layers of red and light green apples and the field was composed of blue plums with the stars of gilt. The effect was beautiful.

L. C. Hayden has disposed of the repair department of his garage to R. J. Drake of Jackson and feels that in securing Mr. Drake he has added very materially to the efficiency of his business and that he is prepared to serve the demands of the trade See the announcement appearing in the Hayden ad of this issue.

Esther, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Miller of Ridgeway, passed away Saturday evening. For some time she has been suffering from tuberculosis but was able to be up and around until Saturday morning when she was taken suddenly worse. She was only fourteen years of age The funeral was held this afternoon at the home, Mr. and Mrs. Miller have many friends in Tecumseh who extend their sympathy in this great bereavement.

For several weeks work has been progressing on the north bank of the creek, on the south side of the cemetery, in constructing a retaining wall to prevent further damages by high water. The work as first planned is practically finished but it has been advisable to build a wall on the south side of the creek near the bridge to protect it from freshets as the current of the creek strikes that bank with great force, and in time will weaken the abutments of the bridge. The village board and the cemetery committee were on the grounds yesterday and the matter is under consideration today.

SUNDAY WAS FORD DAY

Fred Schill of Manchester while driving his Ford car near Nisle's farm at Wampler's Lake, got into heavy sand, lost control of his car which upset throwing out the occupants who were unhurt but the car sustained several minor damages.

Hiram Logan who lives on the Logan road was travelling home from Ypsilanti in his Ford car Sunday afternoon when it went into the ditch, badly demolishing the wind shield and other parts While not being crowned with thorns which were plenty on the roadside, Mr. Logan was crowned with the steering wheel of his car, and was picked up and taken into Manchester with it so firmly fastened around his neck that he had to have the assistance of the man at the garage to remove it, otherwise he was uninjured. No. 3 occurred while R. Streeter accompanied by J. R. Reittle were returning from Pleasant Lake to Manchester about noon Sunday. Their car rolled down an embankment smashing it up in general. Streeter was severly hurt but Reittle was unharmed. The story goes of the man who stopped by the wayside to tinker his car, when he was approached by a farmer who asked what was the matter, he replied, "don't know". but I think I've got a Ford in my carburetter. The farmer replied, By jinks If you have its running yet. It would seem by these accidents of Sunday that the Fords instead of being in a carburetter were in the ditch and no doubt they are running yet.

LUCKY ACCIDENT

As Mrs. J. Coulson and three children were driving in town Saturday morning from their home on the B. J. Rector farm, they were the victims of what proved a very lucky accident. A car driven by Miss Bessie Torrey of Manchester came up behind Mrs. Coulsons buggy, and she turned aside to let it pass. By some mistake Miss Torrey turned her car to the same side, hitting the buggy crushing one hind wheel and doing other damage. Mrs Coulson had good control over her horse who stopped at once. The car was also damaged quite badly. Mrs. Coulson had a babe in her arms and two small girls on the seat with her and the wonder is that not one was thrown out or hurt

ENTERTAINED.

Rev. and Mrs. W. A. Rex very delightfully entertained the members of her Sunday School class Friday evening honoring the boys who are soon to leave for college. Those present were Wilfred Mills, Howard Wilson, Kenneth Lowry, Harold Hardy, Leon McLauchlin, Clare Dickinson, Harold Halliday, and Howard Luce A most elegant supper was served at 6:30 A beautiful aster for the buttonhole lay beside each plate. The place cards were quite unique being a transparent envelope with the name inside. A conundrum was on one side which the owner of the card was the answer failing which the answer was inside. A motto also. "Please return often to this house", was on the reverse side, the stamp being a word of welcome. After the supper hour was past, Rev, Rex with the aid of a Reflectroscope showed many views of Kansas City his church and the Manse, the old home of Mrs. Rex in the South, and many others of great interest, but the sweetest of all were the old songs which were cast on the canvas. Mrs. Rex on the piano and Leon McLachlin with a violin playing them while the boys sang. The whole evening was one long to be remembered by those who participated. Those who are to go away are Wilfred Mills and Harold Hardy to the M. A. C. and Seymour Orr to the U. of M.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Price were host and hostess at a birthday party given for their daughter Mildred Thursday Sept. 10. At 6 o'clock a four course dinner was served, covers being laid for ten. Pink and white asters were used as decorations. Miss Pearl Seymour of Chicago was the out of town guest. Games and music furnished the evenings entertainment.

Friday evening a kitchen shower was given Percy Slater and Miss Jennie Beaubien at the home of Mr. Slater. A merry crowd was present and the gifts were many and useful. Light refreshments were served during the evening. The young people are to be married today.

Mrs. J. F. N. Bowen entertained the Dignified Dozen at her home on N. Pearl St. Monday evening. A very pleasant time was enjoyed by all present.

LONE SCHOOL FIGHTER WINS

Oak Grove School Near Corunna, Mich., Is Closed.

Corunna, Mich., Sept 11.—Moderator Charles McNamara won a victory over other school officers in fractional district No. 11 of Shiawassee and Caledonia townships, and the Oak Grove school, near Corunna, has been closed for general repairs and improvement of sanitary conditions. When Trustee Archibald Wrigley and Treasurer Edward Campbell disagreed with McNamara as to the necessity of the [illegible], he referred the matter to the [illegible] authorities, and the state board of health instructed the local health officer to use his discretion.

Factional differences in the district have made the administration of school affairs stormy for the last three years.

TOLD IN TECUMSEH

A Resident Known to all Our Readers Relates an Experience.

Readers of the Herald have been told again and again of the merits of that reliable, time proved kidney remedy Doan's Kidney Pills. The experiences told are not those of unknown persons living far away. The cases are Tecumseh cases, told by Tecumseh people.

J. B. Smith, E. Chicago St., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I was caused a great deal of suffering by pains in the small of my back. When the attacks were present, it was all I could do to work. When stooping, I became very dizzy and spots of fire seemed to flash before my eyes. I rested poorly and in the morning when I got up was unrefreshed. I doctored and used various remedies but got no benefit until I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills. They made me feel like a different person, ridding me of the trouble. I gladly confirm my former endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills." Price 50c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Smith had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y. adv.

Cost Kept Down—Quality Kept Up.

No better medicine could be made for coughs, colds, croup, hoarseness, tickling throat, bronchitis, etc., than Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. That's why they can't improve the quality, and war or no war, the price remains the same. No opiates. Don't take substitutes, for Foley's Honey and Tar is the best. For sale by all druggists of Tecumseh. adv

He that taketh no care of himself, must not expect it from others.

A Lame Back—Kidney Trouble Causes It

And it will give you even worse if not checked. Mrs. H. T. Straynge, Gainesville, Ga., was fairly down on her back with kidney trouble and inflamed bladder. She says: "I took Foley Kidney Pills and now my back is stronger than in years and both kidney and bladder troubles are entirely gone." For sale by all druggists of Tecumseh. adv

An Eye to the Future.

The late Wilson Barrett possessed a valuable old dresser who had the good fortune to be built on the same classic lines as Barrett himself, and accordingly inherited his master's cast-off clothes. One day something had upset Barrett at rehearsal, and he lost his temper. Every one stampeded out of his way. He strode into his dressing room with flashing eyes, and so indignant did he feel that he incontinently dashed his hat with great violence into the corner of the apartment. The faithful dresser, who knew every mood of his master, was quite unperturbed. He merely exclaimed, in bland tones, but with a touch of reproach:

Francis Bacon.

The death of Francis Bacon was caused by his devotion to the cause of research and scientific investigation. During one of his excursions to the country he conceived the idea that animal substances may be preserved by means of snow. He procured a fowl and conducted the experiment himself. A severe cold was the result, and in his already enfeebled condition he was not able to withstand it and died of what we now know as bronchitis April 9, 1626, aged sixty-five, at the home of Lord Arundel. He was buried in St. Michael's church, St. Albans.

Innuendo.

"Is dem you all's chickens?"

"Cohse dey's my all's chickens. Whose chickens did you s'pose dey was?"

"I wasn' s'posin' nuffin about 'em. But I will say dat it's mighty lucky dat a chicken won't come a-runnin' an' a-waggin' its tail when its regular owner whistles, same as a dog."—Washington Star.

Men Fight On Their Stomachs

Napoleon so said. A man with a weak stomach is pretty sure to be a poor fighter. It is difficult—almost impossible—for anyone, man or woman, if digestion is poor, to succeed in business or socially—or to enjoy life. In tablet or liquid form helps weak stomachs to strong, healthy action—helps them to digest the food that makes the good, rich, red blood which nourishes the entire body.

Dr. Pierce's
Golden Medical Discovery

This vegetable remedy, to a great extent, puts the liver into activity—oils the machinery of the human system so that those who spend their working hours at the desk, behind the counter, or in the home are rejuvenated into vigorous health.

Has brought relief to many thousands every year for over forty years. It can relieve you and doubtless restore to you your former health and strength. At least you owe it to yourself to give it a trial. Sold by Medicine Dealers or send 50c for trial box of Tablets—Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel & Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N.Y.

RECOUNT IS ASKED FOR BY HEINEMAN

Candidate for Lieut.-Governor Only 364 Behind.

Detroit, Sept. 14.—As a result of the closeness of the vote on the Republican nomination for lieutenant governor at the recent primary, David E. Heineman of Detroit will ask a recount. Returns from every county in the state, as compiled by the county board of canvassers, show Heineman but 364 votes behind Luren D. Dickinson, and immediately on being notified of this fact, Mr. Heineman announced his intention of asking for a recount. Edwin J. Curtis, the third candidate for the nomination, is more than 5,000 behind.

The total vote is:

These figures are what the state canvass which began today shows, as the state board of canvassers simply takes the returns from the various county canvassing boards, totals them and announces the result.

It was Wayne county's big vote for Heineman which made the race the closest ever known for a state office, at either primary or election, in the history of Michigan. Dickinson ran ahead of Heineman in sixty-nine of the eighty-three countries of the state, but the big majority in Wayne put Heineman up close.

The Rivals

They Were an Old Bachelor and a Young Sailor

By F. A. MITCHEL

When John Gorman died he left his daughter Helen an orphan with no income. Richard Hunter, a bachelor friend of Gorman's, had lent him $3,000, taking a mortgage on his farm for security. Hunter did not ask for the security; Gorman insisted on giving it.

Helen Gorman was but seventeen years old when her father died and knew nothing about his affairs, but Gorman had talked with his friend about her.

"Dick," he said, "Helen at my death will have nothing but the farm, and you hold a mortgage on that for pretty near all it is worth. There's only one thing that would give me any comfort at leaving her, and that's out of the question."

"What is it?" asked Hunter.

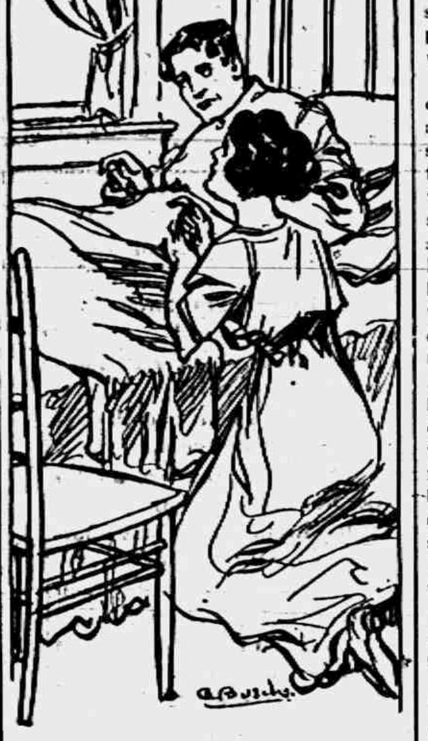
"If I could see you and Helen married before I die I wouldn't feel worried about her."

A faint flush came over Hunter's face and a light of pleasure in his eye, but it was transient.

"That can't be," he replied sadly, "on account of the difference in our ages. Helen is but sixteen, and I'm thirty-eight."

"That's not an impassable barrier. But there is another reason why I can't see my little girl provided for as I would like. She's given her heart to a young sailor."

Hunter looked grave at this and asked if the lover would not be able to take care of Helen. Whereupon Gorman told him that the youngster was wild, without ambition and would not be likely even to take care of any one, not even himself.



SANK ON HER KNEES BY HIS BED.

Gorman died without again referring to the matter. Helen had the good sense to send for Hunter and ask him to take charge of her affairs. There being no funds, he provided for her immediate wants out of his own pocket, concealing the fact from her. After her father's funeral she consulted Hunter as to what she should do. He told her that there was no income for her, but said nothing about the mortgage he held. That was at a time when the fields for self support for women were not open to them as they are now. Helen looked very much troubled.

"It seems to me," said Hunter, "that you had better be married. Isn't there some one you would like to marry?"

"Yes," was the reply, "there is. But he couldn't support a wife just yet. Besides, he is at sea all the while, and I should be left alone."

"It is a pity that I am so much older than you. I would be only too glad to provide for you as my wife."

Helen made no reply to this, and Hunter left her. At the end of every month he gave her $50. She asked him if the property had produced the amount, and he told her that it might produce the total during the year, but the income was not regular. This was saved from being a falsehood only by the word "might."

Since Brackett, the sailor, did not return—and there was nothing to be expected from him when he did—Helen made up her mind to marry Richard Hunter. He was kind to her—she did not know how kind—and she took comfort in having him for a protector. She also felt companionable with him. But she had built up an imaginary idol out of the sailor boy, and it would not crumble. Her decision to give herself to Hunter was therefore made reluctantly and after a copious flow of tears.

Hunter flushed with pleasure when she told him that she would marry him. She had made a resolution to banish young Brackett from her mind and acted a loverlike part toward Hunter so well that he was deceived into thinking that she was quite content, if not possibly happy, in her decision. But he did not hurry her, preferring that she should have plenty of time to be off with the old love before taking on a new one.

As time wore on Helen seemed to grow more and more satisfied with her decision, and at times Hunter thought he could perceive a glimmer of true love in her treatment of him. Indeed, so encouraged was he that he asked her to name the day. She did so quite willingly.

Hunter, though not sheering off so far from the truth as to leave it entirely, convinced her that she was living on her own income and when the wedding day was fixed contrived to make her believe that a windfall had come to her property, which would pay for a trousseau. This was especially pleasing to her, for nature has not yet produced a woman who would be indifferent to this accessory to her marriage. Helen made her purchases and went to work with a will in the construction of a wardrobe.

Suddenly there came a thunderclap from a clear sky. Bob Brackett returned from his voyage with a fine sum of prize money, his share of the salvage of a disabled ship that his vessel had towed into port. He burst in upon Helen, not knowing of the change that had come over her, with the news, finishing with the words, "Now, sweetheart, let us be married at once."

When Hunter heard of his rival's return he went to Helen and said to her:

"I wish you to consider yourself released and to feel perfectly free to marry the man who has returned to you."

"I have given you my promise," was the reply, "and I will keep it."

But Hunter saw that her heart was not in her words. He asked her to tell him truthfully whether he or the sailor possessed it. She tried to evade the question, but Hunter would not be put off. At last he forced her to tell the truth. Her heart had been given to Brackett, and she was unable, if she would, to take it back again.

Hunter at once withdrew in favor of his rival. With an effort he succeeded in concealing from Helen what a crushing blow had fallen upon him in his loss. One matter puzzled him. Now that another was to be her husband the fact that Hunter had been supplying her with the wherewithal to live, that he had deceived her in the matter of the windfall for the trousseau, that he held a mortgage on her farm for all it was worth, must come out. How should he break the fact to her?

Hunter was a very sensitive man. He was much broken by his disappointment, and, though he had been resolute in giving up his bride expectant, he was vacillating in the matter of how to let her know that instead of possessing property she was a pauper. Worry made him ill, and he was confined to his bed.

Helen, who, importuned by the sailor, had accepted her release and agreed to marry Brackett before he sailed again, went on with the preparations for a wedding in which there was to be a change of grooms. She seemed to regret the disappointment she had occasioned Hunter, and Brackett in order that her break with his rival should be complete proposed that a transfer of the care of her property should be made to him. Helen reluctantly consented.

Brackett went to see Hunter, whom he found in bed, and asked for an accounting of Helen's estate. Hunter was too ill to invent any more subterfuges and was obliged to make a clean breast of the matter. Brackett returned to Helen with the information that she had nothing and that all she had received had been given her by Hunter.

"I believe," added Brackett, "that the fellow has contrived to get your property into his own possession."

Helen looked at him like one dazed. Then suddenly, without a word, she went out and strode rapidly in the direction of Hunter's house. Brackett, who did not know what action she would take, watched her till she had passed out of sight, then went into the house to await developments.

Hunter was lying alone in his misery when suddenly the girl he loved hurried into his room, sank on her knees by his bed, put her arms around him and moaned:

"Forgive me."

Renewed vigor ran through the sick man's weakened body. He sat up, took the girl in his arms, and there were caresses such as had never passed between them before.

"Send some one," she said presently, "to tell him to go away."

An hour later Richard Hunter, walking with a tread that had received a powerful stimulus, appeared at Helen Gorman's home. Brackett, who was awaiting Helen's return, saw him coming. Having left Hunter a short time before ill in bed, he wondered. A dread took possession of him. Hunter came up to him and said:

"I am commissioned by Miss Gorman to tell you that she has come to a final decision between you and me and in my favor."

Brackett was thunderstruck. He made no reply for some time, then said:

"If Miss Gorman will say that to me or write it I will accept it as the truth."

Hunter drew a bit of paper from his pocket and handed it to the sailor. He read it, tore it into bits, turned on his heel and left the house.

On the evening that Hunter married Helen the returned sailor spent the prize money he had brought home in an orgy and the next day went on another voyage.

MELON PATCH RAIDERS SHOT

Refused to Stop When Owner Called to Them to Halt.

Kokomo, Ind., Sept. 14.—John Crapor, eighteen years old, and Paul Golding, nineteen, were shot while they were raiding the melon patch of Richard McKillip, living near Sycamore, east of this city.

The boys, who live near Greentown were discovered in the patch by Mr Killip and when they refused to stop at his command McKillip fired both barrels of a shot gun. Cranor received several shot in the back, while Golding also was peppered, although not as seriously as Cranor. Both are confined to their homes. No action has been taken by the authorities.

Jimmy Considine Found Dead.

New York, Sept. 14.—James P. Considine, fifty-two, one of three brothers who figured prominently in the sporting life of New York, was found dead of heart trouble in his room at the Hotel Normandie.

Most Disheartening.

"I understood that those who maintained perfect deportment in school during the week would be given their choice of sweetmeats. I therefore behaved myself with extraordinary propriety. When the time came and I demanded my sweetmeats I found that it was my choice of a seatmate that had been offered. I never quite forgave that teacher and shall always consider the week of good conduct one lost out of my life."—Exchange.

VON KLUCK GIVES UP TO ALLIES

14,000 Surrender in France.

INVADERS IN RETREAT

170,000 to 300,000 Russians Reported in Belgium.

GERMAN CRUISER HELA SUNK

Teutons Are Collecting Forces For Stand East of Amiens—Berlin Reports Germans Repulse Foe—Roumanian Cabinet Resigned—Change May Be Prelude to Alliance With Russia—Austrian Losses Are Confirmed.

The correspondent of the Central News at Dieppe transmits a report that the German army under General von Kjuck has been forced to surrender. Army consists of 14,000 men.

The Germans are collecting their straggling forces from the northwest and preparing for a stand east of Amiens. They are on a semicircular line that takes in St. Quentin, Guise and Vervins on their right and then swings rapidly southward toward Rethel and Aisne River lines to the neighborhood of St. Menehould, which was abandoned by the crown prince's army, and everything pointed to a renewal of serious fighting.

The German general staff gave out the following announcement from Berlin: "In the western theater of war the right wing of our army has been engaged in heavy but undecisive battles. The Frenhc, who endeavored to break through out lines, were victoriously defeated. At other points where there has been fighting no decisive results have been reached."

The army of Crown Prince Frederick William, forming the German left and the pivotal position of the German battle front, has joined in the general retreat of the invaders. Moreover, the tardy recession of the crown prince from a position between Verdun and Toul, where he had been attacking the line of southern fortifications of the former city, probably will result in disaster. There is a grave probability that they will be cut off in the Argonnes south of Verdun.

A dispatch from Bordeaux says: The last stand of the Germans is being made by the crown prince's army south of the Argonnes.

A dispatch from Bucharest, via Rome, says the cabinet has resigned, a new ministry is being formed and it is strongly rumored here that the change will be a prelude to a Roumanian alliance with Russia. The feelings of the Roumanian people is distinctly pro-Russian.

An official report from Berlin states that a British submarine sank the German cruiser Hela. A majority of the crew was rescued, according to the Berlin report.

London and Paris both report that General Von Dergoltz went to Antwerp and offered peace to the Belgians, saying that they would be protected and their losses guaranteed. The offer was rejected.

Uncensored press messages from Galicia to Vienna confirm the disaster to the Australian armies. These are now compelled to act on the defensive. It is an open secret that the position of the Austrian force is untenable and that their surrender is inevitable and imminent. Meanwhile Cossacks are scouring the country. Numerous Galicians are flocking to this city.

PARIS — The official communique says:

"1.—On our left wing we have overtaken the rear guard and even the main army of the enemy. Our troops have reoccupied Amiens, which has been abandoned by the German forces. The enemy appears to be offering resistance on the line of the River Aisne.

"2.—In the center the enemy appears also to be preparing to resist our forces. On the hills northwest and north of Reims, between the Argonne and the Meuse the enemy continues to fall back.

"3.—Our right wing in the Woevre district has succeeded in relieving the fort of Troyon, which had been violently attacked on several occasions, during the last few days.

"In Lorraine our pursuing forces are holding their own against the Germans. The morale and sanitary conditions of our army continue to be excellent."

PARIS — Emperor William's eight armies in France have fled in disorder again before the victorious French and British troops. The German center, which the kaiser had ordered to pierce the French front, is now far north of Vitry-le-Francois, where the supreme attack was made, and the German lines in general have been driven back more than half way to Belgium.

Establishment of the headquarters of the crown prince at Montfaucon, eighteen miles northeast of Saint Menehold, his previous base, indicates an intention of the armies he commands to retreat into Germany.

German Disaster Complete.

The rout of the Germans probably will terminate in a complete disaster in that a great part of their forces will be cut off in the Argonne forests and south of Verdun, according to a statement made by M. Millerand, minister of war, at Bordeaux.

London Tells of Victory.

LONDON — The war press bureau issued this statement:

"All day yesterday the enemy stubbornly disputed the passage of the River Aisne by our troops, but in spite of the difficulty of forcing the river in the face of a strong opposition nearly all the crossings were secured by sunset.

"On our right and left the French troops were confronted with a similar task, in which, like ourselves, they were successful. Many more prisoners were taken.

"It is reported that the German crown prince has been driven back, and that he has moved his headquarters from St. Menehold to Mont Faucon."

Russ Army In Belgium.

An Antwerp dispatch says Russian troops estimated to number between 170,000 to 300,000 are now in Belgium. The huge force has been landed at Ostend by British transports, forty-two of which were engaged in the service.

27,000 FELL IN LIEGE BATTLE

Belgian Soldiers Reported Killed In Heroic Defense.

LONDON — A telegram to the Observer from a correspondent at Antwerp dated last Thursday says: "The authorities are preparing an official casualty list of the operations at Liege and I am informed it will show that no fewer than 27,000 Belgian soldiers were killed in that heroic defense.

"It had been learned that on the occasion of the bomb dropping, which nearly damaged the royal palace, the signal was given by a German spy with the aid of a powerful motor lamp. He took up his stand near the palace and directed the airship where to aim. He was caught while doing so and shot."

Serbs Destroy Orsova.

PARIS — A Petrograd dispatch to the Havas agency here reports that the Servians have bombarded and destroyed the Hungarian station of Orsova, on the Danube, a short distance above where the river quits Hungarian territory, thus cutting communication between Hungary and Roumania. Orsova was the route by which the German sailors reached Turkey.

Austrian Crown Prince With Army Whose Capitulation Is Immiment—Russian Troops Sent to Re-enforce General Rennenkampf's Forces—Austrians to Occupy Prezmysl.

LONDON — A reasonable estimate, says a Times Petrograd dispatch, places the Austrian losses in Galicia at 300,000 in killed, wounded and prisoners, or nearly one-third of their forces. They have also lost, the dispatch says, 1,000 guns, more than two-thirds of their available artillery.

LONDON — A dispatch to the Central News from Rome reports that a telegram from Petrograd says the Austrian crown prince, Archduke Charles Francis, is with the Austrian army, whose capitulation is regarded as imminent.

PETROGRAD — According to the officials of the war office the Russians are again assuming the offensive in East Prussia. First line troops have been withdrawn from the Austrian theater of war and have been sent to the aid of General Rennenkampf's columns which have been hard pressed. It is understood here, however, that these operations are intended chiefly to hold the Germans in East Prussia in check and precent them being withdrawn to go to the assistance of the Austrians.

It is stated that the great mass of the Austrians who escaped slaughter in the fighting that has been in progress in eastern Galicia, from the Dneister to the Russian Poland frontier, have reached the west bank of the San River and are reforming. They will endeavor to hold the great fortress of Przemysl and the railway line extending northward to Jaroslav.

Przemysl is a first-class fortification filled with supplies of all kinds, but it can only prove a rallying point for the Austrians, as the Russians are continuing a relentless prusuit.

The Austrian army, which is retreating on Przemsyl mcludes one whole German army corps and part of another. Thes forces are lost to Germany for the duration of the war, for they will be locked up in Przemsyl, which the Russians must take by a prolonged siege.

ZEPPELIN KILLS 23 RUSSIANS

Germans In Craft Put Out White Flag and Then Drop Bombs.

LONDON — The correspondent of the Daily Telegraph at Moscow quotes the assistant station master at Miava, on the Russo-Prussian frontier, as follows:

"We were on the platform when a Zeppelin appeared 500 feet above us. Our artillery opened fire, damaging three of its four motors, but it proceeded. The Zeppelin then hoisted a white flag and the Russians ceased firing. The Zeppelin immediately hurled a bomb, many people being wounded. Three more bombs were thrown which killed twenty-three persons and wounded sixty. The airship then came to the ground. The crew of eight was captured."

RECOUNT IS ASKED FOR BY HEINEMAN

Candidate for Lieut.-Governor Only 364 Behind.

DETROIT — As a result of the closeness of the vote on the Republican nomination for lieutenant governor at the recent primary, David E. Heineman of Detroit will ask a recount. Returns from every county in the state, as compiled by the county board of canvassers, show Heineman but 364 votes behind Luren D. Dickinson, and immediately on being notified of this fact, Mr. Heineman announced his intention of asking for a recount. Edwin J. Curtis, the third candidate for the nomination, is more than 5,000 behind.

The total vote is:

These figures are what the state canvass which began today shows, as the state board of canvassers simply takes the returns from the various county canvassing boards, totals them and announces the result.

It was Wayne county's big vote for Heineman which made the race the closest ever known for a state office, at either primary or election, in the history of Michigan. Dickinson ran ahead of Heineman in sixty-nine of the eighty-three countries of the state, but the big majority in Wayne put Heineman up close.

FRENCH LOSSES ARE HEAVY

Out of All Proportions to Those Suffered by British.

PARIS — No full casualty lists for the French forces have been published, but all accounts agree that their losses are heavy and out of all proportion to those suffered by the British, and only inferior to the Germans.

The most costly was the first engagement at Verdum, where the French losses were at least 30,000 dead and wounded. At Charleroi and during the hurried retreat afterward the French losses were heavy. During the fight on the Marne river the French also lost heavily. Gangs of navvies spent some [illegible] in burying the dead.

"SEPTEMBER MORN"

September Morn, a musical comedy presented by Rowland & Clifford with Nat Phillips and Hazel Shannon in the principal roles delighted a large audience at the Bradley Opera House Thursday evening. The play derives its name from the painting "September Morn" which has caused much comment from coast to coast. The story deals with the aspirations of one Rudolph Plastric, owner of an art studio who claims to have painted "September Morn" when he really can't paint at all. The model of "September Morn" is laid claim to by an actress who has instructed her press agent to circulate the rumor that she was the original.

The ludricrous moment when the two impersonators are dodging each other creates much laughter.

Nat Phillips to whom is intrusted the comedy role of Rudolph Plastric displayed his ability as an actor and scored a big hit in his song "A Spare-Rib from the Butcher Shop of Life" and was found to respond again and again to the hearty encores of his audience.

Graceful Hazel Shannon as Argentina danced her way into instant favor. Dorothy Earl as Louise Storm, while her voice showed the effects of hoarseness, created favorable comment. The jokes of Plastric and Bumkum were new and added much to enliven the pieces. Others of the cast were well chosen.

Altogether "September Morn" is a delightful production and one of the best ever put on at Bradley's.

The musical numbers were catchy, costumes the latest, elaborate mounting in regard to scenic effects and the dancing included various styles of the world, popular tango in many attractive forms.

The house was full and the audience seemed well pleased. Forty autos were lined up in front and about the Opera House.

Birds That Fight Eagles.

In Foula, one of the Shetland islands, the natives make a business of rearing skau gulls in order to rid the islands of eagles that congregate there and commit many depredations. The magnificent red sandstone cliffs that skirt the northwestern coast became a favorite haunt of the eagles, and in this inaccessible spot they increased so rapidly that they became a terror to the farmers and fishermen who dwell on this isolated spot. The skau gulls are also strong and fierce and the inveterate foes of the eagle. In battle the gulls are nearly always victorious, and so the inhabitants of Foula hit upon the novel plan of feeding and caring for the skau gulls, which, though formidable to their feathered enemies, are very peaceful and docile when brought in contact with man.—Dallas News.

Making a Beach.

Weymouth owes the beginning of its popularity as a health and pleasure resort to an accident. In 1763 a west of England doctor whose name is now forgotten advised one of his patients—Ralph Allen, a prominent philanthropist of Bath—to "bathe his body in the open sea." By mere chance Allen selected Weymouth, and the first wooden bathing machine was built. Then crowds gathered to watch the "madman" enter the water. But the patient got better, told the Duke of Gloucester all about it, and—Weymouth was made.—London Tatler.

WHAT ONE OF OUR FACTORIES IS DOING.

Williamson Bros. have installed in their grocery store a new Stimpson Computting Scale which cost them $165.00. It is a beauty and will weigh up to 100 lbs.

In making a few inquires about it we were told that the castings used by the Stimpson Co. for all their scales are made right here in Tecumseh by Heesen Bros. Co. and Mr. Williamson states that in his opinion the Stimpson scales are the best on the market.

It was our pleasure to call at the Heesen Foundry today and see them turning out the castings in all sizes and many designs for these scales, and it might be well to state that they have been making them for the Stimpson Co. for years. It a very difficult piece of work and they must be perfect when finished, which goes to show the kind and grade of work that Heesen Bros. are doing.

This company is one of the biggest founderies of its kind in the country and do all kinds of casting. They manufacture in quantities tank heaters in different sizes and stock food cookers. In the yard about the factory are stacked up quantities of both. 300 tons of tank heaters alone. They give employment to about 40 men the year round and cast from 6 to 9 tons per day.

The sand used for moulding is shipped in from different places, the finest used for the higher grade of work comes from near Albany, N. Y. while a courser grade comes from Ohio.

These goods are shipped all over the United States and Canada.

ARABIAN JUSTICE.

A Desert Problem the Cadi Had No Trouble In Solving.

Two Arabs stopped at an oasis to have luncheon. One had three dates, and the other had five, which they were to eat together. Presently a stranger came up and asked permission to share their meal, which they cheerfully granted. After all had eaten the stranger thanked them for the food they had given him, left eight ducats and rode away.

The Arab who had the three dates said, "Here is 8 ducats for eight dates—1 ducat for each date; therefore three ducats are mine." But the other Arab argued differently and contended that he should have seven ducats and the first man one. The case was referred to the cadi of the nearest town, who upheld the second man's contention. This is the way he reached his decision:

The three men divided eight dates. There were two and two-thirds for each, or eight-thirds. The first Arab had three dates, so he contributed nine-thirds to the whole, but he ate eight-thirds himself, so he gave only one-third of a date to the stranger. The second Arab contributed five dates, or fifteen-thirds; he ate eight-thirds himself and gave seven-thirds to the stranger.

So reasoned the cadi, and he gave the first Arab 1 ducat and the second 7 ducats.—Youth's Companion.

MAUDE MULLER TO DATE

"Maude Muller on a summers' day raked the meadow sweet with hay. And as she raked, in the early morn, she heard the honk of a Claxton horn. Anon there drifted on the scene a car, propelled by gasoline.

The judge rode up in a motor car and said to Maude: 'Ah, there you are!' He killed his engine in the shade of the apple trees to chin the maid. He spoke of the mileage on his tires, as is the way of all good liars. He said his car was quite the best and had the edge on all the rest. He invited Maude to take a ride and nothing loth she jumped inside. The judge from a purling brooklet drank, and forthwith started in to crank. He cranked and cranked till his arm was sore, then started in and cranked some more. He cranked and cranked and cranked away with a right good will, and the chances are, he is cranking still. And of all devices with which we're cursed, the auto crank is about the worst."—Ex.

The Proclamation From the Fields

The pessimist who attempts to turn the left of the crop report has his work cut out for him. A harvest of nearly a billion bushels of wheat, 2634-000,000 bushels of corn, 1,158,000,000 bushels of oats with barley, rye, potatoes, rice and cotton nesling up against the top records, routs all the armies and reserves of the carpers. The person who grieves over the state of the nation is wasting his tears. The crop report shouts "good times."

FIGHTING FAVORING THE ALLIES

Kaiser Is Repulsed and Falls Back.

RHEIMS IS IN FLAMES

ALLIES TAKE 1,000 PRISONERS

French and English Report Advances Throughout Entire Battle Line—Germans Fall Back Beyond Frontier In Lorraine—Berlin Declares Germans Are on Offensive—Says Decisive Assault on Line of Forts South of Verdun Is About to Begin.

Key positions were taken and retaken, but the result of the eighth day's fighting sees the English and French still on the offensive with the Germans massing troops behind entrenchments for new counter attacks.

Repulsingg most violent blows against their left wing between the Oise and Aisne, the allies recovered lost ground and advanced their line north and east of Rheims, where lies the center of the battle. The Germans failed in a terrific assault upon French center.

They took the heights of Bremerton, but lost the Hill of Pompelle. Rheims is burning after the German bombardment. The ancient cathedral is in ruins and the French government is preparing a protest to the nations.

On the east center, the allies won a definite victory, capturing Souain and taking 1,000 prisoners. On the east the crown prince continues to give way before determined assaults, while in the Vosges and lorraine a French advance is confirmed.

News generally reassuring to the French people was contained in the official communique issued at 10:57 p. m.

The government statement of the afternoon was slightly more specific, offering details indicative of the failure of the Germans to get an offensive under way.

The line of battle remained much the same as on preceding days—from the Oisen and the Aisne, north of Craonne, Rheims and Neufchatel through the plains of Chalons to the forest of the Argonne.

Paris, Sept. 21.—French and British troops won new successes, advancing to advantageous positions and taking prisoners. Another German flag was captured by the French.

Despite gaines by the allies, the battle of the Aisne, now in its eighth day, has not yet assumed a decisive phase. The Germans occupy strongly fortified position all along the firing front of 150 miles. The strategy is again devoted, as in the battle of the Marne, to attacks to pierce the French center, at Rheims, with the purpose of relieving the pressure on the crown prince, whose retreat continues, and on general Von Kluck, who is threatened by a rapidly developing flanking maneouver of the French and British.

French cavalry is now in force north of the river Oise, marching to cut off the retreat of General Von Kluck. General Van Buelow's forces, to the east of General Von Kluck, have been compelled to fall back by reason of the French gains against General Von Kluck.

Germans on Offensive, Says Berlin.

Berlin, Sept. 21.—(Via wireless to Sayville, L. I.)—The following official announcement was issued Sunday afternoon at army headquarters:

"The situation on the western front generally is unchanged. The Anglo-French forces have been compelled to assume the defensive along the whole line. A decisive assault on the line of forts south of Verdun is about to begin. The Germans have come in contact with the French along the entire Alsace frontier. In the eastern campaign, the Germans have defeated the Fourth and Fifth rifle brigades at Agostowo, in Russian Poland, 140 miles northeast of Warsaw."

French Tell of Situation.

"Section 1. First: On our left wing we have again made slight progress on the right bank of the Oise. The honor of capturing a new flag (mentioned in yesterday's commonique) belongs to a division of Algerian ops. All the attempts made by the Camans aided by a large amount of edllery to break through our front at Bionne and Rheims have been re- ed. Around Rheims the heights of iont, a part of which we had cap- ed, have been retaken by the ene- In revenge we have captured the of la Pompelle. DOUBLE WEDDING.

Slater—Beaubien
Meads—Beaubien

The home of Mrs. George Beaubien was the scene of a double wedding Tuesday evening, Sept. 15, when her daughter Jennie and Percy Slater and her daughter Mildred and Oscar Meads were united in marriage, Rev. Mary Barrett Pim of the Friends church, officiating.

The ceremony was performed under an arch of pink and white asters and a long white silk scarf sent by an uncle from Gibraltar, Spain. The couples were unattended. The house was prettily decorated throughout with pink and white asters. After congratulations a wedding supper was served, the table being laid for 21 guests. Only immediate friends of the family were present.

Mr. and Mrs. Meads left immediately on a short wedding trip to Lansing and Detroit and Mr. and Mrs. Slater started Wednesday morning on a lake trip to Buffalo and Niagara Falls.

The young ladies are both prominent workers in the Friend's church and Mr. Meads is treasurer of the C. E. society. Mr. Slater has always lived in Tecumseh where he has a large circle of friends.

IN JUSTICE COURT.

A suit in sumpsit brought by Homer Marsh against L. C. Hayden for the sum of $300 claimed to be owing him for commission on autos sold by him was tried before Judge J. W. Wightman Thursday afternoon. L. F. Bean of Adrian was attorney for the complainant and J. N. Sampson of that city for the defendant.

The case was tried before a jury composed of C. A. Wright, A. C. Aylesworth, Wm Gaston and Lester Rogers. After hearing both sides of the case, the jury retired and brought in a verdict for the plaintiff allowing him $140 and costs less judgment assigned to Hayden of about $22.

Leon Williamson was in Detroit the first of the week and drove home a new 6-cylinder Chalmers car. The "Big Chief" garage will have an exhibit at the Lenawee county fair at Adrian next week, showing a line of Chalmers and Ford cars. They will also have an exhibit at the Hillsdale fair

Paul Keyser, son of Milburn Keyser and wife, rides a pony to school every morning. Wednesday noon while pitching some hay for his horse, he ran the tines of the fork through his foot. A doctor cauterized the wound and it is hoped he will not have any serious trouble with it.

Mesdames Updyke, Belding and McCoy, chairmen of three of the supper committees at the M. E church, entertained the members of their committees, some 25, at a ten cent supper at the home of Mrs. Updyke Tuesday evening. The proceeds are to be used for buying material for aprons for the fair to be given later.

A Resident Known to all Our Readers Relates an Experience.

Readers of the Herald have been told again and again of the merits of that reliable, time proved kidney remedy Doan's Kidney Pills. The experiences told are not those of unknown persons, living far away. The cases are Tecumseh cases, told by Tecumseh people

J. B. Smith, E. Chicago St., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I was caused a great deal of suffering by pains in the small of my back. When the attacks were present, it was all I could do to work. When stooping, I became very dizzy and spots of fire seemed to flash before my eyes. I rested poorly and in the morning when I got up was unrefreshed. I doctored and used various remedies but got no benefit until I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills. They made me feel like a different person, ridding me of the trouble. I gladly confirm my former endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills." Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Smith had. Frisco Flyer Falls Into River Near Lebanon, Mo.

SPRINGFIELD, MO. — Forty persons are reported to have been killed near Lebanon, Mo., when a Frisco passenger train went into the ditch. Five persons were crushed to death when the steel coaches left the track. The remainder of the victims were drowned.

Four cars and the locomotive were overturned into a small stream, swollen to a temporay lake, which runs beside the track. The chair car and the smoker were submerged. It is thought every persons on the two cars was drowned.

According to meager information reaching here the train plunged through a trestle approaching Brush Creek, a small stream four miles east of Lebanon. Heavy rains recently had caused the stream to rise, and it is believed this weakened the structure.

DESPONDENT MAN SUICIDES

Note Due, No Cash to Meet It, Man Takes Own Life.

BATTLE CREEK, MICH. — With a note about due and no money on hand to meet it, Edward Herrington, a Pennfield resident, ended his life by taking poison. He had attempted to kill himself Monday, but his wife knocked the bottle from his hands.

Herrington, forty years old, was working for the Grand Trunk since moving to Pennfield from this city, where he had been a Michigan United Traction company employe. Three children survive.

SUGAR PRICE HIGHER; FARMERS PAID LESS

Accuses Trusts and Manipulators of Raising Cost.

DETROIT. — That the increase in the price of sugar is not one of the ill-effects of the European embroglio, but is attributed to the efforts of a few controlling interests, is the belief of W. E. Boyden of Rose City, superintendent of the swine department at the state fair and one of the best known farmers of northeastern Michigan.

"There is absolutely no reason for the high price of sugar, so far as I can see," said Mr. Boyden Sunday. "By many the increase is attributed to the war, but the fact is none of the countries from which we import sugar are at war. Those to blame are a few men who see where they can make some money and are manipulating the market."

Michigan farmers, Mr. Boyden says, will receive prices this year slightly less than in 1913. The sum to be paid out to beet growers, he estimates will amount to $1,500,000. Beet crops this year are said to approach the record of Michigan.

AUTO DITCHED; SIX INJURED

Boyne City Family Badly Hurt; Driver Tried to Avoid Dog.

PETOSKEY, MICH. — In attempting to avoid striking a dog, John Tompkins gave his car a quick turn and overturned the machine, two miles west of Petoskey, injuring the party of six.

Tompkins was caught under the wheel and rendered unconscious. Occupants of another car lifted the wrecked machine and brought the party to the Petoskey hospital. The injured: John Tompkins, Boyne City, log scaler, internal injuries; Mrs. Tompkins, his wife, severe bruises; L. D. Tompkins, their seven-year-old son, broken collar bone and face cut; Harry, their nine-year-old son, face and arms cut; Carey Morrison, aged sixty-six, severe bruises; Gilds Tompkins, aged sixty-eight, of Reed City, father of John, collar bone dislocated, other injuries.

WOODMAN'S SKULL CRUSHED

Company Manager, Hastening for Relief, Receives Fractured Leg.

EAST JORDAN, MICH. — Albert Kile, a woodsman employed by the East Jordan Lumber company, was so badly injured that he died when one of the big logging wheels with which he was working, rolled on him, crushing his skull.

Coincident to the accident, Mr. W. H. Porter, general manager of the East Jordan Lumber company, while on an errand of mercy for Kile, traveling on a railroad velocipede, received a fractured leg, when the machine upon which he was riding jumped the track. Kile leaves a wife and three children.

OLDEST MASON LAID TO REST

Was Last Charter Member of St. Joseph Lodge; Died Nonagenarian.

THREE RIVERS, MICH. — The funeral of John Annan Kline, who was buried in Riverside cemetery with Masonic honors, marked the death of the last charter member of Three Rivers lodge. Mr. Kline was a nonagenarian. A search of the lodge records conceded him to be the oldest member in the state.

Made a Mason in Michigan under the jurisdiction of the Grand lodge, he has been a member in continuous good standing since 1847.

For some years I suffered greatly with weakness peculiar to my sex. I was treated by several physicians but gradually grew worse. One of my friends told me of the good results of your 'Favorite Prescription.' I went to the drug store and got a bottle, and after taking it, with the 'Pleasant Pellets,' I commenced to get better. FIGHTING FAVORING THE ALLIES

Kaiser Is Repulsed and Falls Back.

RHEIMS IS IN FLAMES

ALLIES TAKE 1,000 PRISONERS

French and English Report Advances Throughout Entire Battle Line—Germans Fall Back Beyond Frontier In Lorraine—Berlin Declares Germans Are on Offensive—Says Decisive Assault on Line of Forts South of Verdun Is About to Begin.

Key positions were taken and retaken, but the result of the eighth day's fighting sees the English and French still on the offensive with the Germans massing troops behind entrenchments for new counter attacks.

Repulsingg most violent blows against their left wing between the Oise and Aisne, the allies recovered lost ground and advanced their line north and east of Rheims, where lies the center of the battle. The Germans failed in a terrific assault upon French center.

They took the heights of Bremerton, but lost the Hill of Pompelle. Rheims is burning after the German bombardment. The ancient cathedral is in ruins and the French government is preparing a protest to the nations.

On the east center, the allies won a definite victory, capturing Souain and taking 1,000 prisoners. On the east the crown prince continues to give way before determined assaults, while in the Vosges and lorraine a French advance is confirmed.

News generally reassuring to the French people was contained in the official communique issued at 10:57 p. m.

The government statement of the afternoon was slightly more specific, offering details indicative of the failure of the Germans to get an offensive under way.

The line of battle remained much the same as on preceding days—from the Oisen and the Aisne, north of Craonne, Rheims and Neufchatel through the plains of Chalons to the forest of the Argonne.

Paris, Sept. 21.—French and British troops won new successes, advancing to advantageous positions and taking prisoners. Another German flag was captured by the French.

Despite gaines by the allies, the battle of the Aisne, now in its eighth day, has not yet assumed a decisive phase. The Germans occupy strongly fortified position all along the firing front of 150 miles. The strategy is again devoted, as in the battle of the Marne, to attacks to pierce the French center, at Rheims, with the purpose of relieving the pressure on the crown prince, whose retreat continues, and on general Von Kluck, who is threatened by a rapidly developing flanking maneouver of the French and British.

French cavalry is now in force north of the river Oise, marching to cut off the retreat of General Von Kluck. General Van Buelow's forces, to the east of General Von Kluck, have been compelled to fall back by reason of the French gains against General Von Kluck.

Germans on Offensive, Says Berlin.

Berlin, Sept. 21.—(Via wireless to Sayville, L. I.)—The following official announcement was issued Sunday afternoon at army headquarters:

"The situation on the western front generally is unchanged. The Anglo French forces have been compelled to assume the defensive along the whole line. A decisive assault on the line of forts south of Verdun is about to begin. The Germans have come in contact with the French along the entire Alsace frontier. In the eastern campaign, the Germans have defeated the Fourth and Fifth rifle brigades at Agostowo, in Russian Poland, 140 miles northeast of Warsaw."

French Tell of Situation.

"Section 1. First: On our left wing we have again made slight progress on the right bank of the Oise. The honor of capturing a new flag (mentioned in yesterday's commonique) belongs to a division of Algerian troops. All the attempts made by the Germans aided by a large amount of artillery to break through our front at Craonne and Rheims have been repulsed. Around Rheims the heights of Brimont, a part of which we had captured, have been retaken by the enemy. In revenge we have captured the hill of la Pompelle. The Germans have worked themselves into such a fury as to fire on the cathedral of Rheims without military reason. The cathedral is in flames.

Germans Recross Frontier.

"On the right wing, in lorainne the enemy has fallen back beyond our frontier evacuating particularly the region of Avricourt. In the Vesges the enemy has resumed the offensive on the outskirts of Sainte Die, but without success.

"Second. The Saxon army has been driven from its position and its commander-in-chief General Von Hausen has been relieved of his command."

French Protest Rheims Destruction.

Paris, Sept. 21.—The French government announces that it will make formal protest to the powers against the destruction of Rheims by the Germans.

KANKAKEE ROBBERS HURT.

Two Men Captured Had Diamond Rings In Their Possession.

Momence, Ill., Sept. 21.—Two of the five men alleged to have robbed Mrs. Nellie Clark of Kankakee, Ill., of diamonds and jewelry valued at $50,000 were captured in a cornfield near here. They were taken to Kankakee where they were identified as Al Marrs, known in Chicago as "Sheeny Mike," said to be wanted for a bank robbery in Ohio, and Charles Collins, leader in the gang. Collins is a singer in resorts and winerooms. Eight diamond rings, said to be a part of the booty, were found on their persons.

Deputy Sheriff Riely, who arrested them, covered them with his pistol before they had a chance to take alarm. They were brought here and later will be removed to Kankakee. Their three companions are believed to be in the vicinity.

BATTLE OF MARNE AWFUL CARNAGE

Bodies Are Piled High in the "Valley of Death."

BURYING DEAD IN LONG GRAVES

Slaughter So Great Corpses In Forest and Brush Have Not All Been Gatherd—Peasants Returning to Their Homes Mark Graves With Crosses and Flowers.

London, Sept. 19.—Telegraphing from Sezanne, in the Department of Marne, twenty-five miles south of Epernay, the Times correspondent says:

"The territory over which the second day's battle of the Marne was fought is now a picture of devastation, abomination and death almost too awful to describe.

"Even now many sons of the fatherland are sleeping their last sleep in the open fields and in ditches where they fell, or under hedges where they crawled after being caught by a rifle bullet or piece of shell, or where they sought shelter from the mad rushes of the French fireurs, who have not lost their natural dexterity with the knife and who at close quarters frequently throw away their rifles and fight hand to hand.

Prisoners Bury Comrades.

"The German prisoners are now being used on the battlefield in searching for and burying their dead comrades. Over the greater part of the bottlefield there have been buried at least those who died in open trenches on the plateaus or on the high roads. The extensive forest area, however, has hardly been searched for bodies, although hundreds of bath French and Germans must have sought refuge and died there. The difficulty of finding bodies is considerable on account of the undergrowth.

"Long lines of newly broken brown earth mark the graves of the victims. Some of these burial trenchs are 150 yards long. The dead are placed shoulder to shoulder and ofter in layers. This gives some idea of the slaughter that took place in this battle

"The peasants, who are rapidly coming back to the scene, are marking the grave trenches with croses and planting flowers above or placing on them simple bouquets of dahlias, sunflowers and roses.

"Some of the hottest fighting of the prolonged battle took place around the beautiful old chateau of Mondemont, on a hill six miles east of Sezanne. This relic of the architectural are of Louis XIV, occupied a position which both sides regarded as strageticaliy important."

RHEIMS DESTROYED BY GERMAN SHELLS

Cathedral Reported Demolished After Bambardment.

Paris, Sept. 21.—Rheims, one of the most beautiful cities in France, with 105,000 population, an important link in the French defenses, is in flames, following a furious bombardment of three days by the Germans, in which 400 civilians were killed and in which the cathedral and the greater portion of the city were demolished by shells.

Many wounded German soldiers who were sheltered in the cathedral were killed by the fire from the German cannon. An official dispatch from Bordeaux declares there is little hope of saving the cit yfrom complete destruction.

AN ESCAPADE IN ADVERTISING

How an Auto Was Sold

By GEORGE FREDERICK WILSON

Copyright by Frank A. Munsey Co.

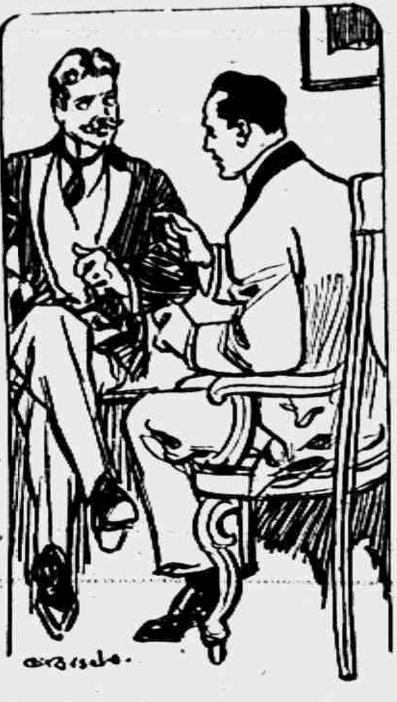
When the price of automobiles became such that their purchase became common among men of means Harvey Williams bought a single seat runabout.

During the first year of possession he made almost constant use of the machine. Then the novelty of the thing wore off, and in the five following years he seldom rode in it. After that the modern and speedy touring car became the vogue. Harvey once more came under the spell of the automobile craze and quickly decided that he must have a touring car.

Rich as he was, he concluded that his was not the wealth to foster two motors. He was determined to sell the runabout.

So Harvey advertised it for sale and awaited a purchaser. He waited two weeks, and yet none came. The end of the third week brought a probable buyer.

"Now, what I want in a machine is speed," this individual began. "I can't afford the price of a new machine, but none the less I want speed in the secondhand affair I buy. What speed do you claim this runabout is capable of making?"



INTO HOWARDSON'S SYMPATHETIC EARS HE POURED HIS STORY.

Harvey wavered between truth and a possible sale. If he gave its speed as fifteen miles an hour truth would triumph, but the opportunity of a sale would be lost.

"Well—er—you know our city ordinance is very strict as to speed, and I have never given the auto a trial on the country roads. But, say, it makes the city limit speed of ten miles very easily. Oh, yes, very easily!"

"Um! Then you don't know its exact speed?"

"It—it was guaranteed to make thirty miles easily in an hour," Harvey replied in a very weak tone of voice.

"Prove it and I'll take the auto off your hands," said the man. "You've got to show me."

"How can I prove it to you? Do you want to take a trial spin?"

"No. I haven't the time. Bring me absolute proof of its speed and I'll take the machine without further ado."

The three days following this conversation Harvey spent in vain attempts to hatch some scheme that would successfully deceive the probable purchaser. As mentioned before, the attempts were in vain, and on the night of the third day he gave up in despair.

On the morning of the fourth day he met a friend in the street, and the friend inquired about his success in disposing of the runabout. Harvey told him all.

"Why," exclaimed the friend, "I know the very man that can put this sale through to a successful finish. Robert Howardson is his name, and he is a specialist extraordinary in advertising. His office is in the Bearinger building."

Harvey found the office and the man. Into Howardson's sympathetic ears he poured his story.

"What price do you ask for the automobile, Mr. Williams?" Howardson inquired after hearing Harvey through.

"One thousand dollars."

"He is willing to pay this price for a secondhand automobile?"

"Perfectly willing. Says the old machines have the material in them; they wear better."

"I am not qualified to pass judgment upon his assertion. Now, Mr. Williams, how much are you willing to pay me if I succeed in selling your runabout?"

"Mr. Howardson, my fighting blood is up. When I first decided to sell I was anxious to sell. Now I am determined to be rid of the thing. I will give you 50 per cent, or, to put it plainly, $500."

"I would consider myself a robber were I to accept this amount. If I succeed I will ask for $150. Is this satisfactory?"

"Indeed, yes."

"Very well. Now, can you spare a couple of hours tomorrow forenoon?"

"I think I can arrange it."

Promptly at the hour designated Harvey drew up before the Bearinger building, and Howardson clambered into the seat beside him.

"What is the thing's absolute limit of speed, Mr. Williams?" Howardson inquired.

"It will make eighteen miles in an hour, but it is an awful strain on the engine."

"Take a given speed of eighteen miles per hour and a policeman to determine the speed, and his imagination will make it thirty miles. Now, when I say the word give it the limit."

They rode throughout the business district for a half hour, and then, when the streets were thickest with traffic, Howardson gave the order, and Harvey pushed the lever to the last notch.

Up and down the main thoroughfares the machine sped, creating turmoil in its wake. Policemen shouted their warning, but the men heeded them not.

Harvey would have liked very much to comply with the city speed ordinance, but Howardson urged against it. Finally one policeman, with the city's interest more at heart than any they had yet met with, ran out to intercept them, dodged in time to save himself, then ran on behind, secured the license number and jotted it down in his notebook.

It was then that Howardson advised less speed.

"Take your runabout home now, Mr. Williams, and keep both it and yourself under cover. When a policeman calls to place you under arrest your wife must tell him that you are not at home. You will get a letter. Bring it to me before you take further action."

The afternoon mail brought Williams a letter from the chief of police. With trembling fingers he tore open the envelope, read the letter through and then dressed for the street. A half hour later he stood before Howardson.

Howardson smiled.

"Mr. Howardson," Harvey began, "how did you know that I would get a letter from the chief of police?"

"It is evident that you were never arrested before for speeding. They always follow this course when a prominent person is not found at home when the policeman calls. Let's read what it says."

It opened with the usual salutation and proceeded:

"You are under arrest for breaking the city ordinance relative to the speed of automobiles. I have in hand all necessary evidence to prove that you were in the automobile at the time and acting as chauffeur. You were going at a speed of not less than thirty miles per hour, and this, too, in the heart of the city's business district. You can avoid further trouble by remitting at once the amount of your fine, $25."

"Excellent, excellent," Howardson exclaimed in a tone of delight. "If he had not been so particular as to estimating the speed we would have been put to the necessity of demanding it of him. Call the estimable gentleman over the telephone and tell him that you will send the check by the next mail."

Williams did so.

"I have already notified the probable purchaser to call here, and if I mistake not this is he at the door."

The door opened, and the probable purchaser walked into the room. After a few moments of desultory conversation the chief's letter was handed to him, and he read it through.

"The noon edition of the News contains an account of this escapade," he remarked. "I'll take the runabout."

Williams had come to the office in the motor, and the purchaser, having written out a check to Harvey's order, took immediate possession of the machine.

"Mr. Howardson, you are indeed a specialist extraordinary in advertising!" Williams cried, holding out his hand when they were once more in Howardson's office.

"Thank you, Mr. Williams. Let me assure you that you need have no uneasiness regarding our little stratagem. Our friend will not dare speed above ten miles within the city and twelve in the country. I doubt if he has much relish for the paying of fines. However, should he ever have occasion to test the auto's speed and find it not above eighteen miles per hour you can truthfully say that you had always thought this speed was its limit until the chief of police informed you differently. Write a check for $25, payable to the order of the city, and I will type a letter to the chief to go with it."

This is the letter that fairly dumfounded the chief of police:

"Your communication received. I am unable to state at which I am the more surprised—your charge that I was speeding over the limit or the fact that the old auto would go over eighteen miles per hour, a fact of which I was heretofore doubtful. I have disposed of the auto, and as speed was the first and most essential requisite I was able to produce unimpeachable evidence that the machine possessed this quality. Thanking you for the unsolicited favor, I take great pleasure in handing you the inclosed check in full payment of my fine."

Harvey Williams put $2,500 with the money paid him for his runabout and purchased a machine that would do fifty miles an hour when pushed to its utmost. The first time he went out in it he was so delighted with its performance that he gave every other auto on the road his dust. Coming to a curve, he failed to slow up sufficiently, skidded down a bank, ruined his machine and was thrown into a muddy stream, thus getting his deserts for his dishonesty.

MANDOT SHADES WOLGAST

"Baker Boy" Has Better of the Former Champion In Ten Rounds.

Milwaukee, Sept. 19.—Joe Mandot has "come back." Fighting like the southern champion of some years back, the doughty little baker boy slugged, boxed and outgeneraled his way to a clear-cut ten-round decision over Ad Wolgast in Frank Mulkern's Dreamland arena here.

It was a fancy exhibition, with too much class spelling defeat for the former "Wildcat." Probably no one was more surprised than Wolgast himself at the showing of the southerner. Ad was slow—maybe the Frenchmen's speed was responsible for this, because the Dutchman never got started, and his most effective punches went for naught.

Only Church and Hospital left Standing by Germans.

London, Sept. 19.—Reuter's Antwerp correspondent telegraphing Friday, says: "The Germans today completed the destruction of the town of Termonde (Dendermonde). The communal offices were bombarded and are in ruins. The church still stands, though its tower is damaged.

"The hospital was spared, but all other public buildings and houses were destroyed."

Y. M. C. A. MEETING

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 17—Secretary of State William Jennings Bryan will address the delegates to the boys' conference to be held at Ann Arbor Nov. 27 to 29, if the efforts of J. A. Van Dis, State Boys' Work Secretary of the Michigan Young Men's Christian Associations prove successful and the signatures of 5,000 Michigan boys hold any value for the Peerless Orator. Mr Van Dis left Detroit this morning to keep an appointment with the secretary of state tomorrow morning, and to present to him a bound book containing the petitions of five thousand older boys of Michigan who want the Secretary to attend their conference.

With the recent appointment and a meeting on Sept. 14 of the program committee the wheels were set in motion for what is expected to be the biggest conference of older boys that has ever been held, in Michigan or elsewhere. The committee is composed of Eugene C. Foster, Detroit; W. M. Aiken, Ann Arbor; M. F. Gogle, Jackson; F. P. Knapp, Hillsdale; F. A. Poole, Saginaw; E. J. Arnot, Adrian; C. W. Jackson, Ann Arbor; W. H. Tinker, Ann Arbor; J. A. Van Dis, State Y. M. C. A., Detroit.

A feature in prompting the 1914 conference is to be the exhibition throughout the state of the special motion picture film made at Saginaw last year when the boys paraded through the streets of the city in a column several blocks long.

Secretary Van Dis stated today that every preparation was being made for a largely increased attendance in the number of delegates this year. The attendance at Saginaw last Thanksgiving was 1200. It is expected this year that the enrollment will exceed 2,000. Lenawee sent last year 25 boys to Saginaw. This year the number will be more than doubled.

Dr. A. S. Wasthin of Ann Arbor, Medical Department of the U. of M., gave an illustratsd lecture Thursday evening Sept. 17 at Onsted on sex hygiene. This was the first of a series of lectures to be given in the chief centers of the County this coming fall and winter.

Supt. Page of Blissfield was in attendance and used his lanterns for the pictures.

The Detroit officers of the Y. M. C. A.'s of Michigan will hold a conference at Pine Lake Sept. 23, 24 and 25. E. J. Arnot and the officers of the Adrian Association will attend.

The Chicago Y. M. C. A. College is introducing the County Work Department this year. Forest Knapp, Secretery of Hillsdale County has been placed in charge of the Department.

He will probably visit the number of Colleges and Universities to present to the students the needs and opportunities in the rural field, with the object in view of taking the course Y. M. C. A. College preparatory to the county secretaryship. He will continue to carry on his work in Hillsdale County for the present at least.

WAY OF A TRAIN IN SPAIN.

Even the Expresses Creep Along as Though They Were Weary.

The train this morning is a correo (express), but everything is so new that you feel no more hurried than the train and rather enjoy its ways. It creeps into the station quietly and carefully, as if in fear that some hen might have laid one of those numerous fine Spanish eggs on the track and it might get broken in a too reckless approach. Sometimes—but this doesn't happen frequently—it slows up when near to one of the smallest of the multitudinous stations and sneaks by without stopping, as if ashamed or afraid.

When it does come to a standstill it listlessly slides back a bit and then slides forward a bit and then rights itself once more and then straightens up with a jerk, as if it were tired and its muscles not obedient to will. Then for a few moments every one cautiously waits to see what further it intends.

About the time it is thoroughly stopped some one pulls at the cord attached to the tongue of the station bell and gives three signals to let the passengers—and any one else who may be interested—know that the train has officially arrived, and a station employee calls out, "San Pablo, ocho minutos!" meaning that there will be eight minutes of waiting.—Grant Showerman in Atlantic.

ROYAL ETIQUETTE IN JAPAN.

A Member of the Imperial Family Can Die Only In Tokyo.

Surely there never was a more grim journey made than that of the dowager empress of Japan when she came for the last time to Tokyo.

She had died in her palace in the country. But the Japanese hold that a member of the imperial family can die nowhere except in Tokyo. Therefore the dead empress, theoretically still alive, journeyed from her country place to the palace in Tokyo with all the ceremonial that attended her movements when living.

She traveled in the royal railway car and was driven through the streets to the palace in a court carriage with the blinds closely drawn. The ministers and high state officials who greeted her on her past arrivals in the capital were at the station as usual and showed in no way that on this occasion they were meeting the corpse of the empress.

Troops lined the streets and presented arms as she passed. Only the great crowds in the streets, standing in silence instead of loudly cheering, betrayed the fact that the imperial carriage contained a dead woman.—New York Sun.

Big Ones For Little Ones.

Years ago there lived a certain backwoods farmer who had a singular faculty for overlooking the most obvious things. Once he swam his horse across a river and stopped at a house near by to borrow a bucket.

"I want to water my hoss down here at the river," he explained.

On another occasion he approached a neighbor and surprised him with the offer of a trade.

"I'd like to swap my three big pigs," he said, "for three little pigs."

"What's that?" demanded the astonished neighbor.

"Well, you see," answered the other, "my pigs have got too big for their pen."

TECUMSEH DRIVING CLUB.

Three Good Races Saturday.

The Tecumseh Driving Club put on another racing event Saturday afternoon at the Bills Race Track. Three good races were pulled off, and good prizes were offered. A good attendance turned out to watch the horses.

Below is the results by races and heats:

THE MITCHELL '4' ENDURANCE TRIP.

L. C. Hayden announced last week that the Mitchell 4 endurance trip would be made this week. The test consists of a sealed bonnet run of 7,500 miles or 250 miles a day for 30 consecutive days, over a route of the middle west and east.

The bonnet will be sealed by Mayor Harrison of Chicago or the Chief of Police and the start made from Chicago September 23 from in front of the City Hall. The car used will be the $1250 Mitchell car. The seal cannot be broken during the trip thus preventing any repairs or adjustment of the engine.

Mr. Hayden has received word from the Mitchell Motor Co that his suggestion would be carried out and that their Reliability sealed bonnet run would be scheduled through Tecumseh enroute to Detroit. The car will stop while in Tecumseh at the Hayden Garage, on the first day out, which will be Wednesday, Sept. 23.

MRS. HENRY L. KELLY.

Clara Ellen Woodcox was born Dec. 3, 1887 and departed this life Sept. 15, 1914. Aug. 24, 1902 she was united in marriage to Henry L. Kelly, to this union six children were born James F., Hazel M., John C., Gerald L., Ralph O., and Thomas H. who with the husband, her father and mother, three sisters, Mrs. Parkhurst and Mrs. Allen of Devils Lake and Mrs. Evars of Alvosdton, O., and four brothers, Lloyd, Floyd, Hollis and Richard mourn her loss.

SARAH POCKLINGTON

Sarah Burleigh Pocklington was born in Yorkshire, England, Jan. 1st, 1826. She was married to George Pocklington March 31st, 1844. In a few weeks they started for America and were seven weeks in a sailing vessel on the ocean. They made a slow passage through New York and by boat to Monroe, then on foot to Ridgeway. They first settled below the ridge about three miles from Ridgeway. In 1865 they moved to their present home where her death occurred Sept. 6, 1914.

In her long life of 88 years she has been called to part with many of her loved ones, her husband having died 13 years ago, her daughter Julia D seven years ago and her grand-daughter Nellie McRobert four years ago. Of her immediate family there are left to mourn three grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

"Aunt Sarah," as she was familiarly called, will be mourned, missed and remembered by hosts of relatives and friends. She was one of the first members of the M. E. society here even before there was a church built, when they worshiped in the old schoolhouse. She was regular in her attendance at worship as long as her health permitted. Truly her life was spent in the service of the Master, faithful in all things and ever mindful of others.

CARD OF THANKS.

To the neighbors and friends who so kindly assisted during the sickness and death of our beloved grandmother.

To the choir for the lovely music and to those who gave the floral offerings.

We wish to express our heartfelt gratitude

THE SEA OF LOT.

Its Ridge of Sodom and Its Fetid but Clear Blue Waters.

It is in the southeastern part of Palestine where the famous Dead sea lies. In the Old Testament it was known as the Sea of the Plain or Salt sea, but it is known today by the Arabs as the Sea of Lot. Its surface, which is lower than any other body of water, is 1,292 feet below the level of the Mediterranean.

The Dead sea is fed by the river Jordan from the north, but has no outlet, depending entirely upon evaporation. A portion of the sea is surrounded by cliffs which are destitute of vegetation. On the south shore is the ridge of rock salt, seven miles long and 300 feet high, known as the ridge of Sodom. Lava beds, sulphur and volcanic slag prove the existence of volcanic agencies at some period. The lake still casts up pieces of asphalt when the environs of the Dead sea are visited by earthquake.

Its proportion of saline matter is so great that it contains more than eight times as much as the ocean, and, while it is exceedingly fetid, yet its water is as blue as that of the Mediterranean, and to the bather it is very refreshing, and owing to its specific gravity it is difficult to sink. Nothing living exists within the waters of the Dead sea.—Buffalo Express.

ASTHNA AND HAY FEVER A GUARANTEED TREATMENT.

"I have arranged with B. J. Pulver so that every sufferer from Asthma, Hay Fever or Bronchial Asthma in Tecumseh can try my treatment entirely at my risk," Dr. Rudolph Schiffmann announces. He says: "Buy a 50 cent package of my Asthmador Cigarettes, try it, and if it does not afford you immediate relief, or if you do not find it the best ever used, take it back to B. J. Pulver and they will return your money, cheerfully and without any question whatever. After seeing the grateful relief it has afforded in hundreds of cases, which had been considered incurable, and which had been given up in despair, I know what it will do. I am so sure that it will do the same with others that I am not afraid to guarantee it will relieve instantaneously. The druggists handling Asthmador will return your money if you say so. You are to be the sole judge and under this positive guarantee, absolutely no risk is run in buying Asthmador."

Persons living elsewhere will be supplied under the same guarantee by their local druggist or direct by Dr. R. Schiffmann, St. Paul, Minn.

BLACK SILK
BLACK SILK STOVE POLISH

"A SHINE IN EVERY DROP"

Black Silk Stove Polish is different. It does not dry out; can be used to the last drop; liquid and paste one quality; absolutely no waste; no dust or dirt. You get your money's worth.

Black Silk Stove Polish

is not only most economical, but it gives a brilliant, silky lustre that cannot be obtained with any other polish. Black Silk Stove Polish does not rub off—it lasts four times as long as ordinary polish—so it saves you time, work and money.

Don't forget—when you want stove polish, be sure to ask for Black Silk. If it isn't the best stove polish you ever used—your dealer will refund your money.

Black Silk Stove Polish Works, Sterling, Illinois.

Use Black Silk Metal Polish for silverware, nickel, tinware or brass. It works quickly, easily and leaves a brilliant surface. It has no equal for use on automobiles.

Auto Crashes Into Buggy; Two of Victims May Die.

South Bend, Ind., Sept. 21.—Four persons were injured, two probably fatally, when an automobile crashed into a buggy driven by Dr. R. S. Wolfe of South Bend. The injured are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Avery, Cassopolis Mich., internally injured, may die; Dr. Wolfe, Dr. J. McMichael of Cassopolis and Robert Clark, Cassopolis, cut and bruised.

Clark was driving the car, which apparently was beyond his control, as Wolfe, who was driving into this city, went into the ditch in an effort to avoid an accident. The automobile jumped to the left side of the road, went into the ditch and was stopped only after it had crashed into Wolfe's horse and buggy.

JAPANESE DEFEAT GERMANS

Expeditionary Forces Compel Foe to Flee North of Kiaochou.

Tokio, Sept. 21.—It is officially announced that the Japanese expeditionary land forces attacked the Germans thirty miles north of Kiaochou and defeated them on September 18.

The Germans are said to have abandoned a fortified position and to have fled in disorder.

Russ Fleet Off Dardanelles.

Rome, via Paris, Sept. 19.—The steamer Favignana has arrived at Naples from the orient, and her officers report that the Russian Black Sea fleet, comprising twenty units, is cruising off the entrance of the Dardanelles, ready to attack the Turkish squadron if it should leave the Golden Horn.

Misunderstanding goes on like a fallen stitch in a stocking, which in the beginning might have been taken up by a needle.

The hours were passed with cards and dancing and light refreshments were served during the evening. A most delightful evening was reported.

The weather seems to be with the Lenawee County Fair which starts today. The management have exerted every effort to make this year's fair the best in the history of the association. With big entries in every department, preparation made for good races and a clean line of shows for the Midway, the only thing left to make it a big success is the crowd. Among the Tecumseh people who will have exhibits at the fair are C. A. Slayton & Son, "Big Chief" Garage and Frank Hialey. Thursday the schools will be closed, giving the children a chance to attend.

HOW THE EUROPEAN WAR IS BRINGING PROSPERITY TO TECUMSEH.

Recently Uncle Sam's Macaroni Co. closed a big deal with the Franco-American Food Co. of New York whereby they agree to furnish this firm with several thousand cases of their products. The European War has practically cut off imports of macaroni and like food stuffs. The Franco-American Food Co. were large importers in this line and when they could not buy macaroni in France they looked about at home for something that would suit their trade. After thorough investigation they decided that Uncle Sam's macaroni was what they wanted.

Another big contract secured a few days ago was with the Wright-Lee Brokerage Co. of Cleveland, O. This brokerage house is one of the largest in the country and have been quietly investigating Uncle Sam's macaroni for some time which resulted in the deal being closed. This only goes to show that Uncle Sam's goods are the best made and are being sought all over the country.

Last year about 100,000,000 lbs. of macaroni were imported into this country. The war has stopped this and America is called upon to produce what was formerly imported from Europe. This means that American macaroni manufacturers will have to double their output and we are pleased to learn that Uncle Sam's Macaroni Co. are getting their share of the business.

This year is by far the most busy year in the history of their business and the factory is rushed with work. From 30 to 35 men and eight women are at present employed. Of these only one is an Italian.

FESTIVITIES

A hayride and picnic, a slumber party, and then a dinner marked the close of the week, before the departure of Miss Alice Satterthwaite, who left Monday morning for her future home in California.

Thursday afternoon at four o'clock each member of the bunch were waiting for the wagon, and soon a hay rack with a load of sweet smelling hay came in sight and was quickly filled with the merry crowd. Miss Clara Waldron was hostess and when they reached some woods west of town proved herself competent to entertain. A jolly picnic supper, cooked over a bright bonfire in gypsy fashion was not the least on the list of good things. The telling of stories singing of songs, and planning for the future of the brides to be who were of the party lasted until the twilight shadows made the woods teem with fairies witches and hobgoblins, so they once more mounted their chariot and returned to their homes. Their approach being heralded by laughter and song.

Friday afternoon Alice Satterthwaite, Marie Bramble, Zilla Mills, Lulu Brown, Clara Waldron and Mrs. Maynard Mulvaney wended their way to Britton to the pleasant home of Miss Frances Exelby, for a Slumber(?) Party. The first on the program was a most delightful supper, which claimed the attention of the company for an hour or more. Then as most of them had just ten pennies to spend they interviewed the stores of Britton, and purchased an amount of kitchen utensils which later on were bestowed upon Marie Bramble in a kitchen shower, which was one of the surprises of the evening. Our informant has not told us how many hours were devoted to slumber, but we are sure that no one overslept and were quite ready for breakfast when the call was given.

They reached Tecumseh in good season to prepare for the dinner party given by Miss Ruth Keeney Saturday noon. The table was prettily decorated in red and white. At each plate was a tiny red basket with red and white candles and a neat Kewpie place card. Red and white flowers were used profusely. Covers were laid for fourteen guests The leading feature of this gathering was the train letter and package shower for Miss Alice, which was a regular downpour, and will serve to wile away many a lonely hour on the long journey.

Monday morning witnessed her departure, amid the Godspeeds, the loving goodbyes and the tears and smiles of those who have held her near and dear, so long.

The scene of the next chapter will be laid in California, and will be published later.

Chattering will not ... e are about as many processes as are necessary in the making of a tungsten lamp, and the machinery process that makes it and compounds the ingredients that go into it is wonderfully interesting. So exact is the formula placed into each shell that when completed a battery will register up to a uniform amperage. The highest known amperage in the manufacture of a dry cell is twenty-six.

Cheap Power.

Natural steam coming up through the ground is a cheap power for running an engine in the northern Tuscany mountains. Lakes of hot water in the vicinity of the steam holes contain much boracic acid, and a manufacturing company uses the natural steam to run machinery for extracting the valuable boracic acid from the lake water. The only difficulty in this pleasant state of affairs is that the steam itself is so highly charged with boracic acid that it would injure the blades of a turbine engine, so the steam is used to heat up an ordinary boiler, and the steam from the boiler is then used in the turbine. The steam is caused by volcanic action and comes up through blowholes at a considerable pressure.—Saturday Evening Post.

CURIOUS CLIFF HOUSES.

...er Prehistoric Dwellings In Mesa Verde National Park.

The Mesa Verde National park is situated in southwestern Colorado and may best be reached from Mancos. Within the park are many notable prehistoric ruins, the cliff dwellings comprising a group of great importance to the study of American archaeology. The principal and most accessible ruins are the Spruce Tree House, Cliff palace, Balcony House and Tunnel House.

Spruce Tree House is located in the head of Spruce Tree canyon, a branch of Navajo canyon. It originally contained about 130 rooms, built of dressed stone laid in adobe mortar, with the outside tiers chinked with chips of rock and broken pottery.

Cliff palace is located about two miles east of Spruce Tree House, in a left branch of Cliff canyon, and consists of a group of houses with ruins of 146 rooms, including twenty round kivas or ceremonial rooms and a tapering loopholed tower forming a crescent of about 100 yards from horn to horn, which is reputed to be one of the most famous works of prehistoric man in existence.

Balcony House, a mile east of Cliff palace, in Ruin canyon, contains about twenty-five rooms, some of which are in almost perfect condition.

Tunnel House, about two miles south of Spruce Tree House, contains about twenty rooms and two kivas, connected by an elaborate system of underground passages, and a burial ground of 5,000 square feet. In each of these villages is an elaborate system of fortification, with in some cases walls 23 feet thick and twenty feet high, watchtowers thirty feet high and blockhouses pierced with small loopholes for arrows.

DIVORCEES OBTAIN WISDOM WITH YEARS

After Two Years Separation W. C. Joneses Remarry.

Chicago, Sept. 21.—Helen Hyman was married to Walter C. Jones on Tuesday evening. A similar announcement was made by her parents just six years ago. On October 24, 1908, Miss Hyman and Walter C. Jones were married at the Hyman residence on Wesley avenue, Oak Park. The wedding was an event in the social history of the suburb. Two years ago they were quietly divorced. Mrs. Jones took Tom, their two-year-old son, and went home to the life she had loved as a girl. Mr. Jones went to Cedar Rapids, Ia., to begin life anew.

Success followed them both. Mrs. Jones realized she wasn't all she might have been when it came to domestic science. As she learned to make biscuits he learned to make money.

The second wedding took place at the Hyman residence, and the ceremony was performed by the Rev. Almer M. Pennywell. It was a quiet wedding. The day following the service Mr. and Mrs. Jones and their son Tom left for their new home in Cedar Rapids.

KILLS WIFE; ENDS OWN LIFE

Man Just Adjudged Sane Commits Maniacal Deed.

Richmond, Ind., Sept. 21.—Williamsburg was the scene of one of the most gruesome crimes in the history of Wayne County. Wilson Shields, a prominent resident of the village, believed to be insane, although adjudged sane at an inquest held in Richmond about three weeks ago, killed his wife and then himself. While Mrs. Shields was starting a fire in the kitchen range her husband evidently quarreled with her and is believed first to have knocked her down with a piece of stove wood, although there were no witnesses to the crime. He then killed her by firing birdshot into the side of her head.

Clell Shields, the son, who was aroused by the discharge of the gun, rushed to the rear of the house and almost stumbled over the body of his mother in the kitchen doorway. He saw his father sitting on the kitchen floor with the butt of the shotgun between his feet and the muzzle against his forehead. When the insane man prepared to pull the trigger young Shields turned his head. The charge tore off the top of the man's head.

UTAH'S NATURAL BRIDGE.

The Secret of Its Origin Somewhat Puzzles the Scientists.

What is thought to be the largest natural bridge in the world is that of southwestern Utah, known as the George natural bridge. The total length of this great work of nature is about 200 feet; its width—i. e., the "roadway"—is about thirty-five feet; the span in the clear is about ninety feet. At the base there flows a small water course which, during the hot months, dwindles to a mere rivulet.

Scientists are somewhat perplexed to explain the means by which nature produced this bridge. It is thought hardly possible that it could have been created by water erosion, unless, as was most unlikely, there was a very large and swift stream flowing at the point where the brook now runs.

Some authorities are inclined to the view that this bridge was due to volcanic action, occurring at some remote geological period.

Although long known to the Indians, it was not until about fifteen years ago that white men became familiar with the sight of it. Mining prospectors were the first of the whites to see it, since it is located in the heart of a very rugged and inaccessible region.

The span is composed of a dark brown standstone of unusual hardness, and the thickness of the span is twenty feet or more.

Engineers who have examined this bridge assert that it is perfectly safe and secure and that it is fully capable of sustaining an immense weight, especially as the span is free from flaws or seams.—Washington Star.

JUSTICE AND LUNCHEON.

They Seemed to Clash a Trifle, So the Court Made a Change.

It was formerly the practice of the supreme court to sit from 12 noon until 4 o'clock continuously on each day that it was in session. From time to time, as the afternoon progressed, the justices, one or two at a time, would slip out of their seats, snatch a bite of luncheon and return. Sometimes as many as four or five of them would be off the bench at once. They usually had their luncheon brought to them by their messengers and ate it in the little curtained recess behind the bench, and as the argument progressed there could be plainly heard in the courtroom the clink of knife and fork on plate and what O. Henry has called "the crash of dishes on the American plan."

One day a lawyer pleading a case made bold to enter a protest. He most solemnly inquired if he could count upon the continuous and undivided attention of even one justice to the thread of his argument. "The personnel of the court has been twice entirely changed since I began," he said plaintively.

The court deigned no response, but on the following Monday it was announced from the bench that a recess for luncheon thereafter would be taken every day from 2 to 2:30 o'clock and that the court would sit until 4:30 o'clock every afternoon — World's Work.

JOHN STOWE'S REWARD.

The Beggar Historian Got Royal Permission to Solicit Alms.

James I. on March 8, 1603, granted letters patent under the great seal to John Stowe, London's great historian, authorizing him to beg. The letters patent of James I. authorized Stowe to collect the voluntary contributions of the people. The letter recites that:

"Whereas, Our loving subject, John Stowe, a very aged and worthy member of our city of London, this five and forty years hath to his great charge and with neglect of his ordinary means of maintenance, for the general good as well of posterity as of the present age, compiled and published diverse necessary books and chronicles, and therefore we, in recompense of his labors and for the encouragement to the like, have in our royal inclination been pleased to grant letters patent under our great seal of England, dated March 8, 1603, thereby authorizing him to collect among our loving subjects their voluntary contributions and kind gratuities."

John Stowe died on April 5, 1605, and was buried in the parish Church of St. Andrew Undershaft, where his monument, erected by his widow, is still to be seen.—London Stray Stories.

Discordant Thoughts.

In wandering through your mental pleasure grounds, whenever you come upon an ugly intruder of a thought which might bloom into some poisonous emotion, such as fear, envy, hate, worry, remorse, anger and the like, there is only one right way to treat it, writes Robert H. Schauffler in the Atlantic. Pull it up like a weed, drop it upon the rubbish heap as promptly as if it were a stinging nettle and let some harmonious thought grow in its place. There is no more reckless consumer of all kinds of exuberance than the discordant thought, and weeding it out saves such an astonishing amount of eau de vie wherewith to water the garden of joy that with it in hand every man may be his own Burbank.

His Alibi.

"If you are innocent," said a lawyer to his client, an old darky, who was charged with stealing a ham, "we ought to be able to prove an alibi."

"I don' specs we kin," the darky replied doubtfully.

"At what time was the ham stolen?"

"'Bout 'lebben erclock, day say."

"Well, where were you between 11 o'clock and midnight—in bed?"

"No, sah. I was hidin' de ham."—Philadelphia Ledger.

THREE BRITISH CRUISERS SUNK

German Attacks Are Repulsed With Heavy Losses—Crown Prince Massing to Attack Verdun—Allies Suffer Heavily—Gaekwar of Baroda Offers Troops and Resources—British Warships After German Cruisers.

Three British warships, the armored cruisers Aboukir, Hogue and Cressy, have been sunk in the North Sea by submarines, according to an announcement given out by the official bureau. A considerable number of the crews were saved by H. M. S. Lowestoft and by a division of torpedo-boat destroyers. Trawlers and their boats also aided in the work of rescue. The Aboukir was torpedoed first. The Hogu and the Cressy drew in close to her and were standing by to save her crew, when they were torpedoed. The warships lost were of the same type.

All telegraphic and telephone communication with Breslau has suddenly ceased. It is feared that the Russian center may have pushed forward and be attacking the city.

An Antwerp dispatch to the Reuter Telegram company says the staff of General von Kluck, commander of the German right wing, was transferred to Mons, according to an unconfirmed report. The Belgian recruits of the 1914 class have been called to the colors.

PARIS — The following official communique was issued:

"The fighting today has been less violent. We have made noteworthy progress between Rheims and the Argonne ridge."

PARIS — Unless all signs fail, the beginning of the German retreat from France is in sight.

The government reports coincide with the opinion of military critics that all along the line German resistance is crumbling before the numbers and spirit of the allies.

The definite result of the ninth day battle of the Aisne places General Von Kluck, commanding the German right wing, in peril of envelopment. British and French have struggled forward at awful cost to the heights of Lassigny, thus endangering the extreme German right.

East of Rheims, in the center of the battle, the allies are breaching the German line and have driven the Germans from strong positions. The retreat in the center adds to the danger of Von Kluck's army and indicates necessity for general withdrawal to a new line of defense, probably Belgium.

Massing to Attack Verdun.

Rain storms and inclement weather have slackened battle fury at the east of the line, where the duke of Wurttenburg and the Crown Prince Frederick William are struggling to hold positions. In a finad effort to break the Verdun line of fortifications and let German troops through, the crown prince, heavily reinforced, is reported to be massing an attack against the Verdun fortresses.

The official communique issued at night is extraordinarily brief but holds subdued optimism within its guarded phrases—the hint that the allies are breaking through the German center.

Allies Advance Everywhere.

The eagerness of the French public was more substantially fed by the communication of the afternoon. The details, accepted by a public which has perfect confidence in the conservatism and truth of its government, point distinctly to progress in the allies endeavor to cut off General Von Kluck's army. At the extreme left and in the center the allies have advanced their lines further than ever before. At Rheims the Germans have recoiled after the fiercest of any attacks and are maintaining the bombardment of the city. Eastward, to the ridge of the Argonne, they appear to have been pressed backward. There is no definite news from the Voges and Lorraine.

German Attack Fails.

Paris and all French comprehend that shouts of victory would be premature. But there is the most positive feeling that the government communications contain more than what meets the eye. Including details, it is certain that the Germans, with fresh troops and new artillery, have not been able to maintain an offensive movement begun several days ago at critical points of the battle lines—Noyon, Craonne, Rheims and the plains of Chalons. Their utmost power has been endured and repulsed by the forces under General Joffree. The perspective of the nine days' fighting reveals that in a series of battles for key positions, where heights and entrenchments were taken and are taken, they were forced eventually to surrender ground.

Allies Pay Fighting Cost.

From every point of view, save one, the situation is cheering to the French nation. That one has to do with the dead. There is no denying that the battle of Aisne, if won, will be gained at frightful cost. From every point of the battle line, now 125 miles long in its main operations, comes the news of enormous casualties.

Germans Repulsed, Says Paris.

PARIS — German troops were repulsed with heavy losses all along the battle front of 150 miles. Desperate attacks near the center of the firing zone ended in defeat for the kaiser, leaving his right wing army exposed to the flanking maneuvers of the French and British, and compelling the crown prince on the German left to stand at bay before the French forces harassing his retreat.

Fighting was most sanguinary near Carone, where repeated bayonet charges by the Germans ended in their defeat. Bombardment of Rheims continued for four days and was without effect on the French battle lines.

General Alexander Von Kluck, commanding the German right wing army, has been driven back to Noyon, north of the River Oise. The French have captured the heights at Lassigny, opposite Noyon.

Both armies are greatly hampered in moving troops and cannon by the ceaseless rain of the last ten days More than three million men have been without shelter during this downpour and both sides are exhausted. In the Champagne country the French have gained ground, retaking several towns. On the eastern end of the battle line the situation is without significant change.

All My Troops and Resources.

LONDON — "All my troops and resources." This is the latest offer of the Gaekwar of Baroda to the British government as announced by the secretary of state of India. Nearly all the Indian potentates have expressed a desire for personal service in the field.

Jap Bombs Destroy Forts.

PARIS — Telegraphing from Petrograd, a correspondent of the Havas agency says: "A dispatch received here from Vladivostok declares that Japanese aeroplanes, throwing bombs, have destroyed two of the important forts at Tsingtau."

British Cruisers After Germans.

NEW YORK. — There was a persistent report in shipping circles that six of the fleet of British cruisers which have been patrolling North Atlantic waters have been ordered to steam south at full speed to clear the South Atlantic of German cruisers recently active there.

Germans Quit Brussels.

AMSTERDAM (via London), — According to a message which reached the Telegraaf, the troops of the German empire, who were in Brussels, have left that city for the French and Russian fronts. The army occupying Brussels is now Austrian, and has with it seven heavy siege guns

KING ALBERT

Belgian Ruler Who Foiled Plot to Carry Him Into German Lines.

PARIS — The newspaper Progres du Nord prints a remarkable story to the effect that the king of the Belgians shot and killed his chauffeur who had tried to drive him into the German lines.

Papers were found in the clothing of the chauffeur showing that he had received an offer of $250,000 from the Germans for the capture of the king.

RUSS IN GALICIA ARE PRESSING ON

Cracow Troops Rebel; May Give Forts to Slavs.

SERBS WIN OVER AUSTRIANS

Franz Josef's Troops, Re-enforced by Germans, Massed Along Cracow Fortifications and Invaders Expect Resistance Here—Russ Re-enforcements on Way—Believe Austrians Cannot Take Offensive Until Spring.

PETROGRAD. — That the main Russian army has pressed on after enveloping the Pzemysl-Jaroslav line along the San and is moving against the chief Austrian positions was the substance of the war office statement. It announced that the operations were of necessity slow, but that there has not been encountered any opposition that has required any change in the original plan of campaign.

It is considered certain the real resistance on a large scale will be encountered along the lines of the Cracow fortifications. There the Austrian reserves have been massed and heavily re-enforced by the German Landwehr corps, which have been especially detailed for service in Austria.

Await More Troops.

The Russian forces are moving slowly westward through Galicia awaiting the arrival of at least a portion of the army of 900,000 that is proceeding through Poland to the front.

The populace is already fleeing from Cracow, from which place a part of the unique university library has also been removed for safety.

The Polish voluntary bands, which have been enrolled for the defense of Cracow, have declined to oppose the Russians on the ground that they prefer that the tide of war should break upon some other part of Austria rather than around Cracow. This seems to show that Cracow may be delivered up to the Russians.

Reports of fresh defeats of the Austrians have led the Russian headquarters to believe that it will be impossible for Austria to assume the offensive in Galicia until next spring.

Servians Rout Austrians.

PARIS — A dispatch to the Havas Agency from Nish, Servia says: "After several days of battle near Kroupani, ten miles from the Bosnian border, in which 250,000 Austrians were engaged, the Austrians suffered a complete defeat and are flying in panic from the banks of the River Drina.

"The Servians, who called back their troops in Syrmia for this battle are now advancing toward Svornik.

"On the River Save an Austrian detachment tried to capture the Town of Shabatz, forty miles west of Belgrade, but was thrown back with great losses."

Harbor Bill Is Defeated.

WASHINGTON D. C.— Revolting against party leadership, sixteen Democratic senators accomplished the overthrow of the rivers and harbors appropriation bill and crowned with victory a filibuster against the measure directed by Senator Theodore E. Burton of Ohio.

The senate by a vote of 27 to 22 ended the determined struggle over the $34,000,000 bill by adopting a motion by a Democrat, Senator Bankhead of Alabama, to recommit the bill to the commerce committee with instructions that it substitute a measure appropriating a lump sum of $20,000,000 to be expended on existing waterway projects in the discretion of the secretary of war and board of army engineers.

Canada Will Send 31,200 Troops.

VALCARTIER, QUEBEC — Canada will send 31,200 soldiers in the contingent which will start shortly for the European theater of war. This is nearly 10,000 more men than the British war office asked for.

This announcement was made by Colonel Hughes, minister of militia, after a conference with Premier Borden and other government officials.

Pope Protests Cathedral Loss.

ROME — The pope has sent a dispatch to the kaiser protesting in dignified terms against the ruthless destruction of the cathedral at Rheims. Pope Benedict says this crime cries for God's revenge and warns him lest the destruction of the Lord's temples provokes the anger of God against which the most powerful armies are powerless.

Kaiser at Luxemburg.

LONDON — The German emperor has taken up his quarters in Luxemburg, according to a Paris dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph company. Thousands of troops are stationed around the legation where he resides. To guard against possible raids by French aviators a squadron of aeroplanes is in constant readiness to beat off attacks.

500,000 Under Arms in Italy.

ROME — Italy already has over half a million men under arms The best of these troops are in camps and barracks in the Lombardy and Venetian provinces

TWO FATALLY HURT AS CAR HITS ENGINE

Flint-Saginaw Limited in Collision Near Mt. Morris.

MOUNT MORRIS, MICH. — Two men were fatally injured and the passengers on the Flint-Saginaw limited, due here at 5:12 p. m., were thrown from their seats and many of them bruised when the limited struck a traction engine at Coldwater Crossing, two miles south of here.

Engineer Thompson, of the traction engine, and Motorman Smith, of the interurban, were caught when the crash came and both were so badly injured that they are expected to die.

The limited shot over the crest of a hill ten rods from the crossing as the traction engine was squarely on the tracks.

FLINT LAW STUDENT DIES IN AUTO UPSET

Chas. Mann jr. Is Found Dead by Parents.

MOUNT MORRIS, MICH. — Chas. Mann Jr., twenty-one years old, son of Charles H. Mann, a prominent real estate dealer of Flint, was instantly killed a mile east and half a mile south of Clio at 6:15 in the evening, when his automobile turned turtle as he was attempting to pass another machine going in the same direction.

Young Mann was caught under the seat and his neck was broken. His companion, whose name could not be learned, escaped unhurt.

Ten minutes after the accident the dead man's parents drove up in another machine, but their son was dead.

When the accident happened young Mann was on his way home from a visit at the home of his grandfather at Clio. He was driving fast to get home before his parents, who had also been at Clio, and in attempting to pass another auto his machine struck a soft place in the road and turned turtle.

Young Mann was a sophomore in the Detroit College of Law and expected to leave for school Monday.

UNIONS TO ADMIT MILITIAMEN

Michigan Convention Lifts Embargo on National Guardsman as Delegate.

LANSING, MICH. — The Michigan Federation of Labor at its twenty-fifth annual convention, ratified one change in its constitution and acted upon many resolutions, features of which were raps at the high cost of living, a demand for better inspection of factories, proper labeling of poison-made goods, regulation of private employment agencies, and plans for better care of aliens in revision of alien land laws so that self-education and naturalization may be made an incentive.

That provision in the constitution which barred a state official, officer, or member of the militia from attendance at state conventions as a delegate, was changed to read so that if local organizations desired to send such a delegate he would be admitted.

LOZIER COMPANY IN COURT

Petition Filed for Receiver for Detroit Motor Company.

DETROIT, MICH.—Alleging insolvency, petitions in bankruptcy have been filed in the United States court against the Lozier Motor company and the appointment of a receiver is requested. A hearing is set for next Wednesday. The petitioners for a receiver are the Detroit Pressed Steel company, the Welded Steel Barrel company and the Brightman Nut and Manufacturing company of this city.

Counsel for the Lozier company does not admit insolvency. A statement last December scheduled assets at over $4,000,000 and liabilities of $1,500,000.

STABS IN ROW OVER WOMAN

Husband in Hospital, Former Boarder Sought by Police.

ANN ARBOR, MICH. — Officers are searching for Bert Flipper, a workman in the Hoover Steel Ball plant, who, it is alleged, stabbed his landlord, George Woods, three times in the back. Woods, who is also a workman in the Hoover plant, took Flipper to board in his family some time ago and shortly afterward noticed the boarder's attentions to his wife were more pronounced than he thought necessary.

The stabbing resulted from a quarrel at Woods' house, where beer was being drunk. Mrs. Woods engaged in a quarrel with her husband and he retorted with references to her relations with Flipper. The latter grabbed a knife and stabbed Woods three times.

A Queer Punishment.

The Slovaks (Hungary) are a very peaceful, law abiding community, but there are probably black sheep among their number, and in front of a church at Postyen may be seen an ancient stone pillar, reminiscent of the days when punishment was meted out in much the same way as it was in England in those days. Fastened to this pillar in the center is a large iron clasp, and at the base two smaller ones close together. These clasps fitted around the waists and ankles of the offender, and when a man or woman had stolen something he or she was locked to this post on a Sunday and compelled to hold in the hands whatever had been stolen. Every Slovak attends church on Sundays, from which it may be gathered that this public exposure was no small ordeal. The post bears a terse inscription, the translation of which is: "I do not ask you to come, but if you come I receive you."—Wide World Magazine.

Aroused Her Curiosity After All.

"Don't want any," said a housekeeper from her second story window to a street vender whose covered wagon was standing a few steps away and who had just pulled the bell.

"Don't want any what?" gruffly asked the vender, who hadn't had even a chance to tell what his wares were.

"What have you got?" asked the housekeeper, whose curiosity was getting the better of her annoyance.

"Oh, never mind. You don't want any. Git up, Bob!"

"Now, I wonder what that exasperating man is selling, anyhow!" she exclaimed as the wagon disappeared around the corner.—Exchange.

New York's First Law School.

Now that New York's four law schools are graduating hundreds of pupils annually, it is interesting to recall the time when New York had no law school and a local newspaper could say, "It is strange if a series of law lectures in so large a city as New York would not pay." This was printed in June, 1855, in an item which began, "Mr. George H. Moore stated at the late alumni dinner of New York university that a law department of that institution was really created, and its professors really delivered their inaugural addresses." Benjamin F. Butler, Esq., Judge Kent and the late David Graham constituted the law faculty.—New York Tribune.

Proved His Bravery.

One evening I was seated upon the crowded roof garden of the Palace hotel in Shanghai, safely within the international settlement, watching the fires which were numerous in the Chinese city and listening to the battle and a dissertation by an authoritative looking fellow guest in the hotel during which he had just made the statement that he could take the arsenal with a corporal's guard of his fellow nationals when a shell screamed close over our heads and burst in the public garden along the bund. Others followed it. We all bolted for the elevators, but the armchair tactician was the best sprinter and beat us all to it. —Bartlett G. Young in World's Work.

Wrestled For a Throne.

The throne of Japan was once wrestled for. In the ninth century two rival claimants, sons of a deceased Mikado, instead of waging war against each other, decided the succession by a wrestling match.

THIRTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Sept. 25, 1879

On the first Monday in October a Teacher's class will be organized in the Tecumseh High School.

There were 60 cars on the freight going south Tuesday evening and 70 cars on the same train last evening.

Pack your grip-sack and be ready for the excursion to Niagara Falls, Oct. 1st. Tickets only $5.50 and good for 28 days.

H. Brewer & Co. are putting in good time this fall visiting the different State Fairs to exhibit their Brick and Tile machine.

Will D. Robbins, Harry Sherrard, Sumner Collins and Frank Osborn have gone to Ann Arbor to resume their college duties. The Literary Department commenced work yesterday.

Wheat touched $1.00 a bushel last Saturday and has been pouring into town since then at a tremendous rate. Slayton & Son took in 8000 bushels between Saturday morning and Tuesday night.

M. P. Brown will take subscriptions for the Echo again this year, and advertises as follows: The Echo—A Detroit weekly newspaper, giving all the news of the day in a condensed form, will be furnished fifteen months for 75c. Call at once and secure a copy.

THE LAST GAME.

A short time ago the epidemic for amatuer base ball broke out. A game was arranged between the Cigarmakers and the Blacksmiths of Tecumseh and it came off last Tuesday afternoon.

The game was evenly played and produced much sport resulting in favor of the Blacksmiths by a score of 21 to 18 with the following lineup:

Blacksmiths	Cigar Makers
Kyle c	McKinney c
Berger p	Freeman p
Pangburn ss	Kyle ss
Lockwood 1b	Stevens 1b
Cummins 2b	Mahaney 2b
Boland 3b	McConnell 3 b

MRS. VOLORUS J. WOODARD

Sarah Elizabeth Blossom was born in Clinton, Michigan, Aug. 20, 1835 and passed on to her reward, Sept. 16, 1914. All her childhood was spent in and about Clinton until Dec. 31, 1856 when she was united in marriage to Volorus Woodard. Since that time her home has been almost continously in Tecumseh, and with the exception of the last fourteen years which she has spent in the home of her daughter, in the same house where their two children, Polaski V. and Mae F. were born and reared. Essentially a home body, to the last, for the welfare of her home and those in it. Besides her two children, there remains to mourn her loss, eight grandchildren, two sisters and two brothers.

CARD OF THANKS.

To our many neighbors and friends, we desire to express our heartfelt thanks for their beautiful floral tributes and many expressions of sympathy during our recent bereavment and trouble.

MR. AND MRS. M. R. KEYSER AND FAMILY
MR P. V. WOODARD.

Appeal of the Hymn.

What constitutes the appeal of the popular hymn? "Pilgrims of the Night," by Father Faber, has been as popular as any hymn of the past century, and one has to confess to a lump in the throat when it is sung. Nor is it merely on the sentimentally inclined that the hymn has effect. Froude records overhearing it in Hyde park one Sunday evening, when Carlyle, with deep emotion, bade him come away, as he could never hear those words without desiring to weep. Yet I have still to meet the person who can give a clear interpretation of what is meant by Faber's appealing lines.—London Chronicle.

Luna and the Tides.

There is little room for doubt about the theory that the tides are due to the moon's action upon the surface of the water. Of course there are other influences—the sun, for instance, exercising no mean force upon the tides—but the chief influence is attributable to the moon. To be sure, there is hardly any theory that is not objected to by somebody, but the theory that tidal action is due mainly to the pull of Luna may be accepted "without a reasonable doubt."—New York American.

English Money Slang.

Among certain classes of persons in London the following terms are perfectly understood and commonly used:

A tanner is equal to sixpence.
A bob is equal to a shilling.
A bull is equal to 5 shillings.
Half a bull is equal to 2s. 6d.
A quid is equal to £1.
A pony is equal to £25.
A monkey is equal to £500.

A kite means an accommodation bill. Copper or bronze coins are familiarly known as browns, while money generally is designated tin, dust or blunt.

The Brute.

"Mother, I'm afraid I have made a mistake in marrying George."

"What's the matter, my dear? Has he been brutal to you?"

"Yes, he has."

"What has he done?"

"Yesterday when I asked him for a new hat he said he couldn't afford it, and"—

"Yes, go on."

"And even when I broke down and cried he didn't give in and say I could have it."—Detroit Free Press.

ASTHMA AND HAY FEVER A GUARANTEED TREATMENT.

"I have arranged with B. J. Pulver so that every sufferer from Asthma, Hay Fever or Bronchial Asthma in Tecumseh can try my treatment entirely at my risk," Dr. Rudolph Schiffmann announces. He says: "Buy a 50-cent package of my Asthmador Cigarettes, try it, and if it does not afford you immediate relief, or if you do not find it the best ever used, take it back to B. J. Pulver and they will return your money, cheerfully and without any question whatever. After seeing the grateful relief it has afforded in hundreds of cases, which had been considered incurable, and which had been given up in despair, I know what it will do. I am so sure that it will do the same with others that I am not afraid to guarantee it will relieve instantaneously. The druggists handling Asthmador will return your money if you say so. You are to be the sole judge and under this positive guarantee, absolutely no risk is run in buying Asthmador."

Persons living elsewhere will be supplied under the same guarantee by their local druggist or direct by Dr. R. Schiffmann, St. Paul, Minn.

The Joy That Killed.

A senator was praising the humor of a certain congressman.

"His humor, however," he concluded, "is rather grim. I told him the other day about a mutual acquaintance who had died, a man he had never liked.

"'And his wife is dead, too,' I said. 'He himself died on Monday; his wife died two days later. The papers didn't say what killed her.'

"'She was tickled to death, I guess,' said the congressman grimly."

TRIALS OF LIFE.

The difficulties, trials and temptations of every kind in this mortal life really drive us up into the higher elements of our nature, practice us in them, make us veterans as distinguished from militia untried in the field, old men of wisdom and experience as compared with young men just coming into the trial of life.

The English Language.

The English language contains about 600,000 words, but of this total nearly one-half consists of scientific terminology—that is, seldom met with outside of text books—and of archaic terms. An examination of 100,000 words shows them to comprise 60,000 words of Teutonic origin, 30,000 of Greek or Latin origin, and 10,000 words derived from miscellaneous sources. Milton wrote his "Paradise Lost" with 8,000 words, and Shakespeare got up his plays with 16,000.—New York American.

How He Lost It.

Some time, comments the Manchester Guardian, in telling this story, one suspects the coming generation of artfulness. The boy approached his parent and said, "Father, do you know the tide came up and carried off my comic paper?"

"Don't worry, my son," said the genial parent. "It can't be helped."

"No, father, it couldn't be helped. You see it was in my coat pocket."

It was at this point that an angry and inconsistent father proved that it could and ought to have been helped.

BIDWELL SHORTHORNS WIN FIRST PRIZES AT LENAWEE COUNTY FAIR.

Against keen competition with breeders from all over the state, the Bidwell Stock Farm won the following prizes on registered Shorthorns: First on herds; first on bulls, three years old or over; second on two year old bulls, yearling bulls and bull calves; second on three year old cows in their respective classes.

The herd is headed by Albion Stamp No. 352670 whose sire is Shenstone Albino, an International Grand Champion. His dam is Mina Princess 2d and his 3rd dam was the great imported cow, Mina Princess. He is the highest class all Scotch Shorthorn bull ever owned in this part of the state.

The Bidwell Stock Farm, for over sixty years, has been breeding continuously registered Shorthorn cattle and is particularly fortunate in securing this richly bred son of Shenstone Albino to head their good herd.

The great scarcity of good beef cattle in this section is due to the almost exclusive raising of dairy breeds. The breeder of Shorthorns, which are good milk producers and most desirable as beef animals, is sure to find a ready market for his cattle.

At the very last moment Thursday morning L. C Hayden recieved word from Toledo that the route of the endurance car had been changed and would not come to Tecumseh but go direct to Detroit.

The dancing party, given by the Pythian Sisters on Tuesday evening, was a very pleasant affair. Music was furnished by Coller's orchestra. The ladies plan to give another party October 6th.

Chief Aerie No. 1563 will hold their regular meeting Monday night. They have purchased new regalia which will be used for the first time that evening. A fried chicken supper and smoker will follow the work.

Freight train No. 39 on the D. T. & I. going south Tuesday night was derailed at Maybee at 5:30 p. m. Six cars run off the track and were badly damaged. Fortunately no one was hurt. Train service was delayed for several hours.

Miss Nellie Mingay, now teaching in Flint, is directing the production of a comedy sketch "Mr. Bob" with a student cast from the schools of that city to be given in the near future. Her Tecumseh friends, knowing her ability in this line, feel assured that the play will be a great success.

Mrs. Wade Warring of Dundee who underwent an operation at Ann Arbor Saturday, is reported as gaining nicely. She has made many friends in Tecumseh when visiting her sister Mrs Frank Snedicor, who will be pleased to hear of her well doing.

We are pleased to notice that Tecumseh is to be represented in the coming Gala week for Lenawee Co, The Hayden Flour Mills Co, and Uncle Sam's Macaroni company being slated for the event. Mr. Cuthbert was in Adrian this week to make arrangements for the macaroni display. Each company will also be in the parade.

The Clinton Woolen Mills will have the largest windows in the city for their display.

The first social meeting of the Westminster Guild for the season, was held at the home of Mrs. Charles Slayton Tuesday evening A musical program was given as follows: Piano duet, Edith Rector and Alice Bradley; vocal solo, Edna Gaston; "Hash," by members of the Guild; solo, Lulu Brown. Games and refreshments followed.

Sunday promises to be a big day at the Presbyterian Church. "Every member present Sunday" and Roll-call. It is hoped that every member will make a special effort to be present Conveyance will be provided for those who cannot walk. The sermon-subject is "RAH! RAH! RAH!" In the evening at 7 o'clock the second travelog, "Travels Thru Persia," the peculiar life and customs of the people told in 75 fine colored slides A right good welcome to all these services.

Big Time.

LENAWEE'S GAYEST GALA WEEK. WEEK OF OCTOBER 6th TO 10th.

$3,000 Will be Spent to Give Lenawee a Good Time.

Never was greater enthusiasm shown by farmers, Grangers, Gleaners, and business men throughout the country.

Every one is looking forward to the big week.

Plenty of free attractions have been engaged and there will be music all the while, as a number of out of town bands will play as well as the Imperial Band. A very high grade Japanese Troupe and some very clever Carbaret preformers will daily appear on the platforms about the city

Two magnificient parades will take place, an automobile parade Wednesday October 7th and the Industrial parade and agricultural parade Friday October the 9th.

The Committee have daily been receiving entry's of floats from all parts of the country any one desiring to enter should hand their name in at once An excellent variety of prizes have been offered by the Committee in charge, and also by several of the Lodges.

These prizes will be given to the most attractive floats and prizes will also be awarded for the best window display.

The windows in the whole town district have been turned over to the Grangers, Gleaners and those wishing to make individual display. Not only are displays given to fruits, grains, produce, etc., but some parties are entering poultry and other stock.

It will be a very interesting as well as an instructive showing, and one which Lenawee should be proud of

One night will be devoted to Fire Works which will take place from the top of the Citizen Light & Power Co. This will be a most gorgeous spectacle.

Grand Finale, Saturday night. 'All Fools night'. Large masquerade parade for which prizes are offered for the most grotesque costumes.

The dates of some of the attractions have not been fully decided upon. but will be given out in this paper complete in the next issue.

The Lenawee County Bank offer $120.00 in cash prizes to exhibits of grain, fruit, and produce during this week. This exhibition will be held in the Bank Building and one desireing to enter can get a list of the prizes by communicating with the bank.

About seventy-five automobiles with the Imperial Band and Mr. John Lahey, oriole singer of Detroit, will make a tour of the County, starting from Adrian Tuesday, September 29th at 8 o'clock, and stopping at the rollowing towns:

Palmyra, Blissfield, Deerfield, Holloway, Britton, Tecumseh, Clinton, Addison, Manchester, Tipton, Onsted, Manitou Beach, Townley, Hudson, Clayton, Cadmus, Morenci. Denison. Lyons, Weston, Jasper, Fairfield, and any other towns that are possible to make in the tour.

Circular matter will be distributed in each town while the band holds a concert. The buttons bearing the slogan "Lenawee's Gayest Gala" will also be distributed at this time.

Any one desiring to enter this tour can do so at any of the intervals between stops. It is the desire of the Committee to have this a tremendous affair and they are hopeful that all that are able will join the big parade.

This will be an eventful week to be long remembered by everyone as "Lenawee's Gayest Gala Week"

Any one desiring to enter any of the parades or have displays in the windows can do so by corresponding with the Committee in Charge of Gala Week, Adrian, Mich

ANN ARBOR PAIR TRAVEL TO BALTIMORE TO WED.

Romance Begun in Department Store Ends when Brother of Bride Unites Couple in East.

Baltimore, Md., September 23.—A love affair which began in an Ann Arbor department store, where Miss Magdalen Kuenzler was a book-keeper and Guernsey P. Collins, Saline, Mich was head of one of the departments, culminated in the marriage of the two here today.

Rev. E. S. Kuenzler, pastor of the St. John's German Evangelical Lutheran church here, a brother of the bride performed the ceremony for which purpose Miss Kuenzler had brought her fiance to this city.

Both are well known young people in Ann Arbor and they will make their future home there.—Detroit Free Press, Sept. 23, 1914.

Guernsey Collins has a host of friends in Tecumseh who extend congratulations and good wishes. He was a student in our high school and later was a clerk in the Anderson dry goods store.

STATE TAXES FOR 1914 LOWER.

The taxpayers of the state paid $2,469,202.67 in state taxes in 1913. This year taxes to be paid by the several counties will amount to $6,129,228.11 against $8,589,520.78 in 1913.

The fact that there was no session of the legislature is largely the reason for the decrease. Large appropriation measures, incurred by a session of the legislature always makes a larger tax.

The following figures show the state tax which Lenawee county will be called upon to raise as compared to 1913: State tax for 1913 $131,325.99, State tax for 1914 $125,619,18.

Golden Horseshoes.

Roman writers inform us that Commodus caused the hoofs of his horse to be gilded. Nero when he undertook short journeys was always drawn by mules that had silver shoes, and those of his wife, Poppaea, had shoes of gold. From a passage in "Dio Cassius" there is reason to think that the upper part only was formed of those noble metals or that they were perhaps plated out of thin slips. When Boniface, marquis of Tuscany, one of the richest princes of his time, went to Beatrix, about the year 1038, his whole train was so magnificently decorated that his horses were shod with silver. The nails were even of the same metal.

Splendid Medicine Stomach Trouble

I Suffered for Several Years Peruna Restored My Health

Mrs. Elizabeth Reuther, No. 508 Twelfth St., N. W., Washington, D. C., writes: "I am pleased to endorse Peruna as a splendid medicine for catarrh and stomach trouble, from which I suffered for several years. I took it for several months and at the end of that time found my health was restored and have felt splendidly ever since. I now take it when I contract a cold and it soon rids the system of any catarrhal tendencies.

Over Ten Years Ago.

"I would not be without Peruna. Although it was over ten years ago that I first gave you my testimonial, I am of the same opinion as when I wrote it, and give you the privilege to use it as you see fit. I still use Peruna when I think it necessary. I am recommending it to my neighbors whenever a chance occurs."

REACHING THE SPOT.

It Has Been Done, So Scores of Tecumseh Citizens Say.

To get rid of an aching back,
The sharp twinges,
The tired-out feelings.
You must reach the spot—get at the cause.

In many cases 'tis the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills are for weak kidneys.

Tecumseh citizens testify.

Henry Kempf, carpenter, Kilbuck St., Tecumseh, Mich., says: "My kidneys were not doing their work as they should and I was suffering from lame and aching back. I got a supply of Doan's Kidney Pills at Wright & Son's Drug Store and it did not take them long to remove the trouble."

If your back aches—if your kidneys bother you, don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—ask distinctly for Doan's Kidney Pills, the same that Mr Kempf had—the remedy backed by home testimony. 50c all stores. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

Willing Himself Well.

An interesting example of a man willing himself well is that of "Original" Walker. The thing was the work of a moment. He had been reading Cicero's "De Oratore," and some passage suggested to him the expediency of making the improvement of his health his study. "I rose from my book," he writes, "stood bolt upright and determined to be well. In pursuance of my resolution I tried many extremes, was guilty of many absurdities and committed many errors amid the remonstrances and ridicule of those around me. I persevered, nevertheless, and it is now, I believe, full sixteen years since I have had any medical advice or taken any medicine or anything whatever by way of medicine."—London Chronicle.

Swam Too Long.

The attorneys for the prosecution and defense had been allowed fifteen minutes each to argue the case. The attorney for the defense had commenced his argument with an allusion to the swimming hole of his boyhood days. He told in flowery oratory of the balmy air, the singing birds, the joy of youth, the delights of the cool water. And in the midst of it he was interrupted by the drawling voice of the judge. "Come out, Chawncey," he said, "and put on your clothes. Your fifteen minutes are up."

Seemed All Right.

"Mamma, why don't you want me to play with that Kudger boy?"

"Because, dear, I know the family. He hasn't good blood in him."

"Why, mamma, he's been vaccinated twice, and it wouldn't take either time."

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee ss.
Probate Court for said County.

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee holden at the Probate office in the City of Adrian on the 17th day of September, in the year one thousand nine hundred and fourteen.

Present, HON. HARRY L. LARWILL Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of OLIA B. NYE, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Martha J Nye, administratrix upon the estate of said deceased, alleging that the funeral expenses and debts of said deceased, and the expenses of administration thus far incurred, have been fully paid, and praying that her first annual administration account may be allowed and for such other order and decree as to this Court shall seem proper.

It is ordered, That Monday, the 12th day of October next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon be assigned for the hearing of said petition.

And it is further Ordered, That a copy of this order be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

Traps the Robbers.

In a Copenhagen bank is an ingenious contrivance for capturing robbers that was devised by one of the clerks. An electric contact is placed behind the bank counter, and if the clerks tread on it the main door from the street to the entrance hall is closed and locked. If the clerks again tread upon the contact the door between the entrance hall and the office is locked. Thus if the robbers should arrive and summon the clerks to hold up their hands the clerks obey, tread upon the contact and the main door is locked. The robbers are allowed to take the money, but when they desire to leave they find that the main door is shut and locked, and when they try to return they find the second door also locked, and they are trapped until the police arrive.

TWO CROPS AT ONCE.

Approximately nine-tenths of the arable area of Majorca, one of the Spanish islands in the Mediterranean, is planted out to crop yielding trees. That makes one story agriculture. Then beneath the trees grain is grown. That makes the second story, which may properly be likened to the cyclone cellar.

For miles and miles in every direction that beautiful island is covered with continuous orchards of almonds, olives, figs and carobs, with occasional grafted oak trees, the sweet acorns of which are prized as highly as the chestnut.

This tree agriculture is nothing new, for many of these orchards are of unknown age, and some of them give evidence of having seen generations of men rise, dig awhile and die before Columbus sailed past on his way from Genoa to Gibraltar, and throughout all the years that the white man has striven in America these same old olive and carob trees have been standing there, handing down their harvests of fruit and beans to the men who raised other crops at their feet—crops of wheat, oats, barley, beans and peas.—From "Two Story Farming," by J. Russell Smith, in Century.

Encouragement.

"But she says she has never given you any encouragement."

"Did she say that?"

"She certainly did."

"She told me that her uncle was going to leave her a fortune and that he had one foot in the grave. If that is not encouragement I'd like to know what you call it."—Houston Post.

Plenty of Jaw.

Two cockney "lidies" were discussing each other publicly. One said something about the other's "jaw," or "jore." "Garn," answered her opponent, "you've got enough jaw for two sets of teeth, you 'ave."—London Telegraph.

Handicapped.

"Down in my part of the country if a man lays 50 cents on a stump and hoots like an owl he can get a quart of wildcat whisky."

"That wouldn't help me any. When I'm very dry I can't hoot."—Baltimore Sun.

Barber a Man of Strength.

"I suppose that most people," said a barber, "would consider plying the shears and razor as comparatively easy work; they would not expect to find barbers men of muscle.

"The fact is that standing all day and even in the easier parts of his work using his arms all day in various positions the barber keeps his muscles in constant exercise, while in such operations as shampooing and massage he is called upon for the exertion of downright strength.

"He may not have the muscle of a man always in strict training, but I think you would find that, as a rule, the barber is no weakling."—New York Sun.

An Ornament to Paris.

The Place de la Concorde in Paris is one of the most beautiful places of its kind in the world. It was not until 1763 that the grounds were first adorned by the erection of an equestrian statue of Louis XV. and Gabriel, the architect, constructed the balustrades and pavilions that are seen today. The present design, however, was made by Hittorff in 1854. In 1792 the statue of the king was removed by the populace, and the square became known as the Place de la Revolution. During the bloody period the guillotine was placed here, and Louis XVI. was executed on Jan. 21, 1793, and in the following October the unfortunate Marie Antoinette shared a like fate.

ENERGY OF THE SUN.

Intensity of the Light and Heat It Sheds Upon Our Universe.

By a series of curious experiments scientific men have gained a fair idea of the intensity of light and heat from the sun as compared with earthly instruments.

When the sun is at the zenith, or directly overhead, its light is equal to seventy-five electric lights placed only three feet from the observer. Yet an electric light is too dazzling for any one to gaze steadily at it. And as compared with Sirius, which is the brightest in the heavens, the light of the sun is 20,000,000 times more brilliant.

The intensity of solar heat on our globe varies greatly, in a way that sunlight does not, the former being affected by locations, altitudes, changes of the atmosphere and many causes.

It has been estimated, however, that the total quantity of heat which the earth receives from the sun each year is enough to melt a layer of ice covering the entire globe and having a thickness of a hundred feet.

But this is only a very small portion of the whole amount of heat given out by the sun. The total solar heat is enough to melt every day a layer of ice ten and one-half miles thick, about the entire sun, or, to take Professor Tyndall's comparison, the sun's heat emitted in one hour is equal to that produced by burning a seam of coal sixteen and one-half miles thick.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

CONCEITED JAILBIRDS.

To Have Been in Prison Is a Mark of Culture In Nigeria.

In the land of the Niger, says Mr. P. Amaury Talbot in the London Times, little or no stigma attaches to jailbirds.

In fact, prison residence is often regarded as conferring the mark of culture and distinction. The last governor of Southern Nigeria once complimented a chief of the interior on his knowledge of English, to which the man replied with a proud air: "Of course I be fit to talk English mouth! I learn all that when I live long time for prison."

Such residence is indeed looked upon as giving a sort of official status. At Calabar some prisoners were out cleaning the road when a clerk, dressed in the height of fashion, high collar, patent leather boots and the smartest of suits, went by. In passing he flicked one of the bending laborers with a little swagger cane he was carrying. At once the aggrieved party sprang erect. "What!" he exclaimed, with splendid contempt. "You dare touch me! You factory man! Look-a me!" Here he pointed to the broad arrows prominently displayed over his simple vest and loin cloth. "I be government man! See here!"

And the dandy passed on thoroughly abashed.

The Fattest Race.

How is it that the Danes as a race are fat? Professor Lyde states that "from one end of Denmark to the other you will not find a really thin man." And he gives rather a quaint reason for it. "The growth of dairy farming in Denmark tends to make men lazy. The private houses adjoin the byres, which are kept at a uniformly warm temperature, and the people are employed in warm buildings, living chiefly on milk and cereals. The men get so lazy that they will not take the trouble to cut up their food." And then comes this delightful conclusion: "This state of things has produced a nation of housewives who excel all others in varieties of sandwiches, which can be munched all day long." And thus is produced the fattest race in Europe, and we get a hint for a real rest cure.—Manchester Guardian.

New Start For Poor Boys.

"I'd like to start at the bottom," said the young man applying for work.

"I'm sorry, but we can't use you there. All those places are reserved for the sons of our directors, who think it fashionable to start that way. We can give you a place a little higher up, though, at less money."—Detroit Free Press.

An Ancient Leg of Mutton.

There is a genuine antique leg of mutton to be seen in Bourne, in Lincolnshire. More than half a century ago a visitor called at a butcher's shop there and purchased a leg of mutton, saying he would take it away later. But the customer never returned, and year after year the joint has awaited him until, hanging from one of the rafters of the quaint old shop, it has become one of the fixtures and has passed with the business from one proprietor to another. During the more than fifty years of waiting for its purchaser the leg has withered away and is now shrunk to the semblance of a club of knotted wood.—London Tatler.

How a Moose Eats.

Of all peculiar sights I think that that of a moose eating grass is the most extraordinary. The neck is so short and the legs are so long that the animal usually kneels in eating grass. True, it does not attempt it very often, for grass is by no means a staple with it, but even a moose likes a change of diet. The appearance of this huge and awkward creature in this devotional attitude is not only interesting, but really laughable.—St. Nicholas.

Old Get-rich-quick Schemes.

About the year 1720 a great many Englishmen invested millions of money in companies which were organized for such objects as, "Wrecks to Be Fished For on the Irish Coast," "For Making Oil From Sunflower Seeds." "For Importing a Number of Large Jackasses From Spain," "For a Wheel of Perpetual Motion" and, most extraordinary of all, "For an Undertaking Which Shall In Due Time Be Revealed." The promoter of this last company received more than 1,000 subscriptions during the morning on which the offering was made, and disappeared the same afternoon with more than 2,000 guineas.—World's Work.

PARIS CLAIMS VICTORY

Germans Defeated Along Entire Line, Says Report.

BAYONET CHARGES VIOLENT

Conflicts Are Said to Have Been Most Furious of the Battle of Aisne—Bayonet Charges Replace Artillery Duels—Entrenchments Few Hundred Yards Apart—Defeat of Germans in Town, Name Censored, Close to Belgium Border, Claimed.

A German aeroplane flew over Paris, dropping two bombs. One of them killed an old man and wounded a girl. The other bomb did no damage.

Paris, Sept. 28.—French and British forces were again victorious along the entire battle front in the most furious conflicts of the battle of the Aisne, in which bayonet fighting replaced the long range artillery duels, according to the official statement of the French war office issued in the afternoon.

French forces have regained the ground lost between the Argonne region and the Meuse.

The statement says that perceptible advances have been made by the allies between the Oise and the Somme and to the north of the Somme and from the Aisne to Rheims.

Entrenchments Hundreds Yards Apart

In some places the opposing entrenchments are only some hundred yards apart and violent bayonet charges by the Germans have been repulsed at all points.

It is officially stated that a vigorous German offensive has been thrown back in the region of Berru and Nogen L'abesse. The Germans, it is said, occupy a front which passes by St. Michael and northwest of Pont-a-Mousson.

German Aeroplane Kills Two in Paris.

One man was killed and a girl wounded when a German aeroplane dropped a bomb into a Paris street. The air invader failed in his main purpose, which apparently was to destroy the Eiffel tower and its wireless telegraph station.

Germans Defeated Close to Belgium.

French and British troops operating north of the main battle line have defeated a German force and are now pursuing the invaders at a point, the name of which is suppressed by the censor, but which is known to be close to the Belgian border.

Fight at St. Quentin Decisive.

Battle rages in extreme violence at St. Quentin, where the Germans are striving desperately to prevent the capture of the town by an army of the allies. Capture of St. Quentin, once achieved, is expected to end the battle of the Aisne with decisive victory for the allies through compelling the surrender or immediate flight of the German right wing army, commanded by General Alexander Von Kluck, which thereby would lose its line of communications to Belgium.

Japs Win Fourteen Hour Battle.

Tokio, Sept. 28.—Japanese troops have won a stubborn battle of fourteen hours outside Tsing-Tsao, it is officially announced. It is stated that the casualties among the Japanese were slight. Japanese aeroplanes were most successful in reconnoitering the positions of the enemy and thus far have escaped damage.

Russ Advance on Cracow.

Petrograd, Sept. 28.—The greater portion of the city of Przemysl is now occupied by Russian troops. The Austrians have been driven into the forts east of the city, which are now surrounded by the czar's forces. Russia's advance on Cracow, preparatory to the launching of their movement against Berlin, is now under way.

Albion Invalid Kills Self.

Albion, Mich., Sept. 28.—Becoming despondent from the knowledge that he was going to die of tuberculosis, Byron Dicer, twenty-nine, shot himself with a revolver at his home here, dying instantly. Dicer had kept a revolver under his pillow for some time and neither his nurse nor his mother in nearby rooms heard the shot.

Port Huron, Mich., Sept. 28.—Word was received in this city that the bonding company that furnished the bond for Charles L. Doyle, postmaster at Marine City, had taken over the office and placed Charles J. Tarte in charge.

The removal of Doyle is now before the post office department at Washington and Tarte is the Democratic nominee for the office. Doyle's removal, although not officially made by the department as yet, is the result of charges preferred against him by a woman patron of the office, who alleges misconduct on the part of the postmaster.

NATERA JOINS FORMER BANDIT

Desertion Zacatecas Commander to Pancho's Cause Leaves Way Open for 200 Miles for Attack in Mexico City—Supreme Chief Will Try to Appease Villa.

Washington, Sept. 28.—Developments are coming fast in Mexico, and they all point to the dwindling power and early overthrow of Carranza. Word was received at the state department that General Natera, the commander of the constitutionalist forces of the central division with headquarters at Zacatecas, has notified Villa that he will support him in the present break. This information was regarded by Washington officials as very important. It means that Villa's army now has the way open for an advance without a single battle as far south as Zacatecas, which is within 300 miles of Mexico City itself.

Will Try to Appease Villa.

With the news of Natera's desertion of Carranza, also came the information that Carranza will attempt to appease Villa through action to be taken at the conference of the constitutionalists to be held in Mexico City on Oct. 1. This is the convention that Villa has declined to attend, but word was received in Washington tonight that the convention would be held and that Carranza will retire as first chief and will not be a candidate for provisional president. Three men are under consideration. Two of these are Iglesias Calderon and Louis Cabrera, the latter having represented Carranza in Washington. All three of these men under consideration are civilians. It has been Villa's complaint that Carranza was seeking to establish a military government in Mexico with himself—Carranza—as the head.

QUAKERS GET INTO WRANGLE

Timothy Nicholson Quits as Trustee of Earlham College.

Richmond, Ind., Sept. 28.—At the closing session here Saturday of the Indiana yearly meeting of Friends Timothy Nicholson of this city resigned as a member of the board of trustees of Earlham college, a position he has held for many years. He explained that he had reached the age at which such duties were burdensome.

The usual decorum of the Friends meeting was disturbed when the appointment of the Rev. Truman C. Kenworthy of this city as superintendent of the evangelistic and pastoral committee provoked debate. Elbert Russell, a member of the Earlham college faculty, opposed the appointment and asserted that the committee attempted to stifle debate. Timothy Nicholson defended the committee, and his resignation as an Earlham trustee followed the debate, in which several delegates joined. On the vote the committee's appointment was sustained by a small majority.

PURSE TO UNEXPECTED HEIR

Stranger, Proved Son, Wins Estate of Warsaw Miser.

Warsaw, Ind., Sept. 28.—James W. Swaner of Chippewa Falls, Wis., will inherit the entire estate of James W. Phillips by the verdict of the jury in the sensational suit brought here by Swaner against twenty-one other relatives. Swaner, now a middle aged man, will obtain money and property estimated at $35,000. James Phillips, who spent his entire life in Warsaw, was an eccentric character. He lived alone in a shanty on the shore of Center lake, dressed in rags and denied himself even necessities to hoard his money. He did not trust banks, and after his death a rusty coffee pot, containing about $2,000 in gold, silver and bank notes, was found hidden in his shanty. The relatives—many of whom hardly knew him during his life—started a fight for the property, in the midst of which John Swaner appeared and asserted he was the sole heir. Phillips never married and had carried the reputation of a woman hater. Swaner convinced the jury that he was the son of Phillips and Sarah Birt, born out of wedlock.

BERLIN REPORTS TWO VICTORIES IN FRANCE

Berlin, via wireless to Sayville, L. I., Sept. 28.—Furious fighting north of the Somme river between French troops and an inferior force of Germans in which the latter were successful is reported in an official statement given out by the general staff. The Germans claim to have overwhelmed a French division near Bapaume and to have silenced the forts south of Verdun on the Meuse. Bapaume is ninety miles northeast of Paris and nineteen miles southwest of Cambria.

The battle line is being pushed farther and farther to the northwest of its original position. The Germans claim that the French have been favored in their attacks upon the German line of communication by the use of railway lines. The statement adds:

"A Russian army officer who was captured by the Germans writes the newspaper Novoe Vremya in St. Petersburg praising the humanity of the Germans, especially in their hospitals.

"News has been received from Rheims that the front towers of the famous cathedral of Notre Dame and the windows are nearly all undamaged. The reconstruction of the damaged parts will not be difficult, it is said."

RHEIMS POSITION IS STRONG

Great Battle of Four Rivers Shows Germans Realize Importance.

Paris, Sept. 28.—In the great battle of the Four Rivers, the Aisne, Oise, Somme and Meuse, the Franco-English forces have found the German positions to the north of Rheims particularly strong.

The greatest stress of attack and defense is now transferred to the extreme western flank. The desperate struggle of the Germans to fling back the supreme onslaughts of the allies between the Somme and the Oise shows that they realize that the fate of their campaign depends on the result to be attained there.

TRUE BILL AGAINST PASTOR

Kempton Preacher Indicted on Charge of Young Girl.

Tipton, Ind., Sept. 28.—The grand jury here returned an indictment against the Rev. J. M. Vawter, pastor of the M. The pastor has made no statement regarding the case, and many Kempton citizens discredit the charge. Vawter was assigned to Kempton by the last northern Indiana conference.

The Spot Down Deep

Not Too Deep to Be Touched

By ONEY FRED SWEET

Copyright by Frank A. Munsey Co.

The pair had progressed as far from the depot as the farm implement shop when Burke's tall companion interrupted his reverie caused by the sight of the old town again, the dark hour that lay upon it and the thought of the mission on which he had returned.

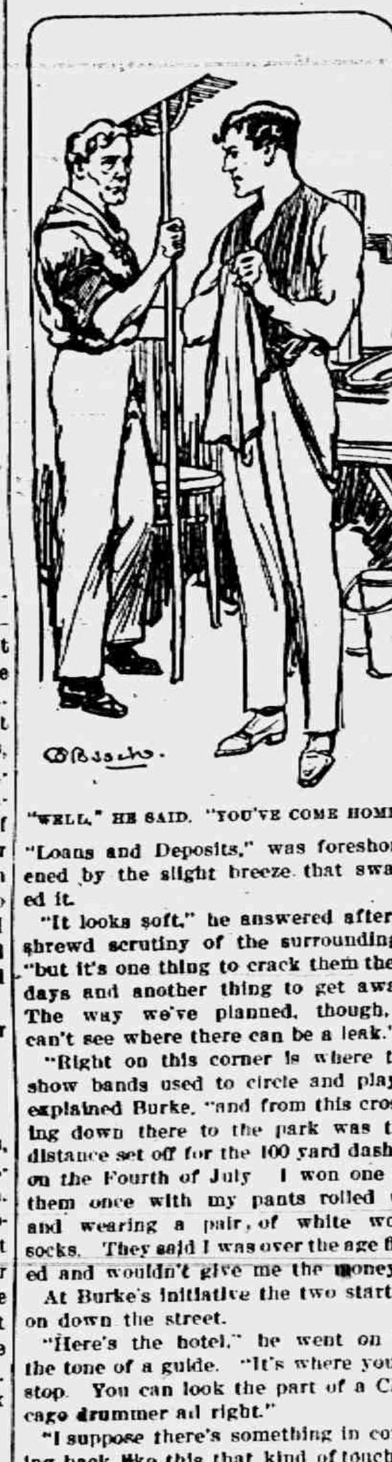
"I thought it was more of a place than this," the fellow slurred, "after hearing you tell about it. Why, the train hardly stopped long enough to let us off."

"They're all alike, these tank towns in the corn belt," Burke snarled, staring resentfully about him—"a green depot, a red elevator, a Main street, a church, a schoolhouse, a cemetery and a few houses. And don't let me forget—a bank!"

"At that I have an idea the place seems a little different to you from the others, Burke," the tall man went on. "Just think—this was your world all the time that you were a kid. Every one of these two story buildings must have loomed like a skyscraper then."

"Cut the comedy, Slim," Burke broke in, halting his hurried pace a bit to express himself more forcibly. "It's all familiar enough. These towns around here haven't had a new brick in them these past ten years. And the folks in them are as changeless as that statue of 'Justice' up there on top of the courthouse—unless it is that some of the kids have grown up. And if they've grown up very much they've pulled out like I did."

They had reached the center of the town—a point where the main street intersected with the street leading from the depot. "That's the joint," he said as he threw his thumb over his shoulder toward the brick building on the corner. The tall man turned to scan the tin sign, whose lettering,



"WELL," HE SAID. "YOU'VE COME HOME."

"Loans and Deposits," was foreshortened by the slight breeze that swayed it.

"It looks soft," he answered after a shrewd scrutiny of the surroundings, "but it's one thing to crack them these days and another thing to get away. The way we've planned, though, I can't see where there can be a leak."

"Right on this corner is where the show bands used to circle and play," explained Burke, "and from this crossing down there to the park was the distance set off for the 100 yard dashes on the Fourth of July. I won one of them once with my pants rolled up and wearing a pair of white wool socks. They said I was over the age fixed and wouldn't give me the money."

At Burke's initiative the two started on down the street.

"Here's the hotel," he went on in the tone of a guide. "It's where you'll stop. You can look the part of a Chicago drummer all right."

"I suppose there's something in coming back like this that kind of touches a spot down deep," suggested the stranger companion as the two passed the point where the stores left off and the homes began, "even though a fellow's been in the game you have and has come back for what you've come back to do. I know"—

"Spot nothing!" Burke cut in disgustedly. "When we take the 'bumpers' tomorrow morning at this time on that train that just pulled out this town 'll be entirely off the map so far as I am concerned. It's been out of my mind for years as it is. I came back because I knew there was a soft job here, that was all. There's the folks' place, halfway down the block there, where you see the big maple—looks as if it was about ready to tumble over. I'll meet you in the alley there just after dark tonight. You find out what you're supposed to and count on me. So long."

It had been a long time since Burke had tried the door at home in the early morning hours, but he found no lock to prevent his entrance. And he had increased his ability at stealthiness in the years that he had been gone, so that he was easily able to make his room upstairs without being heard.

It was as if he had been gone but a day—the smoky kerosene lamp on the bureau, the varicolored quilt on the sagging bed. Once, on being half aroused, he expected to hear the rattle of trucks and the yell of a newsboy, but, instead, there came only the crow of a rooster welcoming the dawn.

He surprised his mother when she was at the task of getting dinner as he stalked half dressed through the kitchen on the way to the sink.

"There, now, can't a fellow come home once in awhile without there being a fuss?" he complained as the woman gave a little startled cry and rushed toward him. "Where's pa?" he inquired, forcing the arms away from about his shoulders. "I'm glad it's nearly dinner time—I'm hungry."

"I wasn't counting on you," his mother answered apologetically, wiping the tears from her eyes and starting for the pantry. Burke noticed that she limped in her walk. She had aged. his mother had.

The door she opened gave a glimpse of the queer shaped and colored dishes such as he had never seen except at home. They were accompanied by an odor that had been peculiar to them too. His mother came back with one of the biggest jars from the row on the shelf—currant jelly.

Burke was wiping his face on the red bordered towel when his father came in. The old man had his rake in his hand and slowly removed his slouch black hat before he spoke.

"Well," he said, "you've come home."

The removal of the hat showed how white his hair had become, and his face was like it in spite of its contact with sun and wind. He came over to wash his gnarled hands in the same basin with his son.

"I've the garden nearly all in again," he continued finally. "I'm going to put in onions again this year. They take lots of work, but if the season turns out just right they bring more than other stuff."

Burke noticed that the table had been shortened up until the checkered cloth touched the floor on all sides, but the dishes were the same, the food cooked the same.

"How long you going to stay?" the father inquired at length, pouring his coffee into a saucer.

"Oh, I only 'll be here a day or two," answered Burke. "It's pretty dead here after one is used to Chicago."

"Just a day?" his mother fluttered.

"Still traveling for that Chicago house?" the father interrupted to inquire, eying his son as he cooled the coffee at his lips. "Times ain't been so very good out here."

"I'm still with them," sparred Burke. "It's been a little dull with us, too, lately, but"—he faltered for an instant—"we're expecting quite a big piece of business out this way soon."

"The plaster on the wall back of you's all healed up now. Do you notice it?" the father went on, pointing to Burke to turn around. "You three boys used to lean back so much when you sat together there on the bench that it was always broke off. There wasn't much use fixing it."

The mother entirely ceased with her pretension at eating and nervously fingered the tablecloth.

"Sometimes," she interposed in an effort to appear unaffected by the reference just made—"sometimes your father goes to the hall door and calls to you all upstairs just as if you were all here yet. He calls each of you separate by name. 'It's time for school.'"

Her attempted laugh with the words fell lame, and to keep brave she started in to clear off the dishes.

Burke sought the lounge in the sitting room, the springs of which had been ruined by his acrobatic stunts years before. He could close his eyes and see every unchanged object in the room—the cheap organ, at which his sister had spent many weary hours in practice; the enlarged crayon portrait of his little brother, who had been taken by diphtheria at the time of their quarantine during the awful cold spell, and his father's war relics and encampment badges.

He had planned to get plenty of sleep, but he was surprised to find it dark when he awoke. The lamp in the kitchen was already lighted, and a dog was barking outside. Rubbing his eyes, Burke avoided his mother, busy in the pantry, and found his way into the back yard. He had not counted on the apple tree spreading its branches, but he refrained from cursing when it brushed his face in the path. At the alley he found his partner pacing in impatience.

"It's a fine time to be coming," the waiting man complained sarcastically. "I've been waiting half an hour. What was the matter?"

"I fell asleep," explained Burke, "but I'm awake now—clear awake." He paused a moment before going on. "I'm not in on the deal," he thrust decisively.

His companion's chagrin and surprise could not be concealed even by the darkness. For a moment they stood, two shadowy forms studying each other.

"Now, there's no argument," snapped Burke. "I'm not only not going to pull off this job, but I'm out of the game altogether. I'll shake hands 'goodby' if you want to. I suppose you are disappointed."

Burke caught the tall man's mumbled reply as he started back for the house.

"Disappointed!" he echoed. "I think the agency will be somewhat—after my using up two months' expense money in trying to get evidence on you that would stick."

$5,092 FOR DEATH OF BOY

Pontiac, Mich., Sept. 28.—A verdict of $5,092.20 was rendered for the defendant in the suit of Mrs. Grace Casey, administratrix of the estate of fourteen-year-old Ralph Casey, against Henry P. Hill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Hill of this city.

Ralph Casey was run down by an automobile driven by Mr. Hill on West Huron street on Sept. 27 last, and died within an hour.

FLINT WITNESS IN FRAUD CASE FAILS

As Usual at Critical Points His Memory Is Bad.

Flint, Mich., Sept. 28.—Matthew Hutting, who gained immunity from a circuit court sentence for illegal voting by testifying at the investigation into alleged irregularities in the third precinct of the First ward at the primary election last month, was the only witness called at the examination of Leo Quinn in Justice Halsey's court.

Quinn is charged with having induced Hutting to vote for certain candidates in spite of the fact that he was not a qualified elector.

Hutting proved to be a very unsatisfactory witness to the prosecution, as he was not certain about anything to which he testified. On cross examination he made the statement that he was not sure Quinn was the man who solicited him to vote, whereas it is asserted he positively identified the defendant when the latter was brought before him at the county jail. The witness became so confused that he even denied that he had been arrested for illegal voting, but when he was reminded that he had pleaded guilty to the charge in the circuit court, he admitted that he had made a mistake.

MAD HOG ATTACKS TWO BOYS

One Lad Is Severely Gashed by Tusks of Animal.

Lawrence, Mich., Sept. 28.—William Shepard, nineteen, is suffering from frightful gashes inflicted by an enraged hog that knocked him down in a field.

Shephard and a young brother were trying to drive the hog to a new field. It gave chase to the younger brother, and in trying to save the lad William fell. The hog turned on him and gashed him with its tusks. The lad grabbed a club and beat the hog into unconsciousness, enabling his brother to get up and run from the field.

JUDGE HOLDS UP BOND ISSUE

Effort to Buy Land for Company Under Park Pretense Blocked.

Bay City, Mich., Sept. 28.—On petition of Joseph Rood, Judge C. L. Collins issued a temporary injunction restraining Leo J. Navarre, treasurer of the village of Essexville, from disposing of any of the $20,000 bonds ordered issued by the village council.

On Aug. 25 the village by almost unanimous vote decided to bond for the amount named for "park purposes," the real idea being to purchase a site to be leased free to the North American Construction company, which agreed to erect its plant in the village if a site were furnished.

TUGS TO SEARCH FOR BODY

Will Search Saginaw Bay for Missing Engineer.

Bay City, Mich., Sept. 28.—A large number of fishing tugs and crews left early Sunday morning to search Saginaw bay for the body of Harry Grandmaison, who disappeared during the burning of the fishing tug Hulda, of which he was engineer, last Tuesday.

The water is thirty-three feet deep where the burning ocurrred and searchers so far have been unable to make much headway.

Escanaba Man Glad Wife's Gone.

Escanaba, Mich., Sept. 28.—Friday William Grenfel, operating a rooming house here, had a wife and several star boarders. Now he is minus a wife and one star boarder. Mr. Grenfel says he is glad she is gone.

Nurse Fatally Poisoned.

Danville, Ill., Sept. 28.—Miss Nellie Trenary, a trained nurse, recently of Mount Vernon, Ill., died here of ptomaine poisoning while visiting at the home of her father, Superintendent Trenary of the Chicago & Eastern Illinois railway.

Named Monon General Freight Agent.

Bedford, Ind., Sept. 28.—W. T. Webster, division freight agent of the Monon railroad at Bedford, has been appointed general freight agent of the road to succeed O. C. Carter, resigned.

Sarcastic.

They were leaning over the line fence, these ladylike neighbors, and they seemed to be having a heated argument.

"How do you know it is so?" asked one lady.

"I said it was so, didn't I?" the other came back coldly.

"Uh-huh, you did. And I suppose it's your idea that whatever you say goes."

"Well, if I say it to you it does—it goes all over town."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Superstition.

"What worries me about my wife," said Mr. Meekton confidentially, "is that she is getting superstitious."

"What about?"

"Me. Whenever anything goes wrong she always manages to figure it out that I'm the person who brought bad luck into the family."—Washington Star.

The Voice of Experience.

"So you want to marry my daughter?" said Mr. Cumrox.

"Yes," replied the young man. "I am sure she loves me."

"That isn't the consideration that most affects your prospect of future happiness. What you want to do is to find out whether her mother likes you."—Washington Star.

Easy.

The teacher had been trying to explain the law of gravitation to the juvenile class.

"Now, Morris," she said, "can you tell me why it is impossible for you to lift yourself up by your bootstraps?"

"Yes, ma'am," answered the young scientist. "It's because I wear shoes."—Chicago News.

THE COUNTY FAIR.

Despite the stormy weather that prevailed through the week, the county fair was a great success. Thursdays crowd was phenominal when the condition of the weather was taken into consideratian, 25000 people being on the grounds. And Friday there were 15000.

Saturday dawned brignt and fair, and early in the morning the autos were everywhere in evidence with their loads of people headed for Adrian, the crowd numbered 7000. The races which had been postponed from day to day being the drawing card for the day.

The exhibits were unusually fine in the cattle department, that section was well patronised.

The display of farming impliments was large and varied showing the farmer has come to the front in improvements of his wares.

The fruit and vegetable was the best display in years, and it is claimed by those who saw both, that it was far better than the display at the State Fair.

The automobiles were a fair by themselves and commanded much attention.

In fact every department exhibit was up to that of former years, and in many cases far ahead, and Lenawee can well be proud of her evidences of prosperity as displayed on this occasion.

CHANGE IN PASTORS

Rev. G. H. Whitney who has filled the pulpit of the M. E. church for the past two years has been assigned to Chelsea, at the conference meeting in Saginaw and Rev. George Jennings who has been at Mt. Clemens has been assigned to Tecumseh.

PETTY THIEVING

An organized band of boys all under 16 years of age have been busy for some time in taking goods from the stores of Satterthwaite Bros. and Will Coller's. Their method was for several to go to the store and while one was making a purchase, the others would quietly appropriate the goods.

Of late the merchants have been missing goods, and set Dept. John B Smith on the trail. Sunday he rounded up the ring leaders and secured a quantity of goods, rifles, revolvers, flash lights galore and ammunition. Most of the goods were from Satterthwaite's, but the ammunition was from Coller's. No arrests have been made.

A number of young boys have been drawn in by the older ones, who have assured them that they had bought these goods, and they have been very generous in dividing with them, thereby making the innocent ones suffer with the guilty.

Word has just been received that Rev. F. W. Kamm of Marionette, Wis., who was pastor of the Baptist church here five years ago met with a very serious accident. He was thrown from his bicycle and his right leg was broken near the hip. He will be laid up in the hospital for some time.

Restrictions.

"How do you like your new flat?"

"It's a little restricted," replied the patient man. "They won't allow you to raise children or pets. They even complain if you raise your voice."—Exchange.

They Sometimes Are.

"We'll have to promote that clerk. He takes the stairs four at a jump. He's always busy."

"Yes," commented the observant senior partner, "too busy to do anything."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Chapel In a Bell.

The largest bell ever made was cast in Moscow, Russia, in 1733. Its weight was 220 tons. It was a great deal too heavy to be used as a bell, so a hole was made in it to serve as a door and the interior was used as a chapel.

The Last Word.

Willie—Say, pa, is every word in the dictionary? Pa—No, my son. Every little while a new one comes into use. Willie—What's the last word, then, pa? Pa—I don't know. Go ask your mother.—Exchange.

"Pa, what is meant by a nervous wreck?"

"A nervous wreck, my boy, is something that a woman says she is every time she gets a headache."—Detroit Free Press.

Snails and Cold.

A French scientist who has been continuously experimenting for eighteen years to ascertain the effects of low temperatures on fish and animals has found that common snails can withstand the greatest amount of cold.

Forcing the Prophet.

"I can prophesy with certainty that you will become engaged this year."

"Oh, that is understood! But prophesy to me at once a husband."—Fliegende Blatter.

Miners Threaten to Burn Butte.

BUTTE MONT. — Miners openly threatened to lay the town in ashes if either state or federal troops should attempt to enter Butte. One of the leaders of the miners declared that they do not purpose to fight the soldiers, but they would wreck vengeance upon the business men for having been instrumental in bringing soldiers to Butte.

"We have quantities of dynamite and oil," one leader said, "and the troops will find ashes."

Train Kills 4 Autoists.

COLLINSVILLE, ILL. — Two men and their wives were killed fifteen miles east of Collinsville, when a fast inbound train from New York on the Vandalia line struck an automobile in which the party was touring from Oklahoma to Detroit. They are Robert Grandman and wife, each about sixty years old, and M. H. Pahl and wife, the man about thirty-five and the woman probably thirty years old.

AMONG THE CHURCHES.

Wednesday evening Rev. Wm. A. Rex will be duly installed as pastor of Tecumseh Presbyterian church. Sermon by Dr. J. A. Seibert of Adrian. All the churches in town are invited to attend the service.

On Thursday evening The Right Rev. C. D. Williams D. D. will dedicate the Parish House of St. Peters Episcopal church and will deliver a sermon. The public are cordially invited to attend.

UNIVERSALIST CONVENTION.

The seventy-first annual meeting of the Michigan convention of Universalist Churchs, will be held at Concord, Mich., Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, October 5, 6 and 7, 1914.

This convention is composed of Universalist clergymen in fellowship with the Michigan Universalist Convention and three delegates from each parish in fellowship with the convention.

A fine program will be presented at each session of this meeting.

Rev. Thornton Anthony Mills of Battle Creek, Rev. Fred A. Moore of Chicago, Stanley Stall of Ohio, Rev. Wm. Andew, Indianapolis, Ind., Rev. D. R. Freeman, Grand Rapids; Rev. F. C. Aldinger, Lansing will address the meetings, also Mrs. Agnes R Conklin of Elgin, Ill., representative of the National Missionary Association.

HARWICK PERRY

Harwick Perry departed this life Sunday, Sept. 27, 1914, at the home of his son O. J. Perry in Ainger, Eaton county, at the advanced age of 91 years and 4 months. For the past 13 years he has made his home in Tecumseh with his daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Snell, spending part of each summer with this son or on his farm near by.

Both here and at his old home in Eaton county he has a large circle of friends who delighted to meet with him and enjoy his jokes and reminiscences. On May 24 last he celebrated his 91st birthday and his old friend Horatio Keyser who had just passed his 90th birthday, took dinner with him.

But he is gone. Another name is stricken from the ever lessening roll of our old people. Yet in such a death there is no cause for grief. His life work was done and, weary of waiting, he laid down to rest.

The funeral will be held Wednesday afternoon from the little church at Ainger of which he has been a member for many years, with burial at Olivet beside his wife who preceded him about 14 years ago. He leaves six sons and one daughter Mrs. Snell to mourn.

At Once Thought of Dad.

A lady once showed her little girl a beautiful new silk dress which had just arrived from the dressmaker, and by way of improving the occasion, she said: "You know, dear, all this was given up by a poor worm." The little girl looked puzzled for a minute or two and then said: "Do you mean dad, mamma?"

TOP O' THE YEAR

The calendar tells us that the year begins on the first of January. Almost everyone thinks that is begins in the spring. Neither is true. It begins in October. The spring delusion is an ancestral survival, like fear of the dark, or a tendency to stand with one's back to the wall. To our unfortunate forefathers, doomed to life-imprisonment in the fogs of an ill-conditioned island, the return of the sun seemed the renewal of life. To anyone who has lived through a British winter, the first snowdrop is an event, the first cowslip a blessing from the gods.

Not so to the more fortunate American. His winter sun has never ceased to smile. His frosty days of dazzling blue and white have shown him the celestial country. But his energy decreases with the first warm winds. Spring is a time of running down, not of winding up. It is a season of sentimentality, of lassitude, of slackening of mental fibre, overrated, overpraised. Away with it!

The youth of the year is in October. All colleges and universities are obliged to conform to this rhythmic law. They muster their cohorts under the banner of autumn. All charitable societies have found it necessary to adjust their calendars to this beat of the human pulse. "Our year begins in October," say their announcements. Truly it does so. So does the year of the heart, the year of the mind, the year of all eager energies. These days are a goblet full of the wine of life. A health to our good work. See! we stand upon the Great Divide, and our kingdom lies below us. Let us march down and take possession. October is the clarion-call, the reveille, the true beginning, the Top o' the Year.—Mary Eleanor Roberts in October Lippincott's.

HIDING THE TRUTH.

No good can come from a policy of hiding the truth. Be sure your sins will find you out, but there is no need to have sins. If you begin by hiding small things you will develop cowardice and dishonesty in almost everything you do.

RELIABILITY.

Try to be reliable. Reliability is far more important than genius, so far as the comfort of the people with whom you live is concerned.

THIS COUNTY HAD POPULATION OF 1491 BACK IN YEAR OF 1830.

C. H. Comstock of Chicago, who is visiting in the city has placed in the public library a document of considerable value to this county. Mr. Comstock's father was a pioneer resident of Adrian, and among his papers was found the first census book of "Lenawee County, Territory of Michigan." The old leaves, now yellow from age, show the names of the old inhabitants. The census was taken in June 1830, and shows 1491 names. Lenawee then included Hillsdale. The names will be looked over with considerable gratification by the older inhabitants. At the bottom of the list appears this summary:

Hillsdale	75
Tecumseh	771
Logan (now Adrian)	500

ASTHMA AND HAY FEVER A GUARANTEED TREATMENT.

"I have arranged with B. J. Pulver so that every sufferer from Asthma, Hay Fever or Bronchial Asthma in Tecumseh can try my treatment entirely at my risk," Dr. Rudolph Schiffmann announces. He says: "Buy a 50-cent package of my Asthmador Cigarettes, try it, and if it does not afford you immediate relief, or if you do not find it the best ever used, take it back to B. J. Pulver and they will return your money, cheerfully and without any question whatever. After seeing the grateful relief it has afforded in hundreds of cases, which had been considered incurable, and which had been given up in despair, I know what it will do. I am so sure that it will do the same with others that I am not afraid to guarantee it will relieve instantaneously. The druggists handling Asthmador will return your money if you say so. You are to be the sole judge and under this positive guarantee, absolutely no risk is run in buying Asthmador."

Persons living elsewhere will be supplied under the same guarantee by their local druggist or direct by Dr. R. Schiffmann, St. Paul, Minn.

This is the Stove Polish YOU Should Use

BLACK SILK STOVE POLISH

IT'S different from others because more care is taken in the making and the materials used are of higher grade.

Black Silk Stove Polish

Makes a brilliant, silky polish that does not rub off or dust off, and the shine lasts four times as long as ordinary stove polish. Used on sample stoves and sold by hardware and grocery dealers.

All we ask is a trial. Use it on your cook stove, your parlor stove or your gas range. If you don't find it the best stove polish you ever used, your dealer is authorized to refund your money. Insist on Black Silk Stove Polish. Made in liquid or paste—one quality.

Black Silk Stove Polish Works
Sterling, Illinois

Use Black Silk Air-Drying Iron Enamel on grates, registers, stove-pipes—Prevents rusting. Use Black Silk Metal Polish for silver, nickel or brass. It has no equal for use on automobiles.

Fresh Universal Cement

It is very important to have fresh cement if you want satisfactory work particularly in the fall of the year.

Owing to the fact of selling nearly all the big Cement jobs like the Hayden dam, Cemetery wall, and to most of the masons and contractors who insist upon UNINERSAL we are enabled to keep fresh stock on hand.

We are to-day unloading another car in cloth sacks which comes on your job in perfect condition with no waste or torn sacks.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

On Monday, the 21st of this month, Mr. Reed called the High School together, to bring before them some new rules and plans He also asked that the pupils refrain from visiting the school during the "wee sma' hours" of the night.

A mass-meeting was called last Wednesday afternoon, by the yell-master, Leon McLachlin to practice some new yells and songs for use at the foot ball games of the season.

Thursday, was a typical holiday. School was dismissed so that the pupils might go to the fair and enjoy (?) themselves splashing around in the mud and rain.

September tests have been given in most courses since Friday.

At a meeting of the T. H. S. Athletic Association the following officers were elected;

President—Seymour Babcock
Vice President and Treasurer—
Camilla Hayden
Secretary—Agnes McIntyre
Yell Master—Leon McLachlin.

Our foot ball team has been practicing sometime now under the direction of Mr. Goodrich, the coach, and Russel McNell, the captain. It is believed that we have fair prospects for the coming season, although the team is light.

Last Friday, the 15th inst., the pupils of the High School gathered in the assembly room, to celebrate the 100th anniversary of the song, 'The Star Spangled Banner." The school sang all four stanzas and Miss Irene Conklin told the story of the song and the occasion on which its composer, Francis Scott Key, wrote it

The band gave two or three selections on Chicago St. The start was made from Adrian at 8.30 a. m. with 25 or 30 autos in line, carrying about 125 people. The cars were gaily decorated with banners and streamers advertising Gala week, as were the red caps worn by all the men The moving picture man accompanied them and took a moving picture of the crowd on the street. He also is taking pictures of our leading industries.

LYMAN H. HOWE'S SEMI-ANNUAL EVENT.

The beauty and dignity of Lyman H. Howe's Travel Festival which comes to the Bradley Opera House on next Tuesday, Oct. 6 is such that it cannot fail to delight those of us who have to stay at home and read and dream. You may not be able to afford to travel, but you cannot afford to miss "traveling with Howe" because the expense is infinitesimal compared to actual travel and yet the same knowledge, information and experience are imparted by girdling the globe with Howe that would be derived by taking the "Grand Tour" in person with all sorts of discomforts, delays and unpleasantness to endure. In its wonderful variety of interesting subjects the new program which Howe is presenting records our present day civilization as nothing else can. It satisfies completely that instinct in us which desires knowledge and an escape from the routine of daily duties. It depicts earth's wonders and the high tide of life surging through great cities and the marts of trade

The new program has its intense moments such as are imparted by a ride on a runaway train, which in itself is exciting enough, but the thrills are intensified and made more thrilling by means of those realistic "effects" which always distinguish Howe's exhibition from all others.

Then also there are some spectacular moments experienced during a trip down into the crater of Vesuvius—to the very edge of the vast cauldron of boiling lava. Some of the mysteries of Nature's handiwork are revealed in a series showing the growth of plants and the development of flowers from bud to blossom. The manifestations of science and chemistry are also shown in a film depicting the electrolysis of metals and the fantastic formations created by the process. Real travel experiences are provided by a trip to ever enchanting Venice during which Howe travelers will glide up and down the canals and see the quaint city under the wizardry of superd color effects at sunset and by moonlight. A railroad ride through Greece, bird studies in the colors of nature, and entirely new animated cartoons are some of the other features.

The usual Howe prices will prevail, 25c, 35c and 50 cents. The seat sale opens at Hay's Bakery Saturday morning.

PRAISE AND CENSURE.

Do not rely upon praise in pushing your life work, and do not permit censure to discourage you if you know you are right.

Praise is of no use as a mainspring. Power lies outside of it, and entirely independent of it, in all truly valuable lives. Tennyson, the poet, was also the practical man when he remarked, "I think it is wisest in a man to do his work in the world as quietly and as well as he can without heeding praise or dispraise."

LOOK WITHIN.

The Chinese in archery have one rule, which they call the "Rule of the Superior Man." It runs thus—"When the archer misses the center of the target he turns around and seeks for the cause of the failure in himself." There seems to be a hint in this "look within" scheme for others and not for archers alone.

Lincoln's Companions.

When Abraham Lincoln in 1860 sought solitude that he might write his inaugural address he asked his friend Herndon for a copy of the constitution, for Webster's reply to Hayne, for Jackson's proclamation against nullification and for Henry Clay's speech on the compromise of 1850.

Hard to Impress.

"Yes," said nonchalant Mr. Wombat. "I was in Egypt."

"I suppose you stood awestruck before the grand and solemn sphinx."

"Well, I gave it the once over."—Pittsburgh Post.

A Story For Labor Day

By SARAH BAXTER

"Talk about the dignity of labor," said Helen Forsythe to her friend, Lois Gregory. "I don't see any dignity in it. No one can do manual labor without getting dirty hands, chapped hands, misshapen hands."

"There are worse things than dirty hands," replied Miss Gregory.

"What, for instance?"

"A dirty soul. How many rich men's sons who have not the incentive to labor have become worthless and contemptible?"

"I dare say, my dear, there is truth in what you say, but for me I would rather marry a poet than a mechanic."

"Even a poet has his uses, but for me he is altogether too ethereal. I would prefer an engineer whose profession deals directly with labor. What is there more splendid than the spanning of a river by an enormous bridge, the building of a cathedral, the tunneling of a mountain?"

"These are planned by one brain."

"Granted, but of what use would that brain be without the workmen to carry out its plan?"

"Well, Lois, marry in the field of labor if you like. I prefer the fine arts. Give me an artist."

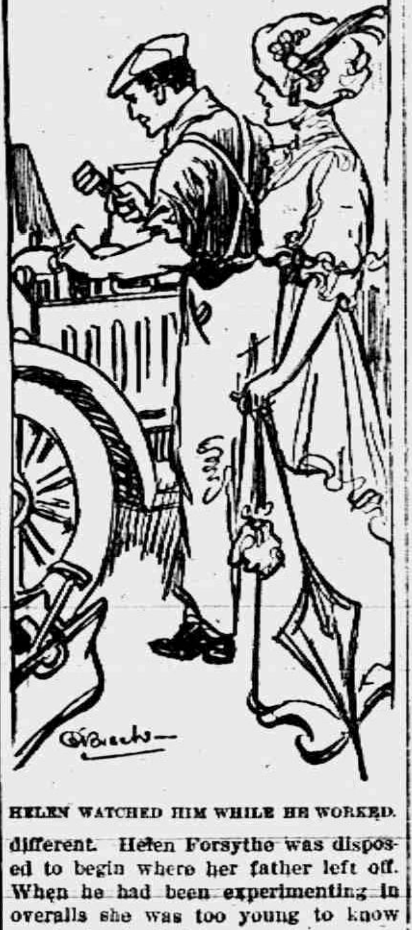
These young ladies were both of the well to do class, but they were very different. Helen Forsythe was disposed to begin where her father left off. When he had been experimenting in overalls she was too young to know much about what he was doing; now that he was living on the royalties he received from a machine he had contrived, with all the refinements a fine income brought, she had little sympathy with what had produced his good fortune.



HELEN WATCHED HIM WHILE HE WORKED.

Lois Gregory, on the contrary, had never known either wealth or poverty. A laborer herself, she sympathized with the cause of labor. She made her living by teaching, and being accustomed to using her brain constantly it became stronger with exercise, and she was enabled to distinguish between what was of intrinsic and what was of fictitious value. She had come to the conclusion that the attaining was intrinsic, the attainment fictitious. In other words, there is no stimulus in an accomplished work except to produce something better.

The country seat of the Forsythes was situated in a beautiful valley, through which ran a stream that afforded a fine water power. A mile below the place was a large factory. One day Helen Forsythe's automobile broke down, and a request was sent to the factory to send a man to fix it. He appeared in overalls with a bag of tools, and Helen took him to the car to show him the break.

There was something about this man that arrested Miss Forsythe's attention. He was some twenty two or three years old and strongly built, and character was plainly written in his face. Helen pointed out the break, though this was unnecessary, for the young man was a skilled mechanic and took it in himself at once. Helen watched him while he worked, asking him questions about the trouble, how serious it was and how long a time would be required to make the repairs. She noticed a British intonation to his speech, but not the misuse of the letter "h" common with the English lower classes.

"Do you like mechanical work?" she asked.

"I certainly do. I was born with a taste for it," was the reply.

"But don't you think it very dirty?"

"Not as dirty as some other kinds of work."

"You mean shoveling earth, I suppose?"

"Oh, no. I love to dig in the dirt."

"You mean handling ashes?"

"There's dirtier work than that. My brother does it every day."

"Your brother?"

"Yes. He's in politics."

This quite took Miss Forsythe's breath away. Surely this young man was very odd. She presumed the brother he referred to was a political heeler in a district where the people were of the lowest class.

"Tell me," she said presently, "what it is that interests you in mechanics."

"I like to fashion things. The mechanic, if he is a good one, may always find a field in his labor for more or less use of the inventive faculty, and the mechanic is free to exercise it. Besides, there is an opportunity in mechanics for a man to climb the ladder that leads up to fortune without using dishonorable means. No man need be happier than the laborer who has all the work he can do. His mind is on what he is doing, and he has no time to worry about imaginary griefs. When he has finished his day's work he enjoys his leisure. How much better off he is than the man whose time is all leisure, who never experiences the comfort there is in rest because he is always at rest."

Miss Forsythe was surprised to hear this from one whom she considered doomed to a life of toil. She was about to inquire of him where he, a laborer, had picked up such ideas when he finished his job, gathered up his tools and, putting them in his bag, bade her adieu and went away.

And yet for Miss Forsythe he did not go away. He was with her the rest of the day as if he were still working on her auto and she listening to his words. "I can understand," she said to herself, "Lois marrying a man like that. There is a healthfulness of body and mind about him that positively rests me. He doesn't seem to be striving for anything. I do believe that he wouldn't give up his present work in exchange for a fine social position, while I—why, if I'm not invited to every swell function I'm miserable."

It was not long before some of the water pipes in the Forsythe house got out of order, and Miss Helen, being, on account of her father's absence and her mother's bad health, the director of the establishment, telephoned to the factory asking for a man to repair them and requesting it to send, if possible, the workman who had repaired her car. He came with his bag of tools, and Miss Forsythe, as before, showed him the break. She left him, but now and again returned to see how he was getting on. When noon came he had not finished, and she invited him to partake of a luncheon she ordered to be prepared for him. While he was eating it she asked him:

"How is it that you, who have never known what is called high life and have no experience as to the cares and disappointments it brings, are so well satisfied with your humble lot?"

He had finished eating when this question was propounded and, rising, stood facing Miss Forsythe, looking at her intently.

"You seem to be interested in this matter," he said, "and I am going to give you a confidence I have given no one else in America. I am the son of an English gentleman. My father designed me for the army or the church. My brother is in parliament. I have watched that silent revolution which is bringing labor to the front. We see it everywhere. People of refinement are sensible of it. Whereas a hundred years ago to make money in manufacture or trade was not considered respectable, now titled persons are going into both.

"My preference is for a life in manufacture. I have no confidence in attaining success in manufacture without ever having been a manufacturer myself. I have preferred to begin as any other laborer begins. If any of them beat me in the race it will not trouble me. If I become a leader I prefer to know the feelings, the necessities, of the men I manage. As to wealth bringing me happiness if I attain it, I have no confidence that it will. My happiness is in my daily labor. I believe that I get the same pleasure in repairing the pipes in this house that the manager of a large factory derives from his more extended duties."

Miss Forsythe was astonished. She had been surprised to meet a laborer who realized that he was happier in his work than if he were a globe trotter, but this man, who was born with a silver spoon in his mouth and had voluntarily stepped on the lowest rung of the labor ladder to climb or remain a fixture, as the case might be, was something more than she could at once understand. Nevertheless she was deeply impressed.

It occurred to her to invite him to dinner to see how he would appear. He accepted the invitation and with clean hands. He was invited again and again, and a year after Miss Forsythe had first met him she wrote Miss Gregory that she had been converted to her friend's ideas as to the dignity of labor and had been induced to marry a laborer.

The bride endeavored to persuade her husband to accept capital from her father with which to start a factory of his own, but he declined. He said that the happiness he derived from labor was in labor and not in management. Nevertheless he was rapidly promoted in the factory where he worked and made a manager in spite of himself.

Each of the girls who conversed upon the subject of marriage failed to do in the matter what they said they would do. Miss Forsythe, who said she would marry an artist, married a laborer. Miss Gregory, who declared that she would prefer one who builds material structures, married a literary man.

Right Up to Date.

"Now, my child," said the kind old judge, "which do you prefer to go with?"

"That depends," answered the fashionable child. "Is mother to get large alimony?"

"Yes."

The activity along the Belgian frontier indicate that the Germans are planing for a siego ef Antwerp within a few days. More than 25,000 of the German naval reserve have been broupght up to Brussels.

German Zeppelins dropped bombs in Deynze and Thielt, northern Belgium. The convent of St. Vincent de Paul, in Deynze, one of the oldest in Belgium, was badly damaged. Zeppelins have been reported at many points in Germany, and apparently they are being massed for offensive operations.

Bordeaux reports that the French continue to make slow gains on the left, where the general flanking movement is in progress.

Paris Declares the allies' loss is 100,000 men and 180,000 Germans have fallen in the battle of the Aisne. Both sides have brought up big guns and resumed the fight at long range after charges have proved futile.

An official announcement concerning the progress of the campaign against Kiauchau, the German port in China, says the Japanese fleet has attacked the Iltis fort, effectively aided by the army.

PARIS — The official communique is as follows:

"2.—In the center our troops have successfully resisted several violent attacks. We have gained slightly on the heights of the Meuse. In the Woevre a heavy fog has brought operations to a standstill.

"3.—On our right wing (Lorraine and the Vosges) the situation remains unchanged."

Germans Again Defeated, Says Paris.

PARIS — Germany met with still further defeat in a series of attacks in full force against the French and British designed to avert the imminent disaster that threatens in the conclusion of the battle of the Aisne with victory for the allies.

From the River Aisne on the west to the Argonne region on the east the Germans left their trenches in a series of determined assaults to break down the French resistance by the sheer force of numbers. The onslaught was met by the French in a series of counter attacks in which the Germans were defeated and driven back with heavy losses. An official statement by the French war of in the afternoon says:

"The general situation remains unchanged. There is a lull in the fighting along part of the front. At certain points, however, particularly tween the River Aisne and the Argonne ridge the enemy has made several violent attacks, but has been repulsed."

Germans Gain Nothing, Says London.

LONDON — French and British troops have progressed in their attacks, while the Germans have failed in onslaughts of the utmost violence. The official statement issued by the British war press bureau, says:

"Last night the enemy attacked our line with even more vigor but no more success. There is no change in the situation.

"The Germans have gained no ground and the French have advanced here and there."

German Supply Base Burns.

Dispatches from Ostend report that Mons, Belgium, base of operations and supplies for the army of General Von Kluck is burning. Mons was the organization center for the sending of reinforcements to the firing line in France.

Belgians Claim Victory.

A dispatch from Amsterdam says that the Germans, in again bombarding Malines and at the same time attacking Grembergen, were repulsed by the Belgians with heavy losses.

Prussian Guard Wiped Out.

BORDEAUX — The Prussian guard, the picked soldiers of the German empire and the kaiser's pride, has been cut to pieces in the fighting of the last three days on the center of the battle line. The strength of some companies has been reduced from 250 to 100 men. Virtually all the original officers have been killed or wounded. Two battalions have been annihilated.

Germans Admit Heavy Losses.

Germany admits her losses in the battle of the Aisne have been extraordinarily heavy, according to a Berlin dispatch.

Cholera in Budapest.

LONDON — A dispatch from Rome says a message from Budapest asserts the minister of the interior has announced fifteen new cases of cholera in the Hungarian city's military hospital.

German Planes Fly Over Cities.

BORDEAUX — Two German aeroplanes flew over Calais and Boulogne, throwing bombs which caused some damage in both cities.

Zeppelin Bomb Kills 11 Russ Children.

LONDON — The operators of a German Zeppelin dirigible dropped a bomb into a school house at Bialustok, Russia, killing elevn children, according to a dispatch from Petrograd to the Morning Post.

Germany Can War a Year.

BERLIN, via London — The response of the German public to the efforts of the government to raise a war fund of $1,250,000,000 has, it is asserted here, removed all anxiety the nation may have had regarding its ability to meet financial obligations due to the war.

According to military authorities, the war is costing Germany about $5,000,000 a day, inclusive of the money spent on behalf of those who have been deprived of their bread winners. The means of the government at the beginning of the war, not counting the permanent war treasure, but including the reserve funds of the Reichsbank, amounted to about $125,000,000, which, in the meantime, however, has been considerably increased through the issue of notes.

Most of Maubeuge Burned.

PARIS — A resident of Maubeuge who had been made prisoner but later escaped states that Maubeuge was three-quarters burned by the Germans. The forts resisted for a long time the assaults of 40,000 men.

French Fleet Shells Cattaro.

LONDON — A dispatch to the Daily Mail from Venice dated Sunday, says that the French fleet at that time had been in action for the last forty eight hours bombarding the port of Cattaro and the fortified island on the Dalmatian coast.

French Seize German Congo.

PARIS — It is officially announced that French forces in equatorial Africa have reoccupied the greater part of the Congo territory ceded to Germany by the treaty of 1911," says the Havas correspondent at Bordeaux.

Turks Shut Dardanelles.

LONDON — The Dardanelles have been closed to navigation, according to a dispatch from Constantinople to the Reuter Telegram company. The duration of the closure is not stated.

Foes on Three Sides of Teuton Army.

BORDEAUX — The Berliner Tageblatt's military critic admits that "the German army in the Verdun region is menaced on three sides by the French.

FLINT WITNESS IN FRAUD CASE FAILS

As Usual at Critical Points His Memory Is Bad.

FLINT, MICH. — Matthew W. Hutting, who gained immunity from a circuit court sentence for illegal voting by testifying at the investigation into alleged irregularities in the third precinct of the First ward at the primary election last month, was the only witness called at the examination of Leo Quinn in Justice Halsey's court.

Quinn is charged with having induced Hutting to vote for certain candidates in spite of the fact that he was not a qualified elector.

Hutting proved to be a very unsatisfactory witness to the prosecution, as he was uncertain about anything to which he testified. On cross examination he made the statement that he was not sure Quinn was the man who solicited him to vote, whereas it is asserted he positively identified the defendant when the latter was brought before him at the county jail. The witness became so confused that he even denied that he had been arrested for illegal voting, but when he was reminded that he had pleaded guilty to the charge in the circuit court he admitted that he had made a mistake.

NEW DISEASE KILLS CATTLE

M. A. C. Experts to Investigate Western Infection.

EAST LANSING, MICH. — A serious disease has been discovered near Niles which is causing great ravages among the cattle and hogs in that vicinity.

Dr. F. F. Hallman has been detailed by the state live stock sanitary commission to investigate. The disease was at first thought to be the foot and mouth disease, but Dr. Hallman is of the opinion that it may be the lip and leg ulceration which has been producing large losses in western states. Farmers who have diseased cattle or hogs are advised to consult the college bacteriology department at once.

SAGINAW, MICH. — Ernest B. Walsh of Flint was painfully injured when the automobile which he was driving turned turtle in the ditch at Cook's corners.

RUSS ISOLATE PRZEMYSL FORTS

Czar's Troops Hold All Railroads In Galicia.

MASS FOR MOVE ON BRESLAU

Chyrow, in Hungary, Occupied by Invaders—Attack Last Fortified Place Before Cracow—May Leave Troops to Surround and Cut Off Cracow and Advance Against Breslau.

PETROGRAD, RUS. — Having occupied Chyrow and the Carpathian passes, leaving Przemysl surrounded and cut off, the Russian army is now in possesion of all railroads and is advancing rapidly westward along both lines traversing Galicia. The northern column has attacked Tarnow. This is the last fortified point between the invading army and Cracow, sixty miles away.

The southern column has occupied Sanck, but is advancing slower than the first, the intention being to cut off the retreat of the Austrians which the northenr army is driving to the south.

Every indications is that the Russians do not intend to try and capture Cracow, but will leave a strong force there, surrounding and isolating the intrenched camp, as has been done at Przemysl. The advance will then be pushed toward Breslau.

1,000,000 Russ in Battle.

It is now apparent that the movement through Galicia is the main offensive of the Russian army. It developed that Grand Duke Nicholas, the commander in chief, is with the forces there, who number more than one million men.

The armies are proceeding along the parallel lines of railway, moving rapidly westward. With all of the six Carpathian passes occupied by Russian troops and with strong forces on the Hungarian plains just south of these points, all danger of a possible flanking movement has been avoided. Consequently there is nothing to retard the invasion.

German Attack Blocked.

The following official communication from the chief of the general staff regarding the Russian operations has been given out here:

"Russian troops are driving fast on the offensive in the forests of Augustowo, in Russian Poland, Province of Suwalki. The Germans are using heavy siege artillery in the bombardment of the fortress of Ossowetz. An attempt by the German infantry to close in on the fortress has been checked.

"On the front of the Silesia the enemy has been greatly re-enforced and shows much activity.

Sorties by the garrison of Przemysl have not been successful. Many prisoners, a number of cannon and some stores of amunition have fallen into our hands.

"As the Austrian retreat in Galicia continues great confusion is noticeable in the ranks."

Escapes Asylum.

KALAMAZOO, MICH. — Gus W. Massay of Holland, who was recently admitted to the state asylum has escaped and the authorities have not been able to locate him as yet.

Feats of a Strong Man.

Well known in the old buffalo days of Saskatchewan was Joe Beaupre, famed a thousand miles as the biggest eater in the north. Joe was not six feet tall, but he was a broad, deep, thick sort of man, with a hand like a ham and a stomach like nothing else in the world. He would eat an entire boxful of apples at one sitting and think nothing of it. Once, having encountered a gentleman who thought he was some eater, Joe consumed fifty-three pounds of buffalo meat in one day and topped off with a raw turnip, a six pound piece of pork, some lard and two loaves of bread. The best his competitor could do was thirty-seven pounds of meat. Beaupre was so strong he never would fight any man for fear he should kill him. One day, while sledding on a narrow trail with an obstinate horse, he became angered, struck the horse on the head with his fist and killed it. He loosened the harness and threw the dead animal on one side of the trail. He never really knew how strong he was. Beaupre died of rheumatism while still a young man.—Saturday Evening Post.

The Seventh Inning Stretch.

It is a simple ceremonial, but impressive, like all manifestations of the soul of a multitude. I need only close my eyes to call up the picture vividly. It is a day of brilliant sunshine, and a great crowd of men is seated in the open air, a crowd made up of all conditions, ages, races, temperaments and states of mind. The crowd has sat there an hour or more, while the afternoon sun has slanted deeper into the west and the shadows have crept across greensward and hard baked clay to the eastern horizon. Then, almost with a single motion—the time may be somewhere between 4 o'clock and 5 o'clock—this multitude of divers minds and tempers rises to its feet and stands silent, while one might count twenty perhaps. Nothing is said. No high priest intones prayer for this vast congregation. Nevertheless, the impulse of 10,000 hearts is obviously focused into a single desire. When you have counted twenty the crowd sinks back to the benches. A half minute at most and the rite is over.—Simeon Strunsky in Atlantic.

Unselfish.

She—George, is that one of those cigars I gave you on your birthday? He—No; I'm saving those for my friends. She—You dear, self sacrificing, unselfish man!

Children.

Children are to be trained daily. To teach a child the right is to give him ideas; to train him is to reduce those ideas to practice.—H. W. Beecher.

The first hour in the morning is the rudder of the day.—Herbert.

AN AMAZING insight into the family life of wild birds is afforded by one of the remarkable films to be presented by Lyman H Howe at the Bradley Opera House, next Tuesday October 6. These reproductions of the shy, timid and wary creatures were secured only by exercising infinite patience and extraordinary skill and resourcefulness. The mother bird's solicitude for the welfare of her young, and the absolute confidence of the latter are most appealing. Weeks of patient waiting were necessary to familiarize the anxious mother bird with the camera before her natural distrust of human intrusion could be overcome. Another distinct photographic triumph of this film is that which "caught" the kingfisher at the moment of diving for a fish, capturing it, and then enjoying his repast—though with considerable effort. Then there are brightly hued woodpeckers "at home"—looking askance out of an old tree trunk, the fascinating shrike, the astute magpie, "a singing lesson" with young crows as pupils, young ducklings, graceful swans, and a heron in flight. The film comprises the finest examples of bird life in natural colors that could be imagined.

A descent into the crater of Vesuvius, pictorial pilgrimages through Venice, Greece, France, India and Arabia, wonders of sub-marine life, the growth of plants and flowers, European horsemanship and cavalry manoeuvres, a new ride on a runaway train are a few of the other big features including entirely new animated cartoons.

The regular Howe prices will prevail, 25c, 35c and 50 cents. Seats will be on sale at Hay's Bakery commencing tomorrow (Saturday) morning. Will King, advertising manager of the opera house in Adrian, was in town Wednesday and he says Lyman H. Howe has the best program this season that he has ever had on the road. The Howe pictures were in Adrian last Tuesday.

Morris and His Furniture.

In "William Morris—His Work and Influence" is retold how the two friends, Burne-Jones and Morris, setting out to keep house together in the now historic rooms, 17 Red Lion square, found themselves confronted with the unendurable ugliness and vulgarity of mid-Victorian furniture. Says Mr. Clutton-Brock:

"Their rooms were to be furnished, and Morris could not find in any shop a single new table or chair that he could endure. This was not mere fastidiousness. To him vulgarity in furniture was like vulgarity of manners, the expression of a wrong state of mind, and if his own furniture had been vulgar he would have felt as responsible for it as for his own manners. Therefore he designed furniture to please himself, making drawings that were carried out by a carpenter. Thus simply and naturally he began his business of 'poetic upholsterer.' * * * From the first he was not only an artist, but one who tried to make the world what he wished it to be and, beginning with armchairs, ended with society."

Theatrical Superstitions.

Paris, a city of theaters, is full of theatrical superstitions. Nearly every one associated with the theater has some sort of mascot. Thus, M. Fernand Samuel, manager of the Varietes, always wears an old and battered straw hat as a luck bringer at every first night. Mme. Ristori used to walk in a cemetery on the day when she had to appear in a new part, and Mlle. Breval collects old horseshoes.

Mlle. Mary Garden always consults a clairvoyant before undertaking a new character, and Cora Laparcerie and Mme. Berthe Bady never dream of going on the stage without touching wood.

M. Henri Bernstein believes that there is some curious fetish in the name Zambo. He puts it in all his plays with different orthography. There is always a character called Zambeau, Zambault, Zambeaux, Zambau.—London Express.

Too Much of a Breakfast.

Even Peacock's generous ideas of suitable provisions for a breakfast were surpassed by a London host who entertained J. L. Motley. Aug. 3, 1867, Motley writes to his daughter: "I went to the last breakfast of the season of the Philobiblon society, given by Mr. Turner, a collector of rare books. Beginning with coffee and tea, we ended with sherry, champagne and maraschino; fish, cutlets, rotis, salads, game, puddings and ice going on meanwhile in regular order. If you asked me what I did I can only say I opened my ears to the animated and intellectual conversation and my mouth, not to eat, but to gape and gasp and wonder at the prodigious consumption of victuals at that hour of the day. When I reflected that all those people would lunch at 2 and dine at 8 I bowed my head in humiliation, and the fork dropped from my nerveless grasp."—London Chronicle.

Looking Down From High Places.

Why do you feel giddy when you look down from the top of the house or even from the upstairs porch? Just because it's so high, eh? That's true, but it's only half the answer. You know, of course, that your power to keep your balance on your feet depends largely on your vision or sight. When you walk in the dark you stumble and bump against things because you are not used to walking without seeing. It's the same when you are away up above the ground and cannot see familiar things in their familiar places. Your eyes play you tricks, you seem to lose your balance, and your head feels giddy and your steps are uncertain. If you practice long enough you can learn to walk without seeing, but until you have learned that lesson be careful when you climb to high places.—Wisconsin State Journal.

Sound Deflection.

Sound does not always travel through the air in a straight line. It often happens that two zones of sound are separated by a zone of silence. In 1908 an explosion of dynamite on the railroad then building up the Jungfrau was heard in two different zones. The first extended through a radius of forty kilometers around the explosion. The other began at a distance of 140 kilometers, the sound being unheard in the intervening 100 kilometers. Similar phenomena had been observed elsewhere, and physicists tried to explain them by the reflexion of the sound waves from certain atmospheric strata. Professor Fujiwhara, who has studied such matters during volcanic eruptions in Japan, asserts now that these phenomena depend upon the direction of the wind in the middle strata of the atmosphere.

He Would Find Out.

Henry Irving in his early days once played a part which in the first act called for a dark stage. In this darkness he fought with an old earl, threw him heavily, and when he did not rise after the loud thud of his fall Irving would cry out:

"Great heavens, what have I done?"

One night he played the part in a small English town. A stage hand was very much impressed with the play, and to him the scenes quickly became real, so that when Irving reached the climax, felled the old earl to the ground and spoke the line "Great heavens, what have I done?" he was startled to hear the stage hand say in a loud voice: "Strike a match and we'll have a look."—New York Globe.

The oil of the peanut has a quieting effect on the pneumogastric nerve, the largest nerve supplying the stomach. Many nervous persons who like peanuts and do not know why, like them for this reason. They quiet the nerves of the stomach. These persons should eat a few fresh roasted peanuts after each hearty meal, as many nervous conditions are due to an irritation of the pneumogastric nerve, and the peanut oil acts as a sedative to this nerve. Of course the nuts must be crisp and well chewed and not too many taken. To get the best sedative effect a handful of the hot peanuts should be eaten just before retiring. This presupposes that the powers of elimination are in good repair. The peanut, a member of the pulse family, is nutritious and would clog the system if not eaten correctly, as it is almost equal to meat.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Putting It on the Map.

Captain Cook shows in his "Voyages" how some of the mouth filling place names on maps are evolved. "Off New Zealand there is an island called by the natives 'Matuaro.' One of my officers, having asked a native the name of that isle, the latter replied, 'Kematuaro,' putting 'the' before the name, as is the custom. The officer, hearing the sound imperfectly, repeated his question, whereupon the native repeated his reply, emphasizing it with the word 'oeia,' which means 'indeed.' So in the logbook Matuaro was transformed into 'Kumettiwarroweia.'"—London Globe.

He Rivaled Cicero.

Quintus Hortensius, the Roman orator, would have come down in history with great fame had any of his speeches been preserved. He died in the year 50 B. C. He was a soldier and statesman, and his mentality can be judged from the fact that he was a rival of Cicero.

His Future Assured.

"I don't know what to do with that kid of mine."

"Is he disobedient?"

"Not exactly. But whenever I tell him to do a thing he wants to debate the matter a long time."

"He will grow up to be a senator."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

To Remedy a Leaking Pen.

If one is troubled with a leaky fountain pen the application of a little soap to the threads of the screw will work magic. If the pen is emptied, thoroughly cleaned, filled and the soap applied there will be no more trouble until the pen needs filling again.—Exchange.

Looking Ahead.

Practical Father—Has that young man who wants to marry you any money? Romantic Young Lady—Money! He gave me a cluster diamond ring. Practical Father—Yes, I know. But has he any money left?—Exchange.

THERE are five questions you should ask regarding any clothes you buy. These are:

"Is this suit pure wool?"

"Will it shrink or pucker?"

"Can it fade?"

"Is it hand-tailored?"

"Will the seams hold?"

The answer to each of these questions we give in printed guarantee which covers our Kirschbaum Clothes.

Before you buy clothes this Fall you owe it to yourself to investigate.

Fresh Universal Cement

It is very important to have fresh cement if you want satisfactory work particularly in the fall of the year.

Owing to the fact of selling nearly all the big Cement jobs like the Hayden dam, Cemetery wall, and to most of the masons and contractors who insist upon UNINERSAL we are enabled to keep fresh stock on hand.

We are to-day unloading another car in cloth sacks which comes on your job in perfect condition with no waste or torn sacks.

L. E. TEMPLE & CO.

We have our ELEVENTH (11) car of Fertilizer this fall in transit which speaks well for the ARMOUR brand.

Word has just been received by relatives that Miss Gussie Burlingame of Cadillac was the victim of a peculiar accident September 18 while in one of the stores A lady standing near her suddenly threw out her hands upon Miss Burlingame's shoulders and fell upon her to the floor, almost crushing her Miss Burlingame was taken to her home and medical assistance rendered. Her right shoulder and left leg are badly hurt. While her injuries are very painful and she is completely prostrated, yet it is thought she is not in a dangerous condition.

DEDICATED

The parish house of St. Peter's Episcopal church was dedicated last evening with appropriate services with Bishop Williams in attendance. The congregation gathered in the church for the opening services after which, led by the vested choir, the bishop and Rev. Hewitt, the congregation adjourned to the parish house for the dedication ceremonies.

The bishop read the impressive dedicatory service and followed with a few well chosen remarks. For the closing exercises the audience reassembled in the church auditorium and when the offering was taken, the deed of the parish house was placed upon the plate by Mr. and Mrs. John F. Hicks.

The parish has one of the most complete churches in the diocese and this parish house gives the church an adequate place for all social functions and business meetings pertaining to the church.

The rectory has been thoroughly remodeled with lighting, plumbing and heating facilities and both church and rectory newly painted.

Not only is this church complete in all its appointments but it has the distinction of being the oldest church building west of the Alleghenies, the corner stone being laid Oct. 10, 1833, when Rev. Lyster delivered the address. Divine worship was held in this church for the first time August 2, 1835, Rev. O'Brian of Monroe preaching in the morning and Rev. Lyster in the evening. On July 29, 1837, the edifice was duly consecrated to the worship of God by Rt Rev Bishop McCoskey. St. Peters is not the oldest church organization, but the oldest church building west of the Alleghenies.

Rev. Frederick Hewitt has been rector of this church for the last two years and during his pastorate has done much to build up the church and congregation. He has made a host of friends in the community by his genial personality and hearty cooperation in everything that pertains to the good of Tecumseh.

Pastor Installed.

Wednesday evening Rev. Wm. A. Rex was duly installed as pastor of the Presbyterian Church with the usual ceremonies. Rev. Dr. Seibert of Adrian gave an excellent sermon. Rev. Hawkins of Holloway gave the prayer. Rev. Roberts of Clayton was moderator of the meeting and gave the charge to the candidate, he was followed by Rev. Pocock of Blissfield who gave the charge to the church.

The services were very interesting throughout, each speaker being exceptionally good. Special music also was given. There was a good congregation present to honor their new pastor. The meeting closed with the benediction by Rev. Rex.

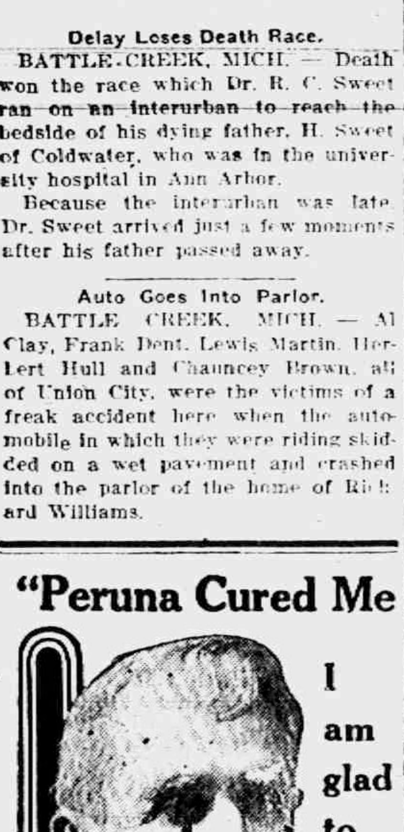
Delay Loses Death Race.

BATTLE CREEK, MICH. — Death won the race which Dr. R. C. Sweet ran on an interurban to reach the bedside of his dying father, H. Sweet of Coldwater, who was in the university hospital in Ann Arbor.

Because the interurban was late Dr. Sweet arrived just a few moments after his father passed away.

Auto Goes Into Parlor.

BATTLE CREEK, MICH. — Al Clay, Frank Dent, Lewis Martin, Herbert Hull and Chauncey Brown, all of Union City, were the victims of a freak accident here when the automobile in which they were riding skidded on a wet pavement and crashed into the parlor of the home of Richard Williams.



"Peruna Cured Me

I am glad to tell it."

MR. ROBERT FOWLER,
Of Okarche, Oklahoma.

Mr. Robert Fowler, Okarche, Oklahoma, writes:

"To any sufferer of catarrh of the stomach. I am glad to tell my friends or sufferers of catarrh that seventeen years ago I was past work of any kind, due to stomach troubles. I tried almost every known remedy without any results.

"Finally I tried Peruna, and am happy to say I was benefited by the first bottle, and after using a full treatment I was entirely cured.

"I am now seventy years old, and am in good health, due to always having Peruna at my command. I would not think of going away from home for any length of time without taking a bottle of Peruna along for emergency.

"You are at liberty to use my picture and testimony if you think it will help any one who has stomach trouble."

MINISTER SOBS AS JURY ACQUITS HIM

Rev. Loomis, Former Henderson M. E. Pastor, Exonerated.

CORUNNA, MICH. — "Not guilty" was the verdict returned by a jury that was out for twenty-four hours in the case of Rev. Chester Loomis, the young Methodist Episcopal minister of Henderson, charged with having been unduly intimate with Mrs. Philip Bingham, twenty-one-year-old wife of a Rush township farmer. Loomis wept for joy when his acquittal was announced. No case ever tried in Shiawassee county has created more interest than this one. Sympathy generally was with Loomis. He stated some time ago, after having resigned the pastorate of the Henderson church because of the charges against him, that he would seek a different field after the disposal of his case.

Rev. Loomis' case has not yet been considered by the Detroit Methodist Episcopal conference, which is in session in Saginaw, as the conference has been awaiting the outcome of the civil trial.

POSTMASTER LOSES HIS BOND

PORT HURON, MICH. — Word was received in this city that the bonding company that furnished the bond for Charles L. Doyle, postmaster at Marine City, had taken over the office and placed Charles J. Tarte in charge.

The removal of Doyle is now before the post office department at Washington and Tarte is the Democratic nominee for the office. Doyle's removal, although not officially made by the department as yet, is the result of charges preferred against him by a woman patron of the office, who alleges misconduct on the part of the postmaster.

NEWS OF THE STATE

Flint "Nobleman" Sent Up.

FLINT, MICH. — Pleading guilty to a charge of grand larceny in the circuit court, Vito Pascalle was sentenced to five years at the state prison in Jackson.

Last June Pascalle, representing himself to be a wealthy foreigner in need of the services of a valet, engaged Frank Liocopwlos, a local pop corn dealer, to act in that capacity. As a guarantee of good faith he required Liocopwlos to place $350 in a tin box in which he deposited a like amount himself, and the box was entrusted to the keeping of Liocopwlos over night. When opened the box contained worthless paper.

Change in Botany Department.

EAST LANSING, MICH. — Two important changes have been made in the botanical department of the Michigan Agricultural college. Professor H. F. Darling has been appointed assistant professor of botany and will also have charge of the herbarium and botanical gardens, and will investigate the flora of the state. E. E. Woodcock has been appointed instructor of botany to succeed Dr. Ruth F. Allen, who has resigned to join the botanical staff of Wellesly college.

Convict Food City Slayer.

BATTLE CREEK, MICH. — The jury convicted Charles Cashmore of murder for the shooting and instantly killing Mrs. Lilly Campbell.

The murder took place July 12, when, it is said, Mrs. Campbell refused to associate with Cashmore after a dance. A man, before five other persons, met Mrs. Campbell on the doorstep as she returned home and shot her. Witnesses declared the man was Cashmore.

Lads Play War; One Shot.

PORT HURON, MICH. — William Stikel, eleven years of age, is in the city hospital in a serious condition as a result of a game of war which he played with his companion, William Putzke, aged twelve.

Strikel was giving an imitation of the French charging against the Germans when Putzke, who commanded the German line, fired a rifle which he did not know was loaded.

Murder Suspect Arrested.

HOUGHTON, MICH. — Demipick Lacaria, one of four Italians wanted in Houghton for the murder of Albert Ruelle, Aug. 10, was arrested at Janesville, Wis., and brought to this city. One was arrested on the day of the murder, while two others are still at large.

It is alleged that the four Italians killed Ruelle while attempting to rob a road house.

VILLA IS NOT A CANDIDATE

Assures Washington He Will Not Run For President in Mexico.

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Assurance from General Villa that he will not be a candidate for president or vice president of Mexico were forwarded to the administration by Consular Agent Carrothers.

General Funston reported that Zapata had protested to him against the evacuation of Vera Cruz and delivery of the city to Carranza forces.

General Carranza has signified his willingness not to become a candidate if Villa would give a similar promise and if all the military leaders of the revolution could be also eliminated as possibilities. None of the others have appeared as candidates. Villa's assurances were regarded here as portending a peaceful end of the break with Carranza.

Von Kluck Is Given Severe Jolt.

JOFFRE SENDS REPORT

President Poincaire Will Visit Allies' Firing Lines.

CROWN PRINCE FORCED BACK

Official Statement Issued by French War Office Says German Assaults Have All Been Repulsed and Allies Have Taken offensive—On Right Wing Germans Are Slowly Losing Ground—Optimistic Feeling in Paris Spreading.

Dispatches from Naples say that the Socialists of that city have voted declaring themselves not opposed to Italy's participation in the war.

Paris, Oct. 5.—General Joffre sends news that spurs optimism.

The flags of France and England were carried forward at the west and east of the line despite desperate efforts of the Germans to mend their failing fortunes.

The allies resumed the movement to envelop Von Kluck, stormed the German trenches north of Soissons and accelerated the retreat of the always belated and never fortunate Crown Prince Frederick William.

Reserved, cautious and generalized, the government reports contain, nevertheless, a new note of satisfaction, one that rebukes doubters and sends waves of cheering through the capital. The thrust to destroy Von Kluck's supply lines and roll his army back upon Von Buelow's is again under headway north and east of Arras, where the fighting, tremendously violent, was indecisive. There are reports that columns have circled to the Belgian frontier.

German Position Breached.

Probably the most important success of the twenty-second day of the battle was gained near Soissons by breaching the west end of the German's long fortified and almost impregnable position reaching from the Aisne to the Suippe. Hitherto the Germans have frustrated all such attacks. Eastward to the Argonne ridge the combatants, both behind unbreakable fortifications, did not risk frontal attacks. Battle fury slackened. There, allies and Germans await the decision at the west.

But in the forests of the Argonne, misfortune runs at the heel of the German crown prince. His efforts to co-operate with the Bavarians and Von Heeringen in assaulting the barrier fortresses were defeated Saturday. Again he has been energetically pursued as he fled northward. His repulse necessarily weakens the whole German line.

Guerilla warfare continues in Lorraine and the Vosges, where Germans and French, holding strong positions, thrust at each other in day and night raids, neither side able to progress, despite small but sanguinary engagements. This fighting, which would compel attention at another time, is lost sight of in the vast and dramatic combat at the west.

President to Visit Front.

News as reassuring as the tidings from the battle front comes from Bordeaux The president and the cabinet council have been permitted to visit General Joffre's headquarters because the situation, for the first time, is favorable to the presence of the government near the battle front.

The details of a new advance by the allies were emphasized by the government report which was issued at 11 o'clock at night.

The report removed fears that the Germans had made important headway as well as confirming news that the crown prince had been sent to the right about. The report was received here with the staisfaction that can be imagined. The communique given out at 3 p. m. was as follows:

Afternoon Communication.

"1.—On our left wing our troops stopped the enemy. At other points we are well maintaining our positions.

"2.—In the center there is nothing worthy of mention as far as the Argonne. In the Argonne we have driven back the enemy toward the north In the eastern part of the Woevre district we are making progress, but very slowly.

"3.—On our right wing (Lorraine and the Vosges) there is nothing new."

Paris, Oct. 5.—The following official communique was issued at 11 o'clock at night:

"1.—On our left wing the struggle is at its height in the Arras district without yet having had a decisive result. The action has been less violent between the upper valley of the Ancre and the Somme and between the Somme and the Oise. We have progressed in the Soisson district where the enemy's trenches have been taken.

"2.—On almost all the rest of the front the calm already noted continues. In the Woevre district we have made some progress between Apremont and the Meuse and on the Rupt de Mad."

Wied's Aiders Return Starving.

Bucharest, via Rome, Oct. 5.—A group of 149 Roumanian volunteers who went to Albania to help Prince William of Wied to maintain his throne returned to Bucharest. They were in a most pitiful condition. All are practically helpless as a result of privations and disease.

DISPERSE GERMAN CAVALRY

Official Bulletin Is Issued From Russian Embassy at Washington—Report Declares Kaiser's Men Are Making Desperate Resistance at Augustowo, and Renewing Attacks.

London, Oct. 5.—An Exchange dispatch from Petrograd says it is officially announced that the battle between Russians and Germans at Augustow came to an end on Oct. 3 with a great Russian victory. The enemy is in a disorderly retreat toward the East Prussian frontier.

On the east bank of the Vistula and in Galicia there is no change in the situation.

The Berlin official statement devotes but a line to the Russian situation, but that line is significant. It says:

"In the eastern theater the advance of the Russian forces across the Niemen in the direction of Suwalki is imminent."

Washington, Oct. 5.—Colonel Golejewski, military attache of the Russian embassy, received the following official bulletin of the progress of the Russian forces:

"On Oct. 2 the battle of Augustowo was developing with great stubbornness. The Germans were defending themselves to the north of Lake Wygzy and renewing desperate attacks from a line from Raczki to Barjimen in an attempt to secure the western outlets to the Augustowo forest.

"On the high road from Lodzje to Czipliki the first German cavalry division endeavored to stop the advance of our cavalry The fighting occurred at night fall The German squadrons did not face our attack but rushed back and having suffered heavy loss dispersed, carrying away in their rout the German infantry sent to support them.

"Raygrod, Kalwaria and Mariampoe are occupied by our troops. On the left bank of the Vistula unimportant encounters took place near Kielce."

Also at the party was Mrs. Martha Fitzgerald, ninety-five years old, the oldest woman in Tarrytown. When the conversation drifted to ages Mr. Rockefeller refused to acknowledge he was getting old.

"Although," he added, "Mrs. Rockefeller says I'm getting round shouldered." To refute the accusation he stood up and squared his shoulders. "Golf is a great game," he continued, "and you ladies ought to play it."

FRENCH AND GERMAN LOSSES ARE 800,000

Kaiser's Loss in Eastern Fighting Not Included.

New York, Oct. 5.—A letter received by a New York physician contains the startling information that the French losses—killed, wounded and prisoners—for the six weeks' fighting up to and including the battle of the Marne were slightly over 300,000, perhaps 310,000, exclusive of the English losses which, the writer says, "Have been fairly large in comparison to the small number of their engaged army."

If credence may be placed in the French statements that in most cases the German losses were larger than those sustained by the French—and the German army was on the offensive in all the fighting up to the time for which the figures are given—it would seem to be a fair estimate of the German losses in killed, wounded and prisoners, were 500,000 men in the western theater of war alone, not taking into account their losses in the fighting against the Russians.

A Romance of Flowers

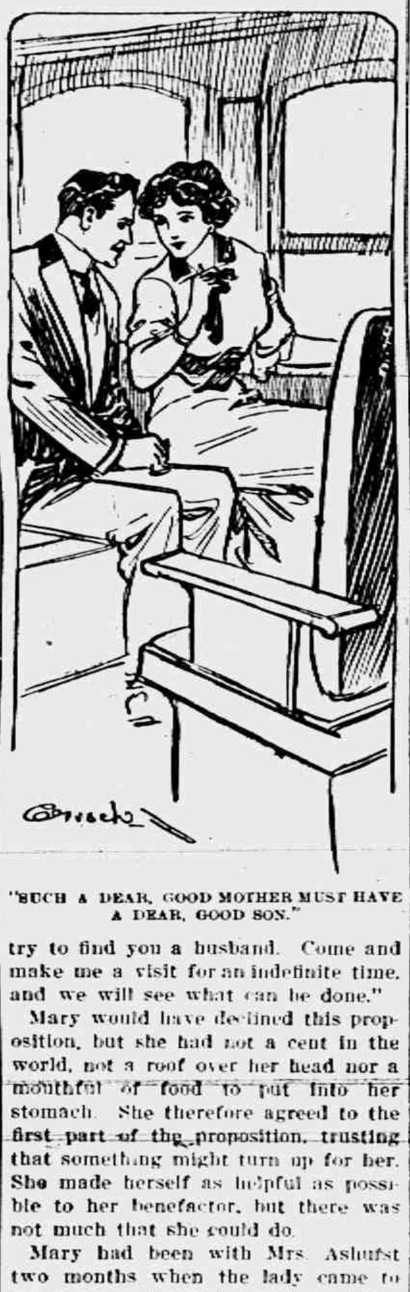
But There Was Much In It That Was Practical

By EUNICE BLAKE

Mary Blackmore had the misfortune to lose her parents when she was sixteen years old and was left with no support. A Mrs Ashurst, an old friend of her mother was the only person upon whom Mary could rely for advice. This lady had her own peculiar notions. She regretted the necessity for women to earn their own living, assigning as a cause the gradual segregation of the sexes. Reaching down below this, she found a prime cause in the increased expense of providing for a family which threw men into clubs, where they spent their incomes instead of on homes. This in turn gave rise to women's clubs, and the separation was complete. Among the poorer classes the result was dependent directly on the high cost of living.

Such was the basis of Mrs. Ashurst's views. Though acknowledging that if men would not support wives women must support themselves, she deprecated the situation. When Mary asked her to help her to get work the good lady let out a storm of reproach upon men for spending their lives frittering away their incomes instead of choosing various good girls who would be helpmeets to them and enabling them to concentrate the flow of loose change constantly dripping from bachelors' pockets into family savings banks. "But," she added, "I admit that there is a risk in any man's doing so. There's not a family of my acquaintance that is not spending every dollar of its income, if not more, in trying to keep a position among people who care nothing for them."

Having thus delivered herself, Mrs. Ashurst concentrated her words on the individual case of the applicant. "I've known you since you were a child, Mary," she said, "and I'm sure you would make a good wife for some young fellow who is beginning life as you are. At the end of ten years he and you would be better off than either of you would be separate. I won't try to get you a position, for I don't approve of that plan for you. But I'll try to find you a husband. Come and make me a visit for an indefinite time, and we will see what can be done."



"SUCH A DEAR, GOOD MOTHER MUST HAVE A DEAR, GOOD SON."

Mary would have declined this proposition, but she had not a cent in the world, not a roof over her head nor a mouthful of food to put into her stomach. She therefore agreed to the first part of the proposition, trusting that something might turn up for her. She made herself as helpful as possible to her benefactor, but there was not much that she could do.

Mary had been with Mrs. Ashurst two months when the lady came to her one morning and gave her a letter to read. It was from a young man twenty-two years old, who had rented a house with some grounds about it near the city of San Francisco with a view to the cultivation of flowers in a small way for the market. He had been well brought up among associates of the better class. Among strangers he found himself looked upon as a sort of huckster and formed no acquaintances among persons such as he had known at home. He needed an assistant—a woman who would relieve him of much of the care of his plants—and it had occurred to him that a wife, if she were the right sort of person, would be more serviceable to him than any one else. Did not Mrs. Ashurst know of some young woman who had been well brought up, but whose necessities compelled her to begin on the lowest rung of the ladder, that would consider an offer?

"Now, that's what I call a practical way to begin life," said Mrs. Ashurst.

"I've always been devoted to flowers," said Mary, her eyes brightening rather at the work than at the husband.

"Just the thing for you. I have written the young man that I have exactly what he wants. But I'm afraid you'll have to take a leap in the dark. He can't afford to come across the continent to court a girl and go back again, possibly, without her."

"Oh, dear!" exclaimed Mary, catching her breath.

"I would rather select a husband for my daughter than have her select one for herself. I mean by that that the average girl would have a better chance for happiness in her parents' selection than in her own—that is, if the intrinsic worth of the man is made the chief consideration."

"Do you really think so?"

"I do."

"The only romance I see in this matter," said the poor girl thoughtfully, "is the flowers."

Mrs. Ashurst, who could not repress a smile at this rueful remark, gave Mary a kiss.

"I have known this young man from boyhood and have always had great faith in him. I can heartily recommend you to him."

"If I go out to him of course I must marry him. But suppose he doesn't like me?"

"Oh, you can't tell about that till after you have been married for some time. If you find out after awhile that you don't like each other you can easily get a divorce. Divorces are as common as marriages nowadays, and since the chief consideration in life is keeping up a show of respectability it is a wonder there are not more of them."

The lady spoke this contemptuously.

"Can't I see a photograph of him?"

"No, my dear. There is a reason why you cannot, which will appear later. Besides, it would do no good. If you find his appearance repulsive to you—which you will not—and conclude not to marry him you'll be no worse off than you are now. Indeed, you'll be better off. In a country where your antecedents are not known you will not be ashamed to do anything for a living that is necessary. You can be a chambermaid in a hotel, a waitress in a restaurant, a shopgirl, a nurse"—

"I'll be none of these; I'll marry your friend if he is an ogre."

"Spoken like a brave girl. Then, too," with a smile, "think of the flowers."

"I shall have the flowers. That will be delicious, anyway."

"Yes; you will have the flowers. And remember that while a romance will fade forever the flowers continue in endless succession."

And the good lady kissed her again.

* * * * * * *

It was the last day of Mary Blackmore's journey to San Francisco. During the morning a young man sitting near her offered her a book to read, and later the two fell into conversation. Mary's meager account of the reasons for her having come to California apparently excited the young man's curiosity so far that he took pains to get the story. Indeed, she longed for some one to tell it to in order that she might get sympathy.

"Singular," he remarked; "my mother has the same views concerning me that this lady has for you."

"And are you willing?" asked Mary.

"I am tempted in the matter on account of my situation. I am a stranger in a strange land. I lived in the east, graduated at an eastern college and came to California to seek my fortune. I live by myself without the city, have no means of making social acquaintances such as I have been accustomed to mingle with and am lonely."

"Would you, if your mother should find a mate for you, marry her without a courtship?"

"I think I would prefer at least to meet her before marriage, but those more experienced than I tell us that a courtship is a continued effort on the part of two persons each to make the other believe he or she is perfection, with the advantage on the side of the woman, who is more adept than the man in appearing at her best."

Mary remained thoughtful after this. She felt that if her proposed mate was not repulsive to her at their first meeting she would suffer herself to be guided by Mrs. Ashurst's views, marry him and hope for the best.

"We have," said the young man when the train was but a few miles from the terminal, "but a short time for an explanation that I have to make to you. Read that."

He handed her a letter addressed to her in the well known writing of Mrs. Ashurst. It read:

> This will be handed you by my son, Henry, whom you are going to meet. What is for your good is also for his. May you be happy together.

Mary looked up from the letter to the face of Harry Ashurst, which beamed with satisfaction. Neither spoke for a few moments. Harry bent down and kissed his betrothed. The first words were spoken by Mary:

"Such a dear, good mother must have a dear, good son."

Henry Ashurst, graduate of the —— Agricultural college, aided by the knowledge gained there of cultivating plants and his wife's love for flowers, did not remain long in the business of a general flower supply. With capital acquired in that way he established a rose house and every year adds a new glass conservatory to those he already has. His roses go in large quantities to the city, where they are sold at a good profit.

But young Mrs. Ashurst instead of taking up society has taken up a specialty. She interests herself in procuring homes for young girls. When they ask her if there was no romance in her marriage she says thoughtfully:

"Well, there were the flowers; we have the romance now."

Hidden Ability.

Old Washington White and young Calhoun Clay entered a dancing competition. But age was against Wash, and his boots, a pair of cowhides six or seven sizes too large, were against him too. The prize was awarded to the younger man.

"Look-a-yere, Misto Empire," Uncle Wash growled, "whaffor yo' give de prize toe him?"

"Go long, man!" said Uncle Wash. "I done a lot o' steps in dese yere big boots what yo' never see!"—New York Tribune.

Kind Editors.

Needless to say, the night was cold. Brrr!

"We have used up the last stick of wood in the house," said the young artist to the brooding poet as they sat beside the embers of a fire. "What shall we do? Must I sacrifice my latest canvas?"

"Hold!" said the poet. "I shall bring my rejected slips."

And they kept the fire going all night. —New York Post.

A SOCIAL HOUR.

The social hour arranged for by the school board to meet the teachers and parents, was held in the lecture room of the Presbyterian church Friday evening. It was a very pleasant affair with a good attendance though it is a matter of regret that more of the parents did not attend.

The meeting was called to order by Supt. Reed who announced a solo by Mrs. Maynard Mulvaney. He then introduced Miss Alice Wimple, a tried and true teacher in our schools. She gave a short but very interesting address, emphasizing the fact that the teachers were desirous of making the acquaintance of the parents and for their cooperation and interest with them in the education of the children. Her remarks were very appropriate for the occasion and met with the hearty approval of all.

A vocal solo by Ernest Church was next on the program and was much enjoyed.

Dr. North was asked to make an address of about five minutes which he proceeded to do when called and it is wonderful how much could be crowded in on that subject.

A violin solo by Duaine Service was then given in his own pleasing manner

The company was then invited to adjourn to the auditorium where samples of the work being done in our schools were illustrated by the balopticon and graphaphone.

Miss Martha Caldwell, teacher of music and drawing, was then called upon and told of the method of teaching music in the schools by the use of the graphaphone and several selections from noted singers and several children's songs were given to illustrate her work.

Supt. Reed showed a number of slides illustrating the practical teaching along the various lines of school work by the use of the valaidescope, by sight as well as by word of mouth.

Miss Boag gave a brief synopsis of her work showing how it could be used in her department and, being partial to the Scotch, the slides used were scenes from Burns which were particularly interesting.

Miss Harris spoke of her work and the slides used pictured many old landmarks of our own country as well as scenes from Germany and Italy used in teaching languages.

An adjournment was then made to the lecture room for a general reception and social hour. Ice cream and cake were served to the company.

This meeting together of the school board with these teachers and parents was certainly a fine idea and should be repeated as by this means an added interest will be cultivated for our schools. As promoter of this scheme Supt. Reed deserves much credit for the very successful manner in which it was carried through.

An Engine That Wouldn't Down.

A light American automobile was sold to a tea planter of upper Assam, a region in the Himalayan foothills with scarcely any good roads and a rainfall of from 300 to 500 inches a year. Six months after it was purchased the planter's native chauffeur drove it into a washout on the Cherapunji road during a freshet, and it went rolling 500 feet into the rain swollen river. A week's search failed to reveal any trace of machine or driver. At the end of the rainy season the remains of the machine were found several miles below the point where the accident had occurred. The wheels were gone and the body battered almost beyond recognition, and it was only on the score of sentiment that the planter had the pieces gathered up and taken home by coolies. A month later while on a tour of Assam I saw the salvaged engine and part of the transmission gear set up over a well and actually pumping water to the planter's bungalow on the top of a high ridge.—World's Work.

Fog Signals.

All the up to date light stations possess fog signals for warning the mariner of the presence of rocks and other dangers in foggy weather. The larger ones are so powerful that their blasts can be heard twenty-five to thirty miles out at sea. Most of them are worked by compressed air, a gas engine of perhaps twenty or twenty-five horsepower being brought into requisition for this purpose. The siren is blown periodically every seventy, eighty or ninety seconds or so, the actual blast lasting perhaps about two or three seconds. It means that while the siren is running, in the case of the larger appartus, something like 500 horsepower is being expended in the production of sound.—Scientific American.

The Orator Scored.

"Who is there," cried the impassioned orator, "who will lift a voice against the truth of my statement?"

Just then a donkey on the outskirts of the crowd gave vent to one of the piercing "bee-haws" of the tribe.

The laugh was on the orator for a moment; but, assuming an air of triumph, he lifted his voice above the din to say, "I knew nobody but an ass would try it."—London Globe.

GOOD WORDS FOR REV. JENNINGS FROM MT. CLEMENS

We clip the following from the Mt. Clemens Daily Leader of September 28, relative to Rev. George Jennings the new pastor at the M. E church:

Rev. Jennings has returned from the conference. He was assigned to take the charge at Tecumseh and has accepted the same. There is genuine regret throughout the city that Rev. Jennings and his estimable family are to leave Mount Clemens. Rev. Jennings is an able man, of broad understanding, talented, scholarly, has a fine pulpit presence and a most convincing eloquence that carries the charm of a strong individuality.

He will be missed, not alone for his splendid work in the pulpit, but for the geniality of his personality, reflected in his uplifting intercourse with his church people and the people of the community generally.

Rev. Jennings will be missed for many reasons one of which will be his absence from the banquet board on the local occasions when his wit and eloquence have added so much to the enjoyment of the "spreads" given by the business men's associations or other business or social organizations. As an after dinner speaker, Rev. Jennings has the charm of manner, the taste and wit to suit his always entertaining remarks to the occasion.

OWNERSHIP OF LENAWEE COUNTY'S HOMES

ASTHMA AND HAY FEVER A GUARANTEED TREATMENT.

"I have arranged with B. J. Pulver so that every sufferer from Asthma, Hay Fever or Bronchial Asthma in Tecumseh can try my treatment entirely at my risk," Dr. Rudolph Schiffmann announces. He says: "Buy a 50 cent package of my Asthmador Cigarettes, try it, and if it does not afford you immediate relief, or if you do not find it the best ever used, take it back to B. J. Pulver and they will return your money, cheerfully and without any question whatever. After seeing the grateful relief it has afforded in hundreds of cases, which had been considered incurable, and which had been given up in despair, I know what it will do. I am so sure that it will do the same with others that I am not afraid to guarantee it will relieve instantaneously. The druggists handling Asthmador will return your money if you say so. You are to be the sole judge and under this positive guarantee, absolutely no risk is run in buying Asthmador."

Persons living elsewhere will be supplied under the same guarantee by their local druggist or direct by Dr. R. Schiffmann, St. Paul, Minn.

Beef In Boston In 1740.

A writer in the Yale Review, who notes that in 1740 beef could be bought in Boston at 12 cents a pound, seems to imply that that price was all it was worth. "Invariably a steak for dinner was heralded by the vigorous pounding with the potato masher wielded by the stalwart arm of the cook." The meat, in fact, often came, he tells us, from the carcass of "a cow that no longer gave milk or a bull that had lost its bloom."

"Towel" of Hot Air.

In hotel, factory and public lavatories, where roller towels should not be used because of the danger of spreading skin disease and where the expense of furnishing individual paper or cloth towels is considerable, the electric hand drier may be used economically and satisfactorily. A sanitary hand drier described in the Electrical World consists of a sheet metal case with an opening in its top in which the hands can be inserted and dried by a current of hot air. A foot pedal operates a quick acting switch which starts a blower, forcing air through the electric heater. The hand drier is, of course, absolutely sanitary, as it is unnecessary to touch any part of the apparatus when using it. The hands can be thoroughly dried, it is declared, in from thirty to forty seconds, which is less time than is required to perform the same operation with a linen or paper towel.

Associations.

All experience evinces that human sentiments are strongly affected by associations. The recurrence of anniversaries or of longer periods of time naturally freshens the recollection and deepens the impression of events with which they are historically connected. Renowned places also have a power to awaken feeling which all acknowledge. No American can pass by the fields of Bunker Hill, Monmouth and Camden as if they were ordinary spots on the earth's surface. Whoever visits them feels the sentiment of love of country kindling anew, as if the spirit that belonged to the transactions which have rendered these places distinguished still hovered round with power to move and excite all who in future time may approach them.—Daniel Webster.

Long Honeymoon.

Marriage among Moslems in India is followed by other ceremonies. The bride, with the bridegroom, is taken back to her father's house after four days; then again she comes back to her husband's house after ten days' stay and then after a stay of twenty days returns to her father's house for at least six months. Thus instead of having a short period of honeymoon they make it last almost a year.

Why Roquefort Is Strong.

Roquefort cheese gets its sharp flavor from caproic, caprylic and capric acids and their salts, which are formed by a sort of hydrolysis of the fat during the ripening period. This change is caused by a microbe called Penicillium roquefortii. These acids have a peppery taste.

Many a Tecumseh Citizen Knows How Sure They Are.

Nothing uncertain about the work of Doan's Kidney Pills in Tecumseh. There is plenty of positive proof of this in the testimony of citizens. Such evidence should convince the most skeptical doubter. Read the following statement.

Mrs. C. Stevenson, Wyandotte & Pottawatamie Sts., Tecumseh, says: "The first symptom of kidney complaint in my case was a sharp shooting pain across the small of my back, which made it almost impossible for me to lie down. Someone advised me to give Doan's Kiney Pills a trial and I did, procuring my supply at C. A. Wright & Son's Drug Store. After I had taken this remedy a short time, the pains and aches left and gravel that had been a source of constant suffering no longer troubled me. In fact, I felt like a different person. I have since recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to a number of my friends and shall continue to do so. My former endorsement holds good." Price 50c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Stevenson had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y. adv.

Taught by Example.

Mrs. Mordecai Hammerfest turned pale as her husband entered the dining room for breakfast.

"Mordy," she gasped, "do you—don't you feel well?"

"Perfectly," he replied in seeming surprise.

"But—but you are in your"—

"Tell me something I don't know. Pass the butter, please."

She passed the butter, remarking nervously, "But, Mordy, dear, as you came in I saw you didn't have any shoes on."

"Well, what of it? Your hair is in curl papers, isn't it?"

"Why—y-yes."

"And you have on a wrapper."

"Yes."

"Very well, then."

And he went on eating his breakfast in silence except when he asked her to pass the butter. Then he went upstairs and finished dressing, and the next morning and on succeeding mornings she reported for breakfast in regular clothes.—Boston Journal.

Changing Matter.

"Can the diamond be destroyed by intense heat?" asks a reader.

Yes. Any substance known can be vaporized in the fierce heat of the electric furnace. The word "destroyed" should not have been used. Diamond is chemically pure carbon—that is, lampblack—and the same quantity still exists after the diamond has vanished. Man is now able to destroy the form of all matter known to chemists—that is, matter disappears as matter, only to resolve back into its primordial electrons. These are pure electricity, and nothing else exists. These man cannot create nor destroy. All that any human can create is a thought that had not been created before. But this is a theory, for all thoughts may be eternal. But here one must stop, for our minds cannot think of the meaning of the word eternal.—Edgar Lucien Larkin in New York American.

Burns' Cottage.

The Burns cottage at Ayr is under the charge of trustees, who purchased it in 1881 from the Ayr Shoemakers' incorporation for the sum of £4,000. The birthplace of the poet had up till that time been in use as a public house. The trustees abandoned the license and after a time removed a hall and other extraneous buildings which had been added to the premises and restored the cottage buildings as nearly as possible to the state they may have been in in Burns' time. A new museum was built at the north east corner of the grounds. Most of the relics were removed to the museum, which now contains a priceless collection—a first or Kilmarnock edition of the poet's work, for which £1,000 was paid, and Burns' family Bible, acquired at a cost of £1,700.—London Answers.

AUTO MAKERS OPPOSE TAX ON HORSE POWER

Michigan Manufacturers Protest Against War Measure.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 5.—Thirty-three Detroit and Michigan manufacturers sent a telegram to the Michigan senators and representatives in Washington, protesting against the proposed war tax of $1 per horse power to manufacturers and 25 cents per horse power to owners of motor cars. They say the tax would mean the closing of factories and dismissal of thousands of workmen.

The protest declares that the proposed tax is "confiscatory," that it can not fail to increase the price of motor cars, thereby decreasing the demand and lessening the activities of the plants which build the cars. Though the eventual tax will be borne by the consumer, the industry itself will be the chief sufferer.

Ornithological Weddings.

There was a poetic appropriateness in two weddings which were celebrated in London some time ago in which Mr. Bird led Miss Linnet to the altar and Mr. Wren was linked to Miss Nightingale.

Although it is seldom that one comes across two of these "ornithological" weddings in one day, they are by no means uncommon.

On one occasion a church near Dublin was the scene of an interesting marriage in which a Mr. Crowe was united to a Miss Crowe by the Rev. Canon Peacock, the wedding march being played by Mr. Rook. Much more remarkable, however, was a match which set Edinburgh in a flutter some years since. The bride was Miss Henrietta Peacock, and the bridegroom was Robin Sparrow. The Rev. Mr. Daw performed the marriage ceremony; Philip Hawk officiated as best man and Miss Larkins as principal bridesmaid, while the marriage lines were extracted by John Crow, session clerk.

"It is worthy of further remark," adds a reporter, "that the sexton's name is Raven, one of the pew openers is a Gull, and the assistant sexton is a Hen-ry Laycock."—London Tatler.

GERMANS GAIN AND RETREAT

Joffre Admits Loss In Roye Region.

LINES ARE UNBROKEN

Battle Indecisive; Allies' Flanking Movement Continues.

RUSS PUSH ON IN HUNGARY

Sending of Troops to Aid Von Kluck Weakens Teuton's Center—Joffre Plans to Press Against Mons and Brussels and Aid Antwerp—Battle Along Hills of Champaign Remains Unchanged—Foe Driven Back in Argonne and Along Meuse.

A late official statement from Paris says that the Germans are moving westward. The German cavalry are now signaled in the vicinity of Lille. Fighting of the most desperate character continues. In the vicinity of Arras there has been very slight change. Fierce fighting continues. An attack on the French line holding Lassigny failed.

Paris reports the re-enforced German line continues its efforts to break through the encircling movement of the allies. It has gained slightly at new points, only to be thrust back violently at others.

A great demonstration has been held at Milan, Italy, in favor of war against Austria. Signor Battisti, a Socialist deputy from Trent, Austria, addressed a huge meeting, saying that Trent was awaiting liberation by its Italian brothers.

The German government has served a notice on Roumania that she must not enter Transylvania. The note is considered in the nature of an ultimatum. A hasty meeting of the Roumania cabinet was summoned to consider the communication, but action had to be postponed because of the illness of the king, which is alleged to be a diplomatic illness.

The allies' line has bent under tremendous pressure but remains unbroken. North of the Oise, where the battle front forms a right angle, the fighting is violent but indecisive.

Meanwhile the Germans have apparently failed to check the flanking movement whose point, according to unofficial information, is within sixteen miles of the Belgian frontier, more menacing than ever to Van Kluck's western communications.

General Joffre's purpose now revealed points to a drive at Mons and Brussels, while holding fast in the main battle line. This contemplates the relief of Antwerp as well as a weakening of the German center necessitated by army corps sent from the center to support Von Kluck.

Along the fortified hills of Champaigne, the deadlock continues, but in the Argonne and along the Meuse, the Germans, summoning fresh resources, are sleepless in their efforts to break the allied right wing and so open an urgently needed east and west line of communications from Metz. General Joffre assures the government that the attacks have been beaten back.

The communiques of the twenty-third day of the battle are mere paragraphs of generalities, an indication, invariable of a poignant stage of conflict. The night communique was as follows:

"The general situation is unchanged. On our left wing fighting still continues. In the Argonne and on the heights of the Meuse we have repulsed attacks both by day and by night.

"Grand Duke Nicholas, commander in chief of the Russian army, has sent a telegram announcing the Russian victory at Augustowo to the minister of war to be communicated to General Joffre. General Joffre has sent in his name and in the name of the French army his most hearty congratulations to the generalissimo of the friendly and allied army because of the victory as an indication of future successes."

Allies Admit Reverse.

Official admission of the first French reverse for several days, a setback in the region where success was noted Sunday, was contained in the communique of the afternoon:

"On our left wing north of the Oise the battle continues with the utmost violence, the enemy having again been heavily reinforced. The result of the action continues undecided. We have been compelled to give ground at certain points.

"Along the remainder of the battle line there has been no change in the situation."

Emperor Nisholas Reaches Front.

PETROGRAD — Emperor Nicholas, commander in chief of the Russian armies, has arrived at the headquarters of the active army. This information was given out from general headquarters.

Aeroplanes Battle Over Antwerp.

LONDON — News agency dispatches from Antwerp say that six aeroplanes were engaged in a "battle in the air' over that city, but that finally all dispersed without any being disabled.

PARIS — The Figaro says that the grand duchess of Luxemburg has been deported and is now held as a prisoner of war in a castle near Nuremburg. It also says that the Luxemburg army of 250, including its commander, are also held prisoners in Germany.

Russ Push Invasion of Hungary.

LONDON — Concerning the Russian invasion of Hungary, a dispatch from Rome to the Exchange Telegraph company says: "According to Budapest advices, the capture of Marmaros-Sziget, capital of the Hungarian county of Marmaros, has necessitated the removal of the government of that department to Hustz, twenty-eight miles west-northwest of Szige. A second Russian army now threatens the latter city.

Antwerp Urges Aid For Defense.

LONDON — An Amsterdam dispatch says refuges from Belgium pouring into Holland declare that Antwerp is about to fall.

Ten steamers that have arrived at Flushing were jammed and villages around Maestricht are filled with panic striken refugees.

ANTWERP — Only the military forces actively engaged in the defense of Antwerp are now permitted to go to the front. Because of the danger of German spies no persons are permitted to occupy the spires of the churches or the roofs of the tall buildings.

The bombardment of the southern and eastern chain of forts continues without interval day and night. Rumors are current that some of the forts have been badly damaged, but the war office declares that the resistance is well maintained. The official statement issued said:

Germans Lose Heavily.

"The Germans continue their bombardment of the outer ring of forts. They have utterly failed, however, in their attempts to gain a foothold at any point. In a series of sorties the garrison has inflicted great damage on the enemy, who has now abandoned all efforts to carry our positions by storm. Every single fort and redoubt is holding out."

Despite this optimistic declaration, however, it is known that the pressure is becoming so serious that urgent messages have been sent to the British and French general staffs asking that immediate steps be taken to force the Germans to raise their siege.

Berlin Claims its Plans Successful

LONDON — A dispatch to Reuter's Telegraph company from Berlin gives an official statement issued at the German headquarters. It says:

"In the western theater the battle on the right wing and in the Argonne district is proceeding successfully.

"The operations off Antwerp and in the eastern theater have been carried out according to plan and without fighting."

BERLIN — The Germans now claim to have 2440,000 prisoners of war—about 7,000 British, 40,000 Belgians, 100,000 Russians and the rest French.

Japs Take Jaluit Island.

TOKYO — The navy department issued the following official statement:

"The Japanese squadron delegated to destroy the German fleet in the South Seas has lauded bluejackets on Jaluit Island, the seat of government in the Marshall Archipelago, which was annexed by Germany in 1886. It is believed the German base was destroyed and, that the fortifications, arms and ammunition were seized. A British steamer in port was released. There was no resistance to the Japanese."

Prince Franz of Bavaria Wounded.

MILAN — The Secolo says that Prince Franz, third son of King Ludwig of Bavaria, has been severely wounded by shrapnel.

Italian Ship Sunk; 50 Die.

LONDON — A dispatch from Rome to the Morning Post says: "Another Italian steamship has been reported blown up with the loss of fifty lives by a mine near Trieste. Several more mines have been found in the Adriatic."

Warsaw Totally Dry.

LONDON — A Warsaw dispatch to the Reuter Telegram company says the sale of spirits and wine is prohibited, even in first class restaurants, hotels, and clubs, and that Warsaw is now a completely dry city.

GEN. VON MOLTKE

Chief of German Staff Reported Ousted by Emperor.

LONDON — Lieutenant General Helmuth von Moltke, chief of the German general staff, has been removed from that office by the emperor, according to a report just received here.

An Amsterdam dispatch says that "the dismissal of General von Moltke was due to a collision with the emperor over several important questions of strategy."

AUTO MAKERS OPPOSE TAX ON HORSE POWER

Michigan Manufacturers Protest Against War Measure.

DETROIT, MICH. — Thirty-three Detroit and Michigan manufacturers sent a telegram to the Michigan senators and representatives in Washington, protesting against the proposed war tax of $1 per horse power to manufacturers and [illegible] cents per horse power to owners of motor cars. They say the tax would mean the closing of factories and dismissal of thousands of workmen.

"The protest declares that the proposed tax is confiscatory," that it can not fail to increase the price of motor cars, thereby decreasing the demand and lessening the activities of the plants which build the cars. Though the eventual tax will be borne by the consumer, the industry itself will be the chief sufferer.

Horse Bites Wexford Farmer.

CADILLAC, MICH. — Joseph McCane, a [illegible] township farmer, is in a critical condition as the result of injuries received when attacked by a vicious horse. The animal bit McCane on the neck and missed the jugular vein by a fraction of an inch.

Boushaw Denies Guilt.

PONTIAC, MICH. — Billy Boushaw, self-styled boss of "the foist of the foist" in Detroit, entered a plea of not guilty when arraigned on a charge of stealing apples from William Williamson, Watkins Lake.

Jackson Tot Drinks Gasoline.

JACKSON, MICH. — Virginia, the two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Hozardis, nearly died as the result of drinking gasoline while at play. She was removed to the city hospital and will recover.

COMPENSATION LAW FAULTY, SAYS DRAKE

Court Decision Calls for Amendment, Declares Board Head.

LANSING, MICH. — "The workingmen of Michigan must see to it that the compensation law is so amended that their widows and dependents can obtain one-half of their earning capacity at the time of their accidental death. That was the meaning of the legislature in the present law and if the workingmen are to be saved it must be so fixed in plain language," said Secretary Richard L. Drake of the Michigan industrial accident board in commenting on the supreme court decision in the Andrejwski case.

None of the members of the board nor Mr. Drake will go farther in discussing the decision of the court. Unquestionably the court's ruling upset many calculations of the board and has placed an entirely different complexion on the law as the board has been administering, and as it applies to seasonable occupations. In the opinion of many, workers in several of the more important industries, of the state are hard hit by it.

M. A. C. CRITICS ANSWERED

Snyder Says Abolishment of Engineering Course Would Cripple College.

EAST LANSING, MICH. — In his annual report to the state board of agriculture, which he will present at the meeting in October, President J. L. Snyder of the Michigan Agricultural college gives considerable space to the defense of the engineering department, which has been the object of much criticism recently.

He maintains the engineering department cannot be abolished because of certain restrictions placed on the college by the United States government, if the institution is to receive federal aid. He also asserts the abolishment of the department would cripple the agricultural course. The agricultural students, he states, have to use the equipment and take instruction in many branches of the engineering department, and if the department were to be abolished, such branches as physics, surveying, drawing and shop work would have to be continued for the agricultural course.

ALLEGED THIEVES ROBBED

Attempt to Sell Watch Causes Farmer to Send for Sheriff.

MONROE, MICH. — Paul Keating, seventeen years old, Toledo, arrested by Sheriff Renner and Undersheriff Cronwett after a chase, in which the sheriff was forced to use his revolver, has been turned over to the Toledo authorities.

It is alleged Keating and two companions stole an automobile belonging to Dr. E. I. McKesson, of Todelo, intending to go to Detroit, but the gasoline gave out near Dundee. One of the party was given $2 to purchase gasoline the next morning, but he never returned. The others, it is said, then attempted to sell a watch to a farmer, who notified Sheriff Renner. On the approach of the officers both suspects fled into a corn field. Keating was caught while the other escaped. The machine was recovered.

Trelawney's Sacrifice

In Which It Is Shown That There Is No Friendship Like That Which Costs Another's Honor

By CHARLES EDWARD RICH

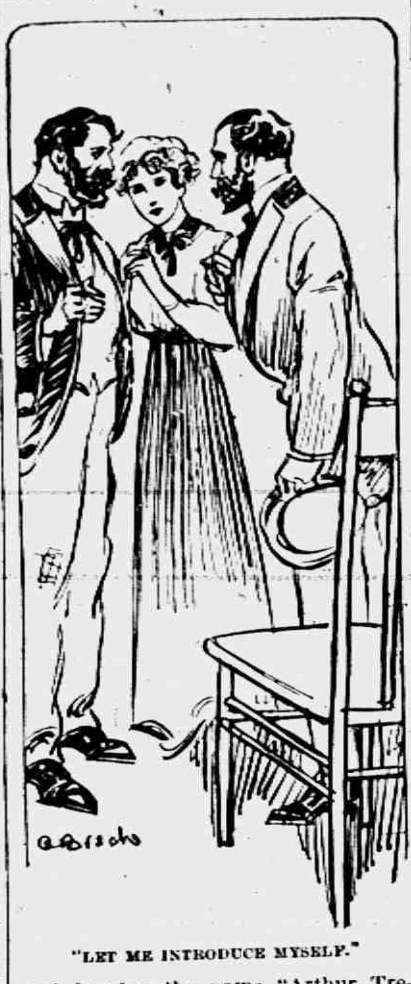
Copyright by Frank A. Munsey Co.

One night more than a year ago I was called at a late hour by the surgeon to set down in legal form the last words and wishes of a dying man.

I immediately responded to the call and was met at the door by a beautiful woman. Weeping bitterly, she told me that I was too late; that my services could not avail, as her husband was dead. Of course there was nothing to do but go away. I thought no more of the case until, two days afterward, I learned that the dead man was Arthur Trelawney and that he had shot himself.

Arthur Trelawney had been a dear friend of mine. We were students together at Heidelberg.

I at once hastened to the house to tender my services to his stricken widow. Again I was too late. The body had been removed to an undertaker's, and the woman had gone without leaving any address.



"LET ME INTRODUCE MYSELF."

You can now understand my amazement when about a month ago my office boy one morning handed me a card bearing the name "Arthur Trelawney." Dumfounded, I gazed at the card as if it were a message from the dead. Then I noticed some small letters in the lower corner. They read, "Formerly Captain Paul Thornton, Her Majesty's Ninth Volunteers."

The door swung open, and a big, bronzed, heavily bearded man strode into the room. I gasped with astonishment as he advanced toward me, smiling, his hands outstretched in warm greeting. Despite the changes made by time and beard, I knew him for Trelawney. Before he could utter the words that were on his tongue I cried out:

"Trelawney—Trelawney, alive?"

"Yes, very much alive," he answered as he wrung my hands.

And then, after he had insisted on hearing a brief account of my doings from the time we lost touch with each other, he told me his strange story, and here it is:

Thornton was poor and boarded with Professor Max Braun, who had a daughter, Gretchen. Her father exacted a promise from her that she would not marry while he lived. She remained heart free till she met Paul Thornton; then it was a case of love at sight with both. They became engaged, but kept the engagement secret.

Trelawney, who was wealthy, in order to be near his friend went to board with Professor Braun. He, too, fell in love with Gretchen and proposed to her. For a time she concealed the avowal, then told Paul. Paul, pained and shocked, kept the matter to himself till Trelawney told him of his love for Gretchen, then announced to his friend that he was engaged himself to Gretchen and that she had told him Trelawney had proposed to her too.

"It would have been far better, Paul, if you had told me before," said Trelawney.

Thornton silently acquiesced, and Trelawney knocked the ashes out of his pipe, rose to his feet and held out his hand to Thornton.

"Paul," he said, "let this make no difference in our friendship, but I must go away. I can get over it better alone."

The next day Trelawney left Heidelberg and the young couple announced their engagement to the professor. He, to their surprise, consented to a speedy marriage, and all lived happily together till the professor's death some years later.

This break in their quiet life aroused a spark of slumbering ambition in Thornton, and as soon as practicable he took his wife to London.

From the start ill fortune attended him. He was unable to find employment for which he was fitted, and his small income went only a short way in London. Matters grew worse and worse until they were compelled to take one room in a cheap lodging house.

One night Thornton went home staggering under a blow harder than any he had been called upon to bear. The little clerkship that they had depended on, even for their meager living, was to be taken from him in a month because of a reduction in the office force, and simultaneously he had been called upon to bear arms in South Africa.

His face was pale and haggard as he entered the little room, which was almost in darkness. As he hesitated on the threshold a hearty voice from the gloom cut him to the heart.

"Hello, Paul, old man! I've tracked you at last. Thought you could shake me, didn't you?"

It was Trelawney, and before Thornton realized it he was sobbing like a child on his friend's shoulder.

"Arthur, God bless you! I hoped you would never know how far down and I have been sliding."

"That fool pride of yours, I know. Well, I meant to find you, and I have. Now, the only thing for a man to do who is sliding down hill is to dig his toes in deep and begin to climb back again."

"But I slipped pretty close to the bottom today," replied Thornton, and then he told Trelawney and his wife of the untoward events of the day. Gretchen gave a sharp cry and buried her face in her hands. Trelawney turned to her quickly, his lips setting into a hard line. He sat silent while the woman wept softly, and then, shaking himself as if aroused from a dream, he said:

"Come, I see a way clearly out of this. We will lay it all over until tomorrow."

The next night Trelawney was in high spirits when he entered Thornton's room.

"Congratulate me, Paul and Gretchen!" he cried. "I am going to South Africa."

Husband and wife stared at Trelawney in amazement, and finally Paul said:

"Going to South Africa! Why, you said nothing about this last night. You surely had no such intention yesterday. What is the meaning of this sudden impulse, for such it seems to be?"

"Well, yes, it is a sudden impulse, and as to its meaning you will learn that later on."

"No. Be frank, Trelawney; tell me its meaning now."

"Well, Paul, it simply means that you can remain with your wife."

"Trelawney, do you mean that you have enlisted as my substitute and without my consent?" said Paul.

"Substitute? No, Paul, it will never be said that Paul Thornton sent another to the front for him, for I know you would not have it so."

"What is this enigma?" asked Paul.

"Let me introduce myself—Paul Thornton of Her Majesty's Ninth volunteers. Now, listen to me, Paul. I am making no sacrifice. It all fits in perfectly with my plans for the future."

"But I shall stop you. I shall go to the war office and"—

"That will be useless. The war office will not be open until tomorrow, and by midnight I shall be out of London. Paul, nothing can be more to my liking. Pray do not try to block a plan which will give me more pleasure than perhaps I shall ever enjoy again in my life. I have no ties, no responsibilities.

"Take now your own case: What would Gretchen do in a strange country without friends or means of support while you were away? Instead of that, it pleases me—and you must not try to rob me of this gratification—that Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Trelawney sail within the week for America—in fact, their passage is already booked on the Lucania. The agent sent them the tickets by me."

"And Trelawney's solicitor has been instructed to send to him in America only a portion of his income, and he has obtained a letter of credit and the necessary credentials."

Trelawney placed another envelope on the table.

"Arthur, I say you shall not do this!" broke out Thornton.

"Paul," he said slowly, "surely you will not deny me the great happiness I shall take in doing this thing for—for Gretchen?"

They both looked into his eyes and saw the pleading, and they both knew that it was for the woman he loved that he wished to make the sacrifice.

They came to America, where the new Trelawney sank under the influence of drink and morphine.

Gretchen watched the change in him with fear. At first her influence held him somewhat in check, but at last even his love for her was deadened by his excesses. He constantly feared exposure, as if he were guilty of some great crime.

After the close of the war Trelawney remained in South Africa and only recently returned to London, where he startled his solicitor as much as he startled me. It was only then that he learned of Thornton's death under his name. He started at once for America.

His first purpose was to find the widow. In time he discovered that she was working as a saleswoman in a dry goods store and had managed to support herself comfortably. As may be expected, Trelawney married her.

Scott Liked Work Pressure.

Scott, who was poet, novelist, lawyer, too, would have been greatest of all as journalist. Listen to this from his journal for Feb. 15, 1826: "Yesterday I did not write a line of 'Woodstock.' Partly, I was a little out of spirits. * * * Partly, I wanted to wait for some new ideas. * * * Partly, I was a little too far beyond the press. I cannot pull well in long traces, when the draft is too far behind me. I love to have the press thumping, clattering and banging in my rear. It creates the necessity which almost makes me work best. Needs must when the devil drives." * * * There is the very spirit of journalism, and that devil surely is the printer's devil!—London Standard.

Do You Know?

Most people are fond of good puzzles, and many are not entirely happy until they have solved them, but the man who resolves not to go to bed until he has found a divisor without a remainder (other than 1 and itself) for 1,111,111,111,111,111,111 will be able to earn a good living afterward as a sleepless wonder, for nobody in the world yet knows whether that number has a divisor or not.

Songs of a Nation.

Andrew Fletcher, a Scotch writer, who died in 1716, wrote to the Marquis of Montrose, the Earl of Rothes and others, "I once knew a very wise man that believed that if a man were permitted to make all the ballads of a nation he need not care who should make the laws of a nation."

Courage of Innocence.

To dread no eye and to suspect no tongue is the greatest prerogative of innocence; an exemption granted only to invariable virtue.—Johnson.

Wrong Both Ways.

"You refused the earl, Amalie, dear?" Young Widow—He's too old for me. "But his title?" "That too new for me!"—Die Muskete, Vienna.

WHAT ABOUT THE CHURCH?

Nov. 8 "The Church as a school." Convention Sunday. Evening—"The old man from Italy." Stereopticon.

Nov. 15 "Your place in the church" Evening—Why people go to sleep in church."

Nov. 22 "Why I belong to the church" Evening—"The sons of Ham." Stereopticon.

SUNDAY SCHOOL OFFICERS ELECTED.

The Presbyterian Sunday-school officers were elected at the meeting of the Sunday-school board Wednesday evening as follows:

Superintendent—Elmer Slayton.
Asst. Supt.—R. M. Molles.
Sec'y and Treas.—Burton Garlinghouse.
Enrollment Sec'y—Edith Gray.

The heads of the other departments remain the same as last year.

RALLY DAY

Dr. Hartzog began his sixth year as pastor of the Baptist church last Sunday and it was celebrated as Rally day. There were 111 present at the morning service 116 at the Sunday school 35 at the Young People's meeting and 87 at the lecture in the evening. This is a very fair average of the attendance during the year. Supt. W. L. Reed spoke before the men's class which was joined on this occasion by the woman of the Church, his talk was along the lines of the best way of Getting People to Church, and was exceptionally fine. Much enthusiasm was shown at every meeting of the day and the year opened up most pleasantly for Rev. Dr. Hartzog.

WHEN OUR NATION IS AT ITS BEST.

Sunday Evening Lectures.

October 4 I begin my sixth year of ministry. I propose to celebrate this event by beginning a course of lectures under the title "When Our Nation Is at Its Best." There will be eight lectures in this course. I invite you to study this vital subject with me. You are an American and will want to know more about your nation. I propose to advocate the New Patriotism. The Old Patriotism asked our boys to be ready to defend us from outside enemies. The New Patriotism calls us to fight the inside enemies which threaten our nation vastly more than any foreign foe.

REV. W. B. HARTZOG, PH. D.

Program of Sunday evening lectures:—

Oct. 4. Our Nation is at its best, when it cares for its people and contributes a lofty type of manhood.

Oct. 11. Our Nation is at its best, when it presents great ideas and leads mankind into a better way.

Oct. 18. Our Nation is at its best, when it stands for Peace as against Militarism.

Oct. 25. Our Nation is at its best, when it ministers to All Nations and Nationalities.

Nov. 1. Our Nation is at its best, when the people rule.

Nov. 8. Our Nation is at its best, when it considers the rights of the unborn.

Nov. 15. Our Nation is at its best, when it cares well for the newborn.

Nov. 22. Can we be regarded as one of the great nations of the earth?

Lifting Dead Weight.

There is a more or less popular belief that it is easier to lift up a living body and carry it some distance than to carry a small, compact "dead" weight, such as iron dumbbells. Somebody several thousands of years before any art of writing was invented imagined this thing and told it to his next door man. He told it and so all along the ages and centuries. Pure hallucination, along with hundreds of others now injuring this modern scientific age. If a person weighing 150 pounds appears lighter than anything weighting fifty or seventy-five pounds, it is simply because a distorted mind of some weak man imagined it, maybe 100,000 years ago. Same origin for all current myths.—New York American.

Cheering Him Up.

Little Jackie—How soon are you and my sister going to be married? Ecstatic Lover—She has not named the happy day yet, but I hope she does not believe in long engagements. Little Jackie—She doesn't, I know, 'cause all her engagements have been short!—London Telegraph.

Didn't Give Her a Chance.

"After all, Clara, it is not such a serious matter if you quarreled with your fiance. Remember, the wise one gives in."

"That's just it; he gave in almost immediately."—Munich Meggendorfer Blatter.

ASTHMA AND HAY FEVER A GUARANTEED TREATMENT.

"I have arranged with B. J. Pulver so that every sufferer from Asthma, Hay Fever or Bronchial Asthma in Tecumseh can try my treatment entirely at my risk," Dr. Rudolph Schiffmann announces. He says: "Buy a 50 cent package of my Asthmador Cigarettes, try it, and if it does not afford you immediate relief, or if you do not find it the best ever used, take it back to B. J. Pulver and they will return your money, cheerfully and without any question whatever. After seeing the grateful relief it has afforded in hundreds of cases, which had been considered incurable, and which had been given up in despair, I know what it will do. I am so sure that it will do the same with others that I am not afraid to guarantee it will relieve instantaneously. The druggists handling Asthmador will return your money if you say so. You are to be the sole judge and under this positive guarantee, absolutely no risk is run in buying Asthmador."

Persons living elsewhere will be supplied under the same guarantee by their local druggist or direct by Dr. R. Schiffmann, St. Paul, Minn.

Chamberlain and His Monocles.

While the late Joseph Chamberlain was crossing Palace yard one day some years ago he was accosted by an American girl with the cool request, "Mr. Chamberlain, please do give me your eyeglass for my cabinet at home."

It was at once handed to her, guard and all, so promptly that the curio hunter apparently felt some remorse and stammered, "Most likely I'm inconveniencing you." "Not at all," replied Mr. Chamberlain as he produced from his pocket a morocco case and took from it a spare monocle, which he screwed in position, and then went on his way, smiling.—London Express.

A Spade and an Acre.

AND THEN THEY TOOK A CHAIR TO HIM.

Rev. Dr Hartzog set upon by his Parishioners with a large leather Chair, Wednesday evening October 7, 1914

At the close of the mid-week prayer meeting Wednesday evening, Rev W. B. Hartzog quietly and peacefully returned to his home, little thinking of what was in waiting for him

Having finished five years of succesful service as pastor of the Baptist Church and beginning on the sixth, with an earnest endeavor to do as well if not better than in the past, his many friends were moved to make their appreciation manifest in a striking manner, so armed with a beautiful leather chair they stormed his camp and made a forcible entrance. and were holding the fort. in darkness, when he reached home. The invading army was a large one, and the Rev. and wife surrendered gracefully.

After a social time A. O. Howard in behalf of the invaders. called Rev. Hartzog to order, and in a very pleasing speech presented him with the chair, he responded in a very feeling manner.

Refreshments of ice cream and cake were then served. The company then departed to their homes feeling that the evening had been a good one.

CONGREGATIONAL MEETING

Of Presbyterians Tuesday Evening with Pot Luck Supper--Church Out of Debt—Pastor's Salary Increased

Tuesday's was certainly a happy evening for the Presbyterians. Then was held their annual congregational meeting, a pot luck supper at which nearly 100 were served, preceding the business session.

R. A. Heesen, chairman of the board of trustees, presided at the latter portion of the evening's program, calling for reports from the different organizations of the church.

First the treasurer of the church, J. H. Smith, reported the finances of the church in excellent condition. His books showed a deficiency of $537.20 October 1, 1913, while on October 1, 1914, all indebtedness has been paid and $211 86 remains to the church's credit. Quite naturally this report was applauded.

Ladies Aid Society—Mrs S. W. Anderson

Florence Weld Guild—Miss Edith Rector.

Ladies Missionary Circle—Mrs. Andrew Wilson.

The Benevolences—Richard Molles.

The pastor's report was very pleasing and showed an enormous amount of work taking into account the fact that he had only been installed as pastor six days before. All the reports show the different branches of church work, to be in a most prosperous condition.

At the election of officers R. M. Molles was elected to succeed himself as treasurer of benevolences. Earl Rector succeeds himself as trustee and J. R. Nyland is the new trustee elected.

A number of improvements to the church property were discussed and as an appreciation of the hard work and good service of Rev. Rex since his coming to Tecumseh, it was voted to increase his salary to $1400 00 which was carried unanimously.

The business of the evening was finished with the alotment of pews.

PETTING SCARES HIS HORSE

And Wexford County Under Sheriff Is Hurt in Runaway.

CADILLAC, MICH. — Because a friend attempted to pet a horse he was driving, Artie Richardson, under sheriff of Wexford county, was seriously injured and narrowly escaped death.

The horse took fright and jumped. Richardson was hurled from his seat and one of the wheels of the vehicle passed over his head, cutting a long, deep gash and tearing one ear partly off.

Many a Tecumseh Citizen Knows How Sure They Are.

Nothing uncertain about the work of Doan's Kidney Pills in Tecumseh. There is plenty of positive proof of this in the testimony of citizens. Such evidence should convince the most skeptical doubter. Read the following statement

Mrs. C Stevenson, Wyandotte & Pottawatamie Sts., Tecumseh, says; "The first symptom of kidney complaint in my case was a sharp shooting pain across the small of my back, which made it almost impossible for me to lie down Someone advised me to give Doan's Kiney Pills a trial and I did, procuring my supply at C. A Wright & Son's Drug Store. After I had taken this remedy a short time, the pains and aches left and gravel that had been a source of constant suffering, no longer troubled me. In fact, I felt like a different person. I have since recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to a number of my friends and shall continue to do so. My former endorsement holds good." TAX TO HELP HAZERS' VICTIM

Student Council Orders Levy Made on Sophomore Class.

ANN ARBOR, MICH. — At a special session of the student council of the university, it was decided to levy a tax on all sophomores to defray the expenses of Russell Jacobs, the freshman who was injured by being hazed by second year men. Jacobs is practically helpless, as his right wrist was broken and his left wrist is nearly useless because of a bad sprain and torn ligaments.

Jacobs asked the student council to rescind its action, saying it was all in the course of a college career, but the council refused, as it believes the tax may succeed in checking hazing.

NEWS OF THE STATE

Boy Loses Battle For Life.

BIG RAPIDS, MICH. — Thomas Goodsell, thirteen, of Remus, was killed at Evans lake by an accidental discharge of a shot gun.

He and a young friend, Armond Ariss, were hunting ducks on the lake in a small boat and Ariss, who had just shot a duck, was rowing to pick it up when Goodsell saw another and reached for the gun which was laying across the seat pointed toward him. As he drew it to him one of the hammers caught on the seat and the charge entered his left side, passed through his body and came out under his shoulder. The discharge set fire to his clothing. The boy pluckily tore off his shirt and threw it into the water. He also attempted to stop the flow of blood himself while his companion rowed ashore, half a mile away. He survived only a few hours.

Says Her Lover Stole $960.

JACKSON, MICH. — Miss Gertrude Eisler of Ionia appealed to the police to arrest Emery Smith, who, she charges, stole $960 from her.

According to the story told by Miss Eisler, who is thirty-two years old, she met Smith in Ionia, where she was employed in a hotel. Smith is twenty-seven years old. She became infatuated with him and he pretended, she says, to return this affection. They came to Jackson and she says she lived with him as his wife, the formality of a marriage ceremony being neglected. Later Miss Eisler found Smith gone and also her savings of $960, which she had secreted in a pillow slip.

Just in Time For Funeral.

HOLLAND, MICH. — Instead of a pleasant visit with his sister, Mrs Harm Tenhave of New Holland, which he had expected for weeks, Klaas Brower of Los Angeles, Cal., arrived to attend a funeral.

When Mrs. Tenhave was notified by telephone that her brother had reached Holland she was in the best of health and asked her daughters to bring him home in the auto. While the daughters were making the drive of twelve miles, Mrs. Tenhave was stricken with paralysis and when the party reached home she was barely able to talk. She died a few hours later.

Passes Bogus "Twenties."

ALMA, MICH. — Several Alma merchants have been victimized during the last few days by a stranger who has been passing $2 bills for tens and twenties.

The large blue two and the large twos in the corners were erased, the one space being left blank and the others worked in with larger numbers. The twenty-four small twos on the note were inked over. The ink was several shades from that of the note and the workmanship in places very crude.

RUSS THREATEN RETREATING FOE

Germans Are Driven From Niemen River Region.

WARSAW INVASION IS HALTED

Czar's Men Take Tarnow Fortress—Cossacks Within Ten Miles of Cracow—Southern Army Takes Offensive—Central Army Under Czar Is Marching Toward Brest-Litovsk.

The Russian armies in pursuit of the Germans who have been driven from the Nieman River region are now threatening the Germans on their front and flank.

LONDON — The news from the eastern theater of war, summarized, is as follows:

In northwestern Galicia, the Russians have captured the fortress of Tarnow. Cossacks are raiding within ten miles of Cracow. The czar's southern armies are developing their offensive against the right wing of the Austro-German forces.

In southwestern Poland, in the general region of Cracow, near Kielce, Russian cavalry has defeated German troops sent from France to defend Cracow. Unquestionably a great battle has been begun in that region, a combat which may determine the fate of Cracow and Silestia.

To the north in western Poland, a great force of Germans striking toward Warsaw has been checked and pressed back by the Russians. Simultaneously the Russian central army, now under the personal command of Czar Nicholas, is advancing toward the Posen-Kalisz line with Brest-Litovsk, a railway center on the Bug river, as its base. The cavalry screen of this army is in conflict with German outposts.

Rennenkampf Holds Germans.

In the East Prussia-Suwalki field of operations General Rennenkampf, after routing the Germans along the River Niemen and frustrating an advance toward Warsaw from the northwest, has driven a wedge between German columns acting respectively around Druskeniki and Ossowiec and has turned both flanks.

Rennenkampf's large force is obviously struggling to hold at bay the German force at the East Prussia frontier so as to give time for the advance of the Russian central army against Breslau. Petrograd reports that he has been uniformly successful in this strategy.

For the first time there is definite news of the Russian central army, the host which has been preparing for the real invasion of Germany while campaigns in East Prussia and Galicia have served to insure the safety of the flanks. This army, estimated as of 1,000,000 men, is under the command of the Grand Duke Nicholas, the Russian commander in chief, with headquarters at Brest-Litovsk, a railway junction at the intersection of the Bug and Moukhavietz rivers.

Says German Army Cut In Two.

A dispatch from the Matin of Paris says:

"The German army in the east, operating in the Suwalki region has been cut in two. One section has been crushed between Augustowa and Suwalki with losses amounting to 60,000 men. The second section proceeded to Mariampol, which place the Russians have occupied, inflicting enormous losses upon the Germans. The River Niemen is choked with German dead

"An Austrian column has been decimated at Nimoukitz, leaving guns and mitrailleuses. Many prisoners were taken by the Russians.

16 Killed in Mine Blast.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA. — Sixteen men are known to be dead and twelve injured as the result of a pocket gas explosion at the Mulga mine of the Woodward Iron company near Ensley. Only nine of the sixteen dead have been brought out.

Mine officials state the explosion was caused by striking a pocket of gas.

Senate Passes Clayton Bill.

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The senate adopted the conference report on the Clayton bill late by a vote of 35 to 24. Just prior to taking that action it refused to recommit the bill to the conference committee on a motion by Senator Reed by a vote of 35 to 25.

Business Suspended During Funeral.

BATTLE CREEK, MICH. — Honors second only to those paid the late Chas W. Post were accorded Pay Commissioner W. H. Mason here when banks and other institutions closed during the hours of his funeral and business men and manufacturers marched, under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce, through the streets as an escort of honor.

Modesty.

Dribbler—In my opinion a man who writes an illegible hand does it because he thinks people are willing to puzzle over it. In other words, he is a chunk of conceit.

Scribbler—Not always. Sometimes a man writes illegibly not because he is conceited but because he is modest.

"Modest! What about?"

TRYING DEAD ONE, OF COURSE

Widow Testifies In Case Where Her Husband Was Murdered.

Marion, Ind., Oct. 12.—In the trial of Charles C. Davis, charged with the murder of Willard Mossburg, the widow of the slain man testified that before leaving home the morning he was shot her husband poured half a bottle of whisky into another receptacle. Noticing that it had a white sediment, she poured some of it in the milk for the cat, which drank of the fluid and soon afterward died. Coroner Cameron testified that, testing out the half of a bottle found in Mossburg's pocket, the decoction caused the death of a dog. Mossberg had asked Davis to drink with him before the shooting occurred, it was charged.

Davis is pleading self-defense. He was resentful of Mossberg's attentions to his wife. The evidence showed that Mossberg had signed a written contract to support and marry Mrs. Davis as soon as divorces could be obtained. Mrs. Davis had also signed a confession that she loved Mossberg better than she did her own husband.

AVIATOR DROPS BOMBS IN PARIS

German Flyer Lets Twenty Fall In Center of City.

THREE KILLED; FOURTEEN HURT

One Bomb Dropped on Cathedral of Notre Dame Fails to Explode—London Reports Germans Moving Toward Ostend—Both Paris and London Report Victories.

Paris, Oct. 12.—German aviators dropped twenty bombs into various districts of Paris killing three persons and wounding fourteen others.

The Germans flew over the city at a very low altitude for an hour. After the attacking aeroplanes apparently had exhausted their supply of missiles French aeroplans ascended and pursued them, chasing the Germans toward the east.

Two hostile aeroplanes appeared at the same time. One dropped a bomb on the roof of the cathedral of Notre Dame, but the missile did not explode. Another fell near the northern railway terminal, a third in Rue St. Lazare

French Report Victories.

Paris, Oct. 12.—German cavalry was signally defeated Saturday in battle for the possession of positions necessary for the crossing of the River Lys. The invaders were driven into retreat toward Armentieres.

French troops were victorious in a two day's battle for the possession of the village of Apremont, east of St. Mihiel, and also on the center of the battle line, where they advanced to new positions after having repulsed a night attack of the enemy.

Germans Moving Toward Ostend.

London, Oct. 12.—German troops are advancing swiftly toward Ostend, hoping to capture the city by a sudden attack and make prisoners of King Albert and the Belgian government officials, according to a dispatch from The Hague.

Strong British reinforcements have permitted the Belgian army to pass Ghent intact to effect a consolidation with the allies.

20,000 Germans Defeated.

Twenty thousand Germans marching westward were defeated near Termonde by a large force of French and British.

Belgian, British and French armies took position on a new battle line southeast of Ostend for the defense of that city and for a resumption of offensive operations against the German lines of communication in Belgium.

HOLLAND IS PUT BETWEEN FIRES

Fall of Antwerp Imperils Dutch Neutrality.

MOUTH OF SCHELDT IS STAKE

Attitude of Dutch Government of Intense Interest—Leaders Profess Holland Is Friendly to Allies, But Indications Are People Favor Germany—Germans Tactful.

London, Oct. 12.—The fall of Antwerp places Holland squarely between closing mill stones of British and German interests. For Antwerp to be of any use to Germany as a base for naval or aerial operations against England, the kaiser must control the mouth of the Scheldt which is altogether in Dutch hands. There is reliable information that Germany is urging the Dutch government to relinquish that control. Such diplomatic success by Germany would be a direct violation of the neutrality of Holland, as provocative to England as the military seizure of Belgium and as certain to be fraught with tremendous consequences.

Dutch Attitude Interesting.

The attitude of the Dutch government becomes there of intense interest. Despite assertions by Dutch politicians that the majority of the people of Holland favor the cause of the allies and are determined to hold their government to strict neutrality, there have been ominous signs that the sympathies of Holland are actually with Germany and that Germany has been receiving supplies through Dutch ports in spite of the British navy to winnow suspicious cargoes and in spite of the protest actions of the Dutch leaders. It is not [illegible] to say that submission [illegible] German persuasion or force [illegible] compel the British government [illegible] action, action that might easily involve the Dutch nation in the war.

Germans Tactful With Holland.

Hitherto German diplomacy blundering elsewhere, achieved notable objects as regards Holland. Berlin has treated Holland with the most circumspect politeness. Holland has been flooded with press matter glorifying the German cause. As a result Germany, with a blockaded coast and an inactive [illegible] has been able to use Holland's ports as if they were German ports. England, with constantly growing irritation, has been obliged to endure this most unsatisfactory state of affairs. But if Holland resigns the mouth of the Scheldt to Germany and her neutrality becomes flagrantly one-sided as, to many, it has appeared secretly to be, the whole situation may change over night. The crisis is as delicate and as charged with explosive factors as can readily be imagined.

CHICAGO VICE KING WILL BE DEPORTED

Charles Maibaum and Wife Must Return to France.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 12.—Deportation of undesirable aliens, interrupted by the opening of the European war, will be resumed this week to several foreign countries.

Immigration officials in Chicago and many other cities will start Monday to hunt down the undesirables, many of whom have been released upon their own recognizance because of the government's inability to obtain passage for them on foreign bound ships.

Chicago will lose one of its old time vice kings as a result of the order. He is Charles Maibaum, at one time owner of the St. Charles hotel, on South State street, and the proprietor of other dives.

Maibaum has conducted a legal fight for the last six years to prevent his deportation. Both he and his wife will be in the first shipment of undesirables from Chicago, say the immigration inspectors.

When arrested and ordered deported Maibaum produced naturalization papers and defied the authorities. Then Federal Judge Landis canceled the naturalization certificates. Maibaum appealed the case to the United States supreme court.

Last January the supreme court affirmed Judge Landis' decision, but Maibaum did not give up his battle. Soon afterward United States Senator Lewis obtained for him a ninety day stay of proceedings on the plea that he would need that time in which to dispose of his "red light" district property.

Maibaum and his wife are both natives of France, and upon the theory that his life will be endangered there because of the war, he is expected to make on more effort to stay deportation.

The Playwright of St. Petersburg

A Story of the Russian Revolution

By EUNICE BLAKE

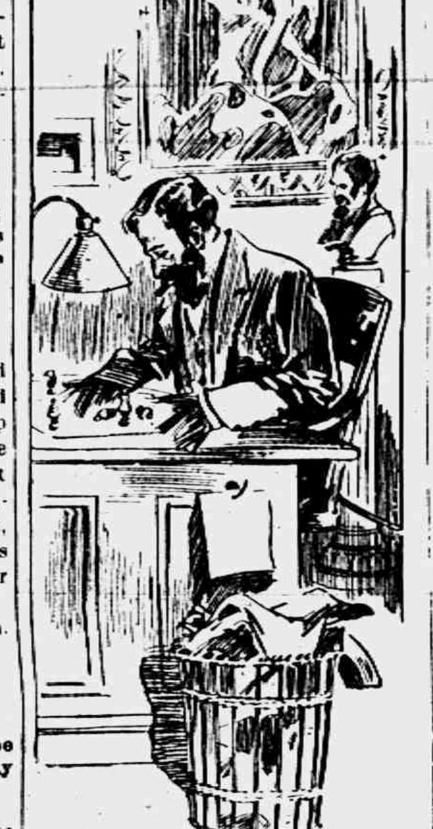
The chief of police in St. Petersburg called one of his most efficient men into his private office and said to him:

"Vronsky, there is a plot hatching to assassinate the grand duke. We have but a trifle of information about it, but on what we have we must build the rest. To do this we need to proceed with the utmost caution. The name of Peter Alexandrovitch has been given us, but merely as a suspect. I wish you to set a watch upon him; note who goes to see him and whom he goes to see. Intercept his mail, but do not retain it. After having examined it reseal it and pass it on, but be careful to leave no traces of having opened it."

The chief then gave his deputy the address of the suspected man and sent him forth on his work.

Vronsky hired a room opposite Alexandrovitch's house. Alexandrovitch's name was down on the police lists as a playwright. Every morning by 9 o'clock he was in his study, which was on the second floor, working at his plays. Vronsky, whose room was a story lower than the study, could only see the playwright's head, though his desk was close beside the window.

Sometimes Alexandrovitch would move about the room or appear to shift something before him on his desk, but Vronsky could not see what he was doing, only that he was in motion. At other times Alexandrovitch would sit perfectly still, his eyes bent down on his desk without the slightest movement. Vronsky could understand why he should move about the room or at his desk, but not why he should sit perfectly still. He referred the matter to a theatrical man, who said that usually a play was made by first laying down what is called the scenario—that is, the story. Some playwrights use dummy figures on a miniature stage while making the scenario, and when they have finished it they write the dialogue. It was suggested to Vronsky that Alexandrovitch when moving at his desk was making his scenario and when still was engaged in writing the dialogue of his plays.



THERE SAT THE PLAYWRIGHT AT HIS WORK.

Vronsky gave orders at the postoffice that Alexandrovitch's mail be returned for examination. A letter thus intercepted contained a statement that the suspect had been working for several days on the scenario of a play and that he would spend the balance of the week in putting in the dialogue. The watcher had noticed that his man had been active at his desk, and for the next few days he was remarkably quiet, sitting for hours at a time without apparent motion, though several times he turned his head from the window. On each of these occasions the motion was followed by a lady coming to the window to change the curtain to let in or cut off light, as required.

It did not seem to Vronsky that there was any doubt that Alexandrovitch was, during the day at least, following his vocation as playwright. But this had nothing to do with any secret work he might be doing. Besides the official, having been ordered to watch the suspect, remained at his post. One day he was sent for by his chief, who asked him if he had seen Alexandrovitch the day before.

"I did," was the reply. "He sat writing at a window of his house most of the day."

"Are you sure?"

"I saw him with my eyes."

The chief looked puzzled. "I have information that he was seen in Moscow yesterday," he said. "He was disguised, but was recognized through his disguise."

"Then he must have been in two places at once."

"Did you see him about noon?"

"I did. When I went to dinner he was writing at his desk."

"H'm!"

"Was he seen in Moscow at that hour?"

"My informant reports that he saw him there."

"Can you rely on your informant?"

"That is the question. We never know when we hire a spy that he does not enter our service for the purpose of gaining information for the revolutionists."

"Do you doubt that I am true to his majesty's interests?"

"I have perfect confidence in you."

"Then have a care how you tell your secrets to whoever has told you that he saw Peter Alexandrovitch in Moscow yesterday. I swear to you that just before I went to dinner yesterday—I go at half past 12—I saw a lady, likely the suspect's wife, come to the window, pull the shade partly down—for the sun had come around to shine in at the window—then turn, put her arms around his neck and kiss him. I left them in that position."

The chief seemed greatly perplexed. After some thought he asked:

"Does Alexandrovitch go out often?"

"No; he goes out very seldom. He seems to be very busy. I have intercepted several letters addressed to him from managers asking why he had not finished work he is doing for them, and letters from him to parties saying that he cannot at present contract to do any more work, since he is unable to finish what he has in hand."

"Have you come near him?"

"Yes. One afternoon when he went out I followed him, as I always do when he leaves his home. He walked a short distance, then turned suddenly and passed me as near as I am to you. He went back to his house and in a few minutes came out again with a package in his hand for the post, which he appeared to have forgotten. I possessed myself of it and found a play which, I judged, he had been revising."

"You had better make some excuse to enter his house and see him there. But be careful that he does not suspect you to be shadowing him for the government. That will do. You may go."

The next day Vronsky, wearing the badge of a building inspector, went into Alexandrovitch's house, pretending that work was being done on a sewer beneath it and he wished to examine the walls to see if they were cracked. He saw the playwright sitting at his desk with a number of chess men before him, each piece bearing a label. They were set on a piece of cardboard, on which was drawn the outline of a stage. Alexandrovitch was reading from some manuscript before him and now and again would move one of the pieces off or on the stage.

The next afternoon Vronsky went to his chief and reported that he had been in the suspect's house and seen him working on a play.

"Have you seen him today?" asked the chief.

"Yes. He was sitting quietly at his window writing and smoking, as he often does when at work. Why do you ask?"

"Because I have just received a telegram that he is in Moscow."

The speaker handed Vronsky a dispatch which he read with every evidence of surprise.

"Whose signature is this?" he asked.

"One whom I trust as implicitly as I trust you."

"But may he not be mistaken in the person?"

"He is never mistaken. He is the best sleuth in the government service."

"I will go at once to Alexandrovitch's house, enter it and see with my own eyes that he is there."

"Wait a moment."

A telegram was laid before the chief, who took it up, tore off the cover and read:

The grand duke has been assassinated by a bomb.

It required some time before the recipient of this important news could recover from the shock. Then he said:

"Go! Enter the house of Alexandrovitch unannounced, go to his study and put your hand on him and let me know the result at once."

Vronsky darted out of the office and in a few minutes was at Alexandrovitch's house. He attempted to open the door, but found it locked. He listened for a moment, but heard no sound. Something told him that the place was deserted. He ran across the street and looked up at the study window. There sat the playwright at his work. Vronsky ran back and hammered at the door loud enough to be heard in any part of the house.

No response.

Smashing a window, Vronsky effected an entrance and ran upstairs. He met no one and made his way unopposed to the study. Alexandrovitch was at his desk, but took no notice of the intruder. Vronsky went up to him, put his hand on his shoulder and knew that the figure was inanimate.

A further examination revealed the fact that it was of straw, the face wax. The head was set on a pivot and could be turned by pulling on a cord.

Vronsky ran back to his chief and reported how he had been deceived. He was informed that government officials in Moscow had discovered that Alexandrovitch was the leader of the conspiracy that had resulted in the grand duke's death. He had contrived to keep the attention of the St. Petersburg police fixed on him in the capital by means of the dummy while he was spending enough of his time in Moscow, disguised, to direct the operations. But he had made good his escape.

A Step Higher.

The Delegate—I tell you, sir, that the root of trouble of the educational system of this nation is the teacher. The Listener—But, say, ain't you a teacher yourself? The Delegate (indignantly)—A teacher, sir! Certainly not. I am an educator!—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

1914—It is doubtful if men will ever fly across the ocean.

1920—It is doubtful if men will ever fly around the world.

1925—It is doubtful if men will ever fly to Mars.—Pittsburgh Post.

Coarse and Fine.

The finer the nature the more flaws will it show through the clearness of it. The best things are seldomest seen in their best form. The wild grass grows well and strongly one year with another, but the wheat is by reason of its greater nobleness liable to a bitter blight.

Trademarked.

"If my little brother Willie ever gets lost we can easily find him," said small Eloise.

"How, pray?" queried the visitor.

Health Recipe.

One time a man asked the poet Longfellow how to be healthy, and this is the answer he received:

Joy, temperance and repose
Slam the door on the doctor's nose.

Lieutenant.

The word "lieutenant" means, literally, "holding the place." Thus a lieutenant colonel holds the place of a colonel.

The Potato Habit.

Potato eating has become a habit because potatoes contain enough nourishment to carry on life, but because they are cheap, easy to prepare and bulky enough to fill up the stomach. The potato consists almost entirely of starch, and though this has a place in the diet it is not capable of building up strength and muscle. Constant reference is made to the hardihood of colonists and early settlers. They were not raised on a potato diet, for the potato was a luxury as late as 1800, to be served with sugar, nutmeg and mace. It is a product of more recent years, part and parcel of the struggle to keep down the living expense at the cost of the body.

This does not mean that potatoes should be eliminated from the dietary, for like every other food they have a definite mission to fulfill, but they must be used with discretion and in proper combination. Excessive use brings an inevitable trail of anaemia, obesity and autointoxication.—Country Gentleman.

Poisoners of Rome.

Tofana, the Italian woman poisoner of the seventeenth century, was carrying on a tradition of ancient Rome. In 331 B. C. a supposed pestilence swept the city, and many leading men were carried off. Then a slave girl gave information, and the authorities surprised twenty Roman matrons preparing drugs over a fire. Since they insisted that the drugs were not poisonous they were compelled to drink them in the Forum, and all perished. Further information having been laid, 170 matrons were condemned. In 184 B. C. a four months' inquiry by the praetor resulted in the condemnation of 2,000 persons for poisoning. There were many similar scandals, but it will always remain doubtful whether in any particular one of these ancient cases the epidemic was not really natural.—London Spectator.

Gladstone's Quick Temper.

Mr. Gladstone in an audience with the queen one day produced a list of people whom he wished to be made peers. The queen demurred and said, "I cannot create as many as this, Mr. Gladstone."

Whereupon Mr. Gladstone, who sometimes got into a temper, tore the list up. The queen flushed slightly, but said nothing to Mr. Gladstone, who shortly afterward quitted the royal presence.

Some short time later Mr. Gladstone presented a new list, much shorter than on the previous occasion.

The queen, without looking at it, tore it up. It was then Mr. Gladstone's turn to flush.—New York Sun.

Wonders of the Soil.

Professor W. B. Bottomley, in a lecture recently delivered at the royal botanic gardens, said that a clod of earth might seem to have no romance in it, but it was one of the most wonderful things imaginable. The soil was alive, it was a living machine, where microbes so small that 10,000,000 to 100,000,000 were contained in enough earth to cover a halfpenny were working together in a systematic way. They could not be seen and were only known by their work, and the greatest benefactors to the human race were those who promoted their activities. The wise gardener looked after their well being, for without them there would be no plant life and no human life, since all nutriment was drawn from the soil.—London Globe.

Echoes Made to Order.

Are you aware that it is possible to make echoes? It is, indeed, easier to make than to destroy them.

In the past men built their great temples and cathedrals with no thought of acoustics. Hence, when the preacher preached echoes rolled freely amid the groinings of the roof, down the rows of sculptured columns and round and round the nave.

With wires strung here and with tapestries spread there many of the echoes of the old world buildings have been obliterated. There are echo experts—builders acquainted with the science of acoustics, whose specialty is echoes' destruction. Sometimes their tasks are hard.

Today an architect takes thought of the echo. His building is constructed so as to exclude this intruder. And, knowing how to exclude it, he knows how to welcome it also.

Architects are frequently called upon in landscape work to put up summer houses and arrange rocks around them so as to create an echo there. And this they can satisfactorily do.—London Tit-Bits.

Essay on Shoes.

Shoes come in pairs.

They go the same way except in the case of solo legged persons.

Horseshoes are signs of good luck except when planted in the middle of one's person by the accompanying horse.

In former times we wore shoes as seldom as possible.

Our feet were about four stubs stubborner than the stubborn glebe that Mr. Elegy Gray writes about.

In the gentle springtime when we first divorced the leaky winter boots that had grown irksome the southern exposure of our farm feet was of about the consistency of patent leather.

In June it resembled horn.

In September harveyized steel had nothing on our hoofs.

Between barefoot days when we attended Sunday school, circus or some other devotional exercise we wore congress gaiters.

The congress gaiters (one of ours is now on exhibition in the Smithsonian Institution) had an elastic gore on each cheek.—Indianapolis Star.

A Strange Memorial.

From the window of a trolley car on a line that connects several small cities and large villages in central New York the traveler can see a scythe swinging from the limb of a tall tree. To be perfectly accurate, it does not swing any longer, for it has hung there so many years that the tree has grown round it, and now holds it tightly in its place.

In the early days of our own great war a young man was mowing in his father's fields with this scythe. While he worked his thoughts must have been on his country, for suddenly he hung the scythe on the tree with the words, "Hang there until I come back." He had made up his mind to enlist.

He never came back. Like so many other patriotic young men, he gave his life to his country and the gift was accepted. Having heard his words, his parents let no one remove the scythe. Year after year, on the sacred anniversary of his death, his friends have gathered under that tree and kept his memory green. There is probably no other memorial in the world like the hanging scythe.—Youth's Companion.

Wearing Flowers.

The kind of flowers that are fitting for a woman to wear depends upon her age and personal appearance. Blossoms that are becoming to a young girl look out of place on the elderly woman, and the woman who is tall can wear certain varieties which the one who is short cannot.

Banksia roses are for the quite young girl. Violets are charming for either youth or age. Daisies belong only to youth. Pansies seem fitted for riper age, though the pansy eyed girl looks well with them. Chrysanthemums look well on youth or maturity, but do not seem to belong to the old. Roses belong to all ages, but need to be chosen with care as to their color and size. Lilacs can only be worn by a tall figure. Neither are poppies for the petite nor things that grow in branch form. Snowdrops that would look foolish on a middle aged woman look sweet on a young girl. Lilies of the valley are for youth or middle age. Mignonette does not belong to youth, nor do sweet peas and daffodils belong to age, but any one can wear the fragrant carnation.—Exchange.

Unmoral and Immoral.

Are you unmoral or immoral? Do not answer too quickly, for if you are only unmoral we may be able to overlook it. Unmoral stands to immoral in much the same relation as unregenerate stands to degenerate. If you commit some act of which the arbiters of ethics disapprove the category that you go in all depends on whether the arbiters have previously brought the ethical constitution and bylaws to your notice. If they have already told you that a certain thou shalt not exists then you are immoral if you disobey it. If, however, you are still in an untaught state of sheer savagery then you are merely unmoral, and instead of being the victim of execration and contumely you are entitled to all the emoluments and perquisites of any other savage. Ignorance of the civil or criminal laws excuses no one, but ignorance of the moral law does count for a little these discriminate days.—Ellis O. Jones in Lippincott's.

Good Advertisement.

Father is an advertising man and has had the misfortune to be laid up with the rheumatism. For some time, when he has been able to walk at all, he has limped along at a snail's gait with a cane. Things seemed blue enough, but it was for his small son to point out that which, in the little boy's mind, was one of the large benefits of the situation.

They had walked down the street together, and dad had been stopped several times by people who wished to know what was the matter or to inquire how the disease was progressing.

"Do you know, dad, this is some advertisement?" said the son enthusiastically.

"What is?" groaned his father.

"Being all crippled up and walking poky with a cane," replied the son. "I never did see so many people pay so much attention to you before."

Father was too stiff and sore to whip him.—Indianapolis News.

Memory.

Memory is that faculty of the mind which enables us to know that we have forgotten something. Without memory there would be no history; hence no fiction.

Memory furnishes the only background for liars that is needed. It enables many people to labor under the continuous illusion that there is a past, when in reality there is nothing but a present.

Without memory there would be no worry, because worry is fear for the future, based on recollection of what has happened—usually to someone else.

Memory enables us to store our minds with useful facts—until they are proved to be wrong by other useful facts which in turn take their place.—Life.

Modern Seamen.

The new ship has transformed the sailor with itself. He works among a subtle and intricate network of machinery. His brain is quickened by the effort to understand the new forces and appliances that he controls. He is drawn no longer from the lower strata of the population of our ports, but in increasing proportions from the ranks of skilled mechanics. The electricians and machinists, who are the aristocracy of the crew, bring with them the notions which prevail among the aristocracy of labor out of uniform. They possess more reading and more science than did nine out of ten of the officers in the old days. They have a respect for themselves and their class, which has revolutionized the morals and manners of the modern warship. The gradual reform of the service regulations has sought to keep pace with this transformation, and officers have been educated in a wholly new conception of their relationship to their men. The bullying and hectoring which was the rule of the sea in the old days is today the rare exception. Instinct and "good form" condemn that kind of thing as severely as the regulations.—Nation.

If an Ant Were as Big as a Man.

An ant can carry a grain of corn ten times the weight of its body, while a man or horse can carry loads only about equal to its bodily weight. It is not a fact, however, that the ant is greatly superior in strength. If an ant should grow to twice its original size, still retaining its geometrical and histological structure, its volume, and accordingly the weight of its body, would increase eightfold. Although the muscles grow to twice their original dimensions, the increase in length does not increase the strength, which is proportional to their cross section, and the ant would only be four times as strong as before. As it now carries but five times its weight, however, it is relatively only half as strong. It is calculated that the same ant developed to the size of a man would only be able to carry one one-hundredth of its own weight instead of ten times its own weight.

Thrashing Wheat In Cyprus.

The ancient Roman tribulum, as used for thrashing, may still be seen in the island of Cyprus. It is a board about six feet long and two feet wide, studded with sharp edged flakes of flint. In use it is dragged by oxen or donkeys over the corn spread out on the hard earthen thrashing floor, separating the grain and at the same time bruising and chopping up the straw. Thrashing time is enjoyed alike by children and animals, the former riding on the primitive implement and the latter gorging themselves with a hearty meal, for in Cyprus the Biblical command, "Thou shalt not muzzle the ox that treadeth out the corn," is still faithfully observed. Although the government offers to thrash by machine at nominal cost, the conservative Cypriote prefers the old method. He says that the animals will not eat machine chaffed straw, and straw they must eat, for there is no hay in Cyprus.—Wide World Magazine.

THE WAR EFFECT ON AMERICAN NEWSPAPERS

The amount of space given by the American press to war news has been very great—since the first of August, rarely less than five pages, often seven and eight. The cable tolls have been enormous and the expenses in the field heavy. Yet by that strange psychology which causes events to yield to others of greater magnitude in the world of news, little that could be called important happened in America during the first five weeks of war. That little received scant attention. The opening of the Panama Canal was the chief event of world interest. It got a couple of "sticks." Colonel Roosevelt disappeared from the front page. Mexico and its sputterings worked its way aft to page seven or eight. New York ran newsdry. Reporters sat idly in offices of the great dailies, days at a time. The Evening World has the busiest battery of telephones in town. They rarely rang.

Another and very potent effect of the overshadowing power of great events was the effect on the business of newspaper advertising. The first half of 1913 had been one of exceptional activity in this line, both in classified and display. The fast half of the year fell off perceptibly. Several large failures in the late fall accentuated the depression which continued until July. That month was prosperous. The first week in August, even with the war tidings, made a satisfactory showing. It seemed clear that the period of depression in America was past. The second week began to pay a toll to war, extraordinary in its proportions, particularly in its effect upon the small classified advertisements, notably "Help Wanted," the great barometer of New York industry. These had suffered some in September, 1913. In 1914 they dropped to about one-half of the proportions of the year before. The country for once in its history enjoyed perfect protection. No embargo on foreign wares could be more effective. The "pauper" labor of Europe was commandeered to war. The ocean was closed to foreign commerce. By all the rules Industry should have tugged in its harness. Advertising is the trumpeter for Industry,—the advance agent, the summons to trade activity. Why it should languish can only be explained on the ground of the absorption of interest in the tragedy. Men could think of nothing but war, the vast cataclysm of savagery, which has so suddenly engulfed mankind in world-wide disaster!—From "Newspapers and the War," by Den C. Seitz, in the American Review of Reviews for October.

The Microbe Menace.

Our wide general information, in this day of the Sunday newspaper, tells us that the real danger of the time is the quiet microbe. We could even wish that microbes clanked chains, and then we would know they were about and speed for the prophylactic. The innumerable devils of the middle ages, invisible but always somewhere in the neighborhood, have been neatly replaced by the discoveries of bacteriology and if we hadn't got used to them, living would be an almost impossible anxious performance. The vacationist, reading the warning issued by his government against the bacterial dangers of simple country living, would stay hopelessly in the city—and then, learning of the bacterial dangers of summer life in town, would eventually be driven to suicide by drowning as the coolest way out of his troubles.

Microbes, microbes everywhere,
In the water, in the air!
Kicking up a deadly row,
In the product of the cow.
You can almost hear them mutter
In the milk and in the butter.

First Beef Extract Factory.

Something over a hundred years ago the hacendados (ranchmen) of Uruguay complained to the government that over 450,000 head of cattle were being killed annually for their hides alone. The carcasses were thrown to the dogs or left on the rolling pampas for the vultures to devour. Beef in Uruguay was so plentiful that it was something of a nuisance evidently. Of course that day has passed, but they still have cattle enough down there to convert some 700,000 head into 113,000,000 pounds of jerked beef in one year, most of which is sold to Brazil, Cuba, Porto Rico and other tropical countries. Perhaps but few people know that the first great factory for the production of beef extract was established at Fray Bentos, a little city on the Uruguay river about a hundred miles above Buenos Aires, the cosmopolitan capital of Argentina, and that it is still operating. Fray Bentos has been called the greatest kitchen in the world. On some days 2,500 head of cattle are slaughtered.—Argonaut.

Theater Headaches.

The most frequent cause of headaches occurring during or after the theater is eye strain. People who use the full energy of the delicate eye muscles to obtain perfect vision are often unconscious of this strain. In the theater the continuous effort to keep everything constantly focused exhausts the nerve centers and headache results. The practice of seating the audience in total darkness while they are staring into an intensely lighted stage is another serious factor. The pupils, being widely dilated in the dark, admit the excess of light from the stage, often producing irritation of the eyes which lasts sometimes for days.

Those subject to headaches should never sit where it is necessary to raise the eyes to watch the stage. This unnatural position of the eyes is very tiresome even to those who never have trouble at other times.—Journal American Medical Association.

Trouble Ahead.

"That speech you made placing me in nomination was a splendid statement of the case," said the grateful candidate.

"Yes," replied the old campaigner, "it was a fine statement. But we're going to have a dickens of a time proving it."—Washington Star.

ASTHMA AND HAY FEVER A GUARANTEED TREATMENT.

"I have arranged with B. J. Pulver so that every sufferer from Asthma, Hay Fever or Bronchial Asthma in Tecumseh can try my treatment entirely at my risk," Dr. Rudolph Schiffmann announces. He says: "Buy a 50-cent package of my Asthmador Cigarettes, try it, and if it does not afford you immediate relief, or if you do not find it the best ever used, take it back to B. J. Pulver and they will return your money, cheerfully and without any question whatever. After seeing the grateful relief it has afforded in hundreds of cases, which had been considered incurable, and which had been given up in despair, I know what it will do. I am so sure that it will do the same with others that I am not afraid to guarantee it will relieve instantaneously. The druggists handling Asthmador will return your money if you say so. You are to be the sole judge and under this positive guarantee, absolutely no risk is run in buying Asthmador."

Persons living elsewhere will be supplied under the same guarantee by their local druggist or direct by Dr. R. Schiffmann, St. Paul, Minn.

WITH your Kirschbaum Clothes we will give you a guarantee that they are all-wool, fast in color, London-shrunk, hand-tailored, and sewn at all points of strain with silk thread.

ELMER SNEDICOR

Elmer Snedicor son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Snedicor of Tecumseh passed away at his home in Adrian Monday morning aged 28 years For a long time he has been the victim of that dreadful disease consumption, and his passing was not unexpected. A young wife and child are left to mourn with his parents, brothers and sisters over the early death of their loved one. The funeral will be held tomorrow morning with burial in Jackson.

LESLIE HOUGH.

Miss Julia A. Hough received the sad news Monday morning of the death of her nephew Leslie Hough, in St. Louis, Mo. No particulars have been received. The body will be brought here for burial on the family lot in Brookside. Leslie made many friends while here three years ago who will grieve to hear of his passing away

LATER:—A letter received by Miss Hough today regarding the death of her nephew Leslie Hough says: "His death was the result of an attack of pneumonia He was in the hospital just five days His body will arrive in Tecumseh Wednesday afternoon via Adrian and will be taken direct to the cemetery where Rev. W. B. Hartzog will officiate.'

THAT BICYCLE

Not Stolen—But Simply Taken In.

One afternoon last week Nolan West stopped at the store of P G Heidenreich and left his bicycle while he went up to Clinton on the 5:35 train. At night Percy ran it outside and in the morning saw, what he supposed was the same wheel next to C. A. Wright's store, and in the kindness of his heart ran it inside again. But Nolan came not and Percy was full of business, later he saw the notice of Satterthwaite's stolen wheel and took notice. A speedy telephone communication and then the wheel was returned none the worse for its careful housing.

MRS ALVA WARING A MUCH SURPRISED WOMAN.

As the Warings, Alva and Fannie, are about to move into their new home, lately purchased of Dr. North, their many boarders, old and new, conceived the happy idea of an appreciation to Mrs. Waring for her kindness and the homelike feeling that has ever surrounded them in her home Not alone the good cheer of her table, but her deep interest in their joys and sorrows, has bound them together as a family.

About twenty met together last evening and marched in upon her and her family, giving her a genuine surprise. The evening was spent in social visiting, in recalling the many interesting events that had transpired in her boarding house.

The crowning event of the evening was the presentation of a beautiful library table by Mr. Cuthbert who, in a few well chosen words, voiced the sentiment of those present. For the moment she was quite overcome but later made a very feeling response, thanking them for all their kindness to her in the past and hoping for a continuance of the friendships that had been formed

Ice cream and cake were then served by the ladies in charge of the party.

MR. NORMAN HACKETT IN "THE TYPHOON."

It is wholesome news to hear that "The Typhoon," probably the most talked of play of the decade, is to be presented in this city with Mr. Norman Hackett in the famous Whiteside role of the Japanese Tokeramo. The engagement is set for the 22nd of October.

Norman Hackett needs no introduction to local theatre goers, who remember his fine work in 'Classmates,' 'Satan Sanderson' and 'A Double Deceiver'. In securing "The Typhoon" for his starring vehicle this season, he has shown commendable wisdom, for the play has not only been an enormous success from the box office standpoint, but is by far the strongest piece this ambitious, sterling actor has yet offered to the public, and raises him many planes higher in public esteem The magnificent Whiteside production will be employed by Mr. Hackett, and an excellent company surrounds him, including Eleanor Miller, a talented emotional actress in the Florence Reed type, Edwin Vail, Maurice Schonfield, W. W. Hoffman, Andrew Streng, Carl Reed, Harold Vose, W. H. Turner and Edw. Forbes

Mr. Hackett and his excellent company will be at the Bradley Opera House, Thursday October 22nd. It will be well to arrange early for seats as Mr. Hackett always does a capacity business here.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

T. H. S. vs. D. H. S.

Talk about excitement, well, you should have seen the game Friday. It lasted a long time, about two hours as a good deal of unnecessary disputing was done.

Aebersold made Tecumseh's first touch-down by a well managed forward pass. Dundee made a score by a touchdown. Neither side was able to kick goal, and so, at the end of the first quarter the score was 6-6.

In the second quarter, McNeil raised Tecumseh's score to 12 by a touch down, and a goal kick made it 13-6, at the end of the first half.

During the third quarter, Dundee scored two touch-downs and a goal kick, making the score 19-13 in favor of Dundee.

Towards the last of the fourth quarter, McNeil made another touchdown for Tecumseh, leaving the score tied, 19-19, and only five minutes left in which to finish. We had high hopes, but someone had walked all over "Curly" Babcock and knocked him out, during the third quarter, and now "Mac" was all in. Then by a little slip, Dundee made another touchdown and goal kick, making the score 26-19. During the three minutes remaining, Tecumseh nearly reached goal and Dundee was penalized for rough playing The game ended in an honorable defeat for our team, with the score 26-19.

Dundee was, by far, outplayed, and "Mac", especially deserves honorable mention for his able management of the team and splendid playing throughout the game.

An announcement appeared on the board last Monday noon, worded something like this:—"Boys' Glee Club practice tonight at 3:20. All boys who can carry a tune please stay."

Three boys appeared!

B. Y. P. U.

The B. Y. P. U. held their regular business meeting in the church parlors Friday night with 35 present. Miss Maude Scofield was elected as delegate to the Michigan Baptist Convention to be held in Kalamazoo. At the close of the business meeting a social hour followed with various Halloween stunts. The chief attraction being a fortune teller, who told each and every one things good, bad and indifferent much to the amusement of all concerned. Refreshments were served and a very pleasant time reported.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 12.—The state public utilities commission issued an order authorizing the Illinois Central Railroad company to issue joint refunding bonds bearing 5 per cent interest to the amount of $13,348,100 for the purpose of refunding money spent in the purchase of the Chicago, St. Louis & New Orleans railroad.

Will Have Largest Tower.

St. Meinrad, Ind., Oct. 12.—Work began today at St. Meinrad's Abbey on what probably will be the largest water tower in Indiana or this part of the country. This tower will be of reinforced concrete and will hold 500,000 gallons of water. The new tower was made necessary because of the large buildings being erected at the abbey.

No Aches or Pains

Peruna Did It for Me.

"I find Peruna an excellent spring and summer medicine and am glad to call the attention of my friends to it. I know by experience that Peruna is a good medicine, and always recommend it whenever I have an opportunity. I can truthfully say that I have no trace of my old complaint, and have neither ache nor pain, and enjoy life. Words cannot express my appreciation for the good Peruna has done me."

PERUNA THE SPRING AND SUMMER MEDICINE.

"I used to get cramps in my stomach. I had sick headaches. My stomach nearly killed me. My family physician only gave me temporary relief. I got out of patience and had given up all hopes of recovery. I then wrote to Dr. Hartman and he advised me to take Peruna. I got a bottle of Peruna and commenced using it. Soon got better and am now entirely cured and feel like a new woman. Peruna is my comfort. I will never be without it." Mrs. Thomas M. Morgan, R. F. D. 2, Wadsworth, Ohio.

REAL "PINCH" IN LAWSUIT

Judgment for Debt of $1.75 on Bill Eighteen Years Old.

Battle Creek, Mich., Oct. 12.—Eighteen years ago, Edward Sampson contracted a bill with B. W. Pinch of Battle Creek, for $1.75. Pinch was awarded judgment for $18.75 against Sampson by Judge M. B. Allen. This sum represented the original amount with interest on the same for eighteen years and costs of three suits, which Pinch started six, twelve and eighteen years after the bill was contracted.

Sampson refused to pay the judgment, and Pinch declared that he would start another suit in 1920.

MOTHER SUPERIOR ROSARY HILL HOME

Rosary Hill Home, Hawthorne, N.Y.—"I have been at work among the sick and poor for nearly eighteen years, and whenever I have used Vinol for run-down, weak or emaciated patients, they have been visibly benefited by it. One patient, a young woman, was so weak and ill she could hardly creep to my door for aid, and was leaning on a friend's arm. I supplied Vinol to her liberally and in a month when she returned to thank me I hardly recognized her. She was strong, her color charming and her cheeks rounded out. These words are uttered from my heart, in order that more people may know about Vinol, as there is nothing makes me happier in the world than to relieve the sick."—Mother M. WOMAN WEDS; LOSES BROKEN TROTH SUIT

Mrs. Ostrander Forced to Admit Marital Status.

Owosso, Mich., Oct. 12.—The jury in the case of Mrs. Fannie L. Ostrander of Owosso vs. Pratt Wilcox of Morrice, brought in a verdict of no cause of action after having been out for three hours.

Mrs. Ostrander sued Wilcox for breach of promise, alleging that she supposed they were to be married last February on the day Wilcox married some one else. Wilcox admitted having visited Mrs. Ostrander's home two or three times and to have danced with her, besides playing fiddle at one of her parties. He insisted, however, that he never talked marriage to her.

Mrs. Ostrander's case was undoubtedly lost when, after several days of evasion, she was forced to admit that she was married to Louis Blaney of Saginaw last June, four months after the alleged heart breaking by Wilcox.

HITS OLD HIGHCOSTOFLIVING

Use Church Yard to Raise Potatoes for the Pastor.

Adrian, Mich., Oct. 12.—When Rev. Mr. Scoville, recently elected pastor of the First Baptist church in this city, arrives to take up his new duties, he will be presented with a quantity of potatoes raised in the back yard of the church property. E. W. Allis, "church gardener," will make the presentation.

The idea isn't that the church can not afford its pastor's salary, but rather that the board of directors believes in efficiency and economy in church management. They are also out to reduce the high cost of living wherever possible. So it is that they provided for the setting aside of a considerable tract of land for this purpose.

Roth, who had charge of a food factory in Paris, had to import German bakers, as he could not find enough Frenchmen who would work Sunday and kept Saturday as the Sabbath. This, together with the fact that Roth's son had an amateur wireless telegraph station, caused suspicion. Roth is a native of Switzerland and his sympathies are with the French

SAYS "BILLY" WAS WADE'S

Man Disputes Testimony of His Young Son In Murder Case.

Rockville, Ind., Oct. 12.—Walter A. Wilson, called by the defense as a witness in the trial of Emil Ehrmann in an effort to refute testimony given by Doyle Wilson, his eleven year old son, identified the "billy" introduced by the defense as the weapon owned by Edward Wade before the shooting

Wilson said he boarded at the Wade home for several months before the tragedy, that he often say the "billy" hanging on the wall, and that Wade told him he carried it on his wagon as a protection against teamster strike breakers. Under cross examination by Prosecutor Whitlock, Wilson admitted that he had received $56 from attorneys for the defendant at various times, that he was paid $35 railroad fare from Minnesota, that his hotel expenses were being paid by somebody unknown to himself, and that he was being paid for time in court. He said he had talked about the case with Mrs. Haywood, another witness for the defense.

Meat Prices Will Go Up.

Fort Wayne, Ind., Oct. 12.—Local restaurant keepers have all decided to raise the price of meats, declaring that the high cost of food makes it impossible to serve meats at the former prices. The Trysting Place

A Story of a Mexican Oil Well

By MAY C. ETHEREDGE

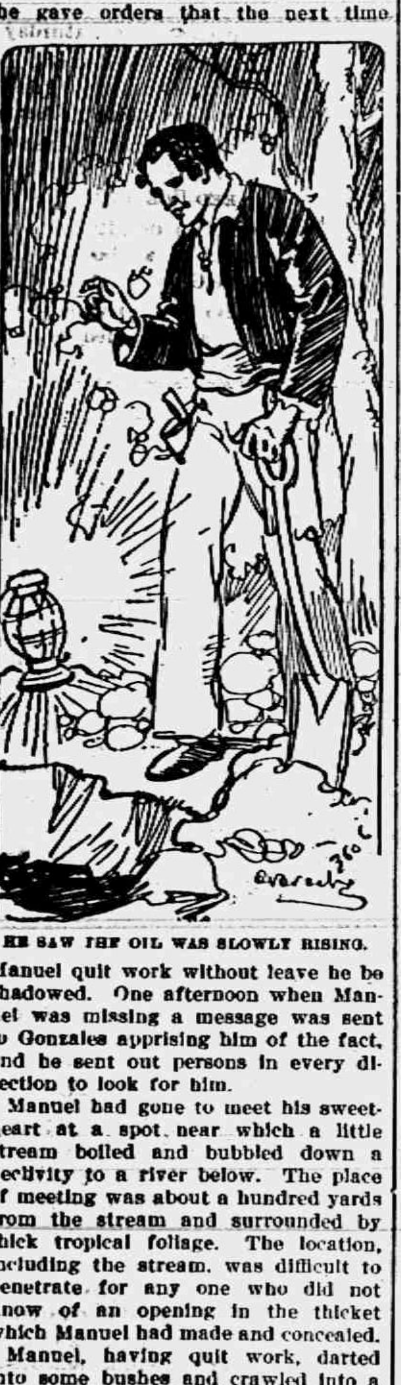
Manuel Perez was a Mexican peon. One day Manuel went to Jose Gonzales, who owned a hacienda on which he grew coffee, and asked for the loan of $30. Gonzales understood this request, for it is the common method in Mexico of taking on the yoke of slavery. He lent the young man the money, and Manuel signed a contract to work for him till it was returned.

Now, there was a special reason for Manuel thus entering Gonzales' service. The hacendado had a pretty daughter, Maria, sixteen years old, whom Manuel had met, and the two being of the mating age had fallen in love with each other. Manuel was an intelligent fellow, and instead of spending the most of what he earned for pulque, as many peons do, he saved it and had $100, which for safety he put in a bank. By working for Gonzales he would have many opportunities of meeting Maria. If his passion for her were discovered by her father, who was a very stingy man, he would not be likely to send Manuel away without his repaying the $30 loaned, and peons are not expected to have the money to return.

Maria was fond of horseback riding and went about over the hacienda on a pony. In her equestrian costume of short jacket bordered with gold lace and skirt covered with glittering ornaments she was very captivating. Many a young man of her own class would have been glad to marry her, but she had fallen in love with Manuel and would listen to none of them.

The lovers contrived to see each other occasionally, though it was difficult for Manuel to escape the notice of the overseer. Manuel, having an appointment with his sweetheart, would disappear and when he returned to work would be punished. But he could endure the punishment since he had received his reward in a meeting with Maria.

These absences were at last reported by the overseer to the hacendado, and he gave orders that the next time



HE SAW THE OIL WAS SLOWLY RISING.

Manuel quit work without leave he be shadowed. One afternoon when Manuel was missing a message was sent to Gonzales apprising him of the fact, and he sent out persons in every direction to look for him.

Manuel had gone to meet his sweetheart at a spot near which a little stream boiled and bubbled down a declivity to a river below. The place of meeting was about a hundred yards from the stream and surrounded by thick tropical foliage. The location, including the stream, was difficult to penetrate for any one who did not know of an opening in the thicket which Manuel had made and concealed.

Manuel, having quit work, darted into some bushes and crawled into a wood, through which he made his way to the trysting place. There he threw himself on the ground to wait for Maria, who was to come from a different direction. But Maria did not come. She had seen the persons sent out to learn where Manuel had gone and prudently remained away.

Manuel, lying flat on the ground, smelled petroleum. It did not seem to him that the oil could have been spilled in such a wild place, and it occurred to him that perhaps he was on oil land. Taking out his knife, he dug a little hole in the ground. The deeper he dug the stronger the smell, and at last at the bottom of the hole there was a thimbleful of oil.

Manuel arose and stood on his feet. He saw in that little hole a lifelong happiness with Maria.

Half an hour after the time that he was to meet Maria having passed without her coming, he set out on his return. On nearing the edge of the thicket he heard voices and shrank back. Returning to the stream, he found an avenue under the trees, and by following its bed he came out some distance from where he had started. He was in agony lest Maria had been watched and captured entering the trysting place. But, seeing her on her pony riding about as though nothing disturbed her, he took courage.

Manuel went back to work and, after being cross examined as to where he had been, took his punishment, and though it was more severe than usual he bore it without flinching, sustained as he was, by his secret.

Fortunately for the lovers, their love was not known, and they could communicate, though, of course, always at a great risk. Manuel contrived to let Maria know that they must not try to meet again for some time. Meanwhile he determined not to go to the trysting place again in the day. But one night when all were asleep, armed with a spade, a lantern and some matches, he stole out of the peon quarters to revisit his find. Had he not gone there often he would not have been able to find the entrance, for he dared not light his lantern until well screened by the thicket.

On reaching the trysting place he struck a match and, having found the hole he had dug with his knife, began to throw out the earth with his spade. He had gone down but a few feet when there stood on the bottom of the hole he had dug several inches of a fluid. Lighting his lantern, he saw that the oil was slowly rising. Dipping a dry twig into it, he held it over the flame in the lantern and it burned brightly.

This was enough. He refilled the hole and smoothed the ground above it, then went back to his quarters.

The next day, Manuel went to Gonzales and offered him the $30 he had borrowed, with interest. The hacendado accepted it, and Manuel went forth a free man. Before leaving the hacienda he made an appointment to meet Maria clandestinely, and when they came together he told her that there was a fortune at their trysting place. The location was wild land outside Gonzales' hacienda. Nevertheless Manuel had but $70, and this was too little to tempt the owner to sell any of his property. Maria was accorded liberal pin money by her father and could produce $100. But she owned a jewel which would bring a hundred more. In all the two raised $300. Then Manuel found the owner of the land, and, representing that he wished to erect a sawmill beside the stream, which could be used for power, he succeeded in buying twenty acres of ground at $10 an acre.

As soon as the deed had passed to him Manuel threw up his hat joyfully. He had $100 left with which to develop his oil well. He dug with his spade a sluiceway by which he turned a part of the stream into a new channel that ran within a few yards of his well. Then he made a millwheel and bought a pump with gearing. Lastly, he dug his oil well to a depth of ten feet, at the bottom of which stood several feet of oil.

When Manuel set his machinery to work to pump out the oil he was anxious as to the flow continuing. He pumped for some time, looking into the well and was delighted to see that the flow continued as fast as he pumped. Then he knelt and thanked his patron saint for the blessing that had been bestowed upon him.

Manuel said nothing to any one about his oil property. He bought a few empty barrels and filled them with oil. With his ax he cleared a way so that a team could haul them away and with the money he got for the oil bought more barrels and very soon had money enough to build a shed over his machinery.

One day Gonzales, who was riding over his hacienda, saw a well dressed man, also mounted, coming toward him. When the stranger neared him Gonzales recognized his former peon, Manuel Perez.

"What are you doing here, and in those clothes?" asked the hacendado.

"I came to ask the hand of your daughter."

"My daughter!"

"Yes, senor. I have good blood in my veins, and I am rich."

"Rich? In what does your fortune consist—assurance?"

"If you will come with me I will show it to you."

Moved by curiosity, Gonzales rode with his former slave to the oil well. When he saw the crude machinery and, Manuel having turned on the power, a barrel of oil filled in a few minutes, he was astonished. He did not give Manuel his daughter, but he prospected for oil not only on his hacienda, but on contiguous property.

No other outlet for the petroleum was found, and the failure greatly enhanced the value of Manuel Perez's property. Americans, Englishmen, everybody, came to see the well, and large sums were offered the owner for his property. He would not sell, and with his profits he developed his means for getting out the oil, and since it continued to flow as fast as he took it out he soon had an enormous income.

When Gonzales had tested all his own and adjacent property without finding oil Manuel went to him again to ask for Maria, and this time the hacendado succumbed. The wedding festivities took place at the bride's home, but when they were over her husband took her to a handsome place of his own. He has never sold a foot of the ground he purchased for a song and has refused every offer for the whole property. Whenever he needs money he sets his machinery going, fills a few hundred barrels with oil and sells them.

This course certain Mexicans who have owned gold mines have pursued, but it has not been common with oil.

Flight of the Housefly.

Dr. Hindle of London finds that houseflies tend to travel either against or across the wind. This direction may be directly determined by the action of the wind, or indirectly, owing to the flies being attracted by odors borne by the wind. Fine weather and warmth favor dispersal, and flies travel further in the open country than in towns—probably because the houses offer food and shelter. In thickly housed localities the usual maximum flight is about a quarter of a mile, but in one case a single fly was recovered at a distance of 770 yards—partly over open fenland. When set free in the afternoon flies do not scatter so well as in the morning. Liberated flies often mount almost vertically to a height of forty-five feet or more.

Switzerland's President.

There is one highly civilized country in which not one person in four could give their ruler's name. That country is Switzerland. One reason why the president is almost unknown either by name or by sight is that he is not a public figure at all. He has no privileges as president and no official uniform—not even of the army. Switzerland has a fresh president every year. He has no personal authority as president and is practically only the speaker of Switzerland's unassuming little parliament. It is recorded that at a meeting of Swiss business men no one could recall the name of the president. The waiter was asked. He happened to know, because the president was his uncle.—Philadelphia Times.

The Vossische Zeitung of Berlin reports that Crown Prince Alexander of Servia has been slightly wounded and that his brother, Prince George of Servia, has been mortally hurt in the fighting against the Austrians.

ROCK HITS TRAIN; 3 KILLED

Fourteen Others Seriously Hurt on Denver and Rio Grande.

DENVER, COLO. — Dropping sheer a hundred feet from a precipice a twenty ton boulder crashed down upon a flying Denver & Rio Grande train eighteen miles east of Grand Junction, killing three persons and seriously injuring fourteen more.

The huge rock fell with such force that it crushed a steel car and pinioned a score of men, women and children passengers. Among the dead are Harry Braddock of Chicago and Thomas C. Linkens, branch manager at Grand Junction, for the Ridenour Baker Grocery company of Kansas City. Linkens head was severed from his body. Relief trains were hurried to the scene of the disaster and the prompt relief given undoubtedly saved the lives of many women and children.

PEACE CONFERENCE IS ON

Washington Reports Prospects Are Brighter For Mexico.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The state department is advised that the proposed Mexican peace conference has been inaugurated at Aguas Calientes.

According to the department's reports the outlook is brighter for something to be done to settle the Villa-Carranza differences and to adopt a political program for Mexico than for many days. Representatives of both Villa and Carranza are present as are also three delegates representing Zapata.

ITALY'S PEACE FRIEND DYING

Marquis Di San Giulano's Death Might Help Allies.

ROME, ITALY— Marquis Di San Giulano, the minister of foreign affairs, is reported dying. He has been Italy's great advocate of peace and neutrality and it is believed that with his death Italy will enter into the war on the side of the allies. General Zuppelli, the new minister of war, though Austrian born, has ordered transports to bring back the 100,000 Tripoli veterans. These men are ready for immediate service.

Belgians Scout Tax Idea.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—That Antwerp would be compelled to pay $100,000,000 war tax to the Germans was declared wholly unlikely at the Belgian legation here. It was pointed out that under the rules of international warfare agreed upon at The Hague no such tax can be levied by a conquerer on a conquered city.

Love, Key to Peace—Bryan.

PHILADELPHIA, PA., — Voicing the sentiment that the only foundation for universal peace is love, and not prepardness for war, William Jennings Bryan, secretary of state, and Oscar S. Straus, former secretary of commerce and labor, spoke at a peace demonstration here in Convention hall.

211,000 Lost in Prussia.

LONDON — The forty-four lists of losse in the Prussian army which have been published contain a total of 211,000 killed, wounded and missing, according to a Reuter dispatch from Amsterdam. The lists do not include losse among the Bavarians, Saxons and Wurtemburgians.

French Bombarding Cattaro.

Fed Through Tube In Side.

OWOSSO, MICH.—After he had nearly starved to death because of a stoppage in the esophagus close to the opening of his stomach, physicians solved the problem of nourishing Oscar Halstead, sixty years of age, of Owosso, by inserting a silver tube through his side into his stomach.

He is subsisting on liquids thus introduced into his system. Chronic stomach trouble caused his affliction.

ALLIES MASSING FOR NEW BATTLE

Plans to Check Germans Marching On Ostend.

BELGIAN CAPITAL TO FRANCE

Ghent Captured by Invaders and Bruges Is Being Shelled—England's Troops Rebel in South Africa—Airmen Drop Shells in Ostend—French left Wing on Offensive—Lille Falls.

Official announcement issued from the war office in Paris says: "On our left wing our forces have resumed the offensive in the regions of Hazebrouck and of Bethune against detachments of the enemy composed in large part of cavalry coming from the front along Baillaui, Estaires and La Bassee. The town of Lille, held by a territorial detachment, has been attacked and occupied by a German army corps."

There is an unconfirmed report that the Germans, following the occupation of Ghent, are bombarding Bruges, twenty-three miles from Ostend. They are known to be moving that way.

It has been decided to transfer the Belgian government to France in order that it may have full liberty of action. The foregoing was announced officialy in Bordeaux. Several Belgian ministers, accompanied by a group of officials, left Ostend for Havre, where the French government has prepared temporary offices for them. King Albert remains at the head of the Belgian army.

The lines are gathering for a general engagement along the banks of the River Lys between the reenforced allies and the German army which is attmpting an encircling movement toward Ostend and the coast.

It has been officially announced in Capetown, Union of South Africa, that a command under Colonel Maritz has rebelled in the northwest of the Cape provinces. Martial law has been proclaimed throughout the union.

A dispatch to the London Times says that a German aviator dropped two bombs on Ostend. Neither of the missiles exploded.

LONDON — The City of Ghent is occupied by the Germans, according to an Amsterdam dispatch. Uhlans have arrived at Selzaete, a short distance from Ghent, and the commander announced that 6,000 soldiers must be quartered on the village. The report of the occupation of Ghent was passed for publication by the official press bureau, which takes no responsibility for it.

LONDON — The Ostend correspondent of the Times sends the following dispatch:

"Strong German columns of all arms are passing through Bailleul (department of the Nord, near the Belgian frontier) in the direction of Ypres (in west Flanders, Belgium, about twenty-eight miles south of Ostend). Around the latter town the Germans have concentrated in very large numbers.

"German cavalry patrols have been been in many places within twenty miles of Dunkirk on the Straits of Dover, forty miles northwest of Lille. These detachments doubtless are part of a screen thrown out to test the strength of the allies and mask the movements of the German main body."

PARIS — Six bombs were dropped on Paris by a German aeroplane. None exploded. Five French aviators ascended and pursued the invading airship which fled to the east. A bomb was dropped also on the suburb of St. Quen, near a tank containing 80,000 tons of gasoline, but failed to explode.

The mention of French marine fusiliers in the day's official report from Paris is the first reference made to such forces operating with the allies. The location of these troops is not given, but it is not improbable that they form a part of the mysterious army that has been massed along the Belgian coast to repel a possible advance by the Germans upon Ostend and other coast towns.

120 Corpses Under Wrecked Building.

PARIS — The corpses of 120 civilians have been found underneath the debris of wrecked buildings in Arras, following the German bombardment. Most of the city is in ruins. The Germans that attacked the French there are unofficially reported to be falling back toward the Belgian border.

Germany Makes Prisoners Fight.

AMSTERDAM — The Berlin Tageblatt, a copy of which has been received here, says that all prisoners captured by the Germans in Russian Poland will be compelled to enlist in the German army to fight against Russia.

Russ Cruiser Torpedoed.

PETROGRAD — An official announcement is made by the war office that the Russian armored cruiser Pallada was torpedoed in the Baltic sea by a German submarine and was sunk with all her crew.

Dodges One Train; Killed by Other.

BATTLE CREEK, MICH. — Clifford Caswell, ten year old son of Mr. and Mrs. James D. Caswell, was struck and instantly killed by a Michigan Central train. The boy was putting sticks in front of a freight train and jumped off the track to escape it and was struck by a passenger train.

Boy Kileld by Lansing Auto.

LANSING, MICH. — Jumping from a delivery wagon, Clayton R. Cook, aged nineteen, slipped in the path of an automobile driven by Eugene Williams, a coal dealer, and was fatally injured.

Cook died on the way to the hospital.

WOMAN WEDS; LOSES BROKEN TROTH SUIT

Mrs. Ostrander Forced to Admit Marital Status.

OWOSSO, MICH. — The jury in the case of Mrs. Fannie L. Ostrander of Owosso vs. Pratt Wilcox of Morrice, brought in a verdict of no cause of action after having been out for three hours.

Mrs Ostrander sued Wilcox for breach of promise, alleging that she supposed they were to be married last February on the day Wilcox married some one else. Wilcox admitted having visited Mrs. Ostrander's home two or three times and to have danced with her, besides playing fiddle at one of her parties. He insisted, however, that he never talked marriage to her.

Mrs. Ostrander's case was undoubtedly lost when, after several days of evasion, she was forced to admit that she was married to Louis Blaney of Saginaw last June, four months after the alleged heart breaking by Wilcox.

THEY ARE SURELY SPY MAD

Man Hires Germans to Work in Factory; Arrested in France.

BATTLE CREEK, MICH. — Oscar Roth, representative of a Battle Creek sanitarium in Paris, is in a French prison, awaiting trial as a spy. News to this effect was received here by his brother, Dr. Paul Roth.

Roth, who had charge of a food factory in Paris, had to import German bakers, as he could not find enough Frenchmen who would work Sunday and kept Saturday as the Sabbath. This, together with the fact that Roth's son had an amateur wireless telegraph station, caused suspicion. Roth is a native of Switzerland and his sympathies are with the French

REAL "PINCH" IN LAWSUIT

Judgment for Debt of $1.75 on Bill Eighteen Years Old.

BATTLE CREEK, MICH. — Eighteen years ago, Edward Sampson contracted a bill with B. W. Pinch of Battle Creek, for $1.75. Pinch was awarded judgment for $18.75 against Sampsen by Judge M. B. Allen. This sum represented the original amount with interest on the same for eighteen years and costs of three suits, which Pinch started six, twelve and eighteen years after the bill was contracted.

Sampson refused to pay the judgment, and Pinch declared that he would start another suit in 1920.

FARMER KILLED BY FAST CAR

Victim Believed to Have Been Sleeping on Rails Near Clio.

CLIO, MICH. — Archibald Kiefer, sixty-five years old, father of eight children, was ground to death beneath the wheels of a speeding Flint-Saginaw limited interurban car at Roitter's crossing, four miles north of here and a mile from Birch Run.

Kiefer, a farmer living near Birch Run, evidently had gone to sleep on the track. The motorman declares he failed to see Kiefer until the car was almost upon him.

CZAR'S MEN LOSE ALONG RIVER SAN

Russians Are Beaten by Austrians In big Battle.

REPORT SAYS MANY CAPTURED

Germans Routed After Seven Days of Fierce Fighting at Raczke—Teutons Hold Much Territory in Poland—Russ Possess Only Warsaw West of Vistula.

LONDON — The Austrian legation at The Hague issued the following official communication:

"The rapid advance of the Austro-Hungarian troops along the river San resulted Oct. 11 in the entire withdrawal of the Russian investing front from Przemysl, Galicia, which was immediately occupied by Austrian relief troops

"The retreating Russians everywhere were strongly attacked. An attempt on their part to cross the river near Siengawa and Lezajsk gave the Austro-Hungarian troops an opportunity to take a large number of prisoners. These as yet have not been counted."

A dispatch to Reuter's Telegram company from Petrograd says:

"It is evident that a big battle was fought at the Village at Raczki (midway between Augustowo and Suwalki) after the defeat of the Germans at Augustowo. The German right wing rested on Raczki. On Oct. 8 the Russians, after seven days of continuous fighting, drove out the Germans, who crossed the river and then posted their guns on the hills. Several batteries, including those sent as re-enforcements from Koenigsberg, were captured."

Reuter's Amsterdam correspondent sends the following German official communication concerning events in the eastern theater of the war.

Russians Are Pursued.

"After their expulsion from East Prussia the Russian armies were pursued across the frontier. The center of the German military operations is now Poland. The whole of Poland west of the Vistula is now in German possession, the Russians occupying only Warsaw.

"The few kilometers lost by the Germans in Russian territory near the East Prussian frontier were of little importance, as it was never intended definitely to occupy or govern Suwalki.

"It is not true that the siege of Ossowetz has been abandoned, as the fortress has never been besieged.

"During our retreat to the East Prussian frontier our troops nowhere were defeated, but, on the contrary, repulsed many attacks of the Russians."

BOND GIVEN LIFE SENTENCE

Negro Convicted of Ida Leegson Death Protests His Innocence.

CHICAGO, ILL. — Isaac Bond, negro, found guilty of the murder of Ida Leegson, was sentenced to the penitentiary for life. He protested to Judge McDonald that he was innocent —that he never saw the woman—and that he was in Gary, Ind., at the time the murder was committed.

Miss Leegson, who was an art student, was found strangled near Argo, Ill., last October.

Cairo, Ill., Fears Race Riots.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL. — Upon the receipt of a report from Sheriff Frazer of Cairo, Governor Dunne wired Captain Roy Lutes of company K, I. N. G., to have his company ready to assist the sheriff in suppressing possible race riots.

The race antagonism followed the murder of Eli Johnson, a riverman, by one of two negroes who had attempted to rob him. Two negroes have been arrested, but they deny implication in th shooting. A third negro, whom the prisoners charge with the murder, still is at large.

New King Takes Oath.

LONDON — King Ferdinand of Roumania, in the presence of the members of the royal family, the diplomatic corps, and other notables, took the oath of office, in succession to his uncle, King Charles, according to a dispatch from Bucharest by way of Amsterdam, to the Central News agency.

The new king announced the intention of directing his labors to the development of the state.

No Peace Move by Wilson.

WASHINGTON, D. C. — President Wilson states that he had made no new move toward bringing peace to Europe and that reports recently circulated of this government's activity in that direction had no authoritative basis.

Cardinal Ferrata Dies.

ROME — Cardinal Dominic Ferrata, the papal secretary of state, is dead. For sixteen years he was papal nuncio at Paris and later was prefect of the congregation of bishops in Rome.

NEWS OF THE STATE

Tags For Hunters Sought.

KALAMAZOO, MICH. — Members of the Kalamazoo county grange met here to discuss ways of fighting what they call the hunting pest. Farmers declare that their fences are being torn down and their stock killed. One farmer suggested that it would be a good idea to ask the state legislature to pass a bill making it necessary for hunters to carry big numbers just like automobiles so they could be identified. In fact a resolution was passed calling for action of this kind and a committee was appointed to take the matter up at the next session of the state legislature.

Numbering Houses.

The now almost universal custom of numbering private houses so that they can be easily identified is only a little more than 400 years old. It was in the year 1513 that this idea struck the fancy of a Parisian architect, but it was not until nearly three centuries later that the system became at all general.

In Berlin an eccentric method of numbering the houses was first adopted. They were numbered without any reference whatever to the name of the street. A tenant's address would be described merely as "1000 Berlin." In St. Petersburg an excellent way of displaying the numbers is employed—little lanterns bear the numbers on the glass, so that they can be seen after dark. "In the later Stuart times," says Macaulay, "the houses of London were not numbered, and there would, indeed, have been little advantage in numbering them, for of the coachmen, chairmen, porters and errand boys of the city a very small proportion could read. It was necessary to use marks which the most ignorant could understand. The shops were, therefore, distinguished by painted or sculptured signs, which gave a very gay and grotesque aspect to the streets."—New York American.

Curious Gaelic Alphabet.

A very curious and distinguishing characteristic of the Gaelic alphabet is that nearly every letter thereof is represented by a tree. While the alphabet of ancient Gaelic comprised but seventeen letters, that of modern Gaelic has eighteen. But with the new forms as with the old, the letter is represented by a tree. The exceptions are "g," "t" and "u," which stand for "ivy," "furze" and "heather." The alphabet now stands: Ailm, beite, coll, dur, eagh, fearn, gath, huath, iogh, luis, muin, nuin, oir, peith, ruis, suil, teine, ur, all of which is equal to saying: Elm, birch, hazel, oak, aspen, alder, ivy, whitethorn, yew, rowan or quicken, vine, ash, spindle tree, pine, elder, willow, furze, heath. In the old Gaelic alphabet the letter "h" (the huath or whitethorn) does not exist. The alphabet is called the bethluis-nuin, because "b," "l," "n" and not "a," "b," "c" are the first three letters.

Elephants Hate Camels.

Elephants in Africa have the bitterest enmity to camels. When the camel scents the elephant it stops still, trembles in all its limbs and utters an uninterrupted cry of terror and affright. No persuasion, no blows, can induce it to rise. It moves its head backward and forward, and its whole frame is shaken with mortal anguish. The elephant, on the contrary, as soon as he perceives the camel elevates his trunk, stamps with his feet, and, with his trunk thrown backward, snorting with a noise like the sound of a trumpet, he rushes toward the camel, which with its neck outstretched and utterly defenseless awaits with the most patient resignation the approach of its enemy. The elephant, with its enormous, shapeless limbs, tramples on the unfortunate animal in such a manner that in a few minutes it is scattered around in small fragments.

Some Parliaments.

The house of keys of the Isle of Man claims to be oldest parliament in the world. It is said to have been founded in A. D. 938 by King Orry.

Channel islanders will tell you that the constitution of their states has remained practically unaltered since the day their sovereign, Duke William, came over to Hastings and annexed England.

In Jersey it consists of twelve jurats elected for life by the twelve parishes, twelve rectors, twelve constables, or mayors, of parishes and fourteen elected deputies, elected every three years. The assembly is presided over by the bailiff, and the other officers are the attorney general, the solicitor general and the viscount, or prevot, who speaks but may not vote.—Pearson's Weekly.

Capital of Holland.

A gentleman—to the best of our recollection, a retired linen draper—went into school one day with the intention of putting the fifth standard through their facings in the geography of Europe. He began, "What is the capital of 'Olland?" "Capital H," was the crushing rejoinder from the smart boy of the class. The ex-linen draper did not pursue his geographical inquiries further—Cornhill Magazine.

Colored Diamonds.

Diamonds are in many colors, such as black, blue, red, pink, green and yellow. Black diamonds are extremely rare and come from Borneo. The Duke of Richmond owns one big black diamond that for centuries did duty as the eye of an Indian idol.

Illinois River.

The Illinois river was so termed from the Illini, a tribe of Indians on its banks. Another derivation is suggested in Isle aux Noix, island of nuts. Several derivations more or less fanciful are suggested by the etymologists and geographers.

Sunny Thought.

Even if you are lacking in some things, cheer up. The dog with the shortest tail wears the fewest tin cans.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Light Writing.

Photography, as a term, is derived from the Greek words "phos" or "photos," meaning "light," and "grapho," signifying "I write."

Ambition to merit praise fortifies our virtue.

Military Forces of Servia.

Servia's plan of military organization is distinctive. Compulsory service is personal for all ablebodied men and pecuniary for all who are incapable of personal service. These latter must pay an indirect tax of 30 per cent additional. The military forces are divided into a national army and the landsturm, which forms the last line of defense. Service in the national army begins at twenty-one and ends after forty-five. In the landsturm it begins at seventeen, ends at twenty-one; begins again at forty-six and ends at fifty.

The national army consists of three bans, the first ban including all ablebodied men between twenty-one and thirty-one, the second ban all between thirty-one and thirty-eight and the third those between thirty-eight and forty-five.

The first ban has its cadre, a school through which every ablebodied man of twenty-one must pass. No one is allowed to change his nationality while belonging to the first ban, nor can any member thereof receive any outside appointment or become even a monk until he has served his term in the army.—Baltimore Sun.

12TH ANNUAL STATE BOYS CONFERENCE.

For the Older Boys of Michigan, Under the Auspices of the Y. M. C. A.

ANN ARBOR, MICH., NOV. 27-29.

Completed programs for the various sessions of the Twelfth Annual State Boys' Conference to be held in Ann Arbor, Nov. 27-29, were issued today by the Michigan Y. M. C. A. for the conference program committee. A number of special features are being provided for this year's conference and the sectional meetings, with papers by the boys themselves, are expected to be intensely interesting. Preparations are being made for 2,000 boys by a committee of 100 boys residents in Ann Arbor. They are perfecting all the details of the big meet and have committees at work already on recreation, entertainment, publicity, music, reception, meeting places, parade and finance.

The speakers already assured are Fred B. Smith, one of the prominent leaders in the Men and Religious Forward movement, New York; Edgar M. Robinson, head of the Boys' Work for the International Y. M. C. A., New York; President H. B. Hutchins of the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor; Eugene C. Foster, city secretary for boys, Detroit, Y. M. C. A.; Coach "Dinnie" Upton of Grand Rapids; Arthur Rugh of New York and W. J. Hutchins of Oberlin, Ohio. Other speakers of international reputation will be added to this list.

The principal sessions of the conference will be held in Hill Auditorium, on the University of Michigan campus. The purpose of these sessions is to bring together the representative older boys of Michigan to discuss their own moral problems and to inspire them to go back to their respective fields and organizations to do a larger service of a Christian character.

A fine program has been prepared.

The World's Strangest University.

Founded in the year 972 A. D., the Mohammedan university of El-Azhar ("The Luminous") is one of the oldest existing and strangest universities in the world.

El-Azhar is the Oxford of the Moslem world and is at present attended by upward of 10,000 students of all ages and from every eastern country from the Caucasus to Somaliland. Board and lodging is free. The teaching consists chiefly of Mohammedan dogma, which is laboriously committed to memory from sacred books.

The students squat in groups on the floor of the immense building with their boots—which have to be taken off on entering—and their daily rations beside them and accompany the droning repetition of their lessons with a rhythmic swaying of the body. Writing is done on tin slates.

Girls are allowed to attend the lectures, but only as listeners; they may not speak.

Eaten the Canary.

An Italian street peddler was making mechanical canaries warble and carol when a coal wagon lumbered by driven by an old darky. The driver heard the song and, pursing up his lips, imitated it perfectly. Amazed, the peddler walked across the street and regarded the old man long and hard.

"Yu needn't be lookin' fo' dat bird," Uncle Andy assured him, "'caze Ah'se done swallowed him. Ah'se done kep' him down dar fo' twenty year an' Ah ain't gwine let him go now!"

And a crowd gathered, as is customary in New York.—New York Post.

The Last Word.

"By gosh," a henpecked husband said, "I hear some chaps kicking because their wives always have the last word. Now, for my part, to give my wife the last word never bothers me a bit."

"It doesn't?"

"No, on the contrary. I always feel thankful when she gets to it."—Exchange.

The Screech Owl.

The screech owl feeds on small mammals, birds, reptiles, fish, spiders, crawfish, scorpions, earthworms, grasshoppers, crickets, ground dwelling beetles and caterpillars. Screech owls should be encouraged to stay near barns and outhouses, as they will keep in check house and wood mice.

The Popular Michigan Actor, Norman Hackett, in "The Typhoon" at the Bradley Opera House, Thursday, October 22.

MICHIGAN ACTOR COMING

The announcement that Norman Hackett is to play his annual engagement in Tecumseh at the Bradley opera house, Thursday evening, Oct. 22nd, will be a welcome fact to many of his admirers here. While the State of Michigan has given many actors of prominence to the stage, it is doubtful if any of them have achieved success greater than Norman Hackett.

Michigan people are always fond of good things from their own state and so local theatre goers take pride in welcoming Mr. Hackett because he has reflected so much fame on his native state. A resident of Detroit and a graduate of the University of Michigan, Mr. Hackett is a credit to us and deserves the support of all Wolverines as well as lovers of good plays.

His engagement this season is of unusual interest as he is bringing to us for the first time a world's famous play, "The Typhoon," which was originally produced in this community by Walker Whiteside and which took New York, Chicago and Detroit by storm. This play ran a year in London, Berlin, Paris and Vienna as well and is considered to be one of the most remarkable plays of the century. It is the biggest thing Mr. Hackett has ever attempted and reports credit him with success equal to Whiteside.

Mr. Hackett will bring with him the complete Whiteside production as used in New York and elsewhere and a company of 20 people. The production is so heavy Mr. Hackett is only playing the large cities and it is by the merest chance that Tecumseh is to see him this season. He has three open dates from Toledo to Chicago where he goes for a month's engagement and these dates have been filled in with Kalamazoo, Tecumseh and Adrian which will be the only one night stands visited by Mr. Hackett the current season.

We may consider ourselves very lucky to have the opportunity of seeing "The Typhoon" as it is the talk of the world and with Japan so prominently before the public in her fight with Germany, the play is of special value as it gives a very true picture of Japanese life and character. There has already been quite a lively inquiry for seats and it looks as if Mr. Hackett's ambition in securing such a famous production would be well rewarded in this city where he has already won a host of admirers.

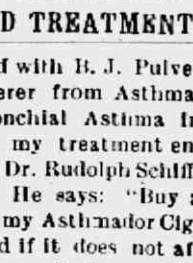
ASTHMA AND HAY FEVER A GUARANTEED TREATMENT.

"I have arranged with B. J. Pulver so that every sufferer from Asthma, Hay Fever or Bronchial Asthma in Tecumseh can try my treatment entirely at my risk," Dr. Rudolph Schiffmann announces. He says: "Buy a 50-cent package of my Asthmador Cigarettes, try it, and if it does not afford you immediate relief, or if you do not find it the best ever used, take it back to B. J. Pulver and they will return your money, cheerfully and without any question whatever. After seeing the grateful relief it has afforded in hundreds of cases, which had been considered incurable, and which had been given up in despair, I know what it will do. I am so sure that it will do the same with others that I am not afraid to guarantee it will relieve instantaneously. The druggists handling Asthmador will return your money if you say so. You are to be the sole judge and under this positive guarantee, absolutely no risk is run in buying Asthmador."

Persons living elsewhere will be supplied under the same guarantee by their local druggist or direct by Dr. R. Schiffmann, St. Paul, Minn.

This is the Stove Polish YOU Should Use



IT'S different from others because more care is taken in the making and the materials used are of higher grade.

Black Silk Stove Polish

Makes a brilliant, silky polish that does not rub off or dust off, and the shine lasts four times as long as ordinary stove polish. Used on sample stoves and sold by hardware and grocery dealers. All we ask is a trial. Use it on your cook stove, your parlor stove or your gas range. If you don't find it the best stove polish you ever used, your dealer is authorized to refund your money. Insist on Black Silk Stove Polish. Made in liquid or paste—one quality.

"THE SQUAW MAN"

What, perhaps, will prove the best of any of the Famous Player programs that have yet been presented at the Bradley Opera House, will be next Monday's program. Dustin Farnam in "The Squaw Man." This great picture is in six magnificent reels and over 264 thrilling scenes with every foot of film breathing with the wholesome atmosphere of the west.

"The Squaw Man" was produced by the Lasky company at a cost of over $50,000. It is considered everywhere it has been shown as "the one big Famous Player production." The following night letter, which was received by the Lasky company shortly after the film was released, shows what people who have seen it, think of it:

Minneapolis. Minn., March 12.
Jesse L. Lasky, Long Acre Theatre.
New York:

Congratulations Squaw Man a tremendous success. Played to fourteen thousand paid admissions two days, midnight performance to accommodate people necessary, playing return date by request.

A MESSAGE.

To our many friends in the churches and in the Grange, and to those who are not members of any organization, but who have hearts full of sympathy for those in trouble:

We cannot come to each of you and take you by the hand and greet you face to face, so we desire to speak to you in this way. One of the strongest links in the family chain is broken. The long hard fight is ended. Our boy who suffered so long and patiently is at rest. He is with the Master now, whom he loved and served.

To we mortals it seems that such a life as his was needed in this world of ours. But we hope and trust that the example of his clean, strong and unselfish life will not be lost, and we do know that the Lord's work will go on even though here and there one of his workmen drops by the wayside.

During the long and weary weeks when the shadow of a great impending sorrow rested over our home, your words of cheer and your offers of help were very helpful. And when the end came, your messages of sympathy, your calls at the home, the beautiful and profuse floral offerings from the Baptist Church, the B. Y. P. U., the Grange and individual friends and neighbors touched our hearts and helped greatly to lighten the heavy burden. Oh friends, only those who have passed through the deep waters can begin to realize how much you have helped us. From the depths of our hearts we thank you, and in the months and years that are before us we shall not forget. May He who said, "Inasmuch as ye did it unto one of the least of these my little ones ye did it unto me" reward you.

"We shall know as we are known,
Never more to walk alone
In the dawning of the morning
When the mists are cleared away."

EPISCOPAL MINISTERS COMING.

On Tuesday, Oct. 20th, the meetings of the Southern Convocation of the Episcopal Diocese of Michigan will be held at St John's church, Clinton. One of the main objects of the meetings is to stimulate the interest and work of the local church where the gatherings are held.

The programme of speakers will be as follows:

10:30 a. m. The Rev. John McCarroll, M. D., of the staff of St. Paul's Cathedral, Detroit.

3 p. m. The Rev. Henry Tatlock, D. D., of Ann Arbor, whose topic will be "The Catholic and Protestant conception of the church."

7 p. m. The speakers will be the Rev. W. H. Poole D. D. of Jackson, the Rev. W. F. Jerome of Hillsdale and the Ven. Archdeacon Sayres of Detroit.

The public are cordially invited to attend any of these meetings. At the morning service all members of the church in Lenawee county are invited to receive the Holy Communion. The afternoon gathering is entirely informal. At the evening service the vested choir will take part.

A SILVER SHOWER

Tuesday evening the members of the B. Y. P. U. met at the pleasant home of Mr. and Mrs. Jay Morse, honoring Miss Marie Bramble whose marriage will be solemnized the 26th of this month.

The evening was spent in games and a merry good time. At a proper moment Dr. Hartzog in a most facetious manner presented Miss Marie with a set of silver knives and forks and a meat fork.

He gave all sorts of advice to the other young people advising their early marriage especially if he might have the opportunity of performing the marriage ceremony. Most appetising refreshments were served later in the evening. At a late hour the guests departed with merry good nights to all.

FRATERNAL INSURANCE AMENDMENT.

Meeting to be held in Witherell's Hall Friday evening Oct. 16.

A meeting has been called for Friday evening to consider the movement against the contemplated amendment relative to fraternal insurance.

Mr. Kaufman has been sent as speaker for the evening. The passing of this amendment would almost be a death blow to a large number of fraternal lodges throughout the state and a fierce fight is being waged against it.

RESEARCH CIRCLE.

Mrs Lynn Butrick very pleasantly entertained the members of the Research Circle at her home Tuesday afternoon. The attendance was good in spite of the unpleasant weather. Two new names were added to the list of membership, Misses Geraldine and Hessie Orr.

Mrs. Eugene Camburn will entertain the Circle next Tuesday afternoon. The program to be as follows:

"Old style Housekeeping Compared with the New"—Discussion by the members.

"A Travelling School in House Economics"—Mrs. Conklin.

Paper, "Detroit, Interesting Points and Places"—Mrs. Orr.

Conversation, "Does it pay to spend time on the esthetic side of cooking?"

Roll Call—A fact worth knowing about Michigan.

MONDAY CLUB.

At the meeting of the Monday club last Monday, after the usual program five new members were taken in, as follows: Mrs. Eugene Rosacrans, Mrs. Leon Rosacrans, Miss Marian Rosacrans, Mrs. Floyd Heesen, and Mrs. Amie Mills. The meeting was a very enjoyable one.

FELDCAMP—EISEMAN.

Married at the Episcopal Rectory Saturday evening Oct. 10, 1914, Roy Feldcamp and Ella Eiseman of Manchester. Rev. Hewitt officiating.

Find Muskegon Suicide In Woods.

MUSKEGON, MICH. — Suspended by a rope around the neck, the body of Joseph Noll, seventy years old, was found in a dense clump of trees near Mona lake by members of a sheriff's posse. Noll disappeared from his home last Monday, taking a coil of rope with him. His wife feared that he might attempt to end his life and notified the sheriff's force.

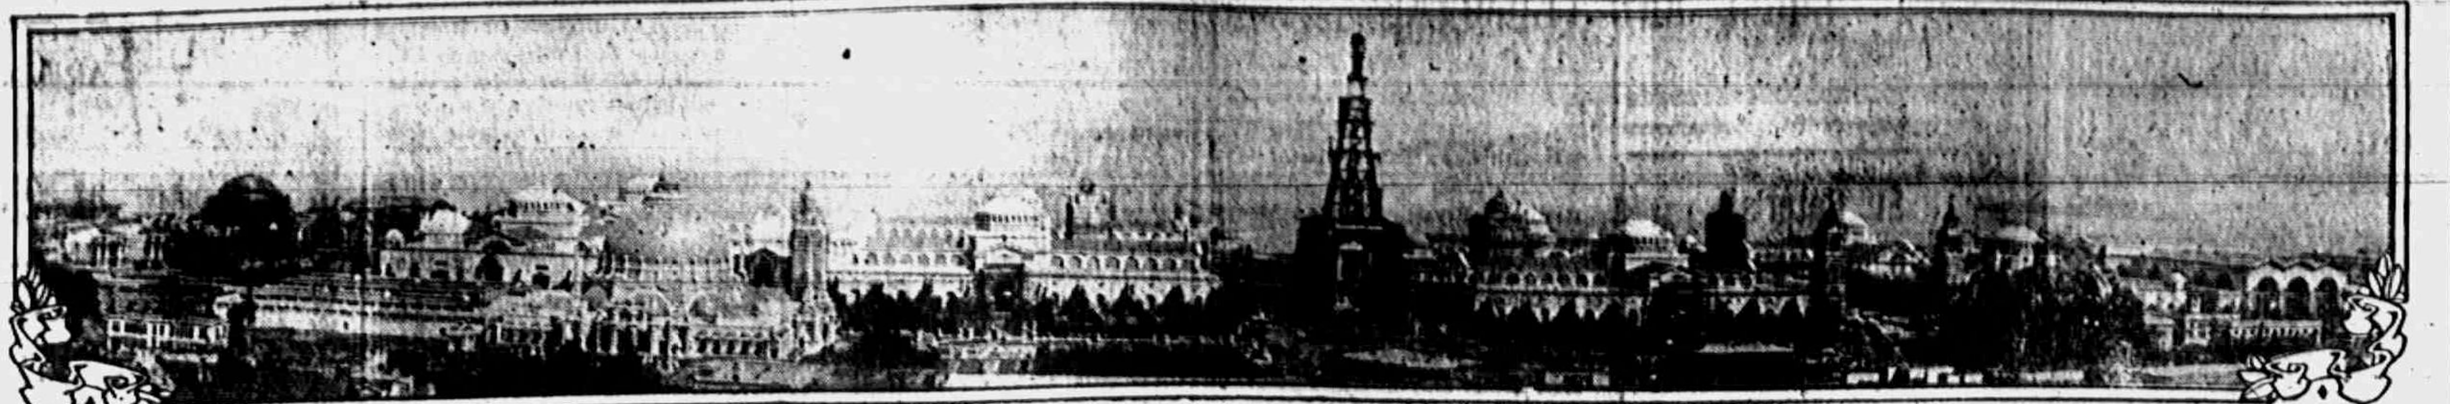
YOUR attention is respectfully called to an important point not generally known, that a laxative should have a tonic element to successfully meet constipation.

Mr. John B. Capers, of 610 Pecan St., Fort Worth, Texas, had a significant experience in this particular. He was afflicted with a severe case of constipation and bowel trouble. He spent a good deal of money in trying to find a remedy. To his astonishment, Peruna very quickly relieved him of his bad symptoms. This happened a number of years ago. Since then, Mr. Capers states that he has had similar attacks of trouble, the prominent symptom of which is constipation, and has always found prompt and efficient relief from Peruna. He says: "Up to the time I started using your Peruna I could drink castor oil like water. It did no good. As for salts, they were of no use. Physics of all kinds and classes were used, but we had to call on the fountain syringe for help." Peruna was able to correct this condition completely in Mr. Capers' case, and there is every reason to believe that it was the tonic qualities of Peruna added to the laxative qualities that procured this very desirable result.

MILLIONS TO SEE MARVELS OF WESTERN AMERICA IN 1915



VAST PANAMA-PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION LODESTONE TO MULTITUDES TO "SEE AMERICA FIRST"—MAGNIFICENT EXHIBIT PALACES ON SHORES OF SAN FRANCISCO BAY.

THE above panorama of the grounds of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, taken six months before the opening days, is an answer to the question, "Will the war cause a postponement of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition?"

It will not.

The photograph shows only a part of the entire Exposition area of 635 acres, but it shows that the Exposition was 90 per cent completed the day the European conflict started. The war will not even harm the Exposition.

Any loss in exhibits is made up in the requests for additional space from Japan, the orient, South America and nonwarring nations of Europe. There has been not a single withdrawal by any nation because of the war, and assurances have been received from two of the belligerent countries that Exposition participation will proceed. Loss in attendance from Europe will be offset by increased attendance from the United States, South America, Central America, the orient, Australia, New Zealand and the noncombatants in Europe who want to escape war's horror.

In the accompanying photograph, taken from a hilltop 600 yards away, an impression of the size of the exhibit palaces of the "Walled City" is given. Of the eleven exhibit palaces ten are completed, and the Palace of Fine Arts, which is of steel and concrete and absolutely fireproof, will be ready before this story is published.

No better criterion of the progress of the Exposition may be had than the record of the paid admissions. The average is now more than 50,000 persons a month at 25 cents. The total admission receipts from Sept. 9, 1913, to Aug. 30, 1914, was $101,000.

The largest single day when there has been no special event on the grounds was a recent Sunday, when 8,250 persons paid at the gates. The largest attendance for a special event on the grounds was 18,000 paid admissions at the Ball of All Nations on May 2. The Exposition will open on Feb. 20 and close Dec. 4, 1915.

Tecumseh People Have Good Reason For Complete Reliance

Do you know how—
To find relief from backache;
To correct distressing urinary ills;
To assist weak kidneys?
Your neighbors know the way—
Have used Doan's Kidney Pills;
Have proved their worth in many tests.

Here's Tecumseh testimony

E. C. Brisbin, farmer, N. Democrat St., Tecumseh says: "I began to suffer from kidney complaint twenty years ago and the medicine I took brought me only temporary relief. Often my back ached intensely and the secretion from my kidneys were irregular in passage and highly colored. Doan's Kidney Pills went to the seat of the trouble and did me so much good that I am seldom without a supply on hand. You may continue to use my name as a reference for the merit of Doan's Kidney Pills. Whenever I feel in need of a kidney medicine, I take this remedy and it acts promptly and effectively."

KENT DUCK HUNTER IS KILLED BY FRIEND

Rises in Boat Just as Companion Fires Gun.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH. — Geo. Baker, forty-two years old, of this city, Pere Marquette train conductor, was shot and almost instantly killed by Charles Nagel, also of this city, in the afternoon while hunting ducks on Grand river, ten miles west of here.

The shooting was accidental. The men were coming up the river in a launch, Baker being seated in the front. About 100 yards ahead, Nagel saw a duck fly into the river, and rising to his feet, took aim at the bird Baker saw the bird almost at the same time and was rising to take a shot at it himself, when Nagel pulled the trigger. Baker received the full charge in his neck, and died before shore was reached.

Baker was one of the best known conductors on the Pere Marquette. He ran between Detroit and Grand Rapids for many years. Nagel, a well to do meat dealer, is now suffering from a severe nervous collapse and is under the care of a physician.

MOTHER SUPERIOR ROSARY HILL HOME

Rosary Hill Home, Hawthorne, N.Y.—"I have been at work among the sick and poor for nearly eighteen years, and whenever I have used Vinol for rundown, weak or emaciated patients, they have been visibly benefited by it. One patient, a young woman, was so weak and ill she could hardly creep to my door for aid, and was leaning on a friend's arm. I supplied Vinol to her liberally and in a month when she returned to thank me I hardly recognized her. She was strong, her color charming and her cheeks rounded out. These words are uttered from my heart, in order that more people may know about Vinol, as there is nothing makes me happier in the world than to relieve the sick."—Mother M. ALPHONSA LATHROP, O.S.D., Hawthorne, N.Y.

Such disinterested and reliable testimony should convince everyone of the merits of Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic to build up health and strength for all weakened and nervous conditions, whether caused from overwork, worry or chronic coughs and colds. If Vinol fails to benefit we return your money.

SWEET SIXTEEN

Were They "Different?"

By AURANIA ELLERBECK

Copyright by Frank A. Munsey Co.

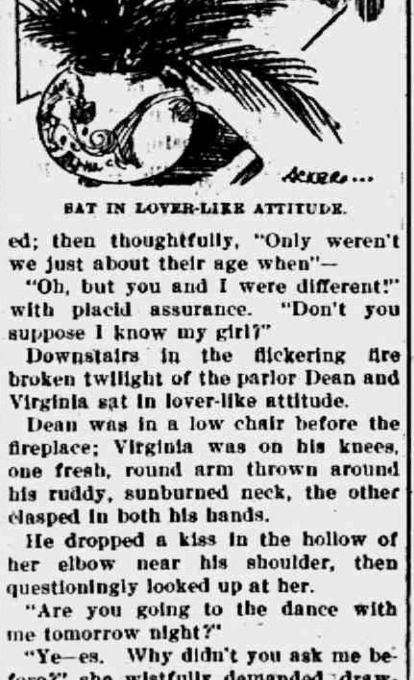
In the alcove leading from their bedroom sat the judge and Mrs. Parker.

"There comes Dean Cutler," indifferently remarked Mrs. Parker after a desultory glance at the walk below where she espied a boy of twenty striding up the steps.

"You don't think there's anything serious in his attentions?" asked the judge.

"Thomas!" exclaimed his wife in eloquent denial. "The idea! Virgie and Dean are still boy and girl together. He's barely twenty and she's just sixteen. Mere children! If she's been moping lately it's because he hasn't asked her to the dance tomorrow night. But as for anything serious between them—what put such nonsense into your head?"

"Oh, nothing!" he hesitated, dissuaded; then thoughtfully, "Only weren't we just about their age when"—



SAT IN LOVER-LIKE ATTITUDE.

"Oh, but you and I were different!" with placid assurance. "Don't you suppose I know my girl?"

Downstairs in the flickering fire broken twilight of the parlor Dean and Virginia sat in lover-like attitude.

Dean was in a low chair before the fireplace; Virginia was on his knees, one fresh, round arm thrown around his ruddy, sunburned neck, the other clasped in both his hands.

He dropped a kiss in the hollow of her elbow near his shoulder, then questioningly looked up at her.

"Are you going to the dance with me tomorrow night?"

"Ye—es. Why didn't you ask me before?" she wistfully demanded, drawing back with a helpless sigh.

It was bewildering how the anger she had felt at his remissness fled at a look—at a kiss! Would she never cease to be as putty in his hands?

"I knew you wouldn't go with any one else," he said with egotistical assurance, reluctantly letting her go as, at a sound from the stairs, she jumped up and made for the electric switch.

When she came back and posted herself on the arm of his chair the full streaming light discovered to her two cuts on Dean's face, one at his temple, unsuccessfully concealed by a lock of hair; the other on his cheek, red and angry.

"Why, how did you do this—and this?" she cried in alarm, her brown eyes wide with question as she held back the curls from his forehead.

[illegible] Dean stepped to the mantel and examined his curls. "Oh, that's nothing!" he vaguely replied, turning his back to the fire and pocketing his hands.

"How did you do it?" she repeated with insistent curiosity.

He perceptibly hesitated. Then, "I took a tumble last night—bowling—at the new alley," he mendaciously supplied, jingling coins in his pocket.

"Bowling—last night!—what time?" she took him up, narrowing her eyes as she became cognizant of his uneasy manner.

"Why—I don't know!" he parried, kicking a strayed cinder back on the hearth. "Some time between 9 and 11"—

"And then what did you do?" she probed, rising slowly and approaching him.

A vague presentiment was tugging at her heart. Having been to the new alley herself last night, she knew that he had lied. But why? Was there some ugly truth to conceal?

"Oh, just ran around town with Tom Baker and the bunch," he reluctantly admitted, pressed to the point of irritation.

"What do boys do when they just 'run around town?'" she went on earnestly, putting her hands on his shoulders and turning him toward her. In her love was something of a mother's yearning.

Then like a flash came two and two together. Her face blanched, and her hands fell like dead weights at her sides. She remembered now!

After she and Cousin Wes had left the bowling alley they had stopped in to see the last act at the Empire. When they came out it was nearing midnight. As they passed a certain alleyway that sneaked off Center street a noisy group of boys turned in.

She had distinctly seen the loose belted figure of Tom Baker and another—curly headed, hatless! But she had immediately argued herself out of believing her eyes. Now she felt convinced.

"I saw you downtown last night," came from Virginia's lips in a frozen tone, unlike herself.

"Where?" demanded Dean, flushing darkly.

"Center street, between First and Second West, in an alley."

"Virginia, you didn't! I wasn't there. Some one's been talking. Just let me catch"—

"I saw you myself. Don't lie to me again!"

It was an undreamed of Virginia who confronted him!

"I—I only went in with the boys—to look on," he defensively offered instead. Her sternness put him at a disadvantage, but anything to hold her!

"You said you were at the bowling alley last night and you weren't."

Stampeded, confused, Dean hurried with the truth.

"Well, then—I'll tell you. Only you mustn't be too hard on me. A fellow hit me here with a billiard cue in a place on Columbine alley. And then there was a fight."

"Oh, Dean!" Shuddering under the destruction of hope and faith—a shattered ideal—Virginia hid her face in her hands and sank into a chair.

"Look at me," he pleaded, falling on his knees beside her and attempting to raise her chin.

But her head only sank lower, and she pushed away his hand. "I can't look at you any more—you lied to me. It wouldn't—be—the—same."

Dean stood up. He looked around the big, familiar room, suddenly grown strange and hostile, and then at the dark head bent because of him.

She was like a flower still, but lifeless, bitten by the frost. A sob clutched his throat, and he tried the hardest thing of all.

"Virginia, I'm not fit to touch your hand—but—can't you forgive me, Virgie—please?" he implored, bending over her with trembling lips and heart smitten with remorse.

But her one vulnerable spot had been pierced. Pain had quenched the flame of her love, and the ashes lay like stones in her breast.

"I don't know. It isn't that. Whether I forgave you or not, it could never be the same," she repeated dully.

Sixteen and twenty, but the lightning had struck.

Dean straightened his shoulders. "Do you want me to go?"

"Yes," with a suggestion of eagerness. "And you had better take this with you."

Rising, Virginia handed him his signet ring.

The tragedy was complete. This last concrete instance of their parting was as the closing of the casket in a funeral service.

The front door closed, and a man of twenty stumbled down the steps.

"Virginia, didn't you hear the dinner bell?" peremptorily called her father from the dining room.

"No—I—I don't want any dinner," replied Virginia from the hall where she stood, outwardly calm as a statue, inwardly nauseated with the pressure of unshed tears.

"Nonsense! Hurry in here! We've got noodle soup. Where on earth is Dean?" demanded her father, looking up from a steaming tureen, ladle poised in the air, as Virginia crept along into the dining room.

"He—didn't stay," she quietly remarked, slipping into her place at the table.

"What's the matter? Didn't he ask you to the dance?" interrogated her mother, righteously indignant.

"Yes—but—I'm going with father if I go," was the astounding reply.

"Certainly you may go with your father," largely consoled the judge, with a comprehending wink at his wife.

"Of course! That's the very nicest way to go! And what are you thinking of wearing?" pursued Mrs. Parker with tactful enthusiasm.

"I think—I'll wear—I'd like to wear my old white"— began Virginia, but at the thought of that dress and its intimate history she could no longer keep back the tears. Choking with sobs, she buried her face in her napkin and groped her way from the room.

"No, mother," advised the judge as Mrs. Parker made a movement to follow. "Let her have her cry out alone. That young scoundrel—he didn't ask her to that dance at all! Confound him!"

"I suppose not. And those things mean so much when one is just sixteen. You don't imagine it was anything else?" she suggested.

"Of course not—just a spat! He'll call up again tomorrow," and the judge began on his soup with a relish.

"And yet—we were about their age when we had our quarrel," renewed Mrs. Parker and hedged herself with alarm. Thirty years ago, and this was the first mention of it since that day! Mrs. Parker had been able to forget when she decided to forgive—

"I know, mother," said the judge, reaching over to pat her hand across the table. "But, as you say, they're children! We were—different!"

MOTORCYCLIST HURT IN RACE

Loses Control of Machine and It Crashes Into Fence.

SAGINAW, MICH. — Frank L. Walker, a Detroit motordrome rider, was badly injured in one of the races conducted at the closing meeting of the Saginaw Motorcycle club.

He was leading. On the back stretch he lost control of his machine, and he turned four somersaults on the track and crashed into the fence. For ten minutes afterward he was conscious, then lost consciousness. His jaw was dislocated, his chin split open and both legs were torn. But three races were completed.

Ann Arbor Postman Busy Delivering Sororities' Invitations.

ANN ARBOR, MICH. — The Ann Arbor special delivery postman has been an overworked man, for he delivered not many less than 100 letters to as many under class girls in the university. These were "bids" to join one or another of the eleven sororities in the University of Michigan.

This is the first year the bids have been sent out special delivery. They were mailed after midnight, with the expectation they would be received at breakfast time.

KAISER ADVANICNG IS BERLIN REPORT

Official Statement Claims 30,000 Belgians Interned.

Berlin, Oct. 19.—(By wireless to Sayville, L. I.)—The war office, in an official statement, states that the number of Belgian soldiers who have fled to Holland and who are now interred there is 30,000.

According to the statement since the Austrians have assumed the offensive in eastern Galicia they have succeeded in taking a large part of the Russian fortifications south and east of the fortress of Prezmysl, which is being besieged by the Russians.

The semi-official Cologne Gazette says that the Germans are investing the strong fortress of Belfort, which forms the most southerly point of the French eastern fortified line.

It says already that heavy siege mortars have been mounted and that the Germans are making steady but necessarily very slow progress.

Crown Princess Cecelie went to Danzig and personally decorated the crew of the U-26 with the iron cross awarded to them for their feature in torpedoing and sinking the Russian cruiser Pallada in the Gulf of Finland. The commander of the U-26 is Baron Berckheim, one of the best known German experts on the science of under the sea warfare.

"Official headquarters reports Oct. 17 that the Germans took at Bruges and Ostend plenty of war material, a great number of infantry rifles, ammunition and 200 locomotives ready for use. In the French war theater there have been no important developments.

"In the Suwalki district the Russians were quiet yesterday. The number of Russian prisoners made near Schirwindt has been increased to 4,000 and more guns have been taken. Fighting near and south of Warsaw is continuing."

ACQUITTED MINISTER SUES HIS ACCUSERS

Rev. Chester M. Loomis Asks $25,000 from Five.

Owosso, Mich., Oct. 19.—Rev. Chester M. Loomis, former pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church in Henderson, who recently was acquitted by a circuit court jury on charge of being unduly intimate with Mrs. Phillip Bingham, who was one of his parishioners, has begun damage suits for a total of $30,000 against five Henderson residents for alleged conspiracy to injure him by circulating a petition to have him removed from the church.

He alleges false statements were made. The defandants in one suit for $25,000 are: Otis Mead, father of the woman who accused the minister; Charles Allen, Louis Wilbur and Bowman Watson.

Merton Gardner is defendant in a $5,000 suit. All are prominent members of the Henderson church. After he had been granted permission by the conference recently to withdraw, Rev Mr. Loomis and his wife moved to a farm near Greenville.

RECORD SESSION IS NEAR CLOSE

It Is Longest in History of the Government.

WILSON'S POWER IS MARKED

No Other President Has Wielded Influence With Party Leaders as Has Present White House Incumbent—Three Important Acts Not Fairly Tested Yet.

Washington, Oct. 19.—With the end of this session of congress in sight, probably on Wednesday or Thursday of this week, party leaders and others in Washington are glancing backward and taking stock of the remarkable legislative record and political history that has been made. The session ending this week will have run close to 330 days, the longest continuous session in the history of the federal government. It is almost certain that when this congress expires on March 4 it will have had a record of probably a little more than 650 days of actual work out of a possible 730 days excluding Sundays.

In Continuous Session.

As a matter of fact congress has been in session almost continuously since April 15, 1913, when President Wilson issued his call for a special session to revise the tariff. This special session merged with the regular session which began last December and has continued until now, with the exception of a brief Christmas recess.

Under the spur and whip of the executive this congress has accomplished not only more legislative work but more important work than was ever put through before in the same length of time. Whether this legislation is for weal or woe is to be demonstrated. That some of it is wholesome is admitted by political adversaries of the party in power who deserve whatever praise is due for having in some instances joined with the dominant party in enacting legislation that the country appeared to demand. It may be fairly said in justice to the Republicans and independents in congress that they have voted for the Democratic measures in spite of the fact that they did not approve of them in their entirety, justifying their action or the ground that the good in the legislation outweighed the bad. In doing this Republicans have yielded a party advantage because they are now being confronted in the present campaign by the claim of the Democratic managers that the administrative legislative program cannot be impeached by the Republicans because so many of them voted for many of its features.

Wilson's Influence Greatest.

Previous congresses have been influenced to a remarkable degree by the executive, not infrequently against their will, as for example when President Cleveland, by sheer domination, forced the repeal of the Sherman silver purchase law upon an unwilling house and a hostile senate, and also when he put through a tariff bill which resulted in open break with the senate leaders of his party and finally in the disruption of the Democratic organization. President McKinley dominated congress without appearing to do so. President Roosevelt accomplished many things by drastic methods, but President Wilson has undoubtedly forced more legislation through congress with less friction with his party leaders than any other man who has ever occupied the White House.

Currency Act Most Important.

Probably the most important measure passed at the current session of congress was the first one to which it set its hand—the banking and currency act.

BELGIANS AT REST

Some of Troops Who Opposed German Invasion to Last Ditch.

Copyright, 1914, by American Press Association.

The president planned three important legislative acts for the first congress under his administration. These related to the tariff, banking and currency and trusts. He tried to have the tariff and the currency legislation concluded in the first or extra session and to carry out this plan he personally forced congress to remain in session throughout the long hot summer months and up to the time of the regular session last December. The tariff legislation went through and the currency bill got under way but the banking and currency bill was not finally enacted until this session and then congress turned its attention to the trusts with the result that two important bills of this character have been passed.

One of them is the federal trade commission act, and the other the Clayton bill amending the anti-trust acts. The effects of these two measures will not be felt until soon after the first of the year. The new trade commission to be composed of five members, of whom not more than three can be Democrats, probably will not be appointed before the regular session in December. The president has intimated that he will take plenty of time in filling these places.

None of Laws Fairly Tested.

The new currency system, although authorized in December, 1913, is not yet in operation. Whatever good effect the legislation has had upon money conditions has been therefore psychological or immediately due to the operation of the Aldrich-Vreeland emergency currency act, a legacy of a former congress, which was re-enacted by this one.

The trust legislation is not in effect indirectly or directly and can not be until the new trade commission is organized.

The campaign now under way is being waged by the administration upon the issue of the enactment of these three important measures, not one of which has been fairly and fully tested.

GERMANS ABANDON TRENCHES

Official Communication Tells of Repulse of Kaiser at St. Die—Report Says Belgians Repulsed Several German Attacks at Points of Passage on River Yser.

Paris, Oct. 19.—Armentieres, a French city on the Belgian frontier and railroad center of vast strategic importance, was occupied by the French after the Germans had been driven out after a desperate battle. Possession of Armentieres gives the French and British an advantageous base in their operations to recover Belgium.

Belgium's army victoriously opposed the passage by the Germans of the River Yser, near the Channel coast, and compelled the kaiser's troops to retreat to Ostend.

Below Armentieres the French and British defeated the Germans and seized heights which command the approaches to Givenchy, one of the most important points in the German line of defense.

North of Arras the allies advanced rapidly, despite determined resistance by the Germans. West of Arras, toward the River Oise, the Germans were compelled to abandon their trenches at several stations.

Germans Repulsed, Says Paris.

Paris, Oct. 19.—The communique issued at 11:05 at night says:

"In the course of last night the Germans tried two violent attacks north and east of St. Die. They were repulsed with serious losses on the part of the enemy.

"No other important news has been reported regarding the day's operations."

"Belgium—The Belgium army has vigorously repulsed several attacks by the Germans delivered against points of passage on the river Yser, which empties into the North sea at Nieuport.

"On our left wing to the north of the Canal of La Basse, the allied troops have occupied the front extending from Givenchy through Illies to Fromelles and have recaptured Armentieres.

"To the north of Arras yesterday was marked by notable advance on our part.

"In the region between Arras and the Oise we have made slight progress at certain points.

"In the center and on our right wing the situation is unchanged."

French Reports 13,541 Lost.

London, Oct. 19.—An official report by General Sir John French, commanding the British expeditionary force, gives the total of killed, wounded and missing from Sept. 12 to Oct. 8 as 561 officers and 12,980 men.

SENATE PASSES WAR TAX

Washington, Oct. 19.—The administration war revenue bill, levying approximately $100,000,000 additional taxes to meet the emergency caused by the war in Europe, was passed by the senate, 34 to 22.

Preceding the bill's passage, southern Democrats, in coalition with Republicans of the senate, desperately fought indefinitely to postpone consideration of the measure because cotton relief legislation had been defeated, 21 to 40.

Queer Fish.

Which fish have the power of floating and swimming back downward?

This peculiar property is possessed only by the diodon and the tetrodon, two allied families of tropical fishes which are popularly known as globefish. The tetrodon is also found off the coasts of Cornwall and Ireland. The faculty is due to the fact that the skin on the abdomen of these fishes is much looser than it is on the back, and they have the power to inflate this loose skin by swallowing air through the gullet. This of course enables them to turn over at will, and, although the great French naturalist Cuvier did not believe that when in this position they could swim as they pleased, Darwin corrected him and proved that they could swim both forward and backward in this position.

It is of course well known that the shark and the dogfish, owing to the peculiar position of the underjaw, are obliged to turn on their backs before they can seize their prey, and while in this position they are able to swim for a very considerable distance. This, however, is done by the muscular force of the fins and tail and not through any special apparatus, such as the globefish possesses.—St. James' Gazette.

The Cupboard Was Bare.

The late Dr. Masters, who was formerly a missionary in Canton, China, afterward lived in Berkeley, Cal. His friend and fellow missionary, Dr. Boone, returning on furlough, was expected to arrive in San Francisco on a certain day. Dr. Masters crossed the bay to the city; he meant to meet Dr. Boone and his party, and, after spending the day in sightseeing, to take them to dinner at a well known restaurant.

The steamer, however, had reached port earlier than had been expected, and when Dr. Masters got to the dock, his friends had left. He made inquiries at the principal hotels, but could not find them. In order to notify his family in Berkeley of the necessary change in plans, Dr. Masters sent them a telegram. Here is the somewhat damaged message that Mrs. Masters finally read:

"Can't find the bones. Will come home to dinner."—Youth's Companion.

Atavism In Dogs.

Dogs, probably the earliest of domesticated animals, when transferred to a tropical country, such as central Africa, lose in a few generations most of the characteristics they have acquired in Europe, and revert more and more to the type of the jackal and the wolf. Then their ears, whatever their breed, tend to become pointed, their coats turn sandy or rufous and their bark becomes a howl. Some attempt has been made to show that this is the result of disease and resembles the effect of malaria on the human constitution. Yet the Egyptian dog of pharaonic times possessed, as is seen by the monuments, these very characteristics, and as he was certainly domesticated before the European animal it is probable that these are original features of the race.—New York Sun.

English Schoolboy "Howlers."

The following answers were given in an examination in an English school:

"James the First claimed the throne of England through his grandmother because he had no father."

"Monarchy is the state in which a man has but one wife."

"Joan of Arc was the wife of Noah."

"Julius Caesar had a cadaverous appetite, and before he died he ate two brutes."

"In the London parks the law of gravity is twelve miles an hour."

"Gastronomy is the study of the stars and heavenly lights."

"Quinine is the bark of a tree; canine is the bark of a dog."

"The Mediterranean and the Red sea are connected by the Sewage canal."—London Globe.

Mouth of a Whale.

The whale rarely, if ever, swallows anything larger than a herring. Although the head is of enormous size, from one-quarter to one-third the length of the body, and the mouth fifteen to twenty feet long and six to eight feet wide, the opening of the gullet is not larger than a man's fist.

Sweet Oil.

"Gertie," said a mother to her five-year-old daughter, "here's a dime. Run down to the drug store and get me a bottle of sweet oil."

Gertie started down the street, but soon came running back to ask, "About how sweet do you want it, mamma?"—Chicago News.

Startled Him.

"I was outspoken in my sentiments at the club this afternoon," said Mrs. Garrulous to her husband the other evening.

With a look of astonishment he replied: "I can't believe it, my dear. Who outspoke you?"—National Monthly.

Heredity.

This information is gleaned from circus stuff: "The acrobat of today is turning the same somersaults his great-grandfather did in the little circus of yesteryears." Seems remarkable that somersaults are hereditary.—Toledo Blade.

PROGRESSIVES ON THE ROAD

Henry R. Pattengill, Progressive candidate for governor; Frank J. Temple, candidate for state treasurer; Hubert F. Probert candidate for representative to Congress 2d Dist.; Grant T Davis, candidate for representative in state legislature 1st Dist. and a number of Progressive candidates for the county, and friends arrived in Tecumseh about 10:30 a. m. yesterday.

Shortly after their arrival, Candidate Davis presented to the listeners Hubert F. Probert who gave a short address. Mr. Probert opened his speech by saying that he was a farmer and business men and hoped for the support of his friends and the people of this district, that so far the district had never been represented by a farmer, and if elected he would work for the best interest of all, standing clearly for the people, with no strings attached and pledged himself to stand by the district, regardless of any man, or party affiliations.

Mr. Frank J Temple in a very spicy manner introduced Mr. Pattengill, saying he did wish to be elected and leave Mr. Pattengill behind, so urged the voters of this community to do their part.

Mr. Pattengill's speech abounded in wit and humor and eulogized Roosevelt as a statesman, promoter and founder of the Progressive party and compared him to Andrew Jackson and Abraham Lincoln in his insight of the needs of our country and showed how the new party might bring about much needed reforms. Mr Pattengill also promised to do his best if elected as governor of the State of Michigan and do all in his power for the best interest of all.

T. B. A.

The ladies of the T. B. A held a Hallow'een social, Saturday afternoon at the pleasant home of Mrs. Thomas Wyrill, about 50 being present.

The Hallow'een color scheme of yellow and black was carried out with fine effect throughout, black cats being quite in evidence.

The ladies who served the supper wore black caps with yellow ribbons which were becoming. Games and a jolly good time marked the afternoon. The supper was a very appetizing one, and as one lady remarked you received more for your 10c than it was possible to eat.

MONDAY CLUB.

The regular meeting of the Monday Club was held yesterday afternoon with fifty ladies in attendance. Mrs. Alfred James was leader for the afternoon. Mrs. Chas. Burridge gave a paper on Michael Angelo illustrated with pictures by the Radiopticon. Mrs. Fred Rosacrans had a paper on Palestrim, Saviour of Music. Three new names were added to the list of members, Mesdames Geo Jenning, Ernest Coller and James A. Wood. Several of the ladies expect to attend the State Federation of Clubs held in Adrian this week. Mrs. J. J. Freeman is delegate from the club with Mrs. Fred Rosacrans alternate.

CATTLE DISEASE IS FEARED

Canada Quarantines Stock From Illinois and Michigan.

Port Huron, Mich., Oct. 19.—An embargo has been placed by the Canadian government on all live stock brought into the country from Michigan and Illinois. The officials at Sarnia have been notified to forbid the entry of all horses, cattle, sheep and swine at the port of Sarnia by way of the tunnel or Pere Marquette railroad ferry.

The reason given for the embargo is the prevalence of hoof and other diseases. The embargo will greatly affect Thumb district shippers and many car loads of cattle will be held up.

TECUMSEH LADY SAW "THE TYPHOON" AT GRAND RAPIDS.

Norman Hackett's New Play Highly Spoken of by Mrs. C. H. Bramble.

Mr. Ed. L. Mark,
Tecumseh, Mich.

Dear Sir: You are to be congratulated upon securing "The Typhoon" for Tecumseh. I saw it in Grand Rapids the first week it was produced and I was much impressed. Norman Hackett in his role was magnificent. He was obliged to appear before the curtain five times after the great act and finally responded to a call for a speech. His support is good and the stage setting leaves nothing to be desired. I shall take great pleasure in recommending it to my friends.

Yours truly,
(Signed) MRS. C. H. BRAMBLE.

Mr. Hackett and his excellent company will be at the Bradley opera house, Tecumseh, next Thursday, October 22. To miss seeing "The Typhoon" is to miss the biggest and best attraction that Mr. Hackett has ever brought to Tecumseh and that is saying a great deal when you stop to consider "Classmates," "Satan Sanderson" and "The Deceiver"

The Pittsburg Dispatch says of "The Typhoon":

"In that compelling drama of world interest, "The Typhoon," Norman Hackett and a very capable company opened a week's engagement in the Lyceum last night, and a large first night evidenced unusual approbation of Mr. Hackett's excellent work and that of his fellow players.

"In the hands of Mr. Hackett and his histrionic helpers "The Typhoon" has lost none of its wonderful attractiveness for the theatre going public created under the master hand of Mr. Whiteside.

"In essaying the role made famous by Mr. Whiteside, Norman Hackett has made a courageously ambitious effort to continue the high standard set by his predecessor in the role. That standard Mr. Hackett has reached, and is maintaining, and his excellent work in the gripping play last night has raised him many degrees higher in the estimation of local play goers

"In the part of the seductive Ilona, Miss Eleanor Miller is appearing with great effectiveness with Mr. Hackett. She charmed the Lyceum audience last night with her exceptionally strong interpretation of her difficult part."

"The Typhoon" comes here direct from the Valentine theatre, Toledo

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

T. H. S. vs B. H. S.

A fair crowd witnessed an exciting game of foot ball Friday afternoon, played between Blissfield and Tecumseh. It stopped raining just long enough for the game.

During the first quarter McNeil and Babcock both made touchdowns for Tecumseh, but no goals kicks making the score 12-0 at the begining of the second quarter. During this quarter Blissfield made a touchdown and Meads made one for Tecumseh, which, with a goal kick for Tecumseh left the score 19-6 in favor of Tecumseh.

In the third quarter McNeil made our fourth touchdown, and in the last quarter both teams scored a touchdown, and Tecumseh kicked goal. The final score was 33-12 in favor of Tecumseh.

McNeil and Meads did their usual good work, and Abersold made some good plays. Cuthbert distinguish himself by good all around playing in his first game.

Noticeable among the Blissfield players, as Captain and probably their best player, was Harry Rogers better known as "Stub" who learned to play on the local gridiron.

NIGHT LETTERGRAM.

Sioux City, Ia., Oct. 15, 1914
Mitchell Lewis Motor Co.,
Racine, Wisconsin

I met the Mitchell Reliability car fifty five miles south of Sioux City Wednesday at 1 a. m. in a drizzling rain and much mud Found the drivers about all in. My offer to take the wheel was gladly accepted. We arrived in Sioux City 3:30 a. m. After getting a lunch the boys asked me to continue driving north through Rock Rapids The roads were very muddy all the way to Mankato, Minn. Arrived there at 6 a. m. Thursday After driving this car 300 miles I can truly say that it is a wonder the way it plowed through gumbo mud on low gear without getting hot and so smooth and quiet it makes a fellow think that there is not another make of auto that could stand this terrible strain I would have been pleased to continue on to Minneapolis with the boys. I am sure that the car will finish the 7,500 mile test and be ready for another just like it Enthusiastic crowds in every town. I want to congratulate the Mitchell Lewis Motor Company and Mr. Bate for bringing out such a remarkably good car and also for the confidence they have in it by putting it to such a terrible test.

Car has run 5423 miles Oct. 17th.

VOTE FOR

☐ MARK R. BACON

For Representative in Congress

Republican Nominee

I believe this government should be run as a business man would run his business—on business principles, and economically.

I do not believe in FREE TRADE that has proven detrimental to the farming, laboring and business interests of this country.

I do not believe in a WAR TAX of ONE HUNDRED MILLION DOLLARS in time of peace—when it is merely a cloak to cover the political extravagance of the party in power.

I do not believe in killing the BEET SUGAR and SHEEP interests or in making our country a DEBTOR NATION.

I do not believe in sitting on the Congressional stew kettle when the people are tired of political legislation detrimental to their interests, and are asking that Congress adjourn and give the country a rest.

Do you remember that BIG promise make by the Democrats in 1912 that they would lower the High Cost of Living! Now Honestly, HAS the High Cost of Living been lowered?

THE WIT AND WISDOM CLUB.

In spite of the fog which was so dense—one could hardly see their way through it—there was a good attendance of the Wit and Wisdom Club at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F S Turner on Monday evening. The meeting was called to order by President North and after reading the minutes of the last meeting the program was given, Gautemala being the topic, Elmer Slayton gave a paper on the history of the country and Mrs. E. D. Brown a paper on the Ruins of the Country. Roll call called out a variety of ruins of the present as well as the past. A guessing contest on quotation from the Bible and Shakespeare, also on questions whose answer can be found on a penny. Light refreshments were served and a very pleasant evening was enjoyed.

WILL STRIKE 100,000 MICHIGAN HOMES

ARE YOU AWARE, that if the proposed Amendment to the Constitution of the State of Michigan, to be known as Section 10, and to be voted upon on Election Day, November 3, 1914, is adopted, its provisions will strike One Hundred Thousand Michigan homes, and affect the interests of Three Hundred Fifty Thousand Michigan citizens, who are carrying Fraternal protection? The citizens of this State must look to the Insurance Department for protection in all insurance matters. The Insurance Department supervises all Insurance Companies, and seeks to keep fraudulent companies out of this State. Let us look to the Department for information in this crisis.

READ, BROTHER, AND PONDER WELL

Commissioner Winship, of the Michigan State Insurance Department, says:

"The adoption of the proposed Amendment would, in my opinion, limit Fraternal Societies to the payment of Death Benefits only, and would destroy State supervision."

Rufus M. Potts, Superintendent of Insurance for Illinois, says:

"Permit me to say that I have carefully examined this Amendment and am of the opinion that it is a vicious piece of legislation. If the same should be adopted, it would destroy to a large extent the value of Fraternal Beneficiary Societies."

Frank Hasbrouck, Superintendent of Insurance, New York, says:

"The adoption of the Amendment into the fundamental laws of Michigan, would, in my judgment, restrict the activities of Michigan Fraternal Orders to that State. It would destroy the feature which gives to a Fraternal Order its cohesive force, namely, the lodge system."

Judges, eminent Lawyers, numerous Insurance Commissioners, well-known Fraternalists, and Citizens generally, condemn the provisions of the proposed Amendment. Every Fraternal Society, including Railway Organizations, Trade Unions and Commercial Travelers, have taken up arms against the proposed Amendment. If the Fraternal System is to be preserved, THE AMENDMENT MUST BE DEFEATED. Do your part, Brother, at the Polls, Tuesday, Nov. 3.

ASTHMA AND HAY FEVER A GUARANTEED TREATMENT.

"I have arranged with B. J. Pulver so that every sufferer from Asthma, Hay Fever or Bronchial Asthma in Tecumseh can try my treatment entirely at my risk," Dr. Rudolph Schiffmann announces. He says: "Buy a 50 cent package of my Asthmador Cigarettes, try it, and if it does not afford you immediate relief, or if you do not find it the best ever used, take it back to B. J. Pulver and they will return your money, cheerfully and without any question whatever. After seeing the grateful relief it has afforded in hundreds of cases, which had been considered incurable, and which had been given up in despair, I know what it will do. I am so sure that it will do the same with others that I am not afraid to guarantee it will relieve instantaneously. The druggists handling Asthmador will return your money if you say so. You are to be the sole judge and under this positive guarantee, absolutely no risk is run in buying Asthmador."

Persons living elsewhere will be supplied under the same guarantee by their local druggist or direct by Dr. R. Schiffmann, St. Paul, Minn.

About 40 men met at Witherell hall to hear Mr Kaufman of Detroit who gave a short but interesting talk on the proposed amendment relative to the fraternal insurance. He was listened to with close attention for it is a matter of vital interest for all fraternal societies.

Miss Lucile Miller was very pleasantly surprised Friday afternoon when her teacher Miss Wimple and the girls of the eighth grade walked in at her home, honoring her birthday. At five o'clock a dainty supper was served. The evening was spent with games and music Miss Lucile received a number of pretty presents.

JAMES HAIGHT

James Haight for many years a residence of Britton and a frequent visitor in Tecumseh, passed away at his home in Ann Arbor Friday morning. Mr Haight was a member of Tecumseh Chapter F. & A. M. of the O. E. S. and of Adrian Commandery No. 4. His funeral was held in Britton Sunday afternoon with Masonic honors.

AGAIN AT KISSING HOLLOW.

It is a shock to one's modesty to chronicle the event that transpired Sunday evening about 7:30 o'clock at the new famous spot called Kissing Hollow, but as the news spread rapidly and the editor's part in it has become prominent, we feel that some explanation is necessary.

We were driving toward Tecumseh and were just coming down the hill near Kissing Hollow, when we noticed the lights of a car approaching us and turned to the right the other car doing the same, but our lights confused the driver of the other car, and he swung too near the ditch. Luckily the car did not overturn but ran along in the ditch until stopped by a heavy growth of bushes. The car was a Buick owned by the Clinton Garage, and was driven by Will Clark, with three men passengers enroute from Toledo to Clinton.

The sudden stopping of the car, forcibly aroused the occupants to a sense of action, and out they got and began to reconnoitre As nothing could be done without tackle, the first car that came along headed for Clinton bore the message to the garage, that their car was in trouble, and with the aid of tackle, automobile and a dozen men, the Buick was pulled out of the ditch with no injury to car or occupants.

In the earlier days this place might have been appropriately named Kissing Hollow, but since the times have become more strenuous, we feel that the old name is not longer appropriate, and suggest that it be changed to Devil's Leap —ED.

FRATERNAL VISIT

Twenty eight ladies of the Research Club went to Tipton Friday despite the threatening weather, on invitation from the Tipton Rural Club. Twenty of the ladies went by train and were met at the depot by autos and carried to the place of meeting. The others went by autos from town. A most bountiful dinner was served, such as those who live in the rural district know so well how to prepare, and it is needless to say that every one present enjoyed the feast of good things.

A fine program having for its principal theme, "Franklin and its Pioneer days," was then in order. Mrs. Addie Kemp read a paper on the early days of Franklin and was assisted by Mrs. A. B. Wisner. A number of interesting letters were read in this connection.

At roll call the members responded with events that happened in the pioneer days some humorous, some sad but all of much interest, A number of souvenirs of the early days were also on exhibition. The whole afternoon was one long to be remembered and the ladies from Tecumseh felt well repaid for whatever effort they had made to be present; and only regretted that the day had not been a pleasant one so that more of their members could have been there. Supper was served later and the ladies were then taken to the depot.

TECUMSEH WELL REPRESENTED ON THE PROGRESSIVE TICKET.

Tecumseh has the honor of having three candidates on the Progressive ticket for the consideration of the voters of Lenawee county on Nov. 3d next: Frank J. Temple, cashier of the Lilley State Bank, who is the nominee for state treasurer, James A. Murphy for county clerk and Dr. E E Hendershot for coroner.

Mr. Temple is well qualified for the office of state treasurer as he has devoted many years of his life to financial matters and if elected would make an efficient officer,

James A. Murphy and Dr. E E. Hendershot need no introduction to our readers, They have been active about the Progressive camp and would fill the office entrusted to their care with credit. They will probably pull a large vote in this locality.

A NEIGHBORHOOD SURPRISE.

About forty friends of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Smith walked in on them Saturday evening, completely surprising them. After some time spent in visiting, Mrs. Fred Aylesworth, in behalf of those present, in a very pleasing manner, presented Mr. and Mrs. Smith with a casserole and a dish for mayonnaise dressing.

A bountiful supper was spread and the rest of the evening was spent with cards and music. The guests so thoroughly enjoyed themselves that it was at a very late hour when they left for home after wishing the "newly-weds" a long and happy life

GERMANS DEFEATED, SAYS RUSS REPORT

Austrians on San and Kaiser on Vistula Driven Back.

Petrograd, Oct. 19.—The Russian general army headquarters makes the following announcement:

"On the front in East Prussia and on the Vistula there is nothing new to report. Austrian attempts to cross the San river have failed. South of Przemysl the fighting continues. At several points there were bayonet attacks in which were captured fifteen Austrian officers and more than 1,600 soldiers. Austrian reinforcements are reported in the passes of the Carpathians."

Petrograd, Oct. 19.—Germany's army, which is attempting to invade Russia, has been signally defeated in attempts to cross the Vistula river, according to a semi-official announcement made here.

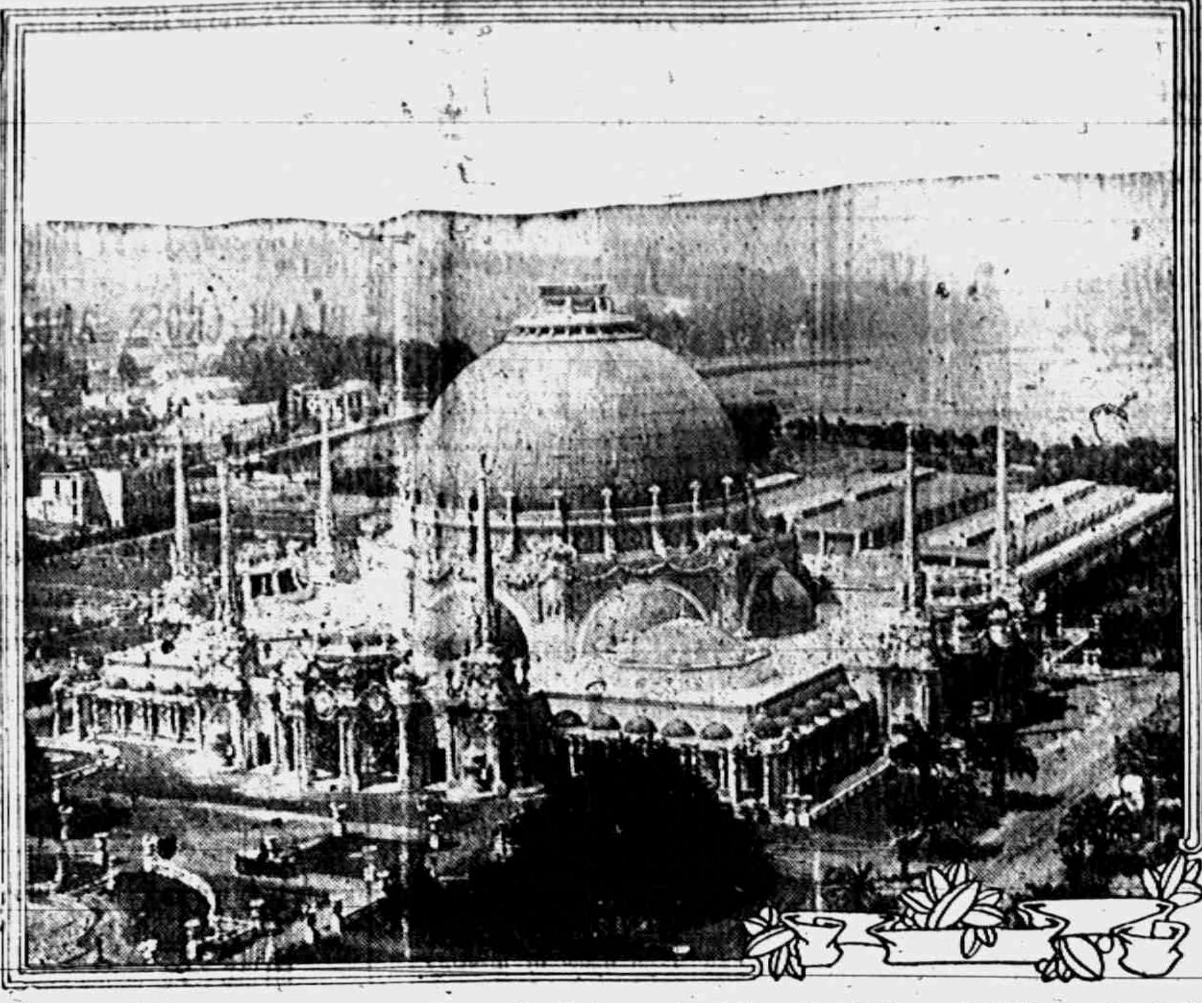
Stupendous Palace of Horticulture, Panama-Pacific International Exposition, San Francisco, 1915



THE Palace of Horticulture of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition is the most striking architectural triumph ever created for any Exposition. Whether the sweep of the Exposition's 635 acres is viewed from the distant hills or from a nearer view, this commanding edifice attracts early attention and admiration.

The great dome is the largest hemispherical glass dome in the world. It is 185 feet high and has a diameter of 152 feet. It is crowned by a mammoth basket. Surrounding this dome are the spires that give the Saracenic influence, and these are of a marble whiteness and surrounded by beautiful sculptured figures of young women.

In a general way the palace follows the ideas incorporated in the mosque of Sultan Ahmed I. The decorations and rich ornamentation have the French renaissance feeling. The numerous smaller domes that surround the building have latticed work, where rare vines and flowers will bloom to give added beauty to this building typical of plants and flowers. The extreme length of the palace is 600 feet and the width 300 feet.

COMFORTING WORDS

Many a Tecumseh Household Will Find Them So.

To have the pains and aches of a bad back removed—to be entirely free from annoying, dangerous urinary disorders is enough to make any kidney sufferer grateful. The following advice of one who has suffered will prove comforting words to hundreds of Tecumseh readers.

WAS RESULT OF PROPAGANDA

Seven Prisoners Sustain Government's Contention In Assassinations.

Vienna, Oct. 17 (Via Rome, Oct. 19.) Seven of the prisoners were examined at the trial at Sarajevo of the men charged with the assassination of the Archduke Francis Ferdinand and his wife. Gubrilovic said that he had not shot the archduke because he feared to hit the duchess. Popvic declared that he lacked the courage. The others, when cross examined, explained the organization and the scope of the secret society, Narodna Odbrana, thus confirming the government's contention that the assassinations were due to a revolution propaganda in Bosnia.

Gubrilovic asked for the protection of the court against the revenge of Major Tankosi. When he was informed that the major had been killed on the battle field he fainted.

MOTHER SUPERIOR ROSARY HILL HOME

Rosary Hill Home, Hawthorne, N.Y.—"I have been at work among the sick and poor for nearly eighteen years, and whenever I have used Vinol for run-down, weak or emaciated patients, they have been visibly benefited by it. One patient, a young woman, was so weak and ill she could hardly creep to my door for aid, and was leaning on a friend's arm. I supplied Vinol to her liberally and in a month when she returned to thank me I hardly recognized her. She was strong, her color charming and her cheeks rounded out. These words are uttered from my heart, in order that more people may know about Vinol, as there is nothing makes me happier in the world than to relieve the sick."—Mother M. ALPHONSA LATHROP, O.S.D., Hawthorne, N.Y.

Such disinterested and reliable testimony should convince everyone of the merits of Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic to build up health and strength for all weakened and nervous conditions, whether caused from overwork, worry or chronic coughs and colds. If Vinol fails to benefit we return your money.

The Lighthouse Keeper's Wife

She Was Easily Won, but She Turned Out Well

By F. A. MITCHEL

George Tuttle was a lighthouse keeper on the Atlantic coast. The tower was built on a tongue of land, and a few hundred yards back from it a railroad crossed the little peninsula, with a bridge on either side. George could see from the top of the tower in either direction trains coming and going.

At first the young man—he was twenty-five years old—was much pleased with his position. He was fond of reading and had plenty of time for the purpose. The lighthouse library consisted of a thousand volumes, so that he was not at a loss for books. But gradually loneliness came down upon him, and after awhile he discovered that he could stand his isolation no longer. He must give up his position or have a companion.

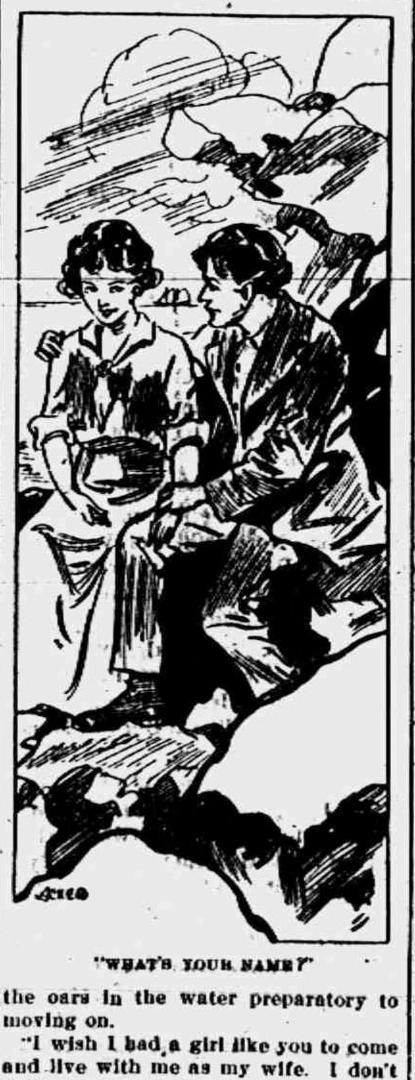
One day when the wind was off shore and the surface of the ocean was like a lake a girl in a boat pulled around the point so near that George, who was sitting on the rocks, spoke to her.

"You're a very pretty girl," he said.

She stopped rowing to hear some more of the same kind of talk.

"I hope you're not offended," George continued. "I'm the lighthouse keeper. You're the first person I've spoken to in a week or more. It's awful lonesome keeping a lighthouse."

"It must be," said the girl, dipping the oars in the water preparatory to moving on.



"WHAT'S YOUR NAME?"

"I wish I had a girl like you to come and live with me as my wife. I don't think I should be lonely any more."

She had begun to pull away, but at this let the oars rest idly on the water.

"Where do you belong?" pursued George.

"Oh! Do you think your father would give you to me?"

"I don't know. You might ask him."

"I can't leave the lighthouse."

"Not in the daytime?"

"Suppose some official should come when I was absent?"

The girl thought awhile, then said that she wouldn't mind staying there while he went to see her father. She didn't think he would object to her marrying, since he had a large family to feed. Then George said he thought he might as well go now as any time. The girl pulled in to the rocks. George helped her out, got into the boat and pulled away. He found her father quite willing to give her away, and after an absence of a couple of hours George came back with the news.

"An inspector has been here," said the girl.

"An inspector! What did you say to him?"

"I said I was going to marry the lighthouse keeper, and he had gone to see my father about it."

"Oh, you did! What did he say to that?"

"He said it was all right."

Then the two sat down on the rocks to get acquainted.

"You see," said George, "when a feller is cooped up in a lighthouse he has to get a wife the best way he can. What's your name?"

"Madge. What's yours?"

"George. You'll be Mrs. Tuttle."

"Did father ask you for references?"

"No. He said I must be all right or I wouldn't be given the care of a lighthouse."

"Reckon that's so."

"When will you marry me?"

"Most any time."

"Can't you bring the parson and the folks up here for the ceremony?"

"Maybe."

"Tomorrow?"

"Oh, that's too soon."

"Well, let me know when you're coming. Never mind that either. I'll be here. I can't go away."

A few days later when the wind was again off shore George saw a boat coming full of old and young persons. It was pulled up at the foot of the lighthouse, and they all got out, then lifted out a trunk. Madge was among them, dressed in her best. She and George stood on the rocks and a parson made her Mrs. Tuttle. Then a hamper was taken from the boat containing a bridal feast, and the party refreshed themselves.

• • • • • • •

"What's that?"

The lighthouse keeper and his wife were eating supper. It had been raining for three days, and there was a howling wind.

"A landslide."

The pair listened, but could hear nothing further except the gusts of wind and the waves beating against the tower.

"If that's a landslide it's probably over the railroad at the cut beyond the inlet. I've often wondered that it did not give way even in dry weather."

"The train," said Madge, "that comes down about 9 o'clock will strike it. If it's this side the cut the engineer won't see it."

"That would wreck a trainload of people."

George dare not leave the lighthouse, and Madge concluded that she must go to the scene of the trouble and do what might be necessary in the case. She put on her wraps while George lighted a lantern and handed it to her as she went out, picking up a box of matches at the same time and thrusting them into her hand.

Madge made her way to the railroad track, then, turning eastward, soon struck the bridge across the inlet. It was really nothing better than trestlework, though very short, being not more than 100 feet in length. To cross it on a dark night in a howling wind required bravery. Lest the wind should blow her off the bridge she got down on her hands and knees and crawled over to the other end.

George from the tower could see the dim light of the lantern moving slowly and knew by its quicker motion when it had passed the bridge. Then suddenly the light went out. At the same time he saw the stronger light of a locomotive some eight miles away.

Madge had fallen into a cattle guard, and her lantern had gone out with the jar. She was only slightly bruised and climbed out. She was near the hither end of the cut and pushed on until she stood on earth and stones that covered the track. The obstacle was not wide, but quite enough to wreck a train. She ran on a little farther till she could see through the cut. Then she set about to relight her lantern.

Opening the box George had given her, she found within it only three matches. She lighted one, but before she could put it to the wick of the lamp the wind blew it out. She lighted another with the same result. Then she was horror stricken on feeling in the box to find that but one match was left.

A trainload of people dependent on one match! At the same moment Madge heard the whistle of the coming train.

It did not take her long to realize that the lives of these persons depended not on the match, but on her coolness and ingenuity in transmitting its flame to her lantern. Kneeling on a tie, she tore cotton strips from her finest underclothing. Then she covered the lantern with the skirt of her dress, putting the end of the strips to the wick. Then, risking the flame communicating with her dress, she lighted the match and touched it to one of the strips. The strip caught the flame, but the wind, which could not be entirely excluded, blew out the match. Other strips caught, and the lantern was lighted.

George Tuttle, watching the place where his wife should be, saw the flashes of the first two matches that had been lighted. Then suddenly he saw a broader light. The front of his wife's dress had caught fire. Madge grabbed it in her two hands, and it appeared to be quenched. George heaved a sigh of relief, when he saw a light swinging to and fro. Then there was the sound of putting on brakes and the coming headlight stopped a few rods from the lantern.

It required an hour to remove the obstruction on the track, at the end of which time Madge was carried on the train to the point where the track passed near her home. There she was put off and in a few minutes was caught in the arms of her husband. As soon as she was released she handed him a handkerchief which she held by the four corners, full of money collected from the passengers whose lives she had saved.

The next day an officer of the railroad called at the lighthouse to see the woman who had saved many lives and many thousands of dollars for the company. He had a check with him for $10,000 into which he inserted her name. Nor was this all. The railroad company took her husband into its service and promoted him as fast as he learned his duties.

George Tuttle when he hears of long courtships and elaborate preparations for marriage sneers at them. "Do you suppose," he says, "I could have got a better wife by all that fuss? And, as for the divorces, there are more of them in proportion among the rich, who make most ado about their marriages, than any other class."

Mrs. Tuttle doesn't talk about such matters. She thinks any way is a good way if the parties concerned are worthy persons.

A "Helping Hand" Extended to the Middle Aged Woman

THERE comes a time in every woman's life when her organism undergoes an important change. This is a critical period. It is a time when a woman needs her full health and strength. For your own sake you should anticipate this turning point.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

has been recommended for over forty years as a tonic for women who are about to experience "the turn of life." It is helpful in the equalization of the circulation of the blood and in regulating the action of the bowels. Nervousness and low spirits disappear. Happiness and contentment take their place.

The latest in medical science is contained in Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser—new and revised edition of 1008 pages, only 31c. Address Dr. Pierce's Invalid's Hotel, Buffalo

TRIES TO CUT TOT'S THROAT

Police Arrive When Parent Has Youngster Laid Out Under Razor.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 19.—William Pagel is in the county jail charged with assault with attempt to kill and murder. Pagel was under the influence of liquor, it is alleged, when he told his wife he would "fix her and some of the others." He started for a neighbor's, but being unable to persuade any one to lend him cartridges, returned home and got a razor. Mrs. Pagel summoned the police, who arrived just as Pagel got the youngest of his three children stretched out on a table and was about to cut its throat. Pagel was rushed to the jail.

Mrs. Pagel says her husband's habits may have undermined his reason.

2,918 Deaths In State Last Month.

Lansing, Mich., Oct. 19.—The mortality report issued by Secretary of State Martindale shows that 2,918 deaths occurred in Michigan during September. This is a decrease of 146 deaths as compared to August, but corresponds to the annual death rate of 11.9 per 1,000 estimated population. This number is a decrease of 375 as compared with August.

Millionaire's Son Will Wed.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Oct. 19.—Julius F. Wernicke, son of O. H. L. Wernicke, millionaire president of the Mackey Furniture company, secured a license to wed Maletta B. Moore of Dowagiac. The marriage will be the culmination of a romance which began when Wernicke and Miss Moore were students at the University of Michigan.

Genesee to Vote on Having Auditors.

Flint, Mich., Oct. 19.—The board of supervisors voted to submit the proposition of creating a county board of three auditors to the electors of Genesee county at the November election. If the proposition carries, the auditing of all bills against the county will pass from the supervisors to the new board.

WIND HELPS BREAK RECORD

Kentland, Ind., Oct. 19.—W. C. Robinson, the young Iowa aviator, captured the American record for sustained flight across country. His flight from Des Moines, Ia., was intended to end in Chicago, but was really ended here, eighty-one miles southeast of Chicago. The deviation in his course was due to a severe wind storm and rain.

Robinson covered the journey in four hours and forty-six minutes, which is estimated to be between eighty-five and ninety miles an hour. The distance between Des Moines and Chicago by the shortest route is 300 miles and, as the aviator flew eighty-one miles southeast of Chicago, it was estimated that he actually covered at approximately 400 miles. The former record for continuous flight was 264 miles, made by C. Murvin Wood on Aug. 9, 1913.

TAFT URGES NEEDED REFORM

Favors Uniform Marriage and Divorce Laws In States.

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Reform in marriage and divorce laws through uniform state legislation was urged by former President Taft in a brief address before the commission on uniform state laws. The former president condemned the "looseness with which the marriage tie is looked upon in many states."

Mr. Taft placed himself on record as flatly opposed to "tinkering" with the federal constitution under present conditions.

Von Moltke Dead, Report.

PARIS — Le Matin publishes a report that General Helmuth von Moltke, chief of the general staff of the German army and commander in chief under the kaiser, is dead in a hospital at Fecamp, a French town on the English Channel, twenty-seven miles northeast of Havre.

Capture Rebel Forces.

LONDON — A Pretoria dispatch to the Reuter Telegram company says three officers and seventy men of Colonel Maritz's rebel force in South Africa have been captured and that four officers and forty men have voluntarily surrendered.

French Seize German Business Houses.

PARIS — The government again has taken action against German trade in France. It sequestrated an important art house and various other businesses related to almost every branch of commerce.

Muskegon "Fence" Found Guilty.

BATTLES RAGING ALONG VAST LINE

Allies Assailed Between Nieuport and Dixmude.

ATTACK AT ARRAS AND ROYE

Report of Recapture of Ostend Not Confirmed—Turkish and Russ Fleets in Sea Battle—Japs Seize Pacific Islands—Germans Repulsed Before Warsaw—Serbs Report Austrian Rout.

It was announced officially in Tokyo that the German torpedo boat S-90 has been destroyed by the Japanese at a point sixty miles south of Kiauchau bay.

A dispatch from Copenhagen to the Central News says: "The Berliner Tageblatt publishes a telegram from Bucharest saying that evidently a Russian-Turkish naval battle has taken place in the Black Sea. Exceedingly heavy firing, lasting a considerable time, is reported."

The navy department has announced the occupation, for military purposes, of strategically important islands in the Marianne (or Ladrone), Marshall, East Caroline and West Caroline archipelagos.

A London Morning Post special correspondent in the north of France says that he is informed on excellent authority that the allies have retaken Ostend. There is no confirmation here of this report.

LONDON — The plunging attacks on the allied line near the Belgian coast between Nieuport and Dixmude, similar tactics by the allies in France between Arras and Roye, where progress is claimed, & continued allied assault on Lille, still held by Germans, and stubborn fighting in the vicinity of St. Mihiel, where for days the allies have been trying to drive the Germans from their southernmost lodgment, where the acute points in the sprawling battle area of France and Belgium.

The communications issued in behalf of the allies enabled Britons to visualize for the first time in ten days the approximate battle line after crossing the Belgian frontier and showed the allies, during the days of censorship, were throwing their forces westward to meet the inevitable German which followed the taking of Ostend.

The fighting is now centered only a few miles southwest of that city and the Belgian army, heretofore reported a shaving repulsed the Germans on the banks of the River Yser, is again in the thick of the fight, being credited with bending back the German line as far as Roulers, Belgium, thirteen miles northwest of Courtrai, which point they are holding, according to the latest reports available when this dispatch was written.

Germans Hurled Back Near Warsaw.

LONDON — A dispatch to the Times from Petrograd says:

"Fierce fighting has been in progress since Sunday west of Warsaw. The Russian columns have resolutely hurled back the Germans toward their main positions on the line of Skirnewico, Kielce and Sandomir.

"No details have reached the war office concerning this fighting, but the correspondents at the front give descriptions of the fierce artilery duels and tell of the captures of large numbers of prisoners, including many Saxons. They add that the Germans are exhausted and starving."

Servians Report Reverse for Austrians.

NISH SERVIA — In the region of the Save, near Mitrovitza, the Austrians after a brisk artillery fire, attempted unsuccessfully to capture the Servian position at Prekiet. From the heights of Dejamia the Austrians bombarded Topzider and the banks of the Save and the Danube, and also sought to cannonade the vicinity of Semlin, but were forced to retire before the Servian fire.

100,000 CANADIANS TO ARM

Troops Will Be Sent to England in Units of 10,000.

OTTAWA, ONT. — Orders went out from militia headquarters to the various district centers to proceed at once with recruiting for the new Canadian expeditionary force.

Within a year or less it is expected to have 100,000 men under arms. Drafts will be sent to England from time to time as requested by the war office probably in units of about 10,000 each. About 20,000 men are to be mobilized at once.

POSSE SLAYS TWO NEGROES

Officer Alleges He Was Attacked While Pursuing Fugitive.

MEMPHIS, TENN. — Two unidentified negroes have been killed by a posse in pursuit of Manzy Boyd, a negro who assassinated Paul K. Harris, twenty-four years old, manager of a plantation at Girder, Ark.

One of the negroes was shot by a Memphis policeman who was in charge of bloodhounds sent to the scene. The negro attempted to stab the officer. The hunt for Boyd continues.

Refugees Killed In Wreck.

BOULOGUE — It is reported that thirty persons were killed and 100 injured by a collision between two trains carrying refugees just outside this city. The morning Paris to Calais train on the same line was brought to a standstill a few yards from the scene of the wreck. It was ten hours late reaching this city.

Canal Is Open Again.

PANAMA — The Panama canal is again open to traffic and ten merchantmen will be passed through the waterway from the Pacific to the Atlantic. Conditions at the scene of the recent slide north of Gold hill are reported to be excelent, the channel being probably 150 feet wide, with an average depth of 35 feet.

TURKEY PREPARING TO ENTER

Roumania Stops German Wra Supplies to the Porte.

ROME, ITALY — Turkish participation in the war now appears imminent. The Russian ambassador has transferred the archives of the embassy from Constantinople to Odessa and a Turkish fleet, cleared for action, is cruising in the Black sea.

A trainload of 150 car loads of artillery ammunition and war material on their way from Germany to Turkey has been seized by the Roumanian government. The German envoy at Bucharest protested, declaring that there were precedents for the passing of such a train through Roumanian territory in that identical trains had been sent to Roumania when the late King Charles was alive. The protest was unheeded by the Roumanian government, and the ammunition and stores remain in Roumania.

NEW WAR CHIEF IS NAMED

Sultan Places Yussof Izzedin at Head of Turkish Army and Navy.

LONDON — A dispatch to the Reuter Telegram company from Petrograd says the Constantinople correspondent of the Bourse Gazette is authority for the statement that the sultan of Turkey at a family council unexpectedly proclaimed Yussof Izzedin, heir presumptive to the Turkish throne, as generalissimo of the army and navy.

This is said to have been done to combat the dictatorship of Enver Pasha, minister of war, and to offset German influence. Prince Yussof Izzedin is the eldest son of the late Sultan Abdul Aziz.

SENATE PASSES WAR TAX

WASHINGTON — The administration war revenue bill, levying approximately $100,000,000 additional taxes to meet the emergency caused by the war in Europe, was passed by the senate, 34 to 22.

Preceding the bill's passage, southern Democrats, in coalition with Republicans of the senate, desperately fought indefinitely to postpone consideration of the measure because cotton relief legislation had been defeated, 21 to 40.

DECLARES U. S. NAVY EFFICIENT

Sec. Daniels Is Against Change in Organization.

APPROVES BUILDING PROGRAM

Administration Is Against Inquiry Being Urged in House and Talk of United States Being Unprepared For War—Representative Gardner Advocates Investigation.

WASHINGTON — Smarting under a criticism of the navy, Secretary Daniels came to its defense. In a statement isued by the naval secretary he opposed any change in its organization and declared that the navy was an effective fighting force, both defensive and offensive.

However, talk of the "preparedness" of the United States for war will be discouraged and investigation of the subject will be opposed by this administration.

President Wilson brushed aside the question with the statement that talk of the unpreparedness of the country had been going on since he was ten years old.

Gardner Raised Question.

Representative Gardner of Massachusetts recently brought the question up by offering a resolution in the house asking for an inquiry into the military condition of the country and its preparedness for war.

During the day he brought up the question again in the house and asked Chairman Henry of the rules committee to assign two days of the present session for a hearing on this resolution. Mr. Henry refused to agree to the plan, and Mr. Gardner announced he would press for a hearing immediately after congress reassembles in December.

Daniels Defends U. S. Program.

Secretary Daniels in his statement declared our system of government provided for a civilian head of the navy. He opposed control by a military head, but explained the work done by the general board of the navy. His statement then went into the naval program of the nation since 1900, which, since then, he said, had fully recognized the importance of destroyers and submarines. It continued:

"It has since 1907 consistently advocated the policy of four destroyers for each battleship; it has annually recommended additional submarines and tenders for submarines in the proportion of one tender to six submarines, and tenders to destroyers in the proportion of one tender to sixteen destroyers."

Congress Authorizes Ships.

Speaking of the navy's strength in battleships and submarines, the secretary said:

"The ultimate decision as to how many vessels, how many of each type shall be provided rests with congress, having at hand the secretary of the navy's recommendation and understanding the relative proportion of such finances available for naval purposes, congress authorizes the numbers and types of vessels that in its opinion best answer the country's needs.

"The submarine is a most effective defensive weapon and has great possibilities of marked development in the future as an offensive weapon. It is not believed, however, that submarines in their present state of development will decide any naval war, but that the paramount need of the present day navy is for battleships."

ACQUITTED MINISTER SUES HIS ACCUSERS

Rev. Chester M. Loomis Asks $25,000 from Five.

OWOSSO, MICH. — Rev. Chester M. Loomis, former pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church in Henderson, who recently was acquitted by a circuit court jury on charge of being unduly intimate with Mrs. Phillip Bingham, who was one of his parishioners, has begun damage suits for a total of $30,000 against five Henderson residents for alleged conspiracy to injure him by circulating a petition to have him removed from the church.

He alleges false statements were made. The defendants in one suit for $25,000 are: Otis Mead, father of the woman who accused the minister; Charles Allen, Louis Wilbur and Bouman Watson.

Merton Gardner is defendant in a $5,000 suit. All are prominent members of the Henderson church. After he had been granted permission by the conference recently to withdraw, Rev. Mr. Loomis and his wife moved to a farm near Greenville.

TORMENTORS CRAZE MOTHER

Thoughtless Jibes Said to Have Affected Corunna Woman.

CORUNNA, MICH. — Mrs. Edward Card, thirty-six, of Corunna, who has three children, is said to have been driven insane because thoughtless people tormented her because of her peculiarities. While in the county jail awaiting a hearing in the probate court, she demanded her release that she might go home and get her three children, the oldest twelve years old, ready for school.

The children shouted to her as they passed the jail and the mother, who always has been devoted to them, waived her hand, then broke down and sobbed piteously.

Child Beaten by Father May Die.

MENOMINEE, MICH. — In a ward of a local hospital lies John Strob, five year old son of a Crivitz farmer. The child was brutally beaten by its father and is not expected to live. Strob Sr. is now in jail awaiting the outcome of the boy's injuries.

GENERAL ELECTION.

Notice is hereby given to the qualified electors of the Township of Tecumseh, County of Lenawee, State of Michigan, that the next ensuing General Election will be held at the Council Building within said township, on Tuesday, Nov. 3, A. D. 1914,

STATE—One Governor, one Lieutenant Governor, one Secretary of State, one State Treasurer, one Auditor General, one Attorney General.

CONGRESSIONAL—One Representative in Congress for the Congressional District of which said township forms a part.

LEGISLATIVE—One Senator in the State Legislature for the Senatorial District of which said township forms a part, one Representative in the State Legislature for the Representative District of which said township forms a part.

COUNTY—One Sheriff, one County Clerk, one County Treasurer, one Register of Deeds, one Prosecuting Attorney, one County Auditor, two Circuit Court Comissioners, two Coroners, one County Surveyor, one County Drain Commissioner.

Also for the purpose of voting upon the following propositions, viz:

To amend Sec. 10 of Article 10 of the Constitution of the State of Michigan authorizing the state to issue bonds for the construction and permanent improvement of the public wagon roads.

To amend Article 8 of the Constitution of Michigan by adding a new section thereto to stand as Section 15 a of said Article authorizing counties to issue bonds for the construction of drains and the development and improvement of agricultural lands within the county.

To amend Sec. 1 of Article 3 of the Constitution of Michigan relative to the right of students while in attendance at any institution of learning, members of the legislature while in attendance at any session of the legislature, or commercial travelers, to vote.

To amend Article 12 of the Constitution of this State, to be known as Section Ten, relative to the incorporation, regulation and supervision of fraternal beneficiary societies, with the power to issue death benefit certificates.

WOMEN ELECTORS

In accordance with the Constitution of the State of Michigan and the statutes of said state relating thereto, should there be any proposition or propositions to vote upon at said election involving the direct expenditure of public money or the issue of bonds, every woman who possesses the qualifications of male electors and owns property assessed for taxes or owns property subject to taxation jointly with her husband or with any other person, or who owns property on contract and pays taxes thereon, all such property being located somewhere within the district or territory to be affected by the result of said election, will be entitled to vote upon such proposition or propositions, provided her name is duly registered in the voting precinct above designated.

The polls of said election will open at 7 o'clock a. m. and will remain open until 5 o'clock p. m. of said day of election unless the Board of Election Inspectors shall, in their discretion, adjourn the polls at 12 o'clock noon for one hour.

Dated, October 13, 1914

H. H. HANNA, JR.,
Township Clerk.

NEWS OF THE STATE

Three Men Lose Their Eyes.

CADILLAC, MICH.—Two lumberjacks and one farmer were injured in the eye in accidents near here. Tem Timlon, employed by Mitchell brothers in Kalkaska county, was struck across the face by a falling limb and one eye was gouged out and the other eye was injured. Archie French of Manton, employed in a Murphy-Diggings camp, lost an eye as the result of being struck by a flying chip. Orville Knapp, a Manton farmer, will also lose an eye as a result of being struck by a piece of flying stone while he was breaking rocks.

Abbatoy, Boy Bandit, Guilty.

DETROOIT, MICH.—Lloyd Abbatoy, the youthful bandit, charged with shooting Detectives Donovan and O'Grady on the night of June 26 last, was found guilty in Judge Connolly's court, of assault with intent to kill and murder. This charge carries with it a maximum penalty of life imprisonment.

The jury returned the verdict after a half hour's deliberation and the prisoner was remanded for sentence.

Millionaire's Son Will Wed.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.—Julius F. Wernicke, son of O. H. L. Wernicke, millionaire president of the Mackey Furniture company, secured a license to wed Maletta B. Moore of Dowagiac. The marriage will be the culmination of a romance which began when Wernicke and Miss Moore were students at the University of Michigan.

Sues for Alienation.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.—Alleging his mother-in-law was responsible for the action of his wife in filing a bill for divorce, Dr. Harrison T. Appley, prominent physician of this city, started suit for $25,000 damages in the circuit court against Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mulholland for alienation of affections.

Fugitive Gives Self Up.

LANSING, MICH.—Ray Latham, one of the pair who broke jail at Mason was captured at Shaftsburg, when he voluntarily gave himself up to the crew of an interurban car. He surrendered because of a badly sprained ankle, which he says he received jumping from a Grand Trunk train near Shaftsburg.

Barry Farmer Nearly Wrecks Train.

HASTINGS, MICH.—After striking a horse and buggy at Nashville, a west bound Michigan Central express was delayed an hour. It is alleged a farmer tied the horse to a coal car on a siding. The animal was cut in two. The train was nearly derailed. Officers are investigating.

Grand Haven Watchman Drowns.

GRAND HAVEN, MICH.—Stephen W. Trinker, thirty-five, tender of the Grand Trunk bridge at Ferrysburg, was drowned in Grand river when he fell out of his boat. Trinker was setting night lines, when Henry K Bolthouse, passing over the bridge, heard a cry for help.

Turn Down "Drys."

ESCANABA, MICH.—County local option petitions referred to the board of supervisors here were given a quietus by a practically unanimous vote. Supporters of the "dry" cause plan to use other measures in getting the matter before the people at the spring election.

PONTIAC NEWSPAPER SOLD

Press Gazette Bought by Former Flint Journal Owners.

PONTIAC, MICH.—Announcement was made this afternoon of the sale of the Pontiac Daily Press Gazette, owned by Harry Coleman, to Howard H. Fitzgerald, George H. Gardner and Harry Y. Fitzgerald, former owners and managers of the Flint Daily Journal.

Mr. Gardner will become editor and general manager, and with Harry Y. Fitzgerald will move at once to this city and assume control of the property. It is understood that Mr. Coleman will later engage in literary work.

Genesee to Vote on Having Auditors

FLINT, MICH.—The board of supervisors voted to submit the proposition of creating a county board of three auditors to the electors of Genesee county at the November election. If the proposition carries, the auditing of all bills against the county will pass from the supervisors to the new board.

Missaukee Farmer Crushed.

CADILLAC, MICH.—Martin Holsenga's skull was crushed and his body ground almost to a pulp in a runaway today. Heisenga, a Missaukee county farmer, was hauling potatoes to the city when he was thrown from the wagon seat, under the horses' hoofs.

Veteran Lake Captain Dies.

DETROIT, MICH.—Captain William Thomas Firby, for a generation a captain on the Detroit and Windsor Ferry line, died after an attack of stomach trouble. He was sixty-eight years old and had lived on the seas and in the Great Lakes since his fourteenth year.

TRIES TO CUT TOT'S THROAT

Police Arrive When Parent Has Youngster Laid Out Under Razor.

ANN ARBOR, MICH.—William Pagel is in the county jail charged with assault with attempt to kill and murder. Pagel was under the influence of liquor, it is alleged, when he told his wife he would "fix her and some of the others." He started for a neighbor's, but being unable to persuade any one to lend him cartridges, returned home and got a razor. Mrs. Pagel summoned the police, who arrived just as Pagel got the youngest of his three children stretched out on a table and was about to cut its throat. Pagel was rushed to the jail.

Mrs. Pagel says her husband's habits may have undermined his reason.

Alma Pre-Medics Organize Society.

ALMA, MICH.—An Altroix society has been organized at Alma college by students, who are taking the preparatory "medic" course. The society will meet each week and will hear addresses on subjects which interest the members.

"THE TYPHOON"

That Norman Hackett has won the hearts of Tecumseh people was demonstrated by the unusual reception given him Thursday evening at Bradley Opera House. Every seat was taken. So enthusiastic and appreciative were his audience that at the end of the second act Mr. Hackett was forced to come out of his cast and address his hearers.

Mr. Hackett appeared in "The Typhoon" taking the part of Tokeramo and was supported by a strong cast. "The Typhoon" is a strong play and just now with Japan so much in the limelight it is of great significance.

It tells the story of the Jap's great devotion to Nippon, regardless of self. Mr. Hackett's work was the work of an artist and we hear nothing but praise from all sides.

While in Tecumseh Mr. Hackett was the guest of Mrs. L. I. Bidwell he being an old friend of the family.

ANNETTE KELLERMANN IN "NEPTUNE'S DAUGHTER."

Ever since the first appearance of Annette Kellermann in "Neptune's Daughter" at the Detroit Opera House last May, and throughout its wonderful run there of 14 weeks, the people of this city have been wondering if they would ever have an opportunity of seeing this remarkable spectacle at home. The opportunity is now at hand, for it is announced as the attraction at the Bradley Opera House, two days, Monday and Tuesday, November 2 and 3rd.

In New York, where it ran an entire season on Broadway; in Chicago, where it ran all summer, as well as in Detroit, the public and press were a unit in lavishing the highest praise on "Neptune's Daughter" and calling it the masterpiece of the world. The Detroit News—the morning after its first production in that city—had this to say:

"'Neptune's Daughter' is without question something new and something out of the ordinary. The producers have realized that one of the chiefest assets of a pictorial production is good scenery, and not only are the ordinary events in this spectacle set in the most attractive of surroundings, but there are many effects that have never before been attempted. Imagine a limestone cave, festooned with glittering drapery of stalactites and stalagmites and containing a pool of water as clear as crystal. Then through the water a mermaid comes slowly swimming, and holds conference with an old sea witch, who sits on a rocky ledge surrounded by strange marine animals. Quite possibly you cannot imagine it. Then you have only to go to the Opera House, and you will actually see it. The fact that the mermaid is Annette Kellermann, the most beautiful and accomplished swimmer and diver before the public, will hardly seem a detraction, we are quite sure. This scene, and a hundred others, must have cost a fortune to produce, besides extraordinary thought and efforts. However laborious, it was wel worth it. As we watched "Neptune's Daughter" our attitude was rather like those who came to scoff and remained to pray. So attractive a star like Annette Kellermann might easily enough be used as the only attraction of the play. Simply to have her diving and swimming about would provide much entertainment. But with entire respect to Miss Kellermann her settings are as attractive as she is herself. Splendid effects follow each other in a way that is dazzling. It is impossible to describe them with mere words. The entire entertainment of 2½ hours simply thrills, amuses and delights."

HUBERT F. PROBERT

Progressive Candidate for Congress.

The Republican candidate for Congress in his political advertisement and appeal for votes states: The Republicans and Progressives really belong to one party and that he can see no reason why they should not get together and vote for him.

He also states: The Progressive party cannot hope to elect the candidate this year.

In all these claims Mr. Bacon is mistaken. The Progressive party is not a part of either old party and there is no reason (only imaginary on Mr. Bacon's part) why the Progressives should not elect their Congressman this year.

Does Mr. Bacon consider that he is as strong or good a candidate as Mr. Wedemeyer of 1912? Does Mr. Bacon think his money will induce the voters to think well of him. Does Mr. Bacon figure that he can get any Progressive votes, or the split vote from the Democratic party? How can he win?

The people of this district want a fearless man of efficency who will properly represent the district at all times. adv

ASTHMA AND HAY FEVER A GUARANTEED TREATMENT.

"I have arranged with B. J. Pulver so that every sufferer from Asthma, Hay Fever or Bronchial Asthma in Tecumseh can try my treatment entirely at my risk," Dr. Rudolph Schiffmann announces. He says: "Buy a 50 cent package of my Asthmador Cigarettes, try it, and if it does not afford you immediate relief, or if you do not find it the best ever used, take it back to B. J. Pulver and they will return your money, cheerfully and without any question whatever. After seeing the grateful relief it has afforded in hundreds of cases, which had been considered incurable, and which had been given up in despair, I know what it will do. I am so sure that it will do the same with others that I am not afraid to guarantee it will relieve instantaneously. The druggists handling Asthmador will return your money if you say so. You are to be the sole judge and under this positive guarantee, absolutely no risk is run in buying Asthmador."

Persons living elsewhere will be supplied under the same guarantee by their local druggist or direct by Dr. R. Schiffmann, St. Paul, Minn.

I believe this government should be run as a business man would run his business—on business principles, and economically.

I do not believe in FREE TRADE that has proven detrimental to the farming, laboring and business interests of this country.

I do not believe in a WAR TAX of ONE HUNDRED MILLION DOLLARS in time of peace—when it is merely a cloak to cover the political extravagance of the party in power.

I do not believe in killing the BEET SUGAR and SHEEP interests or in making our country a DEBTOR NATION.

I do not believe in sitting on the Congressional stew kettle when the people are tired of political legislation detrimental to their interests, and are asking that Congress adjourn and give the country a rest.

Do you remember that BIG promise make by the Democrats in 1912 that they would lower the High Cost of Living? Now Honestly, HAS the High Cost of Living been lowered?

WILL STRIKE 100,000 MICHIGAN HOMES

ARE YOU AWARE, that if the proposed Amendment to the Constitution of the State of Michigan, to be known as Section 10, and to be voted upon on Election Day, November 3, 1914, is adopted, its provisions will strike One Hundred Thousand Michigan homes, and affect the interests of Three Hundred Fifty Thousand Michigan citizens, who are carrying Fraternal protection? The citizens of this State must look to the Insurance Department for protection in all insurance matters. The Insurance Department supervises all Insurance Companies, and seeks to keep fraudulent companies out of this State. Let us look to the Department for information in this crisis.

READ, BROTHER, AND PONDER WELL

Commissioner Winship, of the Michigan State Insurance Department, says:

"The adoption of the proposed Amendment would, in my opinion, limit Fraternal Societies to the payment of Death Benefits only, and would destroy State supervision."

Rufus M. Potts, Superintendent of Insurance for Illinois, says:

"Permit me to say that I have carefully examined this Amendment and am of the opinion that it is a vicious piece of legislation. If the same should be adopted, it would destroy to a large extent the value of Fraternal Beneficiary Societies."

Frank Hasbrouck, Superintendent of Insurance, New York, says:

"The adoption of the Amendment into the fundamental laws of Michigan, would, in my judgment, restrict the activities of Michigan Fraternal Orders to that State. It would destroy the feature which gives to a Fraternal Order its cohesive force, namely, the lodge system."

Judges, eminent Lawyers, numerous Insurance Commissioners, well-known Fraternalists, and Citizens generally, condemn the provisions of the proposed Amendment. Every Fraternal Society, including Railway Organizations, Trade Unions and Commercial Travelers, have taken up arms against the proposed Amendment. If the Fraternal System is to be preserved, THE AMENDMENT MUST BE DEFEATED. Do your part, Brother, at the Polls, Tuesday, Nov. 3.

FIND HUMAN BOOTLEG CHAIN

Lansing Police Jail Five as Option Law Violaters.

LANSING, MICH. — A human chain of boot leggers was unearthed by the Lansing police. Five men were arrested and three of them are still locked up, the other two being released on their own recognizance for hearings later. The police got wind of mysterious bottles of "booze" which were passed from one man to the other. They have arrested all who are alleged to have handled the liquor, but cannot find the man who furnished it in the first instance.

While one portion of the force was working on this case other officers were rounding up a gang of alleged auto thieves, which has been worrying the officers and auto owners for weeks. Machines left on the street disappeared and later were found abandoned in other sections of the city. Saturday night an owner came out of his house and found a youth cranking the machine preparatory to taking a ride. He took the lad to the police station and now the officers have four others. They have names of a half dozen more whom they think are implicated.

A Happy Home
(Read What Peruna Did)

Mrs. James F. Summitt, No. 1606 East Eighth St., Muscatine, Iowa, writes:

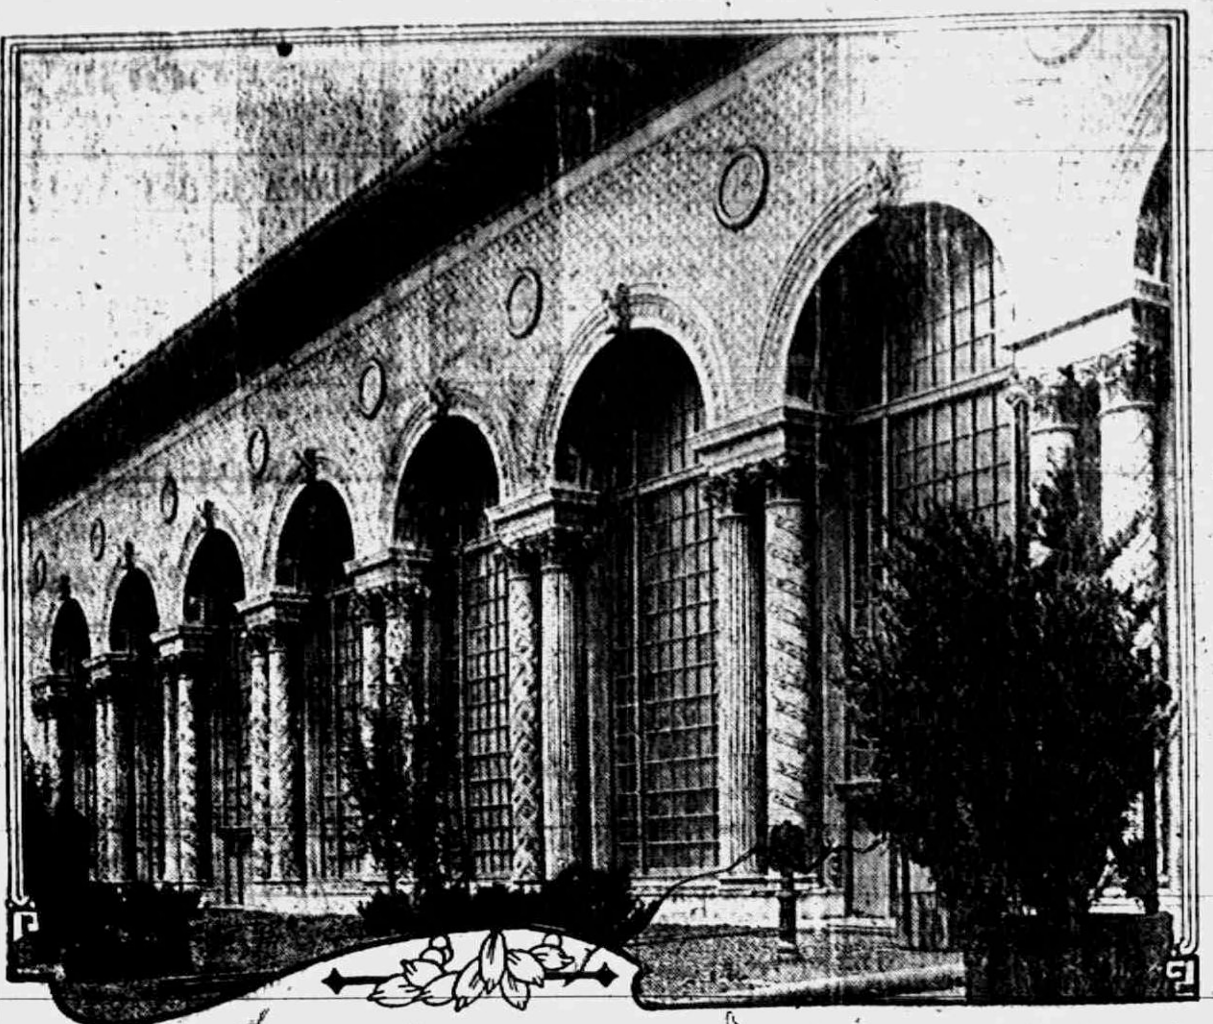
"My health was so miserable for years that I was practically an invalid. We had no family, owing to my ill health. I was induced to give Peruna a trial, and found very quickly that it was helping me.

I am now well and Happy. We have A Baby Boy He is our first and only child.

"I am now well and happy. We have a baby boy, which we believe is the direct consequence of my improved health. He is our first and only child, and if Peruna had not cured me of my ailments we should never have had him. I hope every suffering woman will give Peruna a trial, the same as I have."

Those who object to liquid medicines can now procure Peruna Tablets.

Superb Venetian Court of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, San Francisco, 1915



VARIETY of color and the use and blending of Doric, Ionic and Corinthian, with a little play given to the Byzantine architectural style, are shown in the two Venetian courts of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition at San Francisco in 1915. These courts are the connecting links in the Exposition scheme of courts, but they are to have a type of beauty not found elsewhere on the grounds.

One of the Venetian courts connects the Court of the Four Seasons with the Court of the Universe, and the other connects the Court of the Universe with the Court of Abundance. The first one named is shown above.

Every bit of the interior of the courts is a part of a color scheme that includes all of the Exposition colors. Since this photograph was taken the shrubs and flowering plants have been placed on all sides of the central paths, and their colors are in harmony with every pigment used in the remainder of the court.

COMFORTING WORDS

Many a Tecumseh Household Will Find Them So.

To have the pains and aches of a bad back removed—to be entirely free from annoying, dangerous urinary disorders is enough to make any kidney sufferer grateful. The following advice of one who has suffered will prove comforting words to hundreds of Tecumseh readers.

A. C. Aylesworth, W. Chicago St., Tecumseh says: About four years ago I had an acute attack of lumbago and my kidneys were disordeerd. I at length heard of Doan's Kidney Pills and procuring a supply at C. A. Wright & Son's Drug Store, I began using them. In a short time I was relieved. I have had no return attack of the trouble: I hope other kidney sufferers will read my statement and be led to give Doan's Kidney Pills a trial." Price 50c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Aylesworth had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y. adv.

THE LONGEST WALK IN THE WORLD

He Changed His Mind.

By ROSCOE GILMORE STOTT

Copyright by Frank A. Munsey Co.

"Bunt" Wells of the Blue Grass league told me that the longest walk in the world was the trip a batter makes to the players' bench after a strikeout with the bases full. It has been a problem to me for a long time.

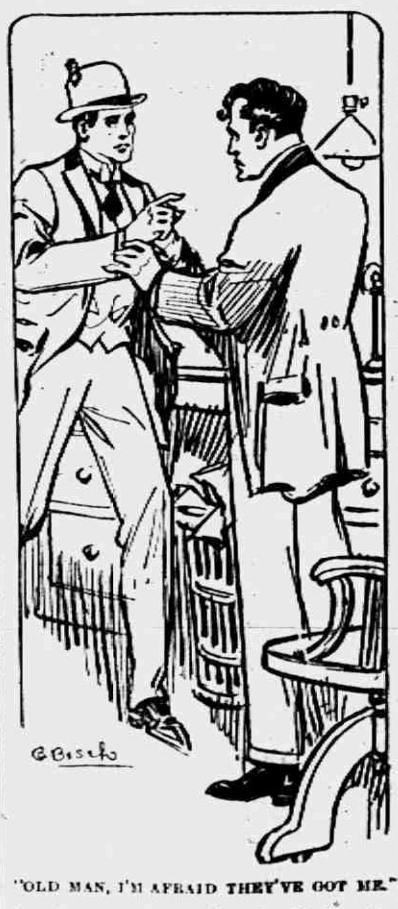
Harry Peggs, the minstrel man, told me it was the space between the "wings" and the center of the stage—when there was an obvious lack in applause.

Little Billy Rice said it was the road home when the boss had decided he had too many clerks, and Billy ought to know.

But Potter gave me the best answer. He said it was all a matter of love. He said—but that's the story.

Potter had never been in love until he was thirty-five. But he had been in everything else.

Potter lost hundreds of hours and dollars at the track. He has been a few dozen times before the justice for speeding in his red, much spattered dashabout.



"OLD MAN, I'M AFRAID THEY'VE GOT ME."

He has pitched ball for an outlaw ball team. He has had two wrecks while learning the flying machine game.

Fifty-four weeks ago Potter slid into Warsaw, Ky. He came on the evening boat from Cincinnati and walked with me up the slope to the hotel. He never stated his business, and I never asked him.

It was Sunday evening in late summer. I was lonesome, or, rather, restless. Not a thing was stirring in the home town. I missed Potter. I didn't see him as much as I used to. Potter had settled down and probably up too. Potter had even stopped smoking. He wore white negligee shirts instead of pink. He wore the very best straw sailor to be bought in Warsaw, and his ties were either black or white. I think Potter had a half dozen pairs of shoes. They all looked new and uncommonly narrow to me.

At the doorway of the hotel I met Dan Billman.

"Seen Potter?" I asked.

Dan grinned.

"Church ain't out."

"Church?" A queer conclusion was dawning.

"Sure—church. I reckon you know that your friend Potter is better off at church 'n on the street strolling with you."

Five minutes later Billman poked me humorously in the ribs. There was Potter walking out with the prettiest girl in Warsaw (population 2,000 souls).

Potter was doing other things besides winning Lucy Belle Winters. He had settled down with a hard, dull thud. He had brought his mother from out in Iowa and put her in a comfortable little cottage on the shadiest street in the town. He had disposed of every daredevil notion in his system and had put all his money into the furniture factory which consumes my invaluable time.

I am sure it was over $100,000. He was staying hours in an office building, with the horse races going on less than forty miles away.

So I wasn't surprised in the announcement that the Warsaw Citizen brought to the eager gaze of dozens—Richard J. Potter, our distinguished fellow townsman, was to be pushed for the lower house of the state legislature. He had scarcely been in town a year. But he had done things. I was uncertain. It didn't seem just like my old comrade.

"Old man," he said when I got to him in the evening after supper, "you know I hate politics. I'm beginning to hate any game. Politics is a game, as any fool knows." He eyed me intently. "Old man, you're afraid—ain't it the truth?"

I tried to be square. You see, he'd stated me a dozen times back in the Cincinnati days.

"I'm scared all over. I'm scared, Potter."

He looked more serious. He had hardly expected so much frankness. In amazement I showed him why. Politics and excited men and deals and—his past. I told him I was afraid of them all, the last the most.

"But it's for Miss Lucy Belle, old man—can't you see? I sprouted among the Pennsylvania Dutch and later grew up in Iowa. You know these Kentucky folks. You got to have family. And I have the money, but little of the blue blood. Lucy Belle's folks—well, they're just like other folks. They like me, but—old man, can't you get it? I need the position that a term down at Frankfort would give. I'm not in the game for good."

A week later he rushed into where my men were finishing up a car of handsome desks. He was red and almost frantic in manner.

"Old man, I'm afraid they've got me!" He looked unnatural and haggard. I did not break in, for he was the man with the talk. "They're on the trail of my old life."

A week later the big crash came. Potter's rival had heard the saloon fight stories from the men Dick had whipped. It was nice revenge, and two of them did a remarkably good job. My old friend heard it all, but kept it out of the Citizen.

The hounding grew even more successful every day that passed. And, worse, it was all true—terribly true.

It was the day before the primary. I had been given consent to leave the shop early. It was a last try to stem the tide that was slowly pounding down the character and possible success of Dick Potter.

I went to the usually quiet square. It was talkative and boisterous.

As I reached there Dick met me.

"Tell Bill to hold the Citizen off the press. Tell him I want to make a statement and will pay him twice his price. Run, Jim!"

It may sound high flown, and all that, but it's dead true. I say to you that Dick Potter's face, when I saw him five hours later, showed more agony than I think you could crowd in ten faces like mine.

He had never lacked any luxury in life but love. Now the thing he wanted most and needed most had been hounded out of his life. I have seen reckless men with money—you have, too—but not one was like Dick.

I looked at the man five minutes before he said a word, and I could not urge him. Besides, I knew about what was coming.

"Jim," he said slowly and with long pauses between some of the words, "I can tell what the longest walk in the world is—it's to be within the gates of heaven and then to turn around and walk back."

He dropped his head in his hands, and for just a little minute his voice broke. Gradually he got the old control and looked up.

"Jim," he went on slowly, "tomorrow the Citizen is going to print my withdrawal and a complete story of my old life I say all my old life. I wrote it, and it's all there." The hint of a smile touched his lips. "I told twice what that scorpion told 'em. I wanted to beat him some way, and I knew more than he did." I took a chair and slid it over near his. "But I wanted her to know it from my own lips—as a man would act—and I told her everything I knew about Dick Potter. It was pretty nasty in parts, and it took nearly four hours. Then I released her from her promise to me, and I tried the longest walk in the world. It starts at old man Winters' front gate and ends"—he looked about his new, handsome quarters—"here."

I was saying something—oh, some small thing about a beginning all over or something like that. I don't think he heard a word. His telephone bell rang, and he didn't rise to answer. So I slid out into the other room and took down the receiver.

It was Lucy Belle. I knew the voice. I called to Dick, but he didn't move. Then I made some silly excuse and ran to Potter. I told him it was Lucy Belle and what it might mean, but he wouldn't move. He said he couldn't stand anything more. I rushed back to the telephone and told Miss Lucy he was sick.

But she knew Dick, and she begged me to get him to talk to her, just for a moment. By that time I had got to be so much of a liar that I thought I could stand another little disgrace, and I told Dick she was sick and needed him for something.

It worked. Dick was there in no time. He wanted to help.

I was rambling through some of his new books when he came back to me. Honestly I thought he had gone mad. His white face was flaming red. His movements were alert, and his eyes blazed. He couldn't talk nearly fast enough.

"'Dick, Dick,' she says, 'I want to help you fight—all the way up!' she says. She's thought it all through, and she believes in me. And she says she needs me. She says it takes anybody to be a politician, but heroes tell the truth She"—

The poor fellow, in a half sobbing frenzy, broke off to straighten himself for a journey back to her home. I helped a bit myself, and you'd have thought he was a fire horse. I have never seen a man in so big a rush in my whole life. In five minutes he looked pretty decent, and he caught hold of my hand with a half wild sort of laugh. At the door he looked back for a second.

"Jim," he said, hardly taking time for the words—"Jim, I was wrong. The longest walk in the world is getting back into heaven out of—here!"

NOTHING BETTER FOR WEAK WOMEN

"I Never Spent Any Money That Did Me So Much Good as That I Spent for Vinol."

Bellefontaine, Ohio.—"I wish every tired, weak, nervous woman could have Vinol for I never spent any money in my life that did me so much good as that I spent for Vinol. My nerves were in a very bad condition, making me very weak, tired, and worn out and often drowsy headaches. I had tried cod liver oil, doctor's medicines, and other preparations without benefit.

"One day a friend asked me to try Vinol. I did and soon my appetite increased, I slept better and now I am strong, vigorous and well and can do my housework with pleasure."—Mrs. J. F. LAMBORN, Bellefontaine, Ohio.

Nervous, weak, tired, worn-out women should take Mrs. Lamborn's advice and try Vinol for there are literally thousands of men and women who were formerly run-down, weak and nervous, who owe their good health to Vinol.

It is the medicinal, tissue building elements of the cod's livers, aided by the blood making, strengthening influence of tonic iron, contained in Vinol, which makes it so efficient in all such cases.

A Human Churn

WHEN the food reaches the stomach it is subjected to a peculiar churning movement by the muscular walls of the stomach"—(See Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser, page 45). In the liver, kidneys and skin, the blood is purified of its waste materials—these organs act as human filters, leaving the blood pure and clear—unless liver, digestive tract and kidneys are clogged.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

is a stomach, liver and kidney tonic—by assisting the stomach to assimilate, the liver to filter, the kidneys to act—the poisons are removed, the red blood corpuscles are increased and one feels light, fresh and active instead of logy, dull and heavy. The "Discovery" stimulates the stomach, increases action of heart and arteries and is a most satisfactory alterative in blood-taint of any character. The refreshing influence of this extract of native medicinal plants has been favorably known for over forty years. Everywhere some neighbor can tell you of the good it has done.

Sold by all medicine dealers in liquid or tablet form; or send 50 one-cent stamps to Dr. Pierce, Buffalo, N.Y., and a trial box will be mailed you.

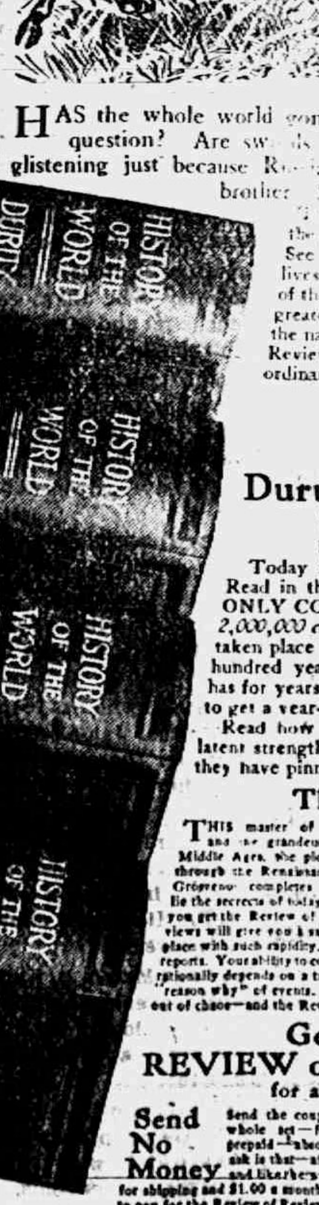
WAR! What Is It All About?

HAS the whole world gone stark mad over a very foolish and trivial question? Are swords rattling, cannon rumbling, mailed armour glistening just because Russia wanted to show her love for the little brother Servia?

Look aside the curtain of Europe's politics and see the grim and sinister game of chess that is being played. See upon what a slim, yet desperate, excuse the sacred lives of millions may be sacrificed. Read the history of the past one hundred years, as written by one of the greatest authorities the world has ever known, and learn the naked, shameful truth. Just to get you started as a Review of Reviews subscriber, we make you this extraordinary offer. We will give to you



FREE!

Duruy's History of the World

Four splendid cloth volumes, full of portraits, sketches, maps, diagrams

Today is the climax of a hundred years of preparation. Read in this timely, authoritative, complete, AND THE ONLY CONDENSED classic world history—of which over 2,000,000 copies have been sold in France alone—just what has taken place in the inner councils of Europe during the past one hundred years. Read in these entrancing pages how Russia has for years craftily been trying to escape from her darkness—to get a year-round open port, with its economic freedom.

Read how Germany and Austria, fearful of the monster's latent strength, have been trying to checkmate her and how they have pinned all in this last, supreme stake.

The Lesson of the Past

THIS master of the pen shows you the glory that was Greece's and the grandeur that was Rome's. He guides you through the Middle Ages, the picturesque old days of feudalism and the crusades; through the Renaissance up to contemporaneous history, which Prof. Grosvenor completes in brilliant manner. In the story of the past lie the secrets of today. And you will understand them better when you get the Review of Reviews for a year—for the Review of Reviews will give you a sane interpretation of the events that are taking place with such rapidity. It is not enough to read the daily news reports. Your ability to comprehend conditions, and to discuss them rationally depends on a true interpretation of the meaning and the "reason why" of events. In your mind you must bring order out of chaos—and the Review of Reviews will do it for you.

THE TECUMSEH HERALD

SIXTY-THIRD YEAR NO 86. TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN, TUESDAY OCTOBER 27, 1914. WHOLE 4362

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT

We, the undersigned Merchants, have for more than a year been giving our customers who pay cash a discount. We have accomplished this by means of the Brown Stamp Company's Brown Stamps.

We have found, however, that at a recent session of our Legislature that the state enacted a law prohibiting the use of stamps in the manner in which we have been using Brown Stamps. The substance of the law is that a Merchant may issue trading stamps provided that he redeems them himself, but he cannot issue stamps to be redeemed by another.

In issuing Brown Stamps we paid the Brown Stamp Co. at the time of securing the stamps a sum sufficient to redeem each and every stamp we issued and they assumed the obligation of redeeming them. Our present plan is to issue our own stamps and pay the redemption OURSELVES.

We believe that in issuing our own stamps that we will be greatly safe-guarding the interests of customers and ourselves for several reasons:

FIRST—The state is at the present time making an effort to enforce the Trading Stamp Law. Should it be successful it would mean that the Brown Stamp Co. would have to suspend business in this state and therefore we would not continue to issue their stamps to enable you to complete your book. As the Stamp Company redeems but full books only, it would mean a loss of all the stamps you have collected.

SECOND—At the present time, as before stated, we deposited with the Stamp Company the money to redeem your book of stamps. Your money placed in the Stamp Company's bonds to redeem your book is not protected by the state as is your money in a bank and therefore we are sure you will agree with us that the redemption money is more safe in the hands of the Merchants of Tecumseh than it would be in the custody of an individual company over which our people have no control.

THIRD—By using Brown Stamps each stamp cost the Merchants issuing them a definite amount, whether it is brought back for redemption or not. By using our own stamps and paying the redemption when the stamps are presented by you for redemption, saves us the cost of paying for those lost and unredeemed stamps, and therefore enables us to treat our customers more liberally.

FOURTH—By issuing our own stamps, we are enabled to present you with a collector's book that will require but $100.00 worth of trade to fill it. We have found that the $132.00 of trade required by the Brown Stamp Co. to complete a book was too much of a burden on a great many of our customers.

The stamp we have required for our use is known as the Merchants' Discount Stamp. It is a RED STAMP.

In changing from the Brown Stamp to Merchants' Discount Stamps we want you to feel that there is not going to be any loss on your part. If you have already acquired a part of a book of Brown Stamps, bring them to any Merchant before December 1st, 1914, issuing Merchants' Discount Stamps and you will be given an equal number of Merchants' Discount Stamps which are more valuable.

Bring in any Brown Stamps you may have and we will exchange them for a like number of MERCHANTS' DISCOUNT STAMPS which have a greater value to you.

THIS OFFER GOOD UNTIL DECEMBER 1st, 1914.

FIRE! FIRE!

The Home of Don Palmer on the Clinton Road Destroyed

SUNDAY MORNING.

Sunday morning between 9 and 10 o'clock as Mr. and Mrs. Don Palmer were coming from their barn, they saw smoke issuing from the upper part of their home. Mr. Palmer rushed in and up to the attic where he found fire under good headway. Mrs. Palmer at once called the neighbors on the telephone and they were soon on the spot, carrying water and otherwise fighting the flames. Sprinkling wagons from Tecumseh and Clinton and a number of wagon tanks were quickly on the spot, but the fire on the upright was beyond control.

The back part of the house was partially saved and Mr. Palmer thinks, with a new roof and a few other repairs, can be made comfortable for the winter and in the spring he will rebuild.

Most of the furniture was saved by the good work of those present. Mr. Palmer carried insurance in the Grange. The origin of the fire is unknown.

The Republican candidate for Congress in his political advertisement and appeal for votes states: The Republicans and Progressives really belong to one party and that he can see no reason why they should not get together and vote for him.

He also states: The Progressive party cannot hope to elect the candidate this year.

In all these claims Mr. Bacon is mistaken. The Progressive party is not a part of either old party and there is no reason (only imaginary on Mr. Bacon's part) why the Progressives should not elect their Congressman this year.

Does Mr. Bacon consider that he is as strong or good a candidate as Mr. Wedemeyer of 1912? Does Mr. Bacon think his money will induce the voters to think well of him. Does Mr. Bacon figure that he can get any Progressive votes, or the split vote from the Democratic party? How can he win?

The people of this district want a fearless man of efficency who will properly represent the district at all times. adv

To the Voters of Lenawee County:

At the coming November Election my name will appear on the ticket as the Republican Candidate for the office of Register of Deeds. If elected I will endeavor to serve the people of the County fairly, faithfully, and impartially. Any support you can give my candidacy will be appreciated. If you desire to vote for me, put a cross in the [ ] before my name.

respectfully,
Irving A. Snyder.

REPUBLICAN MEETING

Bradley Opera House Saturday Evening

The Republican meeting at the opera house Saturday evening had a fair attendance. It was called to order by Atty. George A. Rathbun with a few well chosen remarks.

Mrs. R. S. Moore was first on the program with a most delightful solo and responded to an encore.

Mr. Rathbun then introduced the speaker of the evening, Atty. Gen. Grant T. Fellows of Hudson who in a very able manner, told of the many things in Michigan that the Republican party had done and were doing throughout the state. He also claimed that most of the progressive ideas that were being advanced by the Progressive party, had been taken up by the Republican states and many of them had been made into laws by the State of Michigan.

The business unrest being felt all over the land was not the result of the European war as Democrats claim it to be, but rather the effect of Democratic legislation and tinkering with the tariff.

Mr. Fellows predicted the election of at least three new Republican members to Congress at the coming election. He complimented Lenawee county on its strong Republican ticket. Mr. Fellows received much hearty applause throughout his speech.

At the close of Mr Fellows' remarks, Mr. Rathbun stated that the program was ended, but the people decided differently and called for a speech from Candidate Leland F. Bean who responded with a short but telling speech in a very pleasant manner.

☐ MARK R. BACON

For Representative in Congress

Republican Nominee

I believe this government should be run as a business man would run his business—on business principles, and economically.

I do not believe in FREE TRADE that has proven detrimental to the farming, laboring and business interests of this country.

I do not believe in a WAR TAX of ONE HUNDRED MILLION DOLLARS in time of peace—when it is merely a cloak to cover the political extravagance of the party in power.

I do not believe in killing the BEET SUGAR and SHEEP interests or in making our country a DEBTOR NATION.

I do not believe in sitting on the Congressional stew kettle when the people are tired of political legislation detrimental to their interests, and are asking that Congress adjourn and give the country a rest.

Do you remember that BIG promise make by the Democrats in 1912 that they would lower the High Cost of Living! Now Honestly, HAS the High Cost of Living been lowered?

ANNETTE KELLERMAN IN "NEPTUNE'S DAUGHTER".

Theatregoers seeking for something new and striking in stage entertainment will find an atraction of unual quality and rare excellence at the Bradley Opera House next Monday and Tuesday, November 2nd and 3rd when Annette Kellerman in "Neptune's Daughter" will be flashed here for the first time The wonderful film-drama has taken the entire country by storm, running in New York and Chicago for an entire season, and having just concluded the unheard-of run of 14 weeks at the Detroit Opera A number of people from this city saw "Neptune's Daughter" during its Detroit engagement, and since their return home they have been fairly raving over its delightful quality. As an example of the praise that has been heaped upon this attraction, here is an excerpt from the Detroit Journal on the morning following its first presentation in that city.

In a single production Anette Kellerman, "The Diving Venus," has jumped into a popularity as a screen artist greater even than that which was here as a vaudeville star. Neptune's Daughter' is the masterpiece of this class. Mermaids are unusually attractive young women, and Anette is the Queen of the Mermaids. No better part could have been selected for her talents and no better actress could have been selected for the part. On the vaudeville stage a great deal of the charm of Miss Kellerman's act is lost by the fact she is unable to be surrounded by Nature's settings. But here all this is overcome It is infinitely more attractive to see a lithesome young mermaid dive into the deep Atlantic from a coral ledge than to see her plunge into a stage tank, and this is one of the many reasons reasons for the tumultuous applause which greeted "Neptune's" As a fantasy of the sea this drama posesses rare charm Miss Kellerman, often called a sea nymph, here appears with about sixty sister mermaids, who swim and dive about the shores of Bermuda The story is startling imaginative and its action place in King Neptune's fairy realm and in King Williams terrestial domain. Some remarkable scenes show Miss Kellerman feeding a cave full of fish, doing high dives from perilous cliffs, struggling a hired assassin under water, and dancing classic dances as a woodland nymph. In several of the transformation scenes from mermaid to mortal Miss Kellerman is a study in the nude, yet so artistic was her modest innocence that the large audience, fully half of which was composed of women and children, heartily applauded. Hundreds of people take part in "Neptune's Daughter," and the story grips the attention from the start.

"Neptune's Daughter" will be given to Tecumseh people at the same scale of prices as seen in New York and Detroit viz 25; 35 and 50c. The seat sale opens at Hay's Bakery next Saturday morning. We presume that there will be a big demand for seats as everywhere this magnificent production has been shown houses have been packed

RECEPTION

Tendered Rev. George W. Jennings and His Family

M. E. CHURCH FRIDAY NIGHT.

The parlors of the Methodist church were very gay with their autumn decorations Friday evening honoring the reception tendered to the Rev. Geo. W. Jennings and family who have just settled among us as pastor and family of the Church.

There was a large attendance many from the other churches being present and as they passed the receiving line they each voiced a welcome to the newcomers.

Dr. E. D. Brown then spoke in behalf of the Sunday School in a very pleasing manner giving a hearty welcome to the family from the Sunday School.

Wilfred Waldron voiced the welcome of the Epworth League. The pastors of the several churches, Revs. F. Hewitt, L. G. Pim, and W. B. Hartzog and W. A. Rex gave a hearty welcome to their brother pastor and extended the right hand of Christian fellowship.

Much wit and humor was sandwiched in every speech and in his response Rev. Jennings had a fitting reply. He recognized no difference in denominations, all that was required was service for the Master.

A fine musical treat was interspersed through the program that followed. A duet by Wilfred Waldron on the trombone and Clease Best with the cornet was the first number. A violin solo by Lynn Rogers a vocal solo, "The End of a Perfect Day," by Ernest Church, a trombone solo, Wilfred Waldron and a vocal solo by Mrs. Eugene Rosacrans were all very much enjoyed.

The welcoming address from the church was given by Frank S. Temple who claimed that he was not a speech maker, but before he had finished made quite a speech with his original poetry and witticisms. Ice cream and cake were then served, and a social hour was enjoyed by all.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

RAH! RAH! RAH!

Tecumseh 20, Clinton 13.

A large crowd of Tecumsehites saw the game at Clinton Friday About twenty pupils of the High School went up in Montgomery's truck and many more rode in automobiles.

The game began rather unfavorably for Tecumseh, for at the end of the first quarter Clinton had scored 13, and Tecumseh, nothing. But during the second quarter we got a touchdown and goal kick, making the score 13-7.

In the third quarter, McNiel made a touchdown and "Shorty" Palman made another in the last, which, with a goal kick left the score 20-13 in favor of Tecumseh, until the end of the game.

The other game with Clinton which was played Sept. 25th, was a tie, 6-6. So far this year, Tecumseh has tied one game, lost one, and won two.

Last Monday, the English III class finished Benjamin Franklin's Autobiography with a one question test. They were required to write a three-hundred word biography of this man

At the Library, Tuesday afternoon, Miss Harris gave a travelog on Germany, illustrated with stereopticon views In the course of the lecture the fuse burned out and some time was consumed in looking for another.

The grocers may have wondered why there was such a demand for olives Wednesday morning. The English III class were required to write on "The Taste of an Olive" Some declared that this pickle had no taste, and others described its flavors in rather strong language.

Miss Ivaline Lamkin, class of 1914 visited the High School Friday afternoon.

The German I class commenced the study of a little collection of stories and legends, "Gluck umlant Auf."

To Set a Razor.

When a razor begins to "pull" and drag the hair instead of cutting it there is no need to send it to the barber to be set. There is a perfectly simple method by which any one can put it in trim. All that is necessary is to turn an ordinary sharp table knife edge upward and lay the razor flat on the edge of the knife. Then draw the razor along downward, pressing lightly all the while from heel to toe, as in stropping, turning and repeating the operation half a dozen times. If the razor is then stropped the keenness of its edge will be surprising.—Pearson's Weekly.

Gigantic Gas Tank.

The largest of the many huge gas holders in existence is one completed in 1910 for the Newtown Gas company, borough of Queens, New York city. The holder is 251 feet in diameter and 275 feet high. Such is the height of this vast cylinder that it is a familiar landmark for many miles around New York city.

Youthful Paradox.

"Dorothy, shall we walk or take the bus?"

"Well, papa," replied the little girl, "I'll walk if you'll carry me."—London Standard.

Cutting It Short.

"Why are you fooling so long with that clock, Hortense?"

IF WOMEN ONLY KNEW

What a Heap of Happiness It Would Bring to Tecumseh Homes.

Hard to do housework with an aching back.

Brings your hours of misery at leisure or at work.

If women only knew the cause—that

Backache pains often come from weak kidneys.

'Twould save much needless woe.

Doan's Kidney Pills are for weak kidneys.

Many women of this vicinity endorse them.

Mrs. F. Thorpe, 115 N. Main Street Adrian Mich says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have proven very valuable to me and others of my family, bringing relief from kidney trouble. I publicly recommended this remedy before and I can now say that the benefit has been lasting." Price 50c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Thorpe had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y. adv.

Havana's Pathetic Little Door.

This little door is one of the entrances to La Casa Beneficencia, the large and well regulated orphan asylum of Havana. The passerby might easily take it for a coal hole if coal were generally used in Cuba, for when the door is closed there is nothing to indicate its use. On opening it, however, one finds a revolving circular box divided into three compartments. It does not need a very vivid imagination to picture the drama that has been enacted here on many occasions.

A woman, her head covered with a black shawl, her arms holding a bundle to her breast, hurries along the narrow street. She reaches the little door. Glancing furtively about to see that no one is looking she opens the door and, shaken by stifled sobs, kisses for the last time the baby she is about to renounce. She places the child in the circular box, gives it a turn and hurries on. Inside one of the Sisters of Charity hears the tinkle of a bell. It marks the arrival of a newcomer in La Casa Beneficencia.—Boston Herald.

Force of Habit.

A humorist was looking over a mill, and while in an unguarded moment he was perpetrating one of his jokes upon an innocent operative he was drawn into some ponderous gearing and badly crushed.

They extricated him from the machinery and laid him on the floor.

"Who is it? Who is it?" was the anxious inquiry as a crowd collected.

Nobody knew.

Then the funny man suddenly opened his eyes and strove to speak. A sympathetic bystander bent down to catch his words.

"There's good reason why nobody recognizes me," he whispered painfully.

"What is it?" asked the sympathetic one.

"Because," the humorist explained as he saw a chance to get one home, "it's because I've been traveling incog."

That was his final effort, for he never spoke again.—London Tit-Bits.

How It Was Managed.

"Did you do as I told you, Willie," inquired the mother, "and not ask Mrs. Winters for pie a second time?"

Where Beans Are Valuable.

Great interest is shown by the natives of Manchuria in the crops of the common soy, or soy bean. Mr. Clarence Poe, the author of "Where Half the World Is Waking Up," says:

"Bankers, merchants, farmers, even the ladies one meets in drawing rooms in the foreign concessions, not only 'know beans,' but can talk beans too. If the present rate of progress is maintained it will not be long until no one will enumerate the world's great crops—wheat, corn, rice, cotton, etc.—without including beans. In a very great measure the beans have the same properties as cotton seed, for an oil is extracted that is used for much the same purposes as cottonseed oil, and the residue, called 'bean cake,' is about the equivalent of cottonseed meal. My first acquaintance with the bean cake was in Japan, where I found it enriching the earth for vegetable growing. Japan imports an average of half a million tons a year to put under its crops. Manchuria also uses not a little for the same purpose."

Colors and Moods.

People to whom certain colors represent sounds or emotions have long been laughed at, but scientific work on the sun's rays is proving them to have justification for their theories.

Red, it appears, is the most exciting and stimulating of all colors and has a special effect on the activity of the brain. Blue, which so many people in an age of great nervous strain and tension find soothing, is so in reality. Unless you are in a depressed and melancholy state sea blue curtains at your bedroom windows have a beneficial effect, especially if you face south and get the morning sun.

Color indeed, especially in flowers, has an extraordinary effect on the mental condition. The sight of crimson, pink and amethyst rhododendrons growing in the open air has a curiously uplifting and joyous effect.—New York Sun.

A Day Will Come.

A day will come when the only battlefield will be the market open to commerce and the mind opening to new ideas. A day will come when bullets and bombshells will be replaced by votes, by the universal suffrage of nations, by the venerable arbitration of a great sovereign senate, which will be to Europe what the parliament is to England, what the diet is to Germany, what the legislative assembly is to France. A day will come when a cannon will be exhibited in public museums, just as an instrument of torture is now, and people will be astonished how such a thing could have been. A day will come when these two immense groups, the United States of America and the United States of Europe, shall be seen placed in presence of each other, extending the hand of fellowship across the ocean.—Victor Hugo.

A Costly Dramatic Lesson.

Probably the most prominent manager in the United States was rehearsing an actor in one of his companies at the New Amsterdam theater. The particular line which the actor was trying to speak to the satisfaction of the manager was the familiar, "I love you!" But, although he spoke it fervently again and again, the manager was not pleased.

"No, no, no," said he. "That's not right. Now say it the way I say it," and the manager, suiting the action to the word in a voice almost tremulous with sentiment, repeated, "I love you!"

"Say it like that," he said. "It cost me $1,000,000 to learn to say it like that," while I'm actually paying you $200 a week to say it. I hope you can appreciate the difference"—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Another Recipe.

Aspiring Novelist—Ah, sir, I am highly flattered. I'm sure, to hear that you take my book to bed with you and read it there! Acquaintance—Yes, I have been troubled with insomnia for a long time, and I find one of your pages much better than any medicine.

A Sore Point.

"The world will recognize me after I am dead," said the gloomy artist.

"I beg of you," exclaimed the distinguished Latin-American; "let us not start any more of these complicated arguments about recognition!"—Washington Star.

The Secret Incentive.

When I read history and am impressed with any great deed I feel as if I should like to see the woman who is concealed behind it as its secret incentive.—Heinrich Heine.

Good nature and common sense are required from all.

A Human Churn

WHEN the food reaches the stomach it is subjected to a peculiar churning movement by the muscular walls of the stomach"—(See Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser, page 45). In the liver, kidneys and skin, the blood is purified of its waste materials—these organs act as human filters, leaving the blood pure and clear—unless liver, digestive tract and kidneys are clogged.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

is a stomach, liver and kidney tonic—by assisting the stomach to assimilate, the liver to filter, the kidneys to act—the poisons are removed, the red blood corpuscles are increased and one feels light, fresh and active instead of logy, dull and heavy. The "Discovery" stimulates the stomach, increases action of heart and arteries and is a most satisfactory alterative in blood-taint of any character. The refreshing influence of this extract of native medicinal plants has been favorably known for over forty years. Everywhere some neighbor can tell you of the good it has done.

Sold by all medicine dealers in liquid or tablet form, or send 50 one-cent stamps to Dr. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., and a trial box will be mailed you.

Dogs For Draft Work.

The use of dogs for draft work was prohibited in London in 1839, but remained legal in the provinces for another fifteen years. Sir Walter Gilbey, in his "Recollections of Seventy Years," notes as a feature of his boyhood at Bishop Stortford the numbers of dog carriages and carts on the Essex lanes and highroads. "All sorts and conditions of men used dog carriages, from small tradesmen to poorer people who could not afford a pony. Dog draft was abolished because certain people agitated against it as cruel, but I think that generally the dogs were neither ill treated nor overworked. There are probably many people living who can remember when the tugging propensity of the dog was utilized in England. Workingmen had their 'dogcarts,' in which they made Sunday and holiday excursions. The dogs employed were, as a rule, heavy half bred bull mastiffs with a touch of the lurcher in them. They thought nothing of drawing their masters fifty or sixty miles in a day."—London Sphere.

Do You Suffer From Tired Eyes?

If you suffer from tired eyes—and who does not at times?—you may be glad to try a French author's accidentally discovered remedy. It is a simple method of restoring the vision to freshness. One night when engaged in writing an article his eyes gave out before he could finish and he was compelled to stop. So, turning from his unfinished manuscript, his eyes fell upon some scraps of colored silk that his wife had been using for patchwork. These gay colors had a peculiar attraction for wearied optics. On resuming his work after gazing at them for several minutes he found them quite fresh. After several experiments he surrounded his inkstand with brilliantly colored striped silk material that his eyes must rest on every time he dips his pen into the ink. This brings instant relief.

How Perfectly French!

There is a prefect in the south of France who has a mania for his wife's hands, which are particularly beautiful. So that he may always have the object of his adoration under his eyes a model in bronze of one of the hands has been made and the prefect keeps it on his desk at his office.

An official in this prefect's district, anxious to secure his influence for political preferment, has devised a delightful way of paying him a delicate compliment. Every time he enters the great man's office he walks silently to his desk, takes up the bronze hand and kisses it respectfully.

The prefect is so much impressed by this act of gallantry that the tactful young man has already secured lucrative promotion.—London Mirror.

Rice Throwing at Weddings.

The origin of rice throwing at weddings is accounted for by a quaint Chinese legend. A great sorcerer, Chao, became jealous of another sorcerer, a woman, Peach Blossom, and thereby conceived a plan to destroy her. He persuaded her parent to give her in marriage to his supposed son and craftily chose the most unlucky day for the wedding—the day when the "golden pheasant" was in the ascendant—so that when when the bride entered the red chair the spirit bird would kill her with its beak. Peach Blossom, however, prudently gave directions for rice to be scattered at the door, and thus she passed out unscathed, while the spirit bird was busy eating the meal she had provided for it.

NOTHING BETTER FOR WEAK WOMEN

"I Never Spent Any Money That Did Me So Much Good as That I Spent for Vinol."

Bellefontaine, Ohio.—"I wish every tired, weak, nervous woman could have Vinol for I never spent any money in my life that did me so much good as that I spent for Vinol. My nerves were in a very bad condition, making me very weak, tired, and worn out and often drowsy headaches. I had tried cod liver oil, doctor's medicines, and other preparations without benefit.

"One day a friend asked me to try Vinol. I did and soon my appetite increased, I slept better and now I am strong, vigorous and well and can do my housework with pleasure."—Mrs. J. F. LAMBORN, Bellefontaine, Ohio.

Nervous, weak, tired, worn-out women should take Mrs. Lamborn's advice and try Vinol for there are literally thousands of men and women who were formerly run-down, weak and nervous, who owe their good health to Vinol.

It is the medicinal, tissue building elements of the cod's livers, aided by the blood making, strengthening influence of tonic iron, contained in Vinol, which makes it so efficient in all such cases.

Mighty Explosive.

It may sound like a joke, but it is nevertheless the truth that the tread of a housefly is sufficient to explode nitrogen iodide. It is not necessary that a fly should walk over the compound. It has only to let one foot come into contact with the explosive, when the jolt causes it to explode and to blow the insect into the air. Another manner in which the peculiar property of this explosive can be demonstrated is by scattering a small quantity of the dry powder over a sheet of clean paper. It then resembles pepper and only needs a few sharp breaths of the manipulator—just sufficient to make them roll—to cause each speck to ignite and explode, meantime giving off a long, thin column of dense purple smoke. If a barrelful of nitrogen iodide could be made it would have to be kept moist to prevent danger. By comparison gunpowder is a mild, innocent, inoffensive material.—London Strand.

Vivisection.

Experiments on living animals were made by Galen (A. D. 175) and by the Greek Alexandrian school and were regarded as a valuable source of knowledge until the breakup of the Roman empire. In modern times vivisection may be said to have begun with the experiments of Dr. William Harvey (1658) and Dr. John Hunter (1750). Vivisection has been more or less generally practiced since the beginning of the nineteenth century, though very often under protest of the various societies for the prevention of cruelty to animals.—Exchange.

Love and Blindness.

Clara (on the wrong side of thirty)—I am sure I don't know what he sees in her. Cholly—Well, love is blind. Clara—Blind! Nonsense! I never saw a man in love yet who did not see ten times as much in his sweetheart as I could.

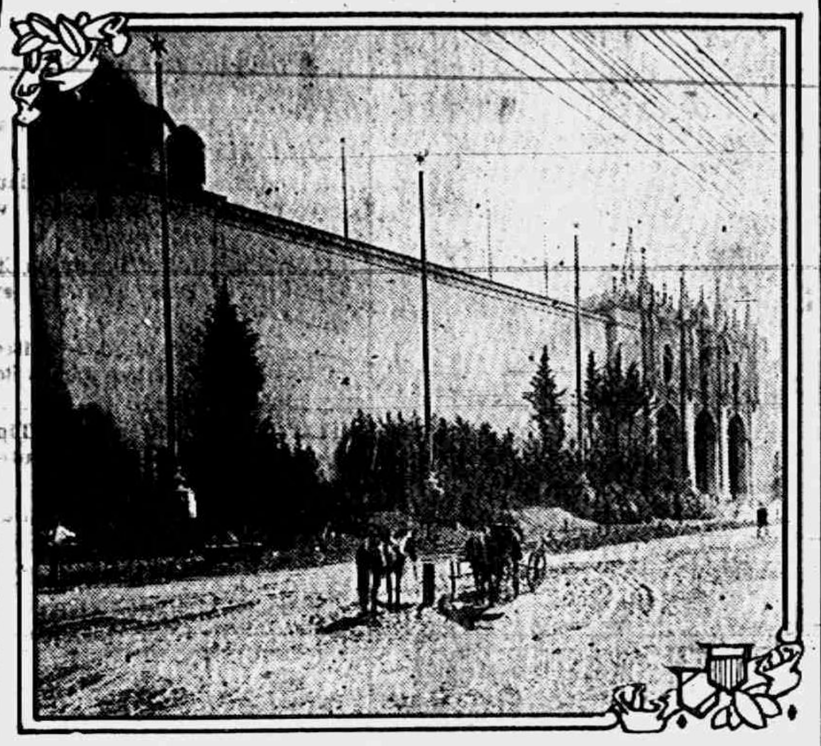
Corn In Kansas.

The earliest mention of corn in Kansas is found in the account of Coronado's expedition in 1541-2. Professor Williston found charred corn in the ruins of prehistoric Indian pueblos in Scott county, estimated by him to be at least two and a half centuries old.

Lofty Colonnades of the Superb Court of the Four Seasons, Panama-Pacific International Exposition, San Francisco, 1915



THIS photograph faintly portrays the beauty of the arches that stand between the Court of the Four Seasons and the Western Venetian Court. While it truly presents the attractiveness of the architecture, it cannot even hint at the beauty of color tones.

The pilasters shown in this photograph are of verd antique bronze, the background of imitation Travertine is of ocher hue more than half the height of the arch, and the upper portion is of Pompeian red, with touches of orange and copper green in the ornamentation.

Inside the arches the ceilings are of cerulean blue, and bas-relief in white shows scenes typical of the seasons. The square wall surface at the left of the picture shows where one of many mural paintings will be placed.

Looking through the arch, a part of the Court of the Four Seasons may be seen. Closer inspection shows a verse from Spenser and below it the signs of the Zodiac.

The world is to be given something new in the system of courts at the 1915 Exposition, and each one is to be a revelation in modern construction. The Exposition will open at San Francisco on Feb. 20, 1915.

WAR! What Is It All About?

HAS the whole world gone stark mad over a very foolish and trivial question? Are swords rattling, cannon rumbling, mailed armour glistening just because Russia wanted to show her love for the little brother Servia?

Tear aside the curtain of Europe's politics and see the grim and sinister game of chess that is being played. See upon what a slim, yet desperate, excuse the sacred lives of millions may be sacrificed. Read the history of the past one hundred years, as written by one of the greatest authorities the world has ever known, and learn the naked, shameful truth. Just to get you started as a Review of Reviews subscriber, we make you this extraordinary offer. We will give to you

FREE!
Duruy's History of the World
Four splendid cloth volumes, full of portraits, sketches, maps, diagrams

Today is the climax of a hundred years of preparation. Read in this timely, authoritative, complete, AND THE ONLY CONDENSED classic world history—of which over 2,000,000 copies have been sold in France alone—just what has taken place in the inner councils of Europe during the past one hundred years. Read in these entrancing pages how Russia has for years craftily been trying to escape from her darkness—to get a year-round open port, with its economic freedom.

Read how Germany and Austria, fearful of the monster's latent strength, have been trying to checkmate her and how they have pinned all in this last, supreme stake.

The Lesson of the Past

THIS master of the pen shows you the glory that was Greece's and the grandeur that was Rome's. He guides you through the Middle Ages, the picturesque old days of feudalism and the crusades; through the Renaissance up to contemporaneous history, which Prof. Grosvenor completes in brilliant manner. In the story of the past lie the secrets of today. And you will understand them better when you get the Review of Reviews for a year—for the Review of Reviews will give you a sane interpretation of the events that are taking place with such rapidity. It is not enough to read the daily news reports. Your ability to comprehend conditions, and to discuss them rationally depends on a true interpretation of the meaning and the "reason why" of events. In your mind you must bring order out of chaos—and the Review of Reviews will do it for you.

GERMANS LOSE AT NANCY, RETREAT

Capture Cities on Coast at Any Cost, Kaiser Orders.

PARIS CLAIMS ALLIES ADVANCE

British and French Hold Ground Between Mouth of Yser and Lens and Gain Between Ypres and Roulers—Fresh German Troops on Way—Teutons in East Beaten Back Toward East Prussia.

The French are on the offensive in the vicinity of Nancy, on the eastern frontier, and have driven the Germans across the frontier in the direction of Metz. This was the chief declaration contained in the official communique issued from Bordeaux.

The French official announcement says that spirited fighting continues between the mouth of the Yser and Lens; that in this district the allies have not drawn back and that they have continued to advance in the region between Ypres and Roulers and elsewhere.

The Germans continue to send large masses of troops to the westward and the southwestward, according to a dispatch from Terneuzen, Holland. The allies, who approached Thielt Saturday, were repulsed by fresh German troops. Sunday 10,000 Austrians arrived at Ghent, where only a few Germans remain.

LONDON — The Copenhagen correspondent of the Times wires that reports received from German sources say that the kaiser has issued the direct order that, no matter the cost, Calais is to be taken.

It is reported the kaiser was in Belgium on Sunday and listened personally to the reports of his officers.

He is then reported to have stated that the occupancy of Calais and Dunkirk were vital points in the German strategical plan, but that this was especially so in the case of Calais. Therefore the order was issued that no matter how much war material or how many men were sacrificed, the march to the channel must succeed.

With a number of their heavy guns mounted to protect their front and rapid-firers deluging the allied lines with shrapnel and bullets, the Germans continued their supreme effort to win through to the coast from the north and east.

Fight Throughout Night.

Inside of the Dixmunde-Nieuport line the fighting continued without let-up all night, the combatants operating in the glare of enormous searchlights that made the scene as light as day. The rival aviators flew over the trenches, dropping bombs, while the monitors of the fleet, which withdrew to sea Sunday afetr tthree had been hit, were back throwing shells from their long-range guns.

In the territory lying southwest of Ypres and between Armentieres and Lille, further desperate fighting was in progress. Here the British, who are bearing the brunt of the struggle, are reported to be losing very heavily. But they are also said to be slowly forcing the Germans back to the east and on their heavily intrenched positions at Lille.

The main purpose of the Germans, officials at the headquarters of General Gallieni in Paris say, is apparent. They are now concentrating their efforts to break through to the coast on on almost direct line to Dunkirk and leave along the coast the thin line of French and Belgians who are holding the coastal positions at frightful odds. By changing their front after their object is obtained, and making part of it again run to the north and south instead of to the east and west, the officials poin out, once the Germans attain either Calais or Dunkirk they would have a human protecting wall between them and the sea from the guns of the warships.

Germans Retreat to East Prussia.

LONDON — A Petrograd dispatch to Reuter's Telegram company says:

"The Army Messenger in summing up the operations on the Russian front says that the German forces in the region of Elawa and Viltzlavsk, disquieted by the situation on the front at Thorn and Cracow, have retreated in the direction of East Prussia, where the population has been ordered to retire into the interior."

Austrians Leave Dead Behind.

"On the Galician front the entire Stry Valley southward from the river and the railway tracks from the Stry to Drohobycz are congested with Austrian corpses. Between last Thursday and Sunday, during the pursuit of the enemy, the Russians captured seventeen officers, 4,000 men, eleven machine guns, twenty-two guns, twenty-three caissons and masses of other war material."

Say Von Moltke Is Dying.

LONDON — A dispatch from Amsterdam announces, it is officially stated, that Gen. Helmuth Von Moltke, chief of the German general staff, is dying and that he is being taken to his home in Berlin on a stretcher.

Herrera Defeats Villa.

EL PASO, TEX. — Rallying his defeated army to an unexpected attack, Gen. Maclovio Herrera, with 1,000 men captured Parral, Chihuahua, Friday night, according to arrivals at the border. They said General Herrera, who revolted against Villa when the latter broke with Carranza is now in undisputed possession of the town.

Rebels in Africa Lose.

CAPE TOWN — It is officially announced that the rebel Lieutenant Colonel Maritz and his forces have been defeated at Kakamas in the Gordonia district of Bechuanaland, by Union of South Africa troops. Lieutenant Colonel Maritz was wounded in the engagement and fled to German territory.

WORST DISEASE OF ITS KIND IN YEARS

M. A. C. Experts So Consider Foot and Mouth Epidemic.

EAST LANSING, MICH. — Specialists in animal diseases here look upon the epidemic of foot and mouth disease among cattle in Berrien and Cass counties as the severest of its sort that has hit the Michigan dairy and cattle industry in years. Already 100 herds have become infected and will be shot, entailing losses which it has been estimated will greatly exceed $100,000.

This ailment of cattle, while not fatal to the animals in most cases, spreads with great rapidity and causes a great reduction in the milk producing qualities of the cows.

In Cass and Berrien, where the state and federal experts have taken charge, a quarantine, which amounts almost to martial law, has been enforced. Persons are not permitted to visit farms where the herds have become infected, while the government and state workers wear rubber boots, coats and hats on those farms where the disease has appeared.

It is believed that some 1,500 animals will have to be slaughtered before the campaign against the disease is concluded.

FIND HEAD ON ENGINE PILOT

Brighton Woman, Walking on Track, Killed by Train.

BRIGHTON, MICH. — The mangled body of Mrs. [illegible] J. McQuade, of this place, was found on the Pere Marquette tracks early in the morning by the crew of a freight train. She had been struck by a west bound passenger train about dark the evening before, though the fact was not known until the arrival of the train at Grand Rapids at night, when a portion of her head was found on the pilot of the engine when it pulled into the round house there.

Mrs. McQuade had been in South Lyon during the afternoon, and shortly before dark started to walk home along the railroad track. Her nonarrival at home caused much worry to the family, but until the finding of her body the next morning the reason therefor was not known.

U. S. Jury Frees Ticona Man.

BLAST ENTOMBS 200 IN COLLIERY

100 Dead In Mitchell Mine at Royalton, Ill.

LOWER LEVEL IS ON FIRE

Gas Explosion Occurred Just After Miners Had Begun Work—Rescue Car Sent From Benton—Rescuers Enter Shafts—Thirty Bodies Are Taken Out.

ST. LOUIS, MO. — News was received here that 200 miners were entombed in a mine near Royalton, Ill., eighty-five miles southeast of here on the St. Louis, Iron Mountain and Southern Railway. A mine rescue car has been sent from Benton, Ill.

A telephone message from the owner of the Mitchell mine says that of 300 men in the mine only 100 escaped. Many of the victims are on a lower level, he reports, which is burning.

The disaster occurred at the Mitchel mine, twenty-five miles north of Murphysboro, and was due to a gas explosion. The men had just gone to work.

Thirty Dead Taken Out.

Thirty dead have been taken from the mine. Seventy dead are believed to be in the mine. One hundred living men, it is believed, remain in the mine.

A telephone message from Royalton says a rescuing party has penetrated far into the drifts and is trying to reach the entombed men.

Town Aids Rescue Work.

The telephone operator at Royalton said that the mine was about a mile out of town and that everyone in town except herself had gone to the mine when they heard the explosion.

TURKS RENEW PEACE PLEDGE

Allies Are Assured That Sultan Will Not Aid Germany in Present War.

LONDON — Turkey, which is was believed at one time had decided to throw in her lot with Germany, has again assured the ambassadors of Great Britain, France and Russia that she intends to maintain her policy of neutrality.

Turkey, however, continues her military activities and is collecting transport animals, which, it is said, are destined for the Egyptian frontier. It is considered that the presence of strong Russian forces on the Turkish border has influenced her not to take any action against the allies.

FRENCH STEAMER HITS MINE

About Twenty or Thirty Persons Drown; Nearly 500 Saved.

DOVER — The French steamer Admiral Ganteaume was sunk by a mine just outside Boulogne harbor.

About twenty or thirty persons were drowned owing to the panic which prevailed as the passengers were being transferred to the British channel steamer Queen, which rushed to the assistance of the sinking vessel. Most of the 500 passengers were peasants from Pas de Calais, who were being transferred from Calaics to Boulogne.

"BLANKET BALLOT LAW" VOID

Supreme Court Decides Party Tickets Must Be Printed on Separate Sheets.

JEFFERSON CITY, MO. — The Missouri "blanket ballot law" was declared invalid by the Missouri supreme court. Two of the seven judges dissented.

As a result of this decision the Missouri ballots will be printed on separate sheets for each party.

Brand Whitlock Tells of Plight of 7,000,000 People.

BRUSSELS — Nearly 7,000,000 people in Belgium face famine unless they receive help at once. The American minister to Belgium, Brand Whitlocks, says that less than two weeks' supply of food remains in the cities, while conditions in the country are even worse. Germany disclaims responsibility for feeding the Belgians.

Mr. Whitlock has had on hand only black bread for two weeks. One hundred soup kitchens are feeding over 100,000 of the needy in Brussels. Noblemen may be seen slipping into soup kitchens. Factories are closed. Many stores remain open, but have no business.

ITALIANS OCCUPY AVLONA

Expedition, However, Is Merely For Relief and Sanitary Purposes.

ROME — Avlona, Albania, was occupied by Italian naval forces. The expedition was in the nature of a relief and sanitary organization, which has taken refuge in the city to escape the persecutions of the insurgents. These people are said to be in a deplorable state.

Everything was done to remove from the expedition anything savoring of political or territorial occupation. Pains were taken to show that Italy's stey was merely for the purpose of seeing that the decision of the London conference creating an autonomous Albania was carried out.

FOUR KILLED IN COLLAPSE

Theater Building Tumbles Through on Itself in Ohio.

YOUNGSTOWN, OHIO — Through the collapse of the partly completed second floor of the new hippodrome theater building under construction here, three men are known to be dead, four are in the hospital seriously injured and half a dozen other workmen are missing. Part of the concrete work in the second floor collapsed and crashed through the first floor and into the basement.

The workmen who were injured were on the first and second floors. They were buried under tons of broken concrete and twisted steel.

Red Flag Law Upheld.

BOSTON — The constitutionality of the law which prohibits the carrying of a red flag in parades was upheld in a decision of the supreme court in the case of John Karnoven. Karnoven was arrested in Fitchburg in November last for carrying a red flag in a Socialist parade.

HUBERT F. PROBERT

Progressive Candidate for Congress.

Business Man and Farmer.

One of Michigan's leading farmers. A real live wire, who will represent this district better than a lawyer or a politician.

He knows what the people need and want and can be depended upon to work for it.

Vote for him. Work for him and place the Second District on the map. adv

The Republican candidate for Congress in his political advertisement and appeal for votes states: The Republicans and Progressives really belong to one party and that he can see no reason why they should not get together and vote for him.

He also states: The Progressive party cannot hope to elect the candidate this year.

In all these claims Mr. Bacon is mistaken. The Progressive party is not a part of either old party and there is no reason (only imaginary on Mr. Bacon's part) why the Progressives should not elect their Congressman this year.

Does Mr. Bacon consider that he is as strong or good a candidate as Mr. Wedemeyer of 1912? Does Mr. Bacon think his money will induce the voters to think well of him. Does Mr. Bacon figure that he can get any Progressive votes, or the split vote from the Democratic party? How can he win?

The people of this district want a fearless man of efficency who will properly represent the district at all times. adv

A RECOMMENDATION BY THE GOVERNOR

To the People of the State of Michigan,

Greeting:

Michigan is making a vigorous effort to "stamp out" hog cholera. Hogs are marketable. Michigan is making a vigorous effort to "stamp out" tuberculosis in cattle. Cattle are marketable. Why not make a strenuous effort to "stamp out" tubercolosis in men, women and children? Human beings are priceless.

I, Woodbridge N. Ferris, Governor of Michigan, most earnestly urge physicians, health officers, nurses, teachers, mayors and village and city officials to attend The Eighth Annual Convention of the Association for the Prevention and Relief of Tubercolosis at Muskegon, October 27 and 28, for the purpose of arousing Michigan to a full realization of the importance of banishing the White Plague from our great state.

WOODBRIDGE N. FERRIS
Governor

To the Voters of Lenawee County:

At the coming November Election my name will appear on the ticket as the Republican Candidate for the office of Register of Deeds. If elected I will endeavor to serve the people of the County fairly, faithfully, and impartially. Any support you can give my candidacy will be appreciated. If you desire to vote for me, put a cross in the [ ] before my name.

respectfully,

Miss Annette Kellerman, "The Perfect Woman" in Neptune's Daughter, at the Bradley Opera House, Monday and Tuesday, November 2 and 3.

"NEPTUNE'S DAUGHTER" FEATURING MISS ANNETTE KELLERMAN.

Ever since it was announced that Annette Kellermann in "Neptune's Daughter" will be seen at the Bradley Opera House on Monday and Tuesday, November 2 and 3rd every local theatregoer has been preparing to see this marvelous film production which has broken every record in the world for long runs and admirable qualities. For an entire season it drew the wealth and fashion of New York to the Globe Theatre, New York, and all summer it crowded the famous Fine Arts Theatre, Chicago. In Detroit it shattered all precedents by running at the Detroit Opera House for 14 weeks, and winning more praise and attendance than has ever been given any attraction that ever appeared in that city. Among columns of praise devoted to this spectacle; the Detroit Journal said: "Annette Kellermann in "Neptune's Daughter" kept the large house filled with the most representative audience that ever attended the theatre, gasping, spellbound and applauding. Miss Kellermann's feats on the vaudeville stage fade into insignificance as compared with her performance in "Neptune's Daughter". It is easily the finest entertainment of its kind ever produced."

Tecumseh theatre goers will see this wonderful production featuring the "Diving Venus" Miss Anette Kellermann, at exactly the same prices as charged in New York, Chicago and Detroit (25-35 and 50 cents) the advance sale opens at Hay's Bakery tomorrow (Saturday) morning. As a rule capacity houses have greeted "Neptune's Daughter" whereever presented so make early reservations for seats.

In presenting myself to the votes of the first legislative district of Lenawee County, I desire to state my views on certain important questions which will probably come before the next legislature.

Firstly: I stand square on the Progressive platform, whose framework, upon which all the plank rest, is that the people should have their will in all things of public concern.

Subject to this: I will, if elected, favor the modification of the county road law to provide for one salaried comissioner instead of three, he to be selected by competitive examination; and also provide that the property abutting on the improved road should pay from one fifth to one-third of the cost, with five to ten years time allowed for such payment.

I will favor the efficient consolidation under one controlling board of all State institutions for higher education, with the elimination of unnecessary duplication of work.

And most important of all, I will work for an improved tax law which would eliminate the double taxation now existing, which would measure out a persons tax according to his ability to pay, and which would not throw an unfair share of tax burden upon farm property merely because that is the easiest to assess.

If you believe that the people should rule in all things, vote the Progressive ticket.

If you believe in the specific things which I favor, vote for me.

Faithfully yours.

adv. GRANT T. DAVIS

MERRY-GO-ROUND

The Merry-Go-Round held a very pleasant meeting Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. S. Moore with Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Heesen assisting in entertaining. There were nine tables of players, "500" being the chosen game. A fine three course supper was served and a most enjoyable time was reported.

VOTE FOR

☐ MARK R. BACON

For Representative in Congress

Republican Nominee

I believe this government should be run as a business man would run his business—on business principles, and economically.

I do not believe in FREE TRADE that has proven detrimental to the farming, laboring and business interests of this country.

I do not believe in a WAR TAX of ONE HUNDRED MILLION DOLLARS in time of peace—when it is merely a cloak to cover the political extravagance of the party in power.

I do not believe in killing the BEET SUGAR and SHEEP interests or in making our country a DEBTOR NATION.

I do not believe in sitting on the Congressional stew kettle when the people are tired of political legislation detrimental to their interests, and are asking that Congress adjourn and give the country a rest.

Do you remember that BIG promise make by the Democrats in 1912 that they would lower the High Cost of Living! Now Honestly, HAS the High Cost of Living been lowered?

LIVE STOCK SANITARY COMMISSION GIVES ADVICE ON HOG CHOLERA.

Sanitary Precautions More Effective than So-Called Cure

The hog cholera situation while not unusually alarming, is never-the-less a very serious condition at the present time and we believe needs some statements and suggestions from our commission. While the ravages of the disease are no greater this season than in other years and no worse in Lenawee county than in other parts of the state, yet it is of the utmost importance to farmers and citizens generally and the hearty co-operation of all is asked that the scourge may be controlled and exterminated

One feature of the work of this commission is to help the farmers along this very line and so far as we are able will be glad to give every assistance possible, but need the co-operation of farmers and local officials. If local boards of health, public officials and citizens will be watchful and report cases promptly, untold good can be accomplished.

Macon, Tecumseh, Ogden, Riga, Blissfield and a few other townships have reported the disease and asked for help. Many supervisors are watching and quarantining cases and they should be assisted by information so they may continue this help to the farmer. If the farmers would only do as they would be done by, much trouble and loss could be avoided.

The practice of using public stockyards and scales for handling infected herds is a serious offense against the law. Whenever cholera hogs are to be handled or treated, it should be done under quarantine regulations.

Beware of quack medicine vendors Employ a competent veterinary. Remember two very important facts. First, hog cholera is seriously infective. All medical and scientific men agree as to this fact. Second, there is no known cure for the disease and no treatment that is effective in all cases.

If correct diagnosis is made early, serious loss may be prevented by segregating the herd and controlling the spread of infection. All curious visitors and neighborly calls should be refused as infection is carried by the shoes of people.

The serum treatment for immunizing hogs has been completely administered and proved its worth in a great many cases.

Much depends upon the sanitary conditions. Cholera, being a germ disease and carried into the system mainly with food and drink, affects the whole alimentary canal and shows the necessity for cleanly, careful feeding and quartering of hogs.

We submit the following cautions and general directions for disinfecting in hope that a decided check can be given this trouble:

1. Do not remove the infected hogs to fresh quarters and leave the well ones to take the infection from the yards and pens.

2. Do not allow hogs infected or exposed to cholera to run upon the highway or run at large. Such hogs should be confined in close quarantine

3. Do not fail to burn or bury with powerful disinfectants all carcasses of cholera hogs.

4. Do not waste your money in "hog cholera cures" as they are frauds and worthless.

5. Do not expect serum or virus treatments to be cure-alls and purchase only of those firms known to be honorable.

6. The cleaning and disinfection of infected premises is a matter that will vary in detail with each case; therefore affected parties will observe the special oral instructions given by the representative of the commission to supplement these general directions

7. Cleaning and disinfection must follow, not precede the proper separation of the well and the affected animals and must be repeated in the event of further case of the disease in question appearing on the premises

8. There must be a thorough cleaning of the buildings and yards that have been used by the affected animals: first of all, gross litter such as manure, bedding, fodder, loose woodwork and any other refuse capable of harboring the infected discharges of the affected animals must be removed; second, the walls, floor and ceiling must be freed of all dust and dirt and the yards raked free from all litter.

9. The walls, floors and ceiling cleaned as indicated above must be thoroughly treated with a 3 per cent. solution of compound solution of cresol or other disinfectants equally as effective. The yards must be covered with fresh burned lime and this should be followed by whitewashing walls and ceilings

10. It is hereby made the duty of all local boards of health to whom cases of contagious or infectious diseases are reported, to immediately investigate the same either in person or by some member or members of the board or by the employment of a competent and skillful veterinarian. And also to report their findings to the Live Stock Sanitary Commission, Lansing, Mich.

AUTUMN WEDDING

One of Tecumseh's Popular Young Ladies at the Marriage Altar

The walls of the Tecumseh high school have seen the budding of many a romance, one of which culminated Monday evening, Oct. 26th, in the marriage of two of its graduates—Mr. Athol Edward Brainard and Miss Marie Louise Bramble, at the home of the bride's parents Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Bramble

Clinton R. Trotter and Miss Berenice Bramble, cousin and sister of the bride, received the guests and ushered them into the spacious parlors which were artistically decorated with ferns, palms, chrysanthemums and bride's roses, the color scheme throughout the house being green and white.

At eight o'clock the bridal procession began as the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March from "Midsummer Night's Dream" was rendered by Miss Berenice Bramble at the piano and the party took their places in the alcove which was banked with palms and guarded by ribboned pedestals surmounted by elaborate baskets of white chrysanthemums.

First came Leroy Bramble as best man with the groom, followed by the bridesmaid Miss Mabel Balch, a college friend of the bride from Kalamazoo. Then all eyes were turned to the bride as she entered the parlor accompanied by her father who gave her in marriage.

The ceremony was performed by her pastor Dr. Hartzog in a dignified and impressive manner becoming to the solemnity of the occasion. The beautiful double ring ceremony was used, at the close of which Mr. and Mrs. Brainard were happily introduced and received the hearty congratulations and good wishes of the assembled guests.

Just here a happy thought occurred to some one and the parents of the bride were taken to one end of the parlor and surprised by especial congratulation, it having been whispered about that this was their wedding anniversary and also the birthday of the bride's father. This caused quite a bit of merry-making as they had received a number of good wishes before it dawned upon them that it was on their own account and not wholly on the addition of a new son to the family, that congratulations were being bestowed upon them.

A delicious and substantial supper was served by Mrs. Maynard Mulvaney Mrs. Floyd Bryan, Misses Clara Waldron, Ruth Keeney, Jane Harris, Lulu Brown, Lila VanValkenburg and Iva Waldron. All tables were decorated with crystal baskets of bride's roses and ferns, place cards of green and white (except that of the bridal party which had hand painted cards with bride's roses for decoration) and individual lace nut baskets. The assistants, intimate friends of the bride, served daintily and acceptably and were presented with flower drop perfume in silver deposit perfume bottles as favors by the bride.

Miss Bramble was gowned in white crepe meteor entrain trimmed with cobweb lace and pearl beads with accordion pleated chiffon tunic She wore a dainty long tulle veil held by a spray of rosebuds and carried a shower boquet of bride's roses and maiden hair fern. Miss Berenice wore white organdie trimmed with bebe Irish with light green girdle and ribbon bows for the hair.

The bride was especially happy in having in attendance her grandparents Mr. and Mrs. L. D. C. Heath of of Spring Lake, early pioneers of Western Michigan. Other guests from out of town were Clinton Trotter, of Spring Lake; Mr. and Mrs. B. E Mercer and Mrs. Leroy Younkman, Detroit; Messrs. and Mesdames James Brainard, B. M. Hand, J. Shultis and Charles Shultis and Mrs. Bolton of Springville; Miss Mabel Balch, Kalamazoo; Miss Nellie Snook, Rochester; Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Britton, Charles Selleck, Miss Louise Rogers, Dr. Leo. Stafford, Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Wood, Adrian; Miss Hazel VanGieson, Clinton; Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Curtis and David O'Riley of Macon.

The happy couple left late in the evening amid a shower of rice and confetti for an extended trip in the East which will include a stop at Cornell University, visits in Syracuse and among the Catskill mountains. On their return they will occupy a new home on "The Marshlands Farm" near Onsted where they will be at home to their friends after December 1st.

The bride was the recipient of many choice gifts including sterling silver, cut glass, china and many other decorative and useful articles.

Mrs. Brainard will be missed by a large circle of friends She was a member of the Baptist church and will be missed from the choir where she has served for several years. She was a graduate of the Tecumseh high school and a student of Kalamazoo college and the Western State Normal while the groom was also a graduate of the Tecumseh schools being a classmate of the bride. He later was graduated from the M. A. C.

"May prosperity and happiness attend them through life's journey" is the wish of all their friends.

HOOF AND MOUTH DISEASE IN LENAWEE COUNTY

Lenawee and Monroe Counties Placed Under Quarantine

Word from Blissfield this county tells of the discovery of the hoof and mouth disease in a load of cattle recently shipped in from Chicago by B. E. Wolverton. The disease was first discovered by a Blissfield veterinarian and to confirm his belief he called in Pres. Halladay of the state commission and a number of federal experts who have visited various other parts of the state. The inspection was made and they pronounced the malady hoof and mouth disease. As a result the whole county was placed under strict quarantine Wednesday night and Mr. Wolverton's entire herd ordered slaughtered. President Halladay is hopeful that the disease has not spread beyond the Wolverton herd.

Railroad officials here received notices yesterday from both state and federal authorities forbidding the movement of any cattle, sheep, goats or other ruminants or swine, or any hides, skins, hay, straw or similar fodder, any milk or the dressed carcases of calves, sheep or swine.

The state quarantine covers about seven townships in Lenawee county which are as follows: Ridgeway, Deerfield, Blissfield, Riga, Ogden, Palmyra and Raisin. The federal quarantine covers all of Lenawee and Monroe counties.

All movement of any cattle, sheep, goats or swine upon or across any public highway or their exposure in any open unfenced ground within the limits of the quarantined district is also prohibited.

NOTHING BETTER FOR WEAK WOMEN

“I Never Spent Any Money That Did Me So Much Good as That I Spent for Vinol.”

Bellefontaine, Ohio.—“I wish every tired, weak, nervous woman could have Vinol for I never spent any money in my life that did me so much good as that I spent for Vinol. My nerves were in a very bad condition, making me very weak, tired, and worn out and often drowsy headaches. I had tried cod liver oil, doctor's medicines, and other preparations without benefit.

“One day a friend asked me to try Vinol. I did and soon my appetite increased, I slept better and now I am strong, vigorous and well and can do my housework with pleasure.”—Mrs. J. F. LAMBORN, Bellefontaine, Ohio.

Nervous, weak, tired, worn-out women should take Mrs. Lamborn's advice and try Vinol for there are literally thousands of men and women who were formerly run-down, weak and nervous, who owe their good health to Vinol.

It is the medicinal, tissue building elements of the cod's livers, aided by the blood making, strengthening influence of tonic iron, contained in Vinol, which makes it so efficient in all such cases.

Duruy's History of the World

Today is the climax of a hundred years of preparation. Read in this timely, authoritative, complete, AND THE ONLY CONDENSED classic world history—of which over 2,000,000 copies have been sold in France alone—just what has taken place in the inner councils of Europe during the past one hundred years. Read in these entrancing pages how Russia has for years craftily been trying to escape from her darkness—to get a year-round open port, with its economic freedom.

Read how Germany and Austria, fearful of the monster's latent strength, have been trying to checkmate her and how they have pinned all in this last, supreme stake.

The Lesson of the Past

THIS master of the pen shows you the glory that was Greece's and the grandeur that was Rome's. He guides you through the Middle Ages, the picturesque old days of feudalism and the crusades; through the Renaissance up to contemporaneous history, which Prof. Grosvenor completes in brilliant manner. In the story of the past lie the secrets of today. And you will understand them better when you get the Review of Reviews for a year—for the Review of Reviews will give you a sane interpretation of the events that are taking place with such rapidity. It is not enough to read the daily news reports. Your ability to comprehend conditions, and to discuss them rationally depends on a true interpretation of the meaning and the “reason why” of events. In your mind you must bring order out of chaos—and the Review of Reviews will do it for you.

NOTED ORGANIST CHANGES

Rev. Wagner of St. Meinrad Transferred Owing to Ill Health.

St Meinrad, Ind., Nov. 2.—Hoping that a change of duties will benefit his health, the Rev. Vincent Wagner, O. S. B., for many years organist of St. Meinrad's abbey and one of the greatest masters of the organ in the United States, has been transferred to St. Boniface church in Evansville. It was at the solicitation of Father Vincent that the abbey several years ago installed an organ, which, for size, power, range and tone, equals that in the new Episcopal cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York. Since that time music lovers from every section have been coming to St. Meinard's to hear the wonderful instrument beneath Father Vincent's master touch.

The priest also is a composer of note. He was born at Ferdinand, Ind., forty-nine years ago. At Evansville he will act as assistant pastor of St. Boniface church and attend the convent of the Poor Clares. His successor at St. Meinrad is the Rev. Thomas Aquinas Schaefers, O. S. B., who has been the Rev. Mr. Vincent's pupil at the organ for the last several years.

ELECTION OFFICER TO JAIL

Registration Inspector at Terre Haute Must Do Five Days.

Terre Haute, Ind., Nov. 2.—Harry Barker, Taylorville registration inspector, was found guilty of contempt by Judge Cox in the superior court and was sentenced to five days in the county jail. After efforts to stay execution of the sentence by offering appeal bond had failed attorneys for Barker sought a writ of habeas corpus from Judge Charles M. Fortune, but this plan also failed.

Barker is charged with violating an order restraining Democratic officers from unseating the Republican watchers on registration day.

Escanaba Lover Tries Suicide.

Escanaba, Mich., Nov. 2.—Samuel Tastolvitch, driver of a milk wagon, shot himself twice through the stomach in an attempt to commit suicide. It is believed a love affair was the cause.

Montreal, Nov. 2.—The Hon. P. S. G. Mackenzie, provincial treasurer, dropped dead at his home.

CHICAGO SENDS OUT 250 INFECTED CATTLE

Federal Employees Find Diseased Herds at Adrian.

Adrian, Mich., Nov. 2.—Federal employes working here discovered four herds, including nearly 250 animals, infected with hoof and mouth disease, and the animals are being killed.

More than 300 cattle, 100 hogs and twenty-five sheep are included in the four herds. The cases are all from cattle recently shipped here from Chicago, from a week ago to Tuesday.

The Adrian Commerce club offered its headquarters to federal and state authorities as an office, and H. H. Haladay of the state board and Dr. Mouck of the federal force accepted the offer. The experts will remain here until the epidemic is stamped out. They believe they have now discovered all the infected cattle.

KAISER KEEPS UP BELGIUM ATTACK

Allies Report Retaking Positions Lost on Saturday.

7,683 GERMANS PRISONERS

French Official Report Claims That Much Ground Has Been Gained in Fighting in Last Few Days—German Claim of Attack on Verdun Officially Denied.

Paris, Nov. 2.—French and British troops recaptured Hollebeecke and Messines, near Ypres, Belgium, which were taken by the Germans Saturday. North of Ypres and also to the east the allies defeated the kaiser's troops and advanced to new positions of great importance.

Elsewhere in the same region several violent attacks by the Germans were repulsed by the French and British forces.

All along the battle line, from Nieuport, Belgium, to the frontier of Lorraine the Germans were decisively beaten, especially in the Argonne district, where they attempted to halt the march to the north of the French right wing army. The afternoon's war office communique says:

"There is nothing new on the front from Nieuport to Dixmude. The Germans have continued their violent attacks on the entire region north, east and south of Ypres. All these attacks have been repulsed and we have made slight progress to the north of Ypres, particularly to the east of this locality.

"Yesterday morning, forces of the enemy debouching from the Lys were able to capture Hollebeecke and Messines. Those two villages were recaptured later in the day by the vigorous counter attacks of the allied forces. On the rest of the front yesterday was marked by violent artillery fire and by some counter attacks of the enemy which were without result.

"To sum up, much ground has been gained by us in the course of the last few days. The struggle continues very violently in the Argonne where the Germans have made no progress.

Have Taken 7,683 Prisoners.

"According to statistics furnished by our rear guard, during the week of Oct. 14 to Oct. 20 we have captured 7,683 German prisoners. These figures do not include the wounded, who are being taken care of in our field hospital, nor the detachments who are on the way by foot from the front to the rear."

Denies Verdun Shelling.

It is officially announced by the war office that contrary to German statements that Verdun was destroyed, the town was never struck by German shells. Only one fort, the Fort Douaumont, was bombarded by the enemy at long range for twenty-four hours inflicting damage. The French soldiers still bar the road to Verdun. Reports of German victories in the Argonne are also false.

Will Arrest All Reservists.

London, Nov. 2.—The British government announces that all reservists of the enemy found aboard neutral vessels will be arrested.

Torpedo Ship Stays Afloat.

London, Nov. 2.—Unofficial reports place the number of lives lost by the sinking of the British cruiser Hermes by a German submarine at 44. The ship was struck about 8:15 Saturday. After remaining afloat for forty minutes she keeled over and sank. Several torpedo boats searched for hours trying to locate the German submarine but were unsuccessful.

Tsing-Tao's Fall Expected.

Pekin, Nov. 2.—It is announced here that the bombardment of Tsing-Tao by the Japanese and British war ships, assisted by the land forces continued all through Sunday and Sunday night. The fall of the fortress is expected momentarily.

French Bring Down German Flyer.

Paris, Nov. 2.—It is officially announced that French airmen, while returning from a five hour reconnaisance encountered two German aeroplanes. Captai Moris of the French army gave chase. Rifle shots were exchanged and one German aeroplane was brought down.

ADVANCE IS CLAIMED BY GERMAN EMBASSY

Statement Says New Ground Is Occupied in Belgium.

Washington, Nov. 22.—The following war bulletin was received at the German embassy here:

"Our army in Belgium yesterday occupied Ramscappelle, two miles east of Nieuport, and our attacks on Ypres are progressing. Zeandavoorde, Chateau Hollenieke and Wambeka have been stormed.

"Further south we also have gained ground to the east of Soissons. The enemy has been attacked and during the day chased from several strongly fortified positions to the north of Vaily, ten miles east of Soissons which was stormed during the afternoon and the enemy driven across the Aisne, suffeffring severe losses. We captured 1,000 prisoners and two machine guns.

"In the Argonne and to the west of Verdun several French attacks were repulsed with heavy losses for the enemy."

RUSSIA CALLS PORTE'S BLUFF

Turkey Given Until 6 P. M. to Decide Peace or War.

SULTAN'S ARMIES ARE MOVING

Islam's Ruler Fails to Reassure Britain Regarding Egypt and Suez Canal—Forts of Dardanelles May Be Fired on Today by England and France.

Rome, Nov. 2.—Turkey is bent on war, but intends to force a declaration from the triple entente powers. This is the summary of the present situation as gathered by correspondents of Roman newspapers in Sofia, Bucharest, Constantinople and Petrograd.

Coached by Berlin, the porte is obviously intent on assuming the attitude of a threatened, mistreated nation and desires, apparently, to avoid diplomatic blunders similar to those which placed Germany in the light of an agressor.

Porte Can't Keep Up Bluff.

With every opportunity to disavow the acts of her fleet in the Black sea and to reassure Great Britain as to the Suez canal and Egypt, the Turkish government remains silent while her squadrons and armies are hastening to take positions for attack. The situation is utterly impossible and can not endure another twenty-four hours without a complete backdown by the porte.

There would be no surprise here if the forts of the Dardanelles were fired on today by the British and French fleets which are reported by a Petrograd newspaper to be waiting merely for orders from their foreign offices to enforce satisfaction for the destruction of Russian property in the Black sea.

Turkey Given Until 6 p. m.

Russian newspapers assert, according to a correspondent of the Central News in Petrograd, that Russia has informed Turkey that she must decide by 6 o'clock whether she wants war or peace. If the latter, she must immediately disarm the Goeben and the Breslau and repatriate their German officers and seamen, making also reasonable amends for the acts of her fleet in the Black sea.

Apparently Turkey has treated the ultimatum with contempt. If so a declaration of war by Russia, Great Britain and France may have been transmitted already to Constantinople. Certain preparations by this country of which it is impossible to speak bear out the conjecture.

MURDER MYSTERY UNSOLVED

South Bend Police at Sea in Hazel Macklin Case.

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 2.—Quiet reigns in the police department regarding the Hazel Macklin murder case.

Chief of Police M. F. Kerr and Chief of Detectives John B. Kuespert both say that they have exhausted every possible clue and that they are no nearer the solution of the mystery than they were on the day the girl's body was discovered.

VILLA PREPARING TO MOVE ON MEXICO CITY

Carranza Has Mobilized Large Army to Resist.

El Paso, Tex., Nov. 2.—To enforce the retirement of General Carranza from the executive power in Mexico, General Villa has ordered his troops to prepare at once for a movement to Mexico City of the major part of his army, according to advices received by Villa officials in Juarez, who were instructed to send south all available transport material. Trains with extra engines are ordered concentrated at Torreon, Guadalupe, where Villa is making his present headquarters, and at Zatacetas. American shippers in El Paso were notified that their shipments could be accepted only subject to indefinite delay on account of the need of trains for military purposes.

Representatives of Villa in Juarez and El Paso declare that the contemplated troop movement is merely to take possession of Mexico City after the withdrawal of General Carranza, in order to prevent disorders.

To oppose Villa's southward advance however, it is understood that Carranza has 20,000 men at Leon under General Villareal, 8,000 at Tamaulipas under General Caballero, and many other troops at San Luis Potosi. There is a general belief here that armed conflict will be precipitated by any southward movement of Villa's army, inasmuch as Carranza has made his withdrawal wholly contingent on the removal of Villa from Mexico.

The Actor Headsman

He Conceived Himself to Be the Real Thing.

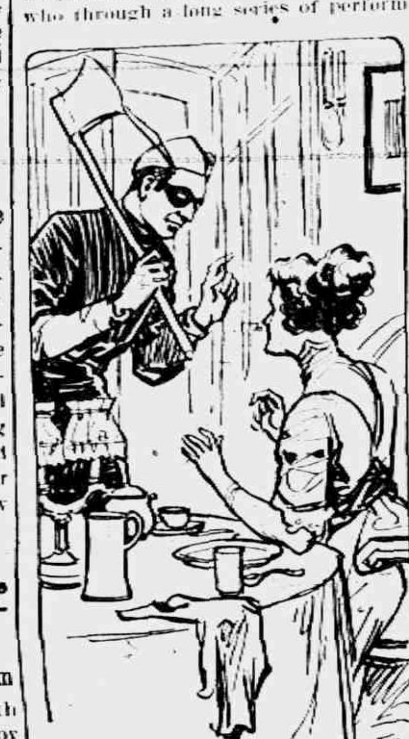
By F. A. MITCHEL

The tragedienne had played the role of Mary, queen of Scots, to a crowded house. Throughout the play the audience had sat spellbound, and during the last scene—that in which the queen is led to execution—not a sound was to be heard in the theater except what pertained to the melancholy procession on the stage. Then when the curtain fell just before the ax was supposed to fall on the beautiful neck resting on the block the hush gave place to long drawn breaths. The audience arose and passed out without the usual hum of conversation, but silently, as if the real tragedy of several centuries ago had been enacted.

The tragedienne entered her carriage at the stage door and was driven to her hotel. No one was about except the night clerk in the office and a callboy. The tragedienne passed up to her rooms, in one of which a table was spread with a few light dishes. Throwing off her wraps, she seated herself and partook of the meal.

It was summer, and the window doors were open, giving access to a stone balcony without. The tragedienne was in the act of lifting a morsel to her lips when she paused and listened. There was a sound on the balcony. Then a figure stepped into the room.

Though a man, tall, lithe, muscular, his tread was as noiseless as that of a cat. He was clad in tight fitting black and on his shoulder carried an ax. On his head was a conical cap, and his features were covered by a mask. Notwithstanding this concealment the tragedienne recognized John Coyne, who through a long series of performances had taken the part of executioner in the play that was making her famous.



"IT IS TIME FOR YOU TO PREPARE FOR THE BLOCK."

"Why, John! What brings you here at this time of night—without having changed your dress?"

"I have come to announce that it is time for you to prepare for the block."

Had the words not been spoken with evident seriousness the tragedienne might have fancied that the man was joking. Another feature conduced to make her think he was in earnest. It had been noticed that Coyne had recently been acting strangely. Some time before that he had asked to be given another part. The one he performed he had played so long that it had begun to pall on him. Night after night he had looked upon the queen of Scots enacting the scene leading up to the execution and had been under the influence of her impersonation of one whom he was about to behead. He had not given this as a reason for his desire to change; he had said that he was ambitious for a speaking part, whereas that of executioner was a silent one. But he had confessed to the tragedienne that while enacting the role he had felt himself to be a real headsman.

It was this that caused the tragedienne to shudder at the solemn manner in which he had announced what he had come for. Indeed, she caught at once at an explanation of his strange coming. He was mad; he was armed with an ax. She was alone, with no means of summoning assistance except by an electric button, between which and her stood the lunatic. Besides, there was no one she could call who was capable of protecting her.

Persons when cornered by one whose mind is unhinged, if they keep their own heads, naturally feel it necessary to humor the person they dread. The tragedienne saw at once that to oppose John Coyne would be to excite him. All she could hope for was to delay him that she might in the meanwhile conjure up some expedient by which to save herself.

"John," she said, "I ask but one boon of you. Before I pass to that bourn whence no traveler returns permit me to partake of meat and drink to gain strength to endure the ordeal."

"There is time for that," said Coyne, lowering his ax to the floor and supporting himself by the handle as he had done so often on the stage while waiting for her to speak her lines.

The tragedienne tried to resume her meal, but could not force herself to swallow the food. She drained a glass of wine and poured out another. This she did to give her strength to withstand the man who was bent on beheading her.

"John," she said by way of keeping her mind employed, "how did you come up here?"

"By means of a lattice."

"Could you go back the same way?"

"I could."

"I'll not be convinced unless I see you do it."

"That your majesty will never see. Before I go from here I'll sever that fair neck."

He said this with such determination that she saw her ruse had failed. She did not dare urge him. She was silent for a time, then tried another plan.

"When my neck is on the block, John, I wish you to strike with true aim. Let there be no bungling. To steady your arm drink a glass of wine."

She filled a goblet with the beverage and held it up to him with a pleading look. He refused it.

"If my arm is to be steady," he said, "the head that directs it must be steady. Would you have me put an enemy into my head to steal away my brains?"

Another ruse had failed. The tragedienne sat trying to force herself to eat, while the madman stood resting on the handle of his ax waiting for her to finish.

"John," she said, "would you not go to my cousin Elizabeth and make a last appeal for me?"

"I go to the queen of England to ask for mercy for your majesty! A headsman would not be admitted to audience, to say nothing of being granted the boon he would ask. Besides, so long as there is a queen of Scotland there is a barrier to a queen of England."

"Do you suppose that my cousin will, at my death, proclaim herself queen of the Scots?"

"You ask me questions of state, whereas I am but a headsman. Come; I am ordered to strike the blow that leaves Scotland without a queen. Hark! The bell is tolling. The hour has arrived."

Though she could not see his features for the mask, she knew that his eye was wild with insanity. He lifted his ax, and she feared that he might swerve it against her.

"The block!" she cried. "Where is the block? Blindfolded, I cannot see it."

Extending his hand, he grasped hers. She arose from the table and took a few steps under his guidance. Then it occurred to her to direct by will power the way they should go. She tried to lead him to the electric button that she might ring the bell, but she had not dominated him, and they moved rather toward the window. Stopping before it, she said:

"Is your ax sharp? Can you finish the work with one blow?"

"It will serve its purpose."

"Let me feel of its edge."

Gently taking the ax from him, she ran her thumb over its blade and was somewhat relieved to find that it came from the property room of the theater, was the one he had so long used in the performance and was made of wood. There was consolation in this, but the weapon, if not sharp enough to cut off her head, was sufficiently formidable to beat out her brains.

"What!" she cried. "Do you propose to sever my head from my body with that blunt instrument? I'll submit to death, but not to mangling."

She tossed the ax out of the window.

The actor, who thought himself a veritable executioner, was disconcerted at his loss. He went out on the balcony, bent over the stone balustrade and looked down for his ax. The tragedienne, quick as a flash, closed the glass doors and turned the latch. Since they were not to be opened from the outside the lunatic could re-enter the room only by smashing the glass. But the tragedienne did not wait for him to do this. She ran to the door of the room, down the stairs and on reaching the night clerk fell fainting on the floor before him.

When she had revived and told her story the clerk called an officer, and together they went to the scene of what had nearly been a tragedy. All was quiet there. The policeman opened the window. The balcony was deserted. Evidently John Coyne had descended by the way he came. A search was made for him, and he was found on the street muttering to himself incoherently. He was taken to his lodging and the next day removed to an asylum.

The evening on which this incident occurred was the last on which the tragedienne played Queen Mary. Her manager, who was loath to lose and have her lose the profit that would accrue from her marvelous impersonation, used all his persuasive powers to induce her to continue, but without avail. She said she had driven one man mad under the strain and declared that if she continued to play the part she would in time follow him to bedlam. This ended the argument, and the next play in which she appeared afforded her a more cheerful part.

She also made a change in her habit of eating her supper after the night performance. Since her escape from an actor headsman with a wooden ax she invariably has some friend to sup with her. If she fails to secure such a companion she goes to bed without a supper.

First Fiction Known.

The "Tale of Two Brothers," written 3,200 years ago by the Theban scribe Ennana, librarian of the palace to King Merenptah, the supposed Pharaoh of the Exodus, is the oldest work of fiction extant.

The tale was written apparently for the entertainment of the crown prince, who subsequently reigned as Seti II. His name appears in two places on the manuscript, probably the only surviving autograph signatures of an Egyptian king.

This piece of antique fiction, written on nineteen sheets of papyrus in a bold hieratic hand, was purchased in Italy by Mme. d'Orbiney, who sold it in 1857 to the authorities of the British museum, where it is now known as the D'Orbiney papyrus.

The Master's Voice.

"We have come," said the chairman of the committee, "to ask you to take this nomination. The city needs a man like you—strong, brave, self made, self reliant, owning no master, fearing no man."

The great man was visibly touched.

"I'll not deny," said he, "that your kind words have shaken my resolution. I trust that, if elected, I may justify your confidence and prove that I am indeed strong, brave, self reliant; that I own no master and fear no man. Suppose you wait a minute till I see if my wife will let me accept?"—New York Times.

Bulgarian Wives.

The wife of a Bulgarian rarely goes out without her husband, does not receive callers in her husband's absence, seldom appears in a restaurant, a cafe or a place of public amusement and never goes to any such place unless her husband accompanies her.—London Telegraph.

Just Like a Man.

"I don't understand George," said the bride.

"How so?"

"He told me to sweeten his coffee with a smile, which I did. And then he went and put in two lumps of sugar, anyhow."—Pittsburgh Post.

Wide Awake.

Fuddle—You know Stocks, don't you? Doctor—Yes, indeed. He is now a patient of mine. Fuddle—Pretty wide awake man, isn't he? Doctor—I should say so. I'm treating him for insomnia.

Antics of Volcanoes.

Curious antics are performed by volcanoes in action. On the island of Savii, in the Samoan group of the south Pacific, a fissure opened late one day in a cocoa plantation. An eruption took place immediately, devastating the whole island. After an eruption by Mount Taal in Luzon, Philippine Islands, five lakes, all of different colors, were left in the crater. Katmai, in Alaska, spread its volcanic dust around the world in less than a month. Mount Pelee thrust a rock plug through its crater nearly 2,000 feet high in a few days. The plug has since scaled until only the stump is left. Bandaisan, in Japan, blew its own head off and then belched streams of hot mud. When the island of Krakatoa, near Sumatra, was destroyed by volcanic shock the report of the explosion was heard 2,000 miles away. Cotopaxi, in Mexico, once broke loose so suddenly that the snow on its summit was scattered over the surrounding country as blocks of ice.—Kansas City Times.

A True Prodigy.

On June 27, 1725, died Christian Heinecken. He was only just five, but was already famous. Within a few hours of his birth he could talk and with sense. At ten months he could talk with ease on most subjects; at twelve months he was thoroughly conversant with the Old Testament and in a month made himself equally conversant with the New. Conversant with things sacred, he turned to things secular and at thirty months could answer any ordinary question in geography and history, ancient as well as modern, and when he was taken on a visit to the court of Denmark he conversed in Latin and French. He was then four. But nature had not balanced his prodigious mental digestion with a satisfactory bodily one, for his death at five years of age was due to a change in his food from milk to meat.—London Tatler.

Antioch.

Among the sacred cities of the east Antioch holds a high place, for it was here that the first Christian church was founded; it was, moreover, the center from which St. Paul conducted his missionary campaigns to convert the gentiles. In those days Antioch was a prosperous and thriving city, boasting of a population of half a million souls, while splendid Roman palaces and villas dotted the banks of the river Orontes, which flows through the town. Today, says the Wide World Magazine, it is a sleepy, old world place, occupying scarcely one-tenth of its ancient area, and certainly possessing none of its former glory. Nevertheless it is in many ways a delightfully quaint and picturesque eastern city, with narrow, tortuous streets, every other house in which appears to possess an architectural style of its own.

The Middle Finger.

Why is the middle finger of our hands so much longer than the little finger, and why is the thumb so stubby and short when it would be much more convenient if it were longer? One has to go way back not only centuries of time to find the answer to this "Why it is?" In the history of mankind's beginnings we find that before man saw even the dawn of civilization he used his hands as well as his feet to walk. Now if you will spread your fingers on the floor as if you were going to stand on them you will see what a good arrangement it was to have the fingers of different length; they give a well balanced support that fingers of equal length could not give. So it was to help prehistoric man and not man of the twentieth century that nature give us fingers of varying length.—Wisconsin State Journal.

Jam, From "Jamaica."

Jam seems to take its name from Jamaica and is comparatively a modern luxury. Galt in his "Annals of the Parish" states that the fashion of jam making was introduced into Scotland about 1760, when berry bushes were planted by "some of our young men that had been sailors coming from Jamaica," and the condiment was valued in the first place chiefly as "an excellent medicine for a sore throat." A writer in Hone's "Everyday Book," in 1826, deplored the fact that jam could not be "purchased at the shops as other articles of consumption are."—London Mail.

Pretty Tranquil.

"I would like to lead a tranquil existence," said the troubled man of affairs.

"About how tranquil?" asked his hard worked secretary.

The other thought a moment. "Oh," he answered, "about as tranquil a life as a germ leads on a $1,000 bill."—Chicago News.

Deduction.

"Tell me what you eat, and I will tell you what you are," boasted an amateur sage.

"Well, I ate a Welsh rabbit and a lemon pie last night."

"You're simply a fool."—Kansas City Journal.

The Past.

"The past is dead," exclaimed the poet.

"Not half so dead as some people would like it to be," said the philosopher.—Philadelphia Record.

Sympathy.

Juror—We acquitted him out of sympathy. Friend—For his aged mother? Juror—Oh, no; for having such a lawyer.—Exchange.

The things that never happen are often as much realities to us in their effects as those that are accomplished.

Fashionable Fainting.

In an old English scrap book is the following clipping, dated June 1, 1790:

No Woman can now discover her Distinction of true Breeding better than by a well-timed Faint at the musical Festival in Westminster Abbey. The Noble Managers fly from their Box to her Assistance. "Who is she?"—"Lovely Girl!"—"Feeling Creature!" instantly reverberates from one Aisle to another. But like all tonish Airs, this, it seems, is now descending to Inferior Ranks; for no less than three City Ladies were among the five female Fainters of Saturday last. To prevent therefore the further Extent of this fashionable Influenza the Managers, we learn, intend issuing Something like the following Notice, in Imitation of the Lord Chamberlain's Notice to the Courtly Dancers, viz:

"Such Ladies who intend to Faint at the next Abbey Performance, are desired to send their Names, Rank, and Places of Abode to Mr. Ashley, on or before 12 o'clock to-morrow; that a sufficient Proportion of Bars Rest may be set apart, in Order to give to the whole Performance the desired Effect!"

Desertion Discouraged.

Clarence King, the well known geologist, was a man of nerve as well as genius. One summer he was with a government expedition in the far west, and the men he was compelled to employ were, for the most part, ruffians and desperadoes. One night one of them deserted, and Mr. King knew that it meant a stampede if the deserter were allowed to go unpunished. He chose a companion, on whose silence he could rely, overtook the deserter and landed him in a convenient fort. The runaway had subsisted for three days on game, and his white horse was streaked with blood from the game hung on the saddle. Mr. King and his companion rode back, leading the crimson stained horse with all the deserter's belongings and said nothing. The men sent a committee to ask what had become of the deserter. "He is gone," said Mr. King impressively, "where anybody else who tries to desert will go too." The committee retired with a scared look, and there were no more desertions that trip.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

The Perfect Theater.

What some may be disposed to regard as the perfect theater exists in Moscow. A correspondent gives this picture of it: "A perfectly clean theater, with waxed floors and no dirt even in the gallery; a simple theater without plush or gilding, with hard but elegant seats even in the stalls; a theater where, before you enter, you must hang up your hat and overcoat on a peg and take off your overshoes; a theater of no clapping or laughter and to which you cannot be admitted if you are unpunctual and arrive after the action has commenced; a theater where, between the acts, you all leave your seats to walk and talk in the corridors and picture galleries of the theater or to sit and take coffee in the restaurant; a theater where the raising of the curtain afresh is not heralded by bells or knocks on the floor, but by turning the electric light off, first a quarter, then a half, then three-quarters."

Naval War at Spithead, 1545.

Actual naval warfare has been witnessed by a king of England at Spithead. In July, 1545, Henry VIII. watched from Southsea castle the attack by the French fleet upon the English fleet which was to have gone against the French shores. The two days of skirmishing had no decisive result, but the English fleet suffered one great loss. The Mary Rose, the pride of the navy, a four castled sixty gun ship of 600 tons, overweighted by the ordnance, suddenly heeled over at Spithead in consequence, says Raleigh, of "a little away in casting the ship about, her ports being within sixteen inches of the water." Some 600 men went down with her—about 100 fewer than those lost with the Royal George 237 years later.—London Graphic.

Bunyan and His Book.

The imperishable allegory on which Bunyan's claim to immortality chiefly rests, the "Pilgrim's Progress," was at least planned in jail, and probably the first part was written there. His "Grace Abounding," "Holy City," "Resurrection of the Dead," with other treatises and tracts, were also composed in the den where he languished twelve years. He obtained his full release through the intervention of the Quakers, and his name is included in the general pardon passed by the king in council in behalf of the prisoners of that persuasion bearing date of Sept. 13, 1672. Bunyan will perhaps always hold rank as one of the first among religious writers in the English language.—Case and Comment.

A Fighting Snake.

There is only one snake in the far east—that is, India, Burma, Siam and the Malay peninsula—that will always and at all times attack a man on sight. That is the hamadryad, justly more feared than any other animal that crawls. Fortunately for mankind, they are not common except in limited districts. They are so feared by all that the native shikarris or hunters will go miles out of their way to avoid the locality in which they are known to exist. The hamadryad will stalk a man as a tiger stalks his prey.—Medical Journal.

Quite Sufficient.

It was on a long railway journey, and for six hours he had sat opposite a solitary traveling companion, and not a word had been spoken. "Excuse me," was his opening, "but are you an Englishman?"

"Yes," rapped out the stranger.

"Oh, then I beg your pardon."

And after that the long journey was completed in silence.—London Answers.

Irreverent Youth.

Her Father—Young man, young man, would you take my daughter from me? You don't know a father's feelings at such a time: I must suppress them. Her Lover—Oh, that's all right. If you want to give three cheers, go ahead.—Topeka Journal.

Compensation.

Dentist (telling story)—I tell you, when I got to that point of danger I lost my nerve. Patient—Well, you've got mine, haven't you?—Baltimore American.

An Exception.

Friendly Adviser—My boy, lazy men's names are not written on the sands of time. Languid Youth—Oh, I don't know. Look at Rip Van Winkle.—Puck.

A man never feels the want of what it never occurs to him to ask for.—Schopenhauer.

Straw For Hats.

The greater part of the straw employed for making summer hats comes from Italy. To obtain suitable straw for this purpose the wheat is sown as thickly as possible in order that the growth of the plant may be impoverished as well as to produce a thin stalk.

The Italian wheat blooms at the beginning of June and is pulled up by the roots when the grain is half developed. Should it be allowed to remain in the ground a longer time the straw would become too brittle for its purpose.

Uprooted straws to the number of about five dozen, the size of the compass of the two hands, are firmly tied together in little sheaves and stowed away in barns. After that the straw is again spread out to catch the heavy summer dews and to bleach in the sun. When the product has been sufficiently bleached it is put into small bundles and classified.

The last step is to cut it close above the first joint from the top, when it is again tied up in small bundles containing sixty stalks each and is then ready for the market.—Chicago Herald.

"NEPTUNE'S DAUGHTER"

Annette Kellerman in "Neptune's Daughter" was seen at the Bradley opera house last night. A full house greeted the opening performance.

This masterpiece has gained for itself unusual popularity all over the country having been seen in all of the larger cities, also having a run of 16 weeks in Detroit last summer.

We hear nothing but favorable comments on all sides and these wonderful pictures certainly deserve all the good things that are being said about them. The scenic effect is not stage produced but the settings for these pictures were taken from the Bermuda Islands showing the governor's palace, the beautiful drives, the ocean front and the various other water scenes about the Bermudas.

The story is delightful and Annette Kellerman shows her ability as an actress, but most wonderful of all are her many marvelous feats in the water.

It is claimed that it took 1000 actors led by Miss Kellerman to produce these reels at a cost of $100,000 and that they were three months in preparing it. The play is in seven reels.

Those who have not seen Annette Kellerman in this play should certainly avail themselves of this opportunity as tonight closes the engagement.

Reciprocity.

With a feeling of sadness for the recipient, Dorothy finally concluded to pen a missive to her former fiance.

"Dear Harold," it read. "No doubt you are aware that I am to marry Mr. Anthony the coming month. I shall, therefore, appreciate it very much if you will burn all the little notes I sent you, assuring you of reciprocity in regard to those you sent me.

"DOROTHY BELL."

"Dear Dorothy—I shall certainly comply with your request, and at once. And, incidentally, as your new fiance also holds a few little notes of mine I shall count it a great favor should you be able to induce him to burn them with the rest.

"HAROLD SAWYER."

Soothing His Father.

The father of Sir Hubert Herkomer, the great painter, was a poor man, and the professor brought him from his native land in Germany to live with him in his beautiful house near London. The old man used to model in clay in his early life, and now that he had leisure he took to it again in his old age. But his hands trembled, and the work showed signs of imperfection. It was his one sorrow. At night he went to bed early, and when he had gone his son would go into the studio, take his father's poor work and make it as beautiful as possible. When the old man came down in the morning he would look at the work and rub his hands and say: "Ha! I can do as well as ever I did."

For the Good of the Lawyers.

"Say, pa," inquired young Sylvester Snodgrass, "what's a test case?"

"A test case, my son," replied the senior Snodgrass, "is a case brought into court to decide whether there's enough in it to justify lawyers in working up more cases of the same kind."—Ladies' Home Journal.

Old Time Beggars.

In the eighteenth century begging was a frightful nuisance in the German states. In Bavaria whole regiments had to be sent out to arrest and punish the numerous professional beggars, and Cologne, with a population at the time of only 40,000, had nearly 10,000 paupers.

DEATH PREVENTS WEDDING

Man Is Killed With Engagement Letter In His Pocket.

Battle Creek, Mich., Nov. 2.—Edward Sawyer, thirty-five years old, of this city, was crushed to death beneath the wheels of a west bound freight train in front of the Michigan Central station.

In his pocket was found a letter addressed to his mother, in which he declared that he intended to be married in two weeks. The name of the girl to whom he was engaged was not given. The officers have been unable to find anyone who saw the accident.

INCREASE IN POSTAL SAVINGS

The war in Europe is proving a big boon to postal savings in this country. From the very day hostilities opened across the seas postal-savings receipts began to increase by leaps and bounds and withdrawals fell off, a result quite contrary to the predictions of many well-informed persons who, in their imagination saw lines of feverish depositors at postoffice pay windows anxious to again return their savings to the boot-leg and body-belt depositories whence they came before intrusted to Uncle Sam. But the forecasters failed to reckon on the absolute confidence of the American citizen, regardless of the flag that first met his eyes, in the ability and purpose of the Government to carry out its obligations, not only among the nations of the earth, but with the humblest citizen of our land.

Two important results have followed: thousands of people, largely of foreign birth, accustomed to send their savings abroad, are now patrons of our postal-savings system; and enormous sums of actual cash have been released for commercial uses among our own people at a time when the need for every available dollar is pressing.

The growth of postal savings in the United States has been steady and healthy and the system has filled an important gap between the tin-can depository and the factory paymaster. On July 1, when affair were running smoothly here and abroad and the transmission of money across the Atlantic was safe and expeditious, there was approximately $43,000,000 of postal savings standing to the credit of about 388,000 depositors. Since then over $10,000,000 of deposits have been added and the number of depositors has increased enormously. This unprecedented gain is the more striking when it is considered that the net gain in the last three months is larger than the gain for the entire fiscal year 1914. Scores of offices have done more postal-savings business since the war has been going on than was done by them during the previous existence of the service. The increases are confined to no special localities, but have been felt in every nook and corner of the country. New York City alone made a gain in September of more than a million, while Brooklyn showed a relatively big increase. Chicago reported a larger gain in the past three months than for the previous twelve months. More than 7,000 new accounts were opened during the period, bringing the number of depositors in that city up to over 21,000.

The unexpected increase in postal-savings business has not only added greatly to the general administrative duties of the system, but has brought up many new and interesting problems which have called for the careful personal consideration of Postmaster General Burleson and Governor Dockery, Third Assistant Postmaster General. But their task has been lightened somewhat by the promptness of depository banks in furnishing additional security to meet the abnormal deposits. A number of the very largest banks in the country, which have heretofore declined to qualify as depositories for postal savings funds, are now among the eager applicants for them.

Words and Deeds.

An eminent bishop was advocating a more liberal loosening of the purse strings, and during a sermon one day told his congregation that at one time he sent an article to a paper, in which he said, "We pray too loud and work too little."

The intelligent compositor did a most satisfying job, and when it appeared it read:

"We bray too loud and work too little."

"I let it go at that," said the bishop. "The fact is, I believe the printer was right, and I never ventured to correct him."—National Monthly.

SOLVAY POCAHONTAS

Looks very much like other smokeless coals but there is a vast difference in the burning and lasting qualties.

The GENUINE POCAHONTAS is a tender coal, has a tendency to run to fine coal (the best of the coal is fine). We can buy all the Imitation Pocahontas that will stand up and look very nice with hardly any fine, but when you come to burn it then you begin to find fault with the clinkers, smoke and lasting properties.

The SOLVAY comes to you no more than one-quarter fine at $5.50 per ton delivered, if you want it screened $6.00 per ton.

If not delivered 50c per ton less.

If we could give you the same quality for less money we would be pleased to do so. You will have to try some Solvay to be the judge.

HALLOWE'EN

Rev. and Mrs. W. A. Rex entertained last Thursday evening with a Hallowe'en party, the guests being the Sunday School classes of Mrs. W. A. Rex, Mrs. J. J. Freeman, Miss Gladys Theilan and Elmer Slayton, each guest was in masquerade.

The parlors were decorated with cornstalks, pumpkins, black cats, Jack-o-lanterns and other Hallowe'en favors.

The first upon the program was a rope walk, the boys and girls each having a separate rope which they followed up and down, in, through, under, and out, of all sorts of boxes barrells and other impediments, mingled with shouts of laughter and screams when they met a tub of water, or fell over some stumbling block.

When order was restored a guessing contest followed as to who the several masked people were, Miss Mildred Shurtz winning the prize for guessing the greatest number. The prize for the best costume was awarded to Lester Waring. A peanut hunt was next in order Zella and Zorah Dickinson winning the prize for finding the most.

A regular Hallowe'en supper of sweet cider, doughnuts, apples, etc. was served later. Several musical selections were rendered through the evening. The house was in complete darkness the early part of the evening and each event was announced by the radiopticon.

TODAY IS ELECTION DAY.

The European War and foot ball will be laid aside for a short time today while the Nation goes to the poles to decide a few important issues that are up for disposal. The day is ideal for a big vote. The one noticeable feature of the campaign in this locality has been the lack of interest shown by the voters.

The state ticket is being claimed by both Republicans and Democrats while the Progressive forces also claim they will have many surprises in store for the people of Michigan. The congressional candidates in this distlict have been making a very active campaign and the result will be watched with interest. Good men are up on our county tickets and we are in hopes that some of the laurels will be be brought home to Tecumseh.

There is no reason why a full vote should not be polled and it is to be hoped that all voters will use their franchise.

ALMONER CIRCLE

The Almoner Circle have started in on their winter's work and would be very glad to have the co operation of their townspeople, as they have had in the past. EXCITING RUNAWAY

Clifford Head's Team Breaks Loose and Starts for Home.

ORRIN BEAVER'S HORSE KILLED.

Clifford Head's team was hitched on Chicago street Monday afternoon and becoming restless, broke loose and started for home. They were going along quite leisurely when they became frightened at something and started on the run. Just ahead of them near Adams Park was a horse and buggy driven by Frank Grady and owned by Orrin Beevers of Ridgeway. The team literally ran over and crushed the buggy to atoms and the horse was jerked back so suddenly that his neck was broken.

The driver escaped with several cuts about the head and was taken to Dr. Conklin's office for the necessary attention.

Those who saw the running team pronounce it a most thrilling runaway and wonder that more damage was not done.

THE NEW SUNBEAM STUDIO

L. P. Coller has moved his business from the old quarters over Wrights Drug Store to the music store lately purchased of E. M. Coller. An addition has been built on the rear of the store 16x33 with a fine sloping skylight on the east side, also a good light from the windows and door south. When finely settled in his new quarters, Mr. Coller will have a very neat and pleasant studio and the general public will appreciate its being on the ground floor. The music and picture department is also doing nicely and the change seems satisfactory in every way. We are sure that Mr. and Mrs. Coller will not regret the step they have taken, and that their many friends will favor them with their business.

GOVERNMENT ACTS IN REGARD TO HOOF AND MOUTH DISEASE

Late during the afternoon of Nov. 2d Sec'y Houston, of the department of agriculture, issued an order which places the following states under quarantine: Michigan, Indiana, Illinois and Pennsylvania. A restraining order was placed on all shipments from Ohio.

The disease has made its appearance in all of the four states above mentioned and it is hoped by the department that, by taking quick action, this dreaded disease may be controlled and stamped out.

The quarantine effects not only the shipments of live stock but prohibits all shipments of hides, skins, hoofs, hay, straw and fodder unless thoroughly disinfected.

Waylaying Mendelssohn.

After the London performance of "St. Paul" by the Sacred Harmonic society at Exeter hall in 1837 Mendelssohn's coach was waylaid at midnight on his way to Dover, but instead of being robbed the composer was presented with a silver snuffbox by a group of devotees. He had behaved with charming grace in an awkward incident. The London performance in question was to have been conducted by him. But the Birmingham festival was just due, and he was the great attraction there in the same oratorio. It was felt that his appearance as conductor in London at that juncture would detract from the importance of his visit to Birmingham. Mendelssohn saw the point and canceled his London engagement. But he attended the performance and was so winning to all concerned—audience, performers, officials—that he turned a disappointment into a scene of wild enthusiasm.

Old Roman Weddings.

Marriage in ancient Rome was a matter which was very often arranged by the parents of the bride and groom, and in those cases the bride and bridegroom were herded to the altar early, before they had a chance to grow up and become stiff necked and stubborn. The average age of the Roman youth who married at his father's behest was eighteen or twenty and of the girls thirteen to fifteen. It must be remembered, of course, that, like all the children of southern countries, boys and girls were more mature at an early age in Rome than in the countries to the north. There were two forms of marriage ceremony which might be performed—one, the "manus" service, by which the bride gave all her possessions to the groom, and the other, without "manus," in which the wife retained everything except what was a specific part of her dowry.

Outer Gardens of Paris.

The city of Paris has large and varied plantations just outside the fortifications, where flowers, exotic shrubs and trees are raised. One hundred and thirteen hothouses for plants, exotic shrubs and flowers are heated from one central heating plant, distributing hot water through a nine and one-half mile system of pipes. The object of this central heating organization is not, as the head gardener explains, with a view of economy. In fact, such a system is far more costly than separate installations for each group of hothouses, but is thus arranged to avoid the existence of a series of unsightly chimneys which would destroy the artistic effect of the grounds, which are more or less a public resort and show place.

A TECUMSEH CITIZEN COMES TO THE FRONT

Tells His Friends And Neighbors Of His Experience.

Every Tecumseh resident should read what a neighbor says. His testimony can be relied upon. Here are his own words.

W. C. Witherell, W. Potawatamie St., Tecumseh says: "I had acute pains across the small of my back and in my hips. Often, after stooping, a sharp twinge darted through my loins obliging me to lie down. I was laid in bed for several days and I believe that the trouble was caused by excessive stooping. When I learned of Doan's Kidney Pills, I got a supply at Wright & Son's Drug store and a few boxes restored me to good health. Since then whenever I have felt in need of a kidney medicine, I have taken Doan's Kidney Pills and the results have been very pleasing. I have had no reason to change, my high opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills, which I expressed some years ago."

NAMED ODD FELLOWS HEAD

M. F. Gray, Clerk of Michigan House, Chosen Grand Master.

FLINT, MICH. — What is conceded to have been the largest and one of the most successful conventions in the history of the Odd Fellows of Michigan came to a close with a public reception for the newly elected officers of the grand lodge and Rebekah assembly. It is estimated there were upwards of 3,500 visitors in the city during the four days of the largest convention that Flint has ever entertained.

The election of officers of the grand lodge took place in the afternoon and in pursuance of an established custom Myles F. Gray of Lansing was advanced from the office of deputy grand master to that of grand master.

ALLEGED ACCIDENT IS DECLARED A MURDER

Boys Say One Brother of Weak mind Shot Another.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH. — Harry Hughey, twenty-four years old, of Cedar Springs, was shot and so badly wounded that he died in Butterworth hospital in this city, where he was removed, a few hours later. The circumstances surrounding the shooting lead the authorities to scent a possible murder.

According to Condon Wallace, aged thirteen, and Ora Marvin, aged twelve, of Cedar Springs, they were walking in a swamp a mile north of the village, when Hughey and his brother John, burst from a thicket. As the four came together, Wallace declares, John Hughey yelled: "Do you want to see me shoot a rabbit?" Wallace replied that he did, and thereupon, he says, John raised his shot gun and aimed it at his brother and pulled the trigger. The charge tore a great hole in Harry's left side and he fell unconscious.

Wallace and Marvin then ran to the village for assistance and when they, with Dr. L. C. Annis, arrived, John told an incoherent story that while he and Harry were hunting a party of hunters from Grand Rapids shot at a dog and killed Harry. Later, according to Hughey's father, John admitted shooting Harry.

The Hughey brothers, according to Cedar Springs officials, are mentally unsound. More than a year ago Harry Hughey, the victim, placed some ties on the G. R. & I tracks at Cedar Springs in an attempt to wreck a freight train. He was found guilty, but because of his mental condition was placed on probation.

JEWELRY CAUSES NEAR RIOT

Police Called When Food City Couple Demand Stolen Goods.

BATTLE CREEK, MICH. — Police were called to quell a near riot when Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Hall attempted to recover jewelry stolen from them two weeks ago by Ray Spaulding, alias Ray Williams, until recently a Detroit chauffeur.

Spaulding stole the goods when helping the Halls move, and, according to an alleged confession, he sold diamonds valued at $200 to a local jeweler, Sam Mauer. Mr. and Mrs. Hall went to the jeweler and asked to see the goods. He complied. Mrs. Hall declared, "They are mine!" and started out of the store. Mauer locked the door and his brother notified the police. A mob formed outside the store. The Halls finally were given the jewels. Mauer threatens to sue, charging disturbance of the peace and assault and battery.

The Hallowe'en masquerade social held Friday evening at the home of H. H. Halladay and family was attended by about 125 who masked in every disguise imaginable. The house was decorated with the Hallowe'en symbols and presented a very ghostlike appearance when the maskers were received in the dim light of jack o'lanterns. The traditional Hallowe'en New England supper was served and a most happy evening enjoyed.

HOLLOWAY

Mrs. William Binns is ill.

Mrs. Adelia McIntyre left Saturday for Eustus, Fla., where she will spend the winter with her brother C. L. Lowe and wife.

Thursday evening Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Gittus entertained a company of friends in honor of their son Thos. Gittus and wife of Detroit who were recently married. One of the pleasant features of the evening was a fine supper which was served. Some very useful presents were received and a fine time enjoyed by all.

Dufferin's Odd Right Eye.

Sir Thomas Barclay in "Thirty Years Anglo-French Reminiscences" tells how Lord Lytton once asked Lord Dufferin what he thought was the source of his success in conducting intercourse with eastern princes. "My glass eye," said he. "When I had anything serious to negotiate I fixed them with the glass eye and watched them with the other." He may, of course, have meant his monocle, adds Sir Thomas, who also describes the effect of Lord Dufferin's odd right eye upon himself:

"When he spoke to you he dropped his monocle and fixed you with a steady gaze which made you feel as if you were giving yourself away to one whom no human sympathy would move. When you had finished what you were saying he would go on watching you with the same steadiness as if he were listening now to what you were thinking. You would wabble on the thin planks on to which in your confusion you had stepped, and then in the uncomfortable silence you would say something you did not intend, and Dufferin seemed to be waiting for that."

Failers Called Mental Defectives.

According to a Brooklyn physician, most accidents, as well as divorces and crimes, are in reality due to defective mentality. When a person gets caught in a maze of traffic and does not know whether it is better to go backward or forward he is, according to this doctor, a target for everything coming his way.

The indecision or lack of judgment leads to frequent accidents with the same individual. Of 112 persons who were questioned in four semiprivate hospitals forty-six had had previous accidents and thirty-two more than one such accident. Out of about 50,000 examinations of defectives there was scarcely a case that did not show many scars. Inquiry among eight automobile owners showed that the opinion commonly held of reckless chauffeurs among their fellows was that the reckless ones were not quite normal, or, as they phrased it, were "crazy."—New York World.

Linden Man Heads Genesee Schools.

Flint, Mich., Oct. 19.—John Reigle, superintendent of the Linden schools, was elected by the board of supervisors to succeed Horace E. Potter, who recently resigned as county superintendent of schools.

Two Hurt When Car Upsets.

Petoskey, Mich., Oct. 19.—When Carl Reed's touring car overturned north of Petoskey, Mr. Reed was internally injured, while B. L. Patterson, a Levering farmer, suffered a broken leg and arm.

MOTHERS OF DELICATE CHILDREN

Should Read the Following Letter—Mrs. Slack's Story About Her Child's Recovery Is Entirely Reliable.

Palmyra, Pa.—"Three years ago my little girl had black measles which left her with a chronic cough and so awfully thin you could count all her ribs, and she coughed so much she had no appetite.

"Nothing we gave her seemed to help her at all until one day Mrs. Neibert told me how much good Vinol had done her little girl, so I decided to try it for my little one, and it has done her so much good she is hungry all the time, her cough is gone, she is stouter and more healthy in color and this is the first winter she has been able to play out in the snow, coasting and snow-balling without any ill effects."—Mrs. ALFRED SLACK, Palmyra, Pa.

We know Vinol will build up your little ones and make them healthy, strong and robust, therefore we ask parents of every frail and sickly child in this vicinity to try a bottle of Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic without oil.

If we can induce you to try a bottle of Vinol as a body-builder and strength-creator for your child, and you do not find it is all we claim, we will return your money on demand.

War Increases Postal Savings.

Port Huron, Mich., Nov. 2.—The postal savings bank deposits in the local post office have increased rapidly since the outbreak of the European war. Deposits at the Port Huron office have been swelled by the funds brought to this city by foreigners residing at Sarnia, Ont. The fact that the foreigners are unable to send their savings abroad has also tended to increase the savings, it is said.

Manufacturer Is Dead.

Battle Creek, Mich., Nov. 2.—Chas. T. Allen, founder of the American and Union Steam Pump companies, former president and cashier of the city bank and more recently head of the Riteway company, died at the family residence, at the age of sixty-seven years. Mr. Allen has been a resident of Battle Creek for more than thirty years.

Pipe Causes Woman's Death.

Hastings, Mich., Nov. 2.—While Mrs Catherine Hart of Prairieville was attempting to light her pipe, the lighted match fell into her lap, igniting her clothing. Her son, working in the garden, heard her agonized screams and responded in time to tear the blazing garments from her body. Her burns proved fatal shortly afterwards.

Harvest Jubilee Closed.

Goshen, Ind., Nov. 2.—A three-day harvest jubilee meeting held by the Goshen Retail Merchants' association ended with a Mardi Gras carnival. The Leesburg band won the contest and the Cromwell Juvenile band also was awarded honors. An automobile parade was the signal feature of the day's program. The jubilee cost merchants here $2,500.

The Ideal Husband.

"Yes, I may say I have an ideal husband."

"An Apollo for looks, a Chesterfield for manners," rhapsodized the girl.

"Those things don't count in husbands, my dear. Mine stays fairly sober and brings most of his salary home."—Pittsburgh Post.

What Supports Them.

Bill—Switzerland is noted for its scenery, you know. Jill—Yes, but a person can't live on scenery. "Well, the hotel proprietors seem to be doing pretty well at it."—Yonkers Statesman.

Fashionable Service.

"My plate is damp."

"Hush," whispered his wife. "That's your soup. They serve small portions at these fashionable affairs."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A Lasting Impression.

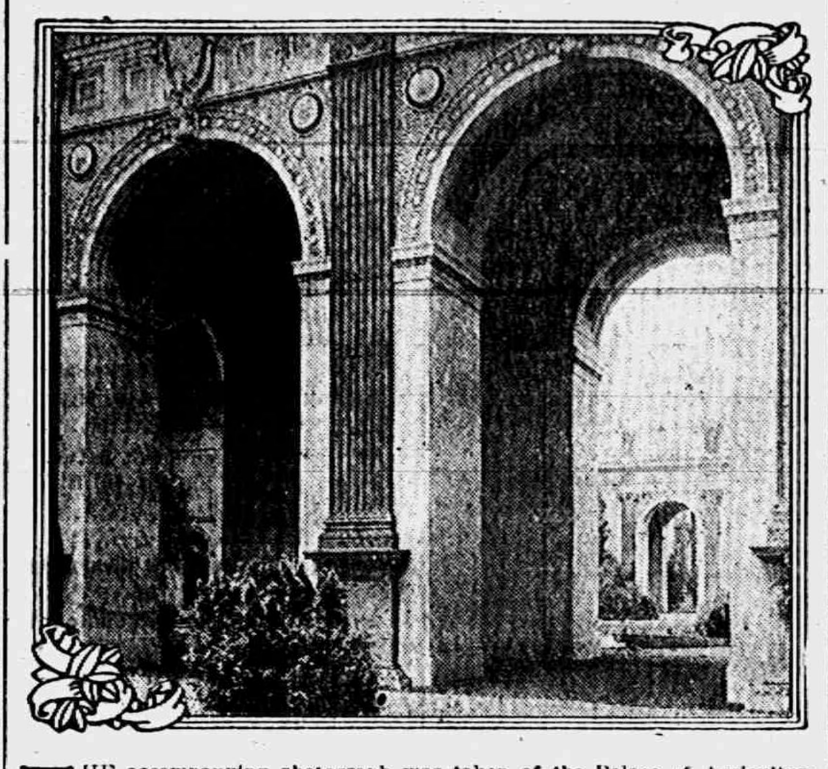
World's Greatest Agricultural Display to Be Made In Vast Palace of Agriculture at Panama-Pacific Exposition, San Francisco, 1915



THE accompanying photograph was taken of the Palace of Agriculture before the Esplanade was given the asphalt pavement which it now has. This facade of the Palace of Agriculture looks out upon the Marina and the waters of San Francisco bay.

The outside height of this building is ninety-six feet. It is 579 by 639 feet and was erected at a cost of $425,610. The opening at the left opens on the Court of the Universe, one of the architectural wonders of the entire Exposition.

WAR! What Is It All About?

HAS the whole world gone stark mad over a very foolish and trivial question? Are swords rattling, cannon rumbling, mailed armour glistening just because Russia wanted to show her love for the little brother Servia?

Tear aside the curtain of Europe's politics and see the grim and sinister game of chess that is being played. See upon what a slim, yet desperate, excuse the sacred lives of millions may be sacrificed. Read the history of the past one hundred years, as written by one of the greatest authorities the world has ever known, and learn the naked, shameful truth. Just to get you started as a Review of Reviews subscriber, we make you this extraordinary offer. We will give to you

FREE!
Duruy's History of the World
Four splendid cloth volumes, full of portraits, sketches, maps, diagrams

Today is the climax of a hundred years of preparation. Read in this timely, authoritative, complete, AND THE ONLY CONDENSED classic world history—of which over 2,000,000 copies have been sold in France alone—just what has taken place in the inner councils of Europe during the past one hundred years. Read in these entrancing pages how Russia has for years craftily been trying to escape from her darkness—to get a year-round open port, with its economic freedom.

Read how Germany and Austria, fearful of the monster's latent strength, have been trying to checkmate her and how they have pinned all in this last, supreme stake.

The Lesson of the Past

THIS master of the pen shows you the glory that was Greece's and the grandeur that was Rome's. He guides you through the Middle Ages, the picturesque old days of feudalism and the crusades; through the Renaissance up to contemporaneous history, which Prof. Grosvenor completes in brilliant manner. In the story of the past lie the secrets of today. And you will understand them better when you get the Review of Reviews for a year—for the Review of Reviews will give you a sane interpretation of the events that are taking place with such rapidity. It is not enough to read the daily news reports. Your ability to comprehend conditions, and to discuss them rationally depends on a true interpretation of the meaning and the "reason why" of events. In your mind you must bring order out of chaos—and the Review of Reviews will do it for you.

GERMANS CHANGE CALAIS RAID PLAN

Fighting Along Yser Covers Army Moves.

RUSS ORDERED AGAINST TURKS

British Ship Takes City Held by Turks—Turk Charge Is Mobbed by Russ Clerks—German Crown Prince Reported Shot—Austrians Report 2,700 Captured.

The French official announcement says the Germans would appear to have completely abandoned the left bank of the Yser below Dixmunde, and that troops of the allies have re-occupied points on the river.

The fortified town of Akabah in Arabia, on an arm of the Red Sea, has been shelled and occupied by the British cruiser Minerva.

A dispatch from Tiflis, capital of the Russian government of the same name in Transcaucasia, to Reuter's Telegram company, says: "It is announced that the emperor has ordered the Caucasian army to cross the frontier and attack the Turks."

A dispatch to the London Daily Mail from Cairo, Egypt, says: "The Turkish troops are reported near the border, which they have not crossed. The British are fully prepared to repulse an invasion, thanks to the measures taken by the government. The public in Egypt is calm and not even aware of a Turko-Russian rupture."

For several days rumors have drifted into Basel that Crown Prince Frederick William of Germany had been wounded in the fighting in France. These reports could not be verified, but travelers arriving here from Strassburg insist that they are true. They say the prince is seriously, though not mortally, wounded.

Rumors persist, says a Berne, Switzerland, dispatch, that a wounded man taken recently to the palace at Strassburg is the German Crown Prince.

A telegram from Budapest states that in the engagement fought near Turka, Galicia, the Austrians took 2,700 prisoners, among whom were many Tartars and Mongols.

LONDON — "Heavy fighting is reported along the River Yser, apparently to cover the movements of large bodies of troops moving in a southerly direction," says a Rotterdam dispatch to the Times.

"The Germans, with ammunition wagons and guns, marched from Bruges to Courtrai," the correspondent continues, "and there is pronounced activity among the British airmen.

"It is stated that three German officers were killed by a bomb dropped at Thielt, fifteen miles southeast of Bruges.

"Following the fierce attack against the British along the Yser the German main force is evidently making a desperate effort to break through to Calais by a more southerly route."

Seek Route to St. Omer.

The German objective appears to be the route to Saint Omer, in the department of Pas Calais, twenty-two miles southeast of the port of Calais.

A supreme effort under the personal direction of Emperor William to break the line of the allied armies is forecast in an official report of the battle in France and Belgium by the Belgium war office. This says that the German emperor is expected by his troops in South Flanders and that the chief point of attack is between Ypres and the River Lys.

Desperate Battle Sunday.

"One of the supreme battles of the war was waged on Sunday," says the correspondent of the Daily Mail in northern France, "when the Germans concentrated their forces in a mighty attempt to capture Ypres. Under cover of a furious cannonade they hurled vast masses of troops against the allies' lines.

"The imperial order was to take Ypres at all costs, and the German commanders were prodigal of life in their endeavors to fulfill this imperial command. The battle raged during the whole day, but Ypres is still untaken.

"It is reported that the German emperor himself was present to stimulate his troops."

Turk Charge Is Mobbed.

PETROGRAD — Charge d'Affaires Fareddin Bey, with the entire staff of the Turkish embassy, left for Finland. This action followed the emphatic rejection of the partial apology offered by the Turkish grand vizier for Turkey's warlike acts.

There was a sensational incident in connection with the departure. The embassy staff employes demanded payment of their wages, which were four months in arrears. Fareddin Bey declared that he had no money. The staff still insisted. Then the charge declared he would pay just as soon as the Turkish fleet took Odessa. This enraged the clerks, who were Russians, and they assaulted the Turkish representative, one of them striking him a violent blow on the jaw.

Logging Road to Tear Up Rails.

LANSING, MICH. — The railroad commission issued an order allowing the Manistee & Luther railroad to tear up its tracks. The road is a logging one, twenty-three miles long, and has been abandoned.

Albion's Population Increase.

ALBION, MICH. — The annual post office census, just completed under the direction of Postmaster Bangham, shows Albion has a population of 8,073, compared with 5,833 in 1910.

CHICAGO SENDS OUT 250 INFECTED CATTLE

Federal Employees Find Diseased Herds at Adrian.

ADRIAN, MICH. — Federal employes working here discovered four herds, including nearly 250 animals, infected with hoof and mouth disease and the animals are being killed.

More than 300 cattle, 100 hogs and twenty-five sheep are included in the four herds. The cases are all from cattle recently shipped here from Chicago, from a week ago to Tuesday.

The Adrian Commerce club offered its headquarters to federal and state authorities as an office, and H. H. Haladay of the state board and Dr. Mouck of the federal force accepted the offer. The experts will remain here until the epidemic is stamped out. They believe they have now discovered all the infected cattle.

WAR FEVER AFLAME IN ITALY

Army Mobilizing to Strength of 1,000,000 Men.

ROME — Italy is aflame with war fever, the people clamoring for immediate action to protect the nation's interests in the crisis brought about by Turkey's opening hostilities. The situation is acute by reason of the resignation of the cabinet, which was unable to decide upon a military program. Demonstrations in favor of war took place in many cities and in some troops had to be called out to keep the excited populace in order.

Sentiment throughout Italy favors England, France and Russia. The country's most vital stake is the maintenance of the balance of power along the Adriatic, which would be seriously threatened if either Austria or Turkey were to attempt to seize Albania. The army is now mobilizing to a strength of 1,000,000 men and the fleet is ready for action.

Drug Store Liquor Kills 12.

BRISTOL, VT. — Twelve persons have died here as a result of drinking liquor which contained wood alcohol. All the victims, according to the authorities, purchased the liquor at the drug store of D. A. Bisbee, who is under arrest. Feeling in the town ran high and the sheriff, fearing violence might be attempted, removed Bisbee to the county jail at Middlebury.

QUARANTINE ON CATTLE ORDERED

Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Pennsylvania Isolated.

BAR FOOT AND MOUTH DISEASE

Federal and State Officials Establish Ban in Dreaded Sickness—Shipments to Ohio Restricted—Live Stock Will Be Received in Chicago Yards For Immediate Slaughter.

WASHINGTON. — The quarantine of live stock on account of outbreaks of foot and mouth disease has been extended to cover the entire area of the states of Michigan, Indiana, Illinois and Pennsylvania. In addition restrictions have been placed upon shipments of stock from Ohio. The provisions of this quarantine are practically the same as those previously announced for a few counties in Michigan and Indiana. No cattle, sheep or swine can be shipped from these states in interstate commerce and all fodder and animal products of every sort which might possibly convey the disease must be thoroughly disinfected.

The quarantined states are not only prohibited from shipping cattle to uninfected areas but they can not even send shipments of stock from one infected area to another.

Union Stock Yards Quarantined.

CHICAGO — The Union stock yards was declared under a quarantine so drastic that it would have virtually tied up the industry for a week or more. Shortly after 1 p. m., however, the partial quarantine of last week was restored with full power to receive shipments of cattle, but none to ship out live cattle to other points.

The explanation of the menace that suddenly rose before the yards and then as suddenly disappeared was asserted to lie in the fact that the sweeping quarantine order was issued before Washington had been notified. It was said that the long distance telephone was used and the order was rescinded.

For Slaughter Only.

Dr S. [illegible] Bennett, who signed the original order, also signed the second, which was as follows:

"Until further notice cattle, sheep and hogs will be received at the Union stock yards for slaughter only."

It also was signed by O. E. Dyson, state veterinarian in charge, the state live stock commissioners, B. J. Shanley, Dr. [illegible] Brown and R. M. Batterson. Dr. [illegible] who is the United States [illegible] inspector in charge, signed after his name "co-operating with the state of Illinois."

The rescinding of the order came as a great relief to the whole stock yards industry, thrown into something like panic by the original order of quarantine.

While the stock yards officials had remained optimistic in their statements given to the public, it was apparent the quarantine came as a bitter blow, especially in view of the prosperity promised by the large orders from some of the nations involved in the European war.

Meant Immediate Slaughtering.

The closing order meant the slaughtering of every animal at the yards, and a strict order that no more be received there until permission was given by the government officials.

The quarantine was set for a week, and during this time the stock yards pens were to be cleaned and disinfected, 1,000 men starting to work on the job tomorrow morning.

A shortage in the meat supply, while considered unlikely by local packing officials, now is entirely averted. The flurry in prices due to so radical an action also is avoided.

TURKS TRAPPED. SINKS SHIPS

Cheat Allied Fleet of Capture In Tohesme Bay In Asia Minor.

AMSTERDAM, via London — A dispatch received here from Constantinople by way of Vienna says:

"According to reliable news an Anglo-French fleet entered Tohesme Bay, Asia Minor, about forty miles west of Smyrna, where the small Turkish gunboat, Berk Reis, and the Turkish steamer, Kanilli-Adda, were anchored.

"The commander of the Turkish gunboat sank the steamer and blew up his own vessel to prevent their capture by the allied fleet."

POPE AWAITS GREAT BATTLE

Peace Encyclical Not to Be Issued Until Decisive Clash Has Occurred.

ROME — The forthcoming encyclical on peace is now ready, having been translated from the Latin. It has been submitted to several cardinals and fully approved, but it will not be issued until a decisive battle has been fought, since Pope Benedict XV. fully realizes that it is useless to appeal for peace while the efficiency of the belligerents is undiminished.

Nip Plot to Blow Up Canal.

WELLAND, ONT. — Secret service men employed by the United States government have discovered a plot to blow up the Welland canal and the Toronto, Hamilton and Buffalo railway tunnel at Hamilton, according to information received by the dominion government. The canal has been under guard of dominion troops since the outbreak of the war.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional treatment, Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Spring Floods

They Are Full of Danger, but May Lead to a Steady Flowing Stream.

By DONALD CHAMBERLIN

When Bob Elliot became engaged to Kate Winston society smiled. Bob was known to be in a chronic state of betrothal, and Kate was considered the queen of flirts. Everybody supposed the affair between them to be a game on both sides and wondered which would come out winner. It was not believed that anything very serious had resulted from the escapades of either, for each had the reputation of getting out of their entanglements without being very much blamed.

Just what was the real intent with reference to each other of Bob Elliot and Kate Winston they alone knew. There was the usual skirmishing, with a proposal and an acceptance. Quite naturally after her betrothal Kate thus addressed her mate:

"I am much concerned, Bob, about this engagement between us. You see, it is a very serious matter for a girl like myself, who has not yet seen much of the world, to give her heart to a man. I have been told that you have been engaged many times, and if this is true you must have caused a great deal of distress to a number of innocent girls."

"How about the distress those innocent girls have caused me?"

"I thought you said I was the only girl you ever loved."

Mr. Elliot, being thus thrown on his beam ends, remained silent. He had nothing more to say in his defense.

"I don't think," continued Miss Winston, "that I should feel safe in announcing this engagement before sufficient time has passed to determine whether you are trifling or"—

"It's the real thing."

"Your flippant way of speaking of it is not encouraging."

"To tell the truth, Kit, I am as much concerned as to whether this is one of your butterfly flightings or whether you are going to stop where you are."

"I THINK THIS AFFAIR HAD BETTER STOP RIGHT HERE."

"What do you mean?" bristling.

"I mean that it's no use for the pot to call the kettle black."

"Am I to infer from that slangy expression that I have any such reputation as you?"

"Not at all; my reputation is all right."

There was a pause during which Miss Winston seemed to be turning the matter over in her mind. Finally she said:

"I think this affair had better stop right here."

"Come, come, sweetheart," taking her hand and putting an arm around her waist. "Suppose we stop fencing and speak the truth. We are neither of us supposed by the world to be immaculate in the matter of heart hunting. Doubtless the devil in this case is painted blacker than he is, but where there is so much smoke there must be some fire. I have told you that I love you, that you are the only girl I have ever loved, and I mean it. Nevertheless since you have heard things to my discredit you should be fortified against their being brought up against me in future. I confess I have heard the same of you."

"Falsehoods!"

"Certainly, all false from beginning to end. Now, in order to clear out the brambles from the path before us so that we may walk on—well, on roses"—

"That's much nicer than your other similes."

"Which one, for instance?"

"The pot calling the kettle black."

He kissed her and proceeded.

"In order to clear away this accumulation of falsehood on both sides suppose we confess all our escapades from start to finish."

"That's a splendid idea."

"Well, suppose you begin."

"I have nothing to confess."

"You have spoiled my plan."

"You would not have proposed such a plan if your conscience had been clean."

"Kate!"

"What?"

"Why don't you study law? You'd make a far better lawyer than nine-tenths of the men."

"We women don't need to study law. We are born with enough law in our heads to serve our own purposes, and we don't want any more."

"Then you decline to meet me halfway, confessing your past transgressions as well as I?"

"No; I'll confess all, but I warn you that my sins are so slight that they are not worth confessing."

"I must be the judge of that."

"Oh, go on."

"Well, to begin at the beginning, there was that Miss Fitzhugh from Virginia. She was engaged to an army officer in the Philippines. She undertook to make me believe that she had made a mistake, which she didn't find out till she met me."

"The horrid thing!"

"There was nothing in that, was there?"

"Of course not. Go on."

"Then followed Helen Blake, who had driven a country lad to drown himself. You wouldn't have had me hang myself for her, would you?"

"I wouldn't mind if you had driven her to commit suicide herself."

"That's two. A widow got hold of me with the intention of marrying me, whether I would or not. Not being in a marrying mood, I demurred. These are the only cases worth mentioning. It only remains for you to give me a 'clean bill' and proceed with your own record."

"I'm awfully glad to know that there is nothing in these reports after all, and I assure you there is no more in those about me. So you may feel perfectly satisfied."

"Just so, but I think I'd feel better if I had a detailed account of each one of them from your own sweet lips."

He kissed the aforesaid lips several times, which doubtless brought forth the confession that followed:

"Ned Bissell was the first. He played tennis with me. When we had played awhile we sat down on a bench. There was no one else there and—well, he did what he had no right to do—he kissed me."

"What did you let him do that for?"

"How could I help myself?"

"How many times did he kiss you?"

"How many? Why, several times."

"A dozen?"

"I suppose so."

"No matter, since you couldn't help it. Was that all there was to that affair?"

"Yes."

"Didn't he pursue you so that you were obliged to go away for a season?"

"Well, yes, he did cut up a good deal."

"Never mind any more about him. How about that young lawyer?"

"There was nothing in that to my discredit."

"Didn't you force him to go away for a postgraduate course?"

"I didn't do any such"—

"Hold on. I knew an intimate friend of his who told me the whole story."

"It seems that you are making my confession, not I."

"Well, go on and make the rest of it yourself."

"There's only one more of any importance."

"Who is that?"

"Dick Canfield."

"If what I have heard about his case is true it was a very important one."

"What did you hear?"

"Never mind that, sweetheart. He got over it in time and is engaged. But he came near putting a blight on you that would have stuck by you through life."

There was a solemn silence between them, during which she snuggled closer to him.

"Sometimes I think," she said at last, "that when we get older we will realize the dangers through which we have passed in youth and wonder how we could have acted so. Then we'll be very careful and not do so any more."

"But we won't have any fun."

"I think this is a good time for us to reform, don't you?"

"A splendid time; we won't be tempted any more."

"Of course we won't. We'll be wrapped up in each other and won't care enough for any one else to wish to flirt. I'm glad we have made these confessions. You see, it's an even thing between us. You have been as bad as I."

"I thought you exonerated me completely."

"Did I?"

This dialogue took place between 10 and 11 o'clock at night. At 2 in the morning Mr. Elliot, after a dozen kisses in the drawing room, a dozen in the hall and a dozen at the door, took his departure. He wondered then how he had been able to tear himself away. Ten years later he wondered how he could have spent seven hours with one girl and what they had been talking about.

After her confession Miss Winston went to bed feeling that she had thrown off the recklessness of youth, that her sins were forgiven and that she would never do any more flirting.

As for Mr. Elliot, he had known much more of his fiancee's record than she had confessed. It didn't trouble him a bit so long as he was not one of the sufferers. For them he had no sympathy whatever. It is a matter of happy record that these two sinners were blessed—far more blessed than they deserved. Their wedded life was happy, and they dearly loved each other and their children.

All of which goes to prove that those who safely pass the dangers of youth may do well later on.

NEWS OF THE STATE

Train Hits Auto, One May Die.

SAGINAW, MICH. — A north bound Michigan Central passenger train from Jackson to Bay City struck W. A. Gunn's automobile at Bristol street crossing and William T. Lewis, thirty-seven years old, blind music teacher, who is a member of the faculty at the state employment institution for the blind here, suffered a fractured skull and will probably die.

Driver Delays, Switchman Crushed.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH. — Charles Briggs a switchman, stood on the running board of his slowly moving engine and gesticulated wildly to the driver of a brewery truck crossing the track a few yards ahead. The driver misinterpreted Brigg's antics, slowed down and a collision followed. Briggs was caught and crushed. He died a few hours later.

Shoots Former Landlady.

HARBOR SPRINGS, MICH.—Clinton Case, who formerly boarded at the home of Rudolph Hahn, returned for some clothes and, it is alleged, Mrs. Hahn refused to let him have them. She fled to a neighbor's home and Case followed and shot her, the bullet entering the right side.

She is in a critical condition. Case was jailed.

Manufacturer Is Dead.

BATTLE CREEK, MICH.—Chas. T. Allen, founder of the American and Union Steam Pump companies, former president and cashier of the city bank and more recently head of the Ritteway company, died at the family residence, at the age of sixty-seven years. Mr. Allen has been a resident of Battle Creek for more than thirty years.

Pipe Causes Woman's Death.

HASTINGS, MICH. — While Mrs. Catherine Hart of Prairieville, Mich. was attempting to light her pipe, the lighted match fell into her lap, igniting her clothing. Her son, working in the garden, heard her agonized screams and responded in time to tear the blazing garments from her body. Her burns proved fatal shortly afterwards.

MICHIGAN STATE S. S. CONVENTION

54th Annual Meeting to be Held in Adrian Nov. 11, 12, 13.

Convention theme, "Jesus Only."

Convention text, "For I am determined not to know anything among you, save Jesus Christ, and Him Crucified." 1 Cor. 2:2.

The State Sunday-school convention of Michigan will meet in Adrian next week and a very interesting program has been prepared. These meetings will be held in the various churches during the day and in the opera house in the evening.

The musical part of the program is given by Tullar and Meredith with noted speakers from all parts of the state, also a number from other states. This convention promises to be one of the great events of the year and every one who can, should attend.

One of the great features will be the convention parade which occurs Friday afternoon, Nov. 13. This is the first time this feature has been presented at the state convention in Michigan. A strong parade committee has been appointed with additional members from all the Sunday schools throughout the entire county to co operate in making the parade a great success. It is expected that fully 2000 people will be in line. In addition there will be special floats and banners of the most unique and interesting character. It will be a sight worth going miles to see. Nothing like it has ever taken place in Lenawee county. Schools of this community are urged to send large delegations for this parade on Friday. Full particulars may be obtained from A. E. Metler, Adrian, or from the local pastors and Sunday-school superintendents.

"A Splendid Charge."

There will be the full complement of backs broken in two, of arms twisted wholly off, of men impaled upon their bayonets, of legs smashed up like bits of firewood, of heads sliced open like apples, of other heads crunched into soft jelly by the iron hoofs of horses, of faces trampled out of all likeness to anything human. This is what skulks behind "a splendid charge."—Charles Dickens.

RESEARCH CIRCLE.

About forty members and friends of the Research Circle met at the home of Mrs. Earl Updike, Tuesday evening to hear the reports of the delegates. Mrs Andrew Taylor, delegate to the state federation, gave a very interesting report of that meeting and Mrs Smeltzer read her report of the county federation held here last April.

After the reports a school was opened with Mrs. Belcher as teacher. She conducted it in a very pleasing manner, winning the love of all her pupils, among whom were Mary Jane, Susan and mischievous Bub who made things lively.

At the close of the morning session the dinner pails were opened and the contents eagerly devoured as is usual with school children.

Edna Taylor sang in a pleasing manner "I Want to Go Back to Michigan."

Next Tuesday the Circle meets with Mrs. Wm. Westcott.

DOES IT PAY GOOD DIVIDENDS?

There will be an address at the M. E. church Sunday morning by Rev. Carl Critchett who spent six years in the Hermit Nation upon the economics of Foreign Missions viewed from the standpoint of his Korean experiences.

CARL CRITCHET

SIX YEARS AMONG THE TOP-KNOTS!

Rev. Carl Critchett will address the people of Tecumseh in the Methodist church on Sunday evening on the subject of Korea, illustrating the life and customs of the people and their religious life with the stereopticon showing scenes taken with his own camera. Everyone invited to attend.

FROM DETROIT, MICH., TO DETROIT, FLA., AND RETURN

W. J. Brewster, Detroit, Mich.

W. J. Brewster of Detroit was in Tecumseh Wednesday with a Ford car which attracted quite a little attention. He is advertising various wares pertaining to the automobile.

This Ford left Detroit, Mich., on Oct. 8, 1913, for Detroit, Fla., equipped with Brictson Tires, The Dependo Gasoline Gauge and Pederson Oiling System.

Arriving at Birmingham, Ala., for Thanksgiving and Jacksonville, Fla., for the Holidays and Detroit, Fla., on February 20, 1914.

Returning to Detroit, Mich., on July 3rd with Florida air, this same Ford again left Detroit, Mich., Nov. 3, 1914, for Detroit, Fla., the farthest town south on the main land in the United States. This time equipped with a new set of Brictson tires with a written guarantee of 10,000 miles against a puncture or blow out.

Harris oil and grease were used exclusively on this long trip.

This car is now equipped with the Bar-Bar shock absorbers and Grus Spring Leaf Oiles, making it ride as easy as a $5,000 touring car, Monarch dashboard oil gauge. Dependo Gasoline Saver, H. L. Windshield Ventilators, etc.

This car has up to the present time covered 8025 miles.

NOTICE

Office of the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railway Company.

Cleveland, Ohio, October 15, 1914.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that a special meeting of the stockholders of The Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railway Company has been called and will be held at the company's principal office in the City of Cleveland, Ohio, on Tuesday, the 22nd day of December, 1914, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, eastern time, for the purpose of considering and voting upon the adoption and ratification of an agreement dated April 29, 1914, for the consolidation of the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad Company, the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railway Company, Geneva, Corning and Southern Railroad Company, the Terminal Railway of Buffalo, the Dunkirk, Allegheny Valley and Pittsburgh Railroad Company, Chicago, Indiana and Southern Railroad Company, Detroit and Chicago Railroad Company, Detroit, Monroe and Toledo Railroad Company, the Northern Central Michigan Railroad Company, Kalamazoo and White Pigeon Railroad Company and the Swan Creek Railway Company of Toledo.

By order of the Board of Directors.
DWIGHT W. PARDEE, Secretary.

We see by the Onsted News that Miss Ruth Daniels reached Liverpool Saturday, Oct. 17, just a week from New-York. The passengers were not allowed to land until two days later, as 10,000 Indian troops were disembarked first.

Finance committee reported favorable on bills as read. Motion made and supported that orders be directed drawn for several amounts

Following resolution was offered and adopted:

Resolved, that, inasmuch as a new and complete set of books have been opened for the Village of Tecumseh, the Finance Committee together with the Clerk and Treasurer inspect and audit said books and report at the next regular meeting whether or not in their opinion, the present system is suitable to the needs of the village, and, if not, make such recommendations for changes as they may deem advisable when reporting at the next regular meeting.

Following resolution was offered and adopted:

Resolved, that the Clerk of the Village of Tecumseh, and his successors in office, strike a trial balance with the Treasurer of said Village, and his successors in office, on the first day of each succeeding month hereafter, commencing with December 1, 1914 and, at that time and each month thereafter turn over to said treasurer all funds then in his hands, taking the Treasurer's receipt therefor: and, that at the first council meeting of the month, the Clerk render a synopsis of the trial balance showing the condition of each fund as shown by the monthly trial balance.

Motion made and supported that we do now adjourn. Motion carried.

F. G. HEESEN,
Clerk.

FIELD SPORTS

When you keep a boy interested in football, baseball, tennis, and the like, you lessen the chanees that he will get interested in things not so good for him.

The Youth's Companion, since its enlargement, give generous space to this matter of athletic training, and gets the best coaches in the country to write for it.

How to practice to become a first-rate pitcher, how to train for a race, how to learn the newest strokes in swimming—these and a hundred other topics of the greatest interest to boys—to girls, too, for that matter—are touched upon in this important department of The Companion

And this is only a small part of the service which The Companion renders in any home which it enters. It has points of contact with a hundred interests

If you do not know The Companion as it is to-day, let us send you one or two current issues free, that you may thoroughly test the paper's quality. We will send also the Forecast for 1915.

Every new subscriber who sends $2.00 for the fifty-two weekly issues of 1915 will receive free all the issues of the paper for the remaining weeks of 1914: also The Companion Home Calender for 1915.

AS TO SOUP

It is estimated that there are about 300 different kinds or varieties. They make and economical and nutricious dish. Some prefer the shin bone for soups, as it contains the marrow and adds strength and thickness. Others prefer a cut from the neck.

SOLVAY POCAHONTAS

Looks very much like other smokeless coals but there is a vast difference in the burning and lasting qualities.

The GENUINE POCAHONTAS is a tender coal, has a tendency to run to fine coal (the best of the coal is fine). We can buy all the imitation Pocahontas that will stand up and look very nice with hardly any fine, but when you come to burn it then you begin to find fault with the clinkers, smoke and lasting properties.

The SOLVAY comes to you no more than one-quarter fine at $5.50 per ton delivered, if you want it screened $6.00 per ton.

If not delivered 50c per ton less.

If we could give you the same quality for less money we would be pleased to do so. You will have to try some Solvay to be the judge.

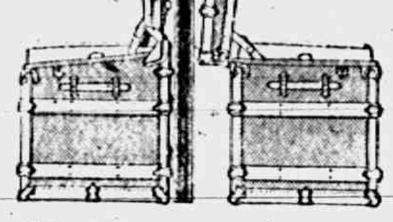
DUGUID WALL TRUNKS



It is hardly necessasy to mention the good points of this trunk. Its additional strength on account of the heavy corner hinges and three-ply veneer lumber and convenience as you can open it without moving out from wall, makes the large sale we have on this make of trunk. Ask to see them.

A SAFE BANK

We shall consider ourselves highly honored to number as customers those whose first requirement of their Bank is conservatism. From our foundation we have been rigidly and unswervingly conservative in the conduct of our affairs. We have been willing to grow slowly in order to sacrifice no element of strength in the process of growth. Rapidity of growth is no evidence of stability. A stalk of corn attains to a greater growth in one year than an oak sapling does in five—but there are oaks that have endured for a thousand years. Whatever may militate against absolute safety to our depositors this Bank declines.

Men do not have bank accounts because they are successful, but they are successful because they have bank accounts.
